TROOP D HELD UP TILL MONDAY

JOY OVER POSSIBILITY OF EARLY ENTRAINING TURNED TO GLOOM BY LATE ARRIVAL OF TROOP HORSES

MEN WERE COUNTING ON GETTING UNDER WAY AT AN EARLY HOUR THIS MORNING, BUT DISAPPOINTMENT IS WELL TAKEN.

CAMP FIELDER WILL BE BUSY PLACE TOMORROW

Second and Third Regiments May Get Orders to Report There But at the Present Time Troop D is "Home"—Troopers Began to Break Camp Early Yesterday Morning—Railroad Officials Mum as to Route.

Sea Girt, July 1.—Non-arrival of horses for Troops D of Plainfield and B of Red Bank upset the plans for the departure of the last units of the New Jersey troops for the Mexican border today. The Fourth Regiment of Jersey City left this morning according to schedule, as did the Signal Corps, but the non-arrival of mounts for the troops unset the plans to have those organizations go this morning.

It was thought at first that they would be forwarded without horses, being given their mounts when they arrive in Texas, but this was changed yesterday afternoon, when Adjutant General Sadler made arrangements with Governor's Island to have 150 horses shipped in this morning and rent on with the organizations without the formality of a thorough examination. The necessity for getting these horses properly transferred caused the delay, the troops having been originally ordered to leave at 7 this morning.

With the departure of the troops, Camp Fielder will come to an end, at least for the present. It may be that later the Second and Third regiments will come here, but no orders have as yet been issued for the mobilization of those troops, and the international situation is believed by the officers here to forstall the calling of these commands. If a volunteer army should be raised New Jersey's quota would undoubtedly be drilled here also.

The final work of breaking camp began almost before the last train bearing the Fifth Regiment pulled out of the Sea Girt station yesterday afternoon. The procedure followed by the men of the Fourth Regiment was the same as that of the Fifth.

Last night the men slept in the little shelter tents, two men to a tent, and they were up bright and early this morning, packing their belongings into convenient kits to be carried on the shoulders as they marched out of camp. The rubbish, straw and paper in the company streets was gathered up and burned in the incinerators. In up and burned in the incinerators.

The military and railroad authorities last night shut down on all information as to routings of the squadron and signal corp trains, stating that the War Department had demanded that this be done, and it was impossible to learn how these commands will reach the border. The trains go out of Sea Girt over the Pennsylvania Railroad to Trenton, but the route beyond that company's lines is unknown.

The troopers began to break camp at noon yesterday, not knowing of the changed order, and the regiment started at 1 o'clock. In the troop camp every man's equipment was checked up as it was packed, and by night all saddle bags were filled, the big army tents which are used in permanent camps were rolled up and loaded on wagons, and the wagons hauled to the freight yards at Manasquan. Nothing was left to load this morning except the horses, and all three mounted commands were short of these, so that only a few could be placed on the cars until the new ones arrived.

In command of the squadron train will be Major Wm. B. Bryant, squadron commander, whose home is in Newark. His staff consists of Lieutenant Henry H. Bertrand, adjutant; Lieutenant Louis D. Kilgus, squadron quartermaster, and Sergeant Major Vredenburgh, of Freehold.

Brigadier General Edwin W. Hine will go with the staff section of the regimental train. General Hine had to leave behind all his staff officers except his adjutant, Major Alexander P. Gray, and his two personal aides, Lieutenant Henry V. D. Moore and J. Vincent Hinchcliffe. There is no provision for a brigade quartermaster and other brigade officers in the regular army, the division officials supplying everything direct to the regiments.

Information regarding the route of the regimental train was procured before the War Department closed the lips of the railroad officials here. The train will leave over the Central Ry. of New Jersey, and will be transferred to the Lackawanna at Scranton, which road will take them to Buffalo. From there they will go over the Nickel Plate to Chicago; the Burlington to Kansas City; Rock Island to Santa Rosa and El Paso and Southwestern to their destination. No one at Sea Girt can explain why this roundabout method of transportation has been selected, as it will undoubtedly take the command much longer that it will take the Fifth Regiment to reach the border.

The trains will have but few parlor cars. There were enough of these for the officers, but no assurance was given as to when the men would be given tourist sleepers. It was stated however, that the tourist cars, which usually do not run east of Chicago have been taken over by the Government, and are being shipped east as rapidly as possible. It is probable that the soldiers will not have to remain in day coaches more than one night.

The kitchen cars which are being sent on the New Jersey trains are models of compactness and efficiency. In a baggage car on each regiment train, three deep boxes, lined with metal and filled with dirt, are nailed to the floor. The regular army stoves are set up on these boxes and a stack is run out through the roof. Draft is formed by the moving train. Here food is warmed and coffee is made. In the center of each car is piled great logs of wood which are cut up by the members of the supply corps as they are needed for the stoves. At each end are packed the piles of food, all carefully boxed and labeled. For the two troops of the squadron, consisting of 200 men and ten officers, the food supply for five days is 1,660 pounds of corned and roast beef, in cans; 855 loaves of soft bread, 300 pounds of hard bread (crackers), 255 cans of baked beans, 1,325 cans of tomatoes, 425 pounds of jam (each man gets one and one-quarter ounces daily), 74 pounds of coffee, 212 pounds of sugar and 33 cans of milk.

Colonel J. W. Howard, a former quartermaster in the Guard, has written a letter to General Sadler, offering his services in any way that they can be used.

Last Minute Trooper Taps

A tinge of color was lent to the dull business of packing up yesterday afternoon by the appearance of a frisky horse in the camp streets. Bill Gallagher, of Dunellen, was detailed to turn the animal over to Trooper George Hummel, who was on stable guard, and Gallagher was having the time of his life trying to drag the reluctant beast across the street when it punched him in the lip with a fore paw. Unable to subdue him, Gallagher called upon Louis Alberts, the troop horse expert, and Alberts created some excitement in taming the animal. He looped a rope around his nose, but the horse managed to snap this and brisked around the tented village at a lively clip, scaring the other animals in the corral. Havoc prevailed for a few minutes, but the trooper managed to get a new rope around the horse's head and tied him up.

According to Gallagher, Troop D has the only equine prize fighter in captivity. This horse demonstrated his ability to swing a hard uppercut to the trooper's jaw and nearly sent the latter down for the K. O. Gallagher suffered little from the blow, however, and was around again a few minutes later.

Trooper Johnny Logan declares the officers have discovered that he is physically able to do a hard day's labor. At least they have given him a pretty good tryout and he says they ought to be convinced if they are not. Johnny was on the sick list for a day or two, but has certainly been paying up for it lately.

Goldson Young was rejected because of poor eyesight by the government physicians yesterday afternoon. Young was one of those who were really anxious to go and the turndown came as a severe blow.

Troopers were put on the "black list" at the soft drink stands across the street from the camp yesterday. The orders allowed the men to purchase hot dogs but no soda water.

Former Mayor Charles Fisk, of Plainfield, was a visitor at the camp again yesterday and last night. The Mayor has a young son going along and he was one of the proudest men on the lot.

One little girl remarked as she kissed her soldier father good-bye "Be sure and bring me something home, daddy." This was far different from the many requests that have been thrown at the troopers of late, such as, "Fetch me a handful of Carranza's whiskers," or "Tame a Mexican and haul him back to Plainfield."

Charles Irby cooked the final meal for Troop D with the asistance of Troopers William Daniels and Leslie Kingslow. This trio has acquitted itself in fine shape since the camp was started and the boys have nothing but praise to hand out in their behalf.

As a mess sergeant, J. Hartley Mellick has found his way to the troopers' hearts. When informed of his popularity as a satisfier of the inner man, Hartley replied: "Well, you folks ought to know by this time that the nearest way to a man's heart is through his stomach."

Trooper Winzenreid was in his elements during the final minutes at camp. They had him driving a team of horses hitched to the packing wagons and folks back home know that "Winzy" is right at home on a moving van.

Ferdinand Collins spent the greater part of yesterday afternoon shining his boots, getting ready for assembly. Collins declared: "I'm going to have them clean going away, for they're pretty likely to be spattered with Mexican blood when I get back."

"Oh, for just one good cold glass of water," remarked Corporal Roland Cox last night. One bad feature of the stay at Manasquan has been the drinking water. It has been tested by experts and found to be all right for drinking, but it never gets cold. "Just like dish water," the men said.

Trooper Daniels made the gravy for the supper last night. The boys all took a chance despite the fact that rumors floated around that Daniels was bent on killing them off before they started.

Plainfield troopers assisted in capturing a Red Bank man who tried to break away from camp and sneak home yesterday. They found him behind a headstone in the cemetery, and after being given his just dues he was sent back home. This was the second attempt the same man had made to gain his freedom.

The men all hate a quitter, but they have the highest respect for a man who refused to take the oath for some good reason. Representatives of the camp asked last night to have this fact made plain for they are afraid that a wrong impression has been created back in Plainfield regarding those men who are returning.

An eleventh hour rush was made last night to eat up good things remaining in tents. Loved ones had sent along a plenty of candy and other sweets, but the men were told that they would have to leave the greater portion of this behind them so decided the best course was to swallow them up.

Trooper Kirby has made himself a conspicuous figure at the camp since his enlistment. No man in the camp can handle a horse like this gent and none of the animals come too frisky for him. His assignment has been to break in the new steeds and he has succeedd wonderfully well with the task.

FOUR PROMOTIONS FOR TROOP D BEFORE LEAVING

Corporals James Brewster and Roland Cox were raised to the rank of sergeants yesterday afternoon and James L. Fleming and Maxwell Perkins were promoted to the rank of corporals to fill their places.

These promotions are in accordance with the regulations to bring Troop D up to the standard for Federal service. The men took charge of their new duties immediately.

DEFIANT CARRANZA NOTE IS EXPECTED TO PROVOKE WAR WHEN DELIVERED IN WASHINGTON, SAY DIPLOMATS

Washington, July 1.—Carranza's reply to the American ultimatum—a reply that will determine whether there is to be peace or war—will probably be delivered to President Wilson today. The best information obtainable here is that the answer was delivered in Mexico City late yesterday by Foreign Minister Aguilar to American Special Agent Rodgers, and that it is now on its way to Washington.

If the answer is forecast by the Carranza statement given out in the Mexican capital last night, there are few in Washington who believe a break can be avoided.

The Carranza memorandum was so discourteous and insulting in its tone and language and so defiant in its purpose, official says, that an answer similarly worded would force the President to take drastic action, despite his wish for peace.

Pershing Is On Guard.

El Paso, Tex., July 1.—Brig. Gen. George Bell, Jr., commanding the American army detachments here, is in wireless communication with Brig. Gen. John J. Pershing at the latter's headquarters at Colonia Dublan, Mexico. He has sent Gen. Pershing a synopsis of the Carranza memorandum given out last night in Mexico City, adding to it an imperative warning to be on his guard today, even to an attack by the Carranza forces of Gen. Jacinto Trevino, which are closing in on Pershing.

Whether this warning was sent under orders from Washington General Bell did not say, but it is reported his secret agents have warned him an assault upon Pershing is imminent.

LOCAL CLERGYMAN ADDRESSES TROOP

Dr. Stevenson's Words of Prayer Made Deep Impression on Men.

Rev. E. Vicar Stevenson, pastor of the Grace Episcopal church, of Plainfield, has been a visitor at the Troop D headquarters on several different occasions and was present at assembly last night, delivering an address of prayer to the departing guardsmen. His words were simple, impressive and straight to the point, exciting a new sense of duty and moral realism of what is before them in the hearts of the men.

Dr. Stevenson's remarks proved to be the sum and substance of last evening's assembly, the men being dismissed immediately after Captain Borden had shaken hands with the clergyman and thanked him for his solemn words. Every man in the line was noticeably touched and the dismissal found a silent, thoughtful group of men.

N. J. BOYS ARE TO CAMP IN DESERT

Site Selected is Burning Sand With Temperature of 105.

El Paso, July 1. There is a nice broad tract of sand about eight miles down the river from here. A thin haze of alkali dust hangs over it, and from 100 to 105 degrees of sun beat down on it. There's not a shade tree in sight. This nice tract of sand is being laid out as the future home of New Jersey's National Guardsmen. It is here they will pitch their tents, set up their cook stoves, and begin the business of being regular soldiers. There will be nothing around to remind them of home, not even a mosquito.

The boys from Jersey are expected here the first of July. An elaborate reception was contemplated for them. But this has been tabooed. There will not be a minute to waste, it was announced. The New Jersey militia must be disposed of in quick step time to make way for that of other States which will be pouring in about that time.

TROOP D HELD UP BY LACK OF HORSES, WILL NOT GET OFF FOR BORDER TILL MONDAY, IS BELIEF

MEN WERE ALL READY TO GO THIS MORNING, BUT WAR DEPARTMENT HAS FAILED TO PROVIDE MOUNTS.

GOV. FIELDER GIVES OUT A WARM STATEMENT

Says No More New Jersey Troops Will Leave Until Ready for Service—Plainfielders Spent Last Night and This Morning Bidding Loved Ones Goodbye—All Are Ready for Anything That Awaits Them in U. S. Service.

By James J. McNamee.

Sea Girt, July 1.—Troop D will not go to the border today, nor tomorrow, according to latest developments.

With the men all ready, everything packed and on the train excepting tents, it was learned this morning that there were not horses available for one-half the cavalrymen and they will be held here until the full equipment is ready. This will not be today, it may not be tomorrow. Monday is the day on which the Plainfielders now expect to entrain for the border.

Just 103 horses are necessary to equip the troop and there are only 43 here. The supply of saddles is not half enough to go round. Governor Fielder gave out a warm statement here today in which he declared that no more New Jersey troops would be sent to the border until they were equipped for service. He said Troops D and B would be held here until they were ready, no matter if it was the middle of next week. Everything possible is being done to secure the horses and saddles. The men are taking their disappointment good-naturedly, although they bid goodbye to loved ones and friends last night and this morning fully expecting to be off to war today.

Brimful of enthusiasm, yet seriously mindful of the duty Uncle Sam has delegated them to perform in anarchy ridden Mexico, the cream of Plainfield's youthful man hood spent what they thought to be the last lap of the mobilization period this morning and last night in bidding fond farewells and reading the hearts of speechless loved ones through moistened eyes.

Packing cherished remembrances of home, relatives and Plainfield into the none too spacious allotment of traveling equipment and the breaking up of Troop D's headquarters brought the sudden realization of what defending the Stars and Stripes means to the heart of the guardsmen. Each man was plainly struggling within himself to force a cheerful, smile-ridden countenance, but each was suffering the heart rending pangs akin to a leave taking of this nature. Not the heartsickness and homesickness of a yellow livered coward, but the admirable, disguiseless love each holds for relatives, friends and home.

As one man said, voicing the sentiments of all others: "This shows a fellow just how many friends he has." Another trooper rose to remark as a tender hearted old lady with a tear stained face clung to his neck while a group of Plainfielders looked on: "Au Revoir, not good bye. That's the way us men look at it. Cheer up, there's nothing to it mother. We'll be back before you know it."

But who among us will venture a prediction as to the probable outcome of the yellow blooded, green-eyed, half-breed Mexican anarchist's challenges? The cavalrymen know they have a big contract on their hands but not one in the lot doubts but what Uncle Sam will force Carranza to show the white feather.

The men in Troop D will quit Sea Girt under far more favorable conditions than did those who went last Tuesday; well fed, well equipped and well posted on what the United States Government expects of them as soldiers.

Only a glimpse at these men as they carried out the final orders

Only a glimpse at these men as they carried out the orders would convince home folks that Plainfield is sending its finest, superior in character and best in physique to the front. Nearly everyone among them entertained friends or relatives here last night or today and to attempt to paint a word picture of the partings would be mere folly. Gray-haired and wrinkled old ladies, veterans of other wars, fair sweethears and toddling infants, swarmed here in large numbers to bid father, sweetheart and brother farewell and Godspeed. Several of the married men forbade their families coming to Sea Girt today lest an eleventh hour scene be created to unnerve the bravest.

In the tented village last night man after man approached a reporter or visitor and, with a lump swelling in his throat, requested the stay-at-homes to carry tender messages to those dear to them.

Troop D, of Plainfield, and Troop B, of Red Bank, spent the greater portion of the night puling down their tents and packing, but the last minute excitement proved too much—not one among them thought of sleep. One of the pitiful sides of the departure came from that small, saddened group of troopers who were rejected by the Federal examiners and who persisted in remaining at Sea Girt to see their comrades on the way. All day yesterday, last night and this morning this handful of silent, solemn faced men stood by and watched the final preparations as they were being made. Few words did they speak but anyone could read the disappointment spread across their countenances.

One fellow packing up his knapsack raised his head skyward to a group of watchers and remarked: "This packing up business gets me. It's the thing that brings the truth right home. The suspense is awful, I wish we were on our way now."

But not a one thought of shirking. That was the furtherest thought away from any mind.

RECALLS WAR OF 1846 WITH MEXICO

Veteran Tells of Ambush That Caused Hostilities.

FLED AT A BAYONET CHARGE

Santa Anna's Troops Wouldn't Fight Onslaughts of Americans—Not a Gun or Flag Was Lost During the Two Years' Struggle—Call For 30,000 Volunteers Was Issued.

War between the United States and Mexico in 1846 began as the result of a skirmish similar to the unprovoked attack by Mexicans upon the detachment of General Pershing's forces, it was recalled by a veteran of the first Mexican war, Colonel Charles J. Murphy of New York, who is the youngest survivor of that conflict. Colonel Murphy also was a staff officer in the civil war. On June 3 he was eighty-four years old. Colonel Murphy, commenting on the fight at Carrizal, said:

"The news of the first battle in Mexico reminds me that the war with Mexico in 1846-8 commenced in a similar way on April 24, 1846, although there was not a formal declaration of war between the two countries. Like the recent fight, it was an ambuscade for the Americans, and similarly the Americans were attacked by superior forces of probably four to one.

"Captain Thornton, United States army, marching at the head of seventy men of the Second dragoons in Texas, fell into an ambuscade of Mexican regular troops on April 24, 1846, numbering between 300 and 400. After a gallant resistance he was killed, with sixteen members of his command, and thirty-eight were wounded. The remainder of the force were taken prisoners. In this fight, as in that of the other day, it may be noted that apparently the approximate numbers of the slain and wounded were the same on both sides.

It was six days later when the Mexicans attacked Fort Brown and were repulsed, said Colonel Murphy. On May 8 General Taylor defeated the Mexican army of Generals Ampudia and Arista at Palo Alto.

"It is a noteworthy fact that these battles were fought without a declaration of war on either side," continued the colonel. "Indeed, no declaration of war was ever made by either of the two contending republics."

Thirty Thousands Volunteers Called.

These conflicts were followed by a call for 30,000 volunteers by President Polk. More than 65,000 volunteers responded promptly. As a comparison of the quotas furnished by each state with the present mobilization of the militia on President Wilson's call, these figures are given by Colonel Murphy:

Alabama, 2,981; Maryland and District of Columbia, 1,372; Arkansas, 1,274; Florida, 280; Missouri, 6,441; Georgia, 1,987; North Carolina, 895; Illinois, 3,701; South Carolina, 1,120; New York, 1,890; Indiana, 4,329; Ohio, 5,334; Iowa, 229; New Jersey, 420; Kentucky, 4,094; Louisiana, 7,341; Pennsylvania, 2,117; Michigan, 1,072; Tennessee, 5,394; Massachusetts, 930; Texas, 7,394; Mississippi, 2,235, and Wisconsin, 146.

At that time Mexico had a regular army of 50,000 and had called into the field an additional force, chiefly volunteers, of nearly 200,000 men.

Colonel Murphy reviewed the details of some of the later battles to show, he said, the tricky act of General Santa Anna in using a flag of truce and a messenger to General Taylor for the purpose of giving his army time to escape the Americans at the Rancho Buena Vista. General Scott, too, later found that Santa Anna had violated an armistice of twenty days, fortifying his position and re-enforcing his army. Speaking of the final big battles of that war and the taking of the City of Mexico, Colonel Murphy recalled these impressions made upon him at the time:

"It was no holiday war. It was replete with toilsome marches, with blistering and bleeding feet, through hot sands under a tropical sun, over jagged rocks and snowy mountain ranges where horses and riders perished with cold and exposure. It abounded with nameless tragedies both in bloody fields near many a smoking gun and in the deep gloom of fever stricken hospitals.

"In that memorable war of two years we fought seventy battles and engagements without the final loss of a single gun or an American ensign. Engaged always against heavy odds, we bore the honor of our great republic triumphantly on our ever advancing swords and bayonets.

"I must not forget to mention that the soldiers of the Mexican armies throughout the whole war were never known to stand a single charge of bayonets.

"Blended with patriotic reflections, we proudly recall the fact that we marched nearly 3,000 miles through the country of an enemy alien to us in race and language and performed no act to wound the modesty of women. The flames of no defenseless homestead lighted up our line of march, and no matin hymn or vesper bells were silenced by our coming.

"What has been the result of that victorious war? It acquired for us the vast territories of California, Nevada, Colorado, New Mexico, Idaho, Arizona and Utah, thus adding 1,000,000 square miles, or 640,000,000 acres, to the United States, nearly doubling its area."

Her Proof.

"I've brought back those eggs you gave me this morning," said the new bride as she began to take the articles in question from her basket. "They're duck eggs."

"Duck eggs!" sneered the grocery boss. "You're mistaken, ma'am. I don't never sell no duck eggs."

"But I tested them," triumphed the matrimonial novice. "I dropped them into water and they floated."—Judge.

PERCY H. STEWART TO BE TOASTMASTER

Luncheon Will Be Given for Judge Westcott at Truell Inn, July 4.

Prior to the Community Fourth of July celebration at the City Park Tuesday afternoon, a luncheon will be given at Truell Inn in honor of Judge J. W. Westcott, who is to be the speaker of the afternoon. Former Mayor Percy H. Stewart will be the toastmaster. Covers will be laid for fifty guests. Tickets can be secured from members of the luncheon committee.

Miss Etta Raybert is the chairman of the committee in charge of the decorations and she and her assistants will be at the City Park Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock so as to complete the work early.

The committee is very anxious to secure American flags for the decorations at the park. Everyone who has a flag to loan for decorating the park and grandstand is requested to bring it to the park on the morning of the Fourth at 10 o'clock and leave it with F. O. Dunning. A committee will see that the flags are returned.

PATRIOTIC SERVICE WILL BE HELD "UNDER THE TREES"

A great patriotic service will be held "under the trees" just outside the Park Avenue Baptist church, tomorrow night. Mrs. Grace Robinson will sing "The Star Spangled Banner," and other patriotic songs will be sung. The lawn will be decorated with American flags. Rev. Dr. Birney S. Hudson, the pastor, will speak on "Christian Patriotism." In the morning a large number of new members will be welcomed at the communion service.

EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS BEING HELD IN A TENT

The evangelistic meetings which were started at Mountainside, near Westfield, Wednesday night, promise to be very successful. They are being conducted by Rev. T. S. Molyneux, of the Methodist church, Caldwell, and Rev. A. M. Deoch, of New York, and will probably be continued until July 14.

The tent will seat about 300 people and is lighted by electricity. The services are held every evening at 7:45. Tomorrow afternoon the meeting will be for men only and Mr. Molyneux will speak on the subject of "The Great Panacea." The tent is located on Woodland avenue, near Mountain avenue. All are cordially invited.

ANTI-SUFFRAGISTS DEDICATE SERVICES FOR AMERICA FIRST

Anti-suffragists representing organizations in twenty-four States, who met yesterday at the headquarters of the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, 37 West 39th street, New York, formally dedicated the facilities of their organizations to the service of "America First." A resolution was forwarded to President Wilson, president of the American Red Cross, in which the association offers its co-operation with the United States Government in contributing to the comfort of the men who serve the nation on land and sea and in providing for the protection and subsistence of the women and children who remain at home.

MANY CONVERTS TO RECEIVE RIGHT HAND OF FELLOWSHIP

An impressive service may be expected tomorrow morning at the First Baptist church, when some sixty or more will receive the right hand of fellowship. This is only a part of those who have recently entered or are entering the church. Every week adds to the number while many have not yet been baptized who have been received for baptism. In the fall about as many more will receive the hand of fellowship and even that number will be largely added to a little later. Requests for baptism are constantly reaching the pastor while letters are also coming in nearly every week.

Dr. Strong will preach a very brief sermon tomorrow morning devoting most of the time of the service to the giving of the hand of fellowship and the administration of the Lord's Supper. A cordial invitation is given to all who are interested in this church to be present. Union service in the evening at the First Methodist church, Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie preaching.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

Two women aviators have expressed their intention of competing in the great National Aerial Derby, the New York-to-San Diego flight next September, for the Pulitzer trophy and $100,000 prizes offered by the Aero Club of America. These are Miss Ruth Law and the youthful Katherine Stinsel, who looped the loop at the San Diego Exposition last fall and who has been making flights at the Sheepshead Bay aerodome recently. Miss Stinson's tiny biplane, which has made her famous, would stand no chance against the powerful triplanes and other aircraft now

BUILDING TAKES DECIDED SLUMP

Only Nine Permits Issued by Inspector T. O. Doane This Week.

PLANS ARE UNDERWAY

Estimated Cost of New Work is $11,445—Total for June Aggregates $13,821 and for Six Months $496,665.

Building valuations took a decided slump this week over the previous week, and although there were nine permits issued by Building Inspector T. O. Doane, the total estimated cost amounts to $11,445. This does not mean, however, that there is not much building going on in the city.

Several developing operations have been started and others are being contemplated, while there is a great deal of factory construction being done in the West End.

With these figures of the past week closes with a banner month RTHTH and the three previous weeks, June closes with a banner month, the total cost of construction running up to $137,821 and for the first six months from January 1, $496,665.

The largest permit issued by Inspector Doane was to Martin C. Faucett, of Mountain avenue, Bound Brook, and calls for the erection of a two and a half story frame dwelling at 445 Dixie Lane. The measurements will be thirty-six by twenty-six feet and the estimated cost is placed at $5,700. The first floor will contain a dining-room, living room, sun parlor, reception hall, kitchen and butler's pantry, beside a large number of closets. Three sleeping rooms and a children's play room will be on the second floor. The architectural portion of the work is being done by George H. Fisher, Jr., while Charles Huff and Jeremiah H. Manning are the mason and carpenter contractors, respectively. The other permits issued were as follows:

The Public Recreation Committee, through its president, C. L. Riley, was granted a permit for the erection of a band stand in the City Park, at Ninth street and Arlington avenue, costing $600. The stand is to be used for the Fourth of July Community celebration and will measure 60 by 64 feet. The contract for the job was awarded John S. Dahl.

Netherwood Fresh Air Camp Association for the construction of a recreation building on Leland avenue, costing approximately $1,700. The contractor is William B. Bird.

The Merchants & Traders' Realty Company for the erection of a two-story building at 1849 Myrtle avenue and costing $1,900. George Ferguson is the contractor.

The Phoenix Printing Company for the erection of a frame garage at its plant on Leland avenue. The garage will measure 28 by 28 feet and will cost $150. Another garage permit was issued to Den J. Galbraith to erect a 12 by 16 foot garage at 719 West Front street at a cost of $85.

Henry P. Bogert is to erect a barn at 1437 Bradford avenue at a cost of $10 and I. Shrager was issued a permit for the extensive alteration of his dwelling at 514 West Third street. He will build a one-story frame addition to the rear of the present structure, which will measure 18 by 16 feet. The improvements will cost $150 and the general contract was awarded to Frank Finklestein. W. H. Clum is the architect.

A. Copenetti, of 188 Terril road, will erect a concrete block addition to the building at that address to be used as a bakery. The estimated cost is $850. No contractor is named.

MIDDLESEX TRANSFERS

The following Middlesex county realty transfers have been recorded at the office of the County Clerk during the past week:

Creighton Manor Realty Co., to Peter Abotemarco, 3 lots, Creighton Manor, Township Piscataway $1

Ed. Maurer, Inc., to National Land and Building Co., Inc., 2 lots, Dunellen $1

Josephine C. Gulick, to Lois Bolton Hall, 2 plots, Sherman Park, Township Piscataway $1

John P. Bornman to Nellie E. Melick, lots, Oakdale Park, Township Piscataway $1

United Land Dev. Co. to Angelo Rampone, lot, New Market Heights, Township Piscataway $1

FORECLOSE PROPERTY.

Among the properties sold under foreclosure proceedings by Sheriff Houghton at the New Brunswick Court House on Thursday was that of Arthur E. Smith, trustee, against the Glaser Company, property in Piscataway Township, along the South Plainfield-New Market road. The decree and costs amounted to $15,365.58, and the property was sold to Arthur E. Smith, as trustee, for $5,000.

W. H. DENNICK AWARDED NEW PROVIDENCE CONTRACT

At a meeting of the New Providence Board of Education, held Tuesday, William H. Dennick, of this city, was awarded the contract for the completion of the Lincoln School at that place. Mr. Dennick's bid was for $6,677, and included the masonry, carpenter work and metal ceilings. Bids for the contract were received from seven other concerns. The local man will begin operations at once and push them vigorously in order that the school may be completed for the fall term.

The building was to have been completed by May 5, last, but the contractors, the Jersey City Construction Company, defaulted upon it, and the bonding company declined to go on with it because to do so would make them responsible for the obligations of the defaulting contractors. It therefore requested the Board to secure a new contract. The Apgar Construction Company, of Dunellen, put in a bid for the completion of the contract at a cost of $7,125.

PLAINFIELDERS BID ON PERTH AMBOY CONTRACT

The only two bids for repair electrical work in the ten Perth Amboy schools received by the Board of Education of that place at its regular meeting Thursday night, came from two Plainfield concerns. These were Allen B. Laing & Company and Ryder & Graves. Their bids were as follows:

Allen B. Laing Co.: School No. 1, $151; school No. 2, $142; school No. 4, $890; school No. 5, $140; school No. 6, $56; school No. 7, $131; school No. 8, $43; Manual training school, $40.

Ryder & Graves: School No. 1, $300; school No. 2, $280; school No. 4, $1,150; school No. 5, $340, school No. 6 $205; school No. 7, $100; school No. 8, $180; Manual training school, $75.

PLAN THE REMODELING OF FORMER BLOCK BUILDING

Architects are now completing plans for the remodeling of the former Block building on West Front street, now owned by John Cocalus, that will make it one of the most up-to-date business structures on the main thoroughfare. No contracts have been awarded as yet, but work will start in a short time.

According to present plans, a new front will be put on the structure, and the building will be extended toward the rear of the lot. The ground floor will contain all of the features of an up-to-date restaurant, and the second floor will be remodeled for the occupancy of a clothier.

A CLASSY COTTAGE

DESIGNED BY CHAS. S. SEDGWICK, ARCHITECT.

HERE is a strictly up-to-date modern cottage, all rooms of good size and many little conveniences that make the home pleasant.

The size of the main part is 28 ft. 6 in. by 23 ft. 6 in. The first story is 9 ft. 6 in. high and the second story 9 ft. The main floor is 2 ft. above the grade line. The construction is frame with brick up to the first story window sills and cement stucco above. All trimmings, cornices, window frames, etc., painted white or may be stained brown. The roof shingles are stained moss green, the cement is finished with a "pebble dash" surface. The plan is suited to an east or south frontage and for a west or north front the plan should be reversed. This is such a plan as is most generally in demand for a moderate-sized house, it is compact, no waste room and everything necessary for a complete cottage.

The main living room is 15 ft. in depth by 23 ft. 6 in. in length, exclusive of main stairs that are 4 ft. in width. One main central chimney with wide fireplace and flue for heating plant and kitchen, an ample-sized dining room with commodious kitchen and rear entry, grade entrance to basement and kitchen, cupboards, etc., all arranged for greatest convenience. It is estimated to build exclusive of heating and plumbing for $3,000 to $3,700. The total cost ought not to exceed $4,000 in any locality. There is a good full basement, rooms for laundry, heating plant, fuel, vegetable cellars, etc. The second floor has three good bedrooms, a bathroom, large ..... closet opening out at rear onto an open balcony, ample clothes closets and all rooms full height without angles of ceiling being cut. The inside finish is in hard wood in first story and the second story in pine and white enamel, floors of hard wood. There is a good attic for storage purposes.

IN THE SUBURBS

Improvements in the repainting line are the order of the day at the Hollings residence on Washington avenue, Dunellen, the work being done by Contractor Thompson, of Mountain View Terrace.

Contractor H. G. Corbin, of the H. K. Corbin Co., Dunellen, in addition to his local contract of laying the Dunellen collecting sewerage system, has another contract in this vicinity, namely in Plainfield. He is laying several miles of water pipe on the upper reaches of Park avenue, and the familiar steam excavating machine, which was such a fixture on the streets of Dunellen last summer, is now being used in the City by the Hills.

The new Frank Burdick house on Walnut street, just east of Washington avenue, Dunellen, is nearly completed on the outside with the exception of the stucco coating and Mr. Burdick is now doing the inside work.

The new house of Leslie Latham, of Dunellen, on Prospect avenue, of that place, has now been enclosed by the employes of Contractor Edward Daniel.

CONTRACTORS' FILES

The following local building contracts were filed at the office of the County Clerk in Elizabeth during the past week:

Anna M. Davis with Charles L. Force, entire work, new building, Plainfield $6,259

Walter Hetfield, Jr., with William Pangborn and Son, mason work, new building, East Front street, Plainfield $2,424

Same with Alex. Milne, carpenter work $5,000

Nanette D. Cochran with B. F. Tallamy, mason work, new building, Prospect avenue, Plainfield .. $4,569

Same with John N. Wyman, carpenter work $10,400

Same with Anthony Albert, carpenter work $3,450

RUMOR THAT CO. K GOES TO PANAMA

Expected to Be Ordered to Release Regular Troops in Canal Zone.

Captain Charles Peterson, commanding officer of Company K, went to Sea Girt this morning in company with several of the other local officers. With Troop D and the rest of the militia at the mobilization camp leaving this morning it leaves room for the Second and Third Regiments, and when Captain Peterson returns from Sea Girt tonight it is probable he will have a knowledge as to the exact time the local militia company will go into camp.

Although the armory is open every night, recruiting is not going on as fast as could be desired. However, with seventy-one who have already taken the oath and some twenty odd former members who have expressed their intention of returning if hostilities commence, Company K will have no trouble mustering to war strength if necessary.

From an authenic source it is learned that the War Department is planning to send the Second Regiment to Panama instead of to the border. It may be loaded on a transport within a week, after a few days of drilling at Sea Girt.

There is stationed at Panama now, for the purpose of guarding the canal, almost a regiment of seasoned U. S. regulars. They have been patroling the narrow strip of Zone territory that reaches from the Atlantic to the Pacific, policing the canal and guarding the locks. These men are hardened to the heat of Central America and are trained to the kind of fighting that will be encountered in Mexico if hostilities come out of the present situation. Their work in Panama could be done by militiamen, and it is said the Second New Jersey Regiment has been picked to relieve them. Confirmation of this report is expected before Monday.

COMPLAIN OF CARELESS WAY TAR IS SPREAD

Considerable indignation is being expressed today on the part of Plainfielders over the way that the street department is spreading tar on the local streets, especially Park avenue in the vicinity of Eighth street. The usual precaution was not taken by the workmen yesterday afternoon to sprinkle dirt or sand at the crosswalks and pedestrians were obliged to "wade" through the tar as best they could. In several places the tar was allowed to stand in large pools and passing automobiles splashed it a considerable distance. Complaints of a similar nature were received today from other sections of the city.

PROBASCO CLASS PLANS FOR ANNUAL OUTING

Under the auspices of the Probasco Bible Class of the First Baptist church, the annual camp-fire and outing will be held on Saturday, July 8, the place to be announced later. At a meeting held at the home of Earl B. Pierson, on Spooner avenue, last night, the following were named as a committee of arrangements: Fred Dixon, Charles Loizeaux, George Bird, Earl B. Pierson, Hamlet Luckey, Daniel Randolph and Duncan Patterson.

The trip will be made by auto trucks, it being decided to invite the wives and women friends of the members. There will be about 150 in the party. The start will be made from the Y. M. C. A. about 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

RUNYON—WARNER.

Miss Agnes Marie Runyon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Runyon, of this city, and Harold A. Warner, son of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Warner, of Westfield, were married by Rev. Charles E. Herring, at the latter's home last night at 8 o'clock. The couple wer attended by Mr. and Mrs. Robert I. Runyon.

GET $600 FROM STATION AGENT

Netherwood Commuter's Cash Taken Last Night by Highwaymen.

USED A BLACKJACK

Youthful Carrier of Money Lay on Dark Street Almost Two Hours Before Policeman Found Him—Not Badly Hurt, Say Doctors.

After lying for an hour and thirty-five minutes in the middle of Netherwood avenue, Netherwood, John Southard, station agent there, was found by Patrolman Nolan at 9:55 last night. The $600 that he had taken in during the day for commutation tickets was missing, taken, he said, by highwaymen who sandbagged him.

Southard was rushed to Muhlenberg Hospital in an ambulance. He is not badly hurt and was able to talk coherently of the holdup a few minutes after he reached there. He is eighteen years of age and lives with his parents in Scotch Plains.

Yesterday was a busy day at the Netherwood station and all day long the youthful agent was busy receiving money through the window. The number of commutation tickets sold was almost a hundred, and at the close of the day Southard had more than $600 in cash. This money he put in a small cloth bag. When he left the station to go to the Union car line, Patrolman Martin walked to the mouth of the tunel with him. He commented on the risk of carrying such a sum of money along dark streets, and asked why it was not left in the station. Southard replied that there was no danger. Martin offered to watch the station closely throughout the entire night of the money was left there, but the young man laughed at his fears and started down the darkest street in the Netherwood section with $600 in small bills in his coat pocket.

After Patrolman Nolan, who works on the opposite side of the railroad, pulled his box in front of the fire station at 9:45 he crossed under the tracks and started back to his beat. As he walked along Netherwood avenue he saw the form of a man lying in the roadway. Thinking he had found a drunk, he blew his whistle for Martin to come and help him get the man on his feet and start him home. Patrolman Nolan did not know the young ticket agent, but as soon as Martin arived he recognized Southard and the robbery became apparent.

Southard did not talk until after he had been sent to the hospital and treated. At the same time they called an ambulance the two policemen notified Chief Kiely and he was on the scene a few minutes later.

There were marks in the bushes along the sidewalk where one or two men had stood for some time. The boy's hat was found on the sidewalk but he was ten feet away in the road. In going down Netherwood avenue he had selected the darkest side of the street, and it was an easy matter for the robbers to await his coming without danger of discovery.

At the hospital Southard said that he had been struck without warning of any kind. He passed the spot where the highwaymen hid once, he said, and went back to the station for his watch. On his way through the dark spot the second time he was struck. He did not see anyone and heard no noise.

Although Southard claims that he was struck on the back of the head his stiff straw hat shows the effects of three blows, two of which were from the front and one from the left side. He may have been wearing his hat "backwards."

Chief Kiely and Lieut. Higgins, with a special officer of the Central Railroad, worked on the case during the entire night. They have had no sleep as yet and expect to make an arrest some time today.

"YE OLDE TYME CONCERT" ATTRACTS LARGE AUDIENCE

"Ye Olde Tyme Concert," given in the auditorium of the Y. M. C. A. last night, under the auspices of the young women of the Young Women's Christian Association, proved to be a most successful affair. As a result the Camp and Conference Club, for whose benefit the concert was given, will gain a neat sum. Over one hundred friends and members of the association attended, the recital and warmly applauded the various numbers. The scene presented an old fashioned school house and the girls wore costumes appropriate to the Civil War period.

DOPESTERS WORK ON 1916 ELECTION

Vote of 1912 Basis For Figuring on the Results.

BOTH SIDES SEE VICTORY.

Wilson Received Popular Vote of 6,293,019 to 7,604,463 For Taft and Roosevelt, but He Got 435 Electoral Votes to 96 For Roosevelt and Taft. New York's Vote Important.

Now is the time to begin your figuring on the national campaign. Use the election returns for 1912. There are a number of people in the country who believe that the events of the past are the best guide to the future.

Hughes supporters have added together the popular vote received in 1912 by Taft, 3,484,596, and by Roosevelt, 4,119,507, comparing that total, 7,604,463, with the vote that Wilson received, 6,293,019, and summing up the process with the argument that as Wilson's vote was 1,311,444 less than the combined Taft-Roosevelt vote four years ago, why, a united Republican party this year is simply going to "walk away," etc.

Wilson supporters poohpooh popular vote analyses and invite scrutiny of the electoral college vote in 1912, with Wilson's 435 compared with 96, the sum of Roosevelt's 88 and Taft's 8.

The Wilson prophets are absolutely confident that there's to be no political turnover next November such as will so depreciate Wilson's strength in the next electoral college as to give him less than 267 votes, the number necessary to elect a president. In 1912 Taft carried Utah and Vermont, each with four electoral votes. Roosevelt carried California, Michigan, Minnesota, Pennsylvania, South Dakota and Washington—six states. Wilson carried forty of the forty-eight states.

Analysis of Vote.

Take New York state's popular vote in 1912 as a specimen for analysis. Wilson received 655,475 votes; Taft, 455,428; Roosevelt, 390,021; total of Taft and Roosevelt's vote, 845,499, or 189,974 more than Wilson's vote. Then come the questions: "Can half of this number of voters, 95,000, be turned from the Republican candidate of 1916 to Mr. Wilson? Has the latter's popularity so increased that in the pivotal Empire State, with its forty-five electoral votes, Wilson can be counted upon to attract 95,000 more votes than gave him their ballots in 1912?"

If Mr. Wilson can get 750,000 popular vote in New York state, then it would seem that his re-election is assured. Whether Wilson's popularity has increased and whether there will be a lessened interest in the Hughes candidacy as compared with the Republican factional animosities that inspired activity in 1912 will be made plain in November.

Take Wilson's own state of New Jersey for analysis. That state gave Taft 88,833, Roosevelt 145,410 and Wilson 178,280. The Taft-Roosevelt total was 234,245, or 55,956 more than Wilson's vote. Wilson partisans in New Jersey are content to say that the candidate whom the state has given to the Democratic party can easily run up his 1912 vote twenty-five to thirty thousand, which, with a reduced Republican-Progressive vote due to lessened party fervor with the cessation of factional disputing, will mean New Jersey, with its fourteen electoral votes, safely carried for Wilson.

The total vote cast in 1912 was 15,036,542, of which the Socialists, it is interesting to note, cast not quite 1,000,000, or less than 7 per cent. The Prohibitionists cast less than 2 per cent of the total vote.

CONTROL OF THE SENATE.

Terms of Seventeen Democrats and Fifteen Republicans Expire In 1917.

Control of the United States senate is another important matter the voters will be called upon to decide at the polls in November. Terms of thirty-two senators expire, and both Democrats and Republicans are going to make every effort to supplant members of the opposite political party.

The senators whose terms expire on March 3, 1917, are:

Democrats.

Ashurst of Arizona, Bryan of Florida, Chilton of West Virginia, Culberson of Texas, Hitchcock of Nebraska, Johnson of Maine, Lea of Tennessee, Lee of Maryland, Martine of New Jersey, Myers of Montana, O'Gorman of New York, Pitman of Nevada, Pomerene of Ohio, Reed of Missouri, Swanson of Virginia, Taggart of Indiana and Williams of Mississippi.

Republicans.

Catron of New Mexico, Clapp of Minnesota, Clark of Wyoming, Du Pont of Delaware, La Follette of Wisconsin, Lippitt of Rhode Island, Lodge of Massachusetts, McCumber of North Dakota, McLean of Connecticut, Oliver of Pennsylvania, Page of Vermont, Poindexter of Washington, Sutherland of Utah, Townsend of Michigan and Works of California.

Thirteen Lucky For Him.

Born on the 13th, the thirteenth child, a runaway at thirteen years, married on 13th, made fortune in 1913, bought 1300 acres of land and his auto number 1313. Howard Grimes of Oregon thinks 13 his lucky number.

Culture's Climax.

"Public health work," says Dr. W. T. Sedgwick of Boston, "should not be left to every Thomas, Richard and Henry."

Bees In a Clubroom.

To show how easily bees may be handled, expert turned loose 10,000 of them in woman's clubroom in Cleveland.

AMERICAN TROOPER TELLS OF KILLING MEXICAN GENERAL

First Shot Downed His Horse and Second Ended Life of Gomez.

Bill Harris, first class marksman, Troop K, Tenth cavalry, is the man who fired the shot that killed General Gomez, the Mexican leader who lured the Americans into the trap at Carrizal. Here is the soldier's story:

"There was a corporal on my right. We were flat on our bellies. The corporal had shot six Mexicans.

"'Mighty hot, ain't it, Bill?

"'Hotter'n hades,' I said.

"'Yes, boy,' the corporal said, 'but it ain't half as hot as it's going to be. Look yonder! That's a flankin' party, Bill. Sure they're goin' to wipe us out—clean out of this climate!'

"Then he reloaded. I didn't pay much attention to him for the next few minutes. The Mexicans were sure shooting right at us—right at my head. The sand looked like rain was hitting it. Then the corporal got plugged.

"Then I got my sight fixed for 250 yards. Through it I could see the Mexican general galloping toward us, but a little to the right. I plugged his horse. First shot, down he went. The general went down with him. I got him just as he was scrambling to his feet. He just doubled all up, then doubled all down again, slow like, to the sand.

"A spent bullet hit me in the arm, and my rifle was knocked out of my hand. I then drew my revolver and fired until some mounted Mexicans came riding furiously down at us. I ran. The Mexicans came forward cursing, and one shouted and asked me what I was fighting them for. I said: 'I ain't fighting you. I've done quit.'

"They made me a prisoner and began to search me. They took my money, my clothes and a ring, and then they fought over the stuff. They tied me with a rope and took me with the other prisoners to Villa Ahumada and then to Chihuahua. They tied all the prisoners with ropes and took us south in a cattle car.

"They bandaged our wounds after we reached Ahumada, and they gave us water that night. They also gave us some of the same food they were eating. Some of the Mexicans at Ahumada threw rocks at us and cursed us, and some said they would hang us.

"This also happened when we reached Chihuahua. The officers and our guards, however, treated us fairly well. They did not kick or abuse us, and they gave us food and water. Aside from taking our clothes, which the Lord knows they needed badly enough, they did not hurt us."

Breckley will perform against Ralph Runyon, of this city, and possibly against Joe Nagle, Jr., of Yale.

POSTPONE MEETING.

The Plainfield Business Women's League regular meeting scheduled for Monday evening, July 3, will be postponed until Monday, July 10. The league meets in the Y. W. C. A. parlors.

TRAGEDY AND SADNESS MINGLED WITH FUN AND COMEDY AS GUARDSMEN LEFT

Touching Little Incidents That Marked Departure of Various Companies to the Mexican Border.

Some Mothers Sorry to Have Sons Leave While Others Are Proud That They Can Fight For Their Country.

WHEN the militiamen began entraining for the Mexican border in the several states there was much sadness of farewell as the mothers, wives, sisters and sweethearts bade goodby to the departing sons of Uncle Sam. Tragedy was mixed with comedy. Pathos reigned on one hand, while on the other frivolity was the rule.

Little did the men seem to realize the difficulties they will face before they return home; little did they realize the hardships that are the lot of any soldier. But all were anxious to go, to give whatever was necessary for their country. The following little stories gathered at the various points from whence the men departed, are filled with appeals that reach direct to the heart:

Put His Mother First.

If you had to choose between your mother and your sweetheart—which?

This is the proposition that was put up to Edward W. Petersen, a private in the Illinois national guard. Colonel Garrity had given orders that each member of the regiment was entitled to receive a visit from one woman friend, but he deprecated the appearance of a bevy of half a dozen girls for every guardsman. So when Petersen appeared with three women he found the guard lines strictly drawn and stern sentinels opposing his entrance. Petersen appealed to Captain John L. Lavin of his company.

"Who are the ladies?" said the captain.

"My mother, my sister and my fiancee," said Petersen.

"You can take in only one," said Lavin. "It's up to you to choose."

Petersen looked around at the faces of the three women, who were closer to him than any others in the world.

"Mother," he said simply.

"Some One Cared."

One chap in khaki stood dejectedly in a corner of the First regiment armory, Philadelphia, watching sweethearts, wives and mothers bidding farewell to the boys of Company G. He was in Company G, but no one had come to bid him goodby. A little old woman had been watching him out of the corner of her eye. With her were two girls.

"Hain't no one come?" she asked as she edged up to him. He shook his head mournfully. Then the old woman kissed him. And not only that, but the two girls kissed him, and the little old woman's son, who was the brother of the two girls, who witnessed the incident, smiled knowingly. As Company G swung out the despondent one carried himself more erectly than any one in the company.

"Some one cared."

His Mother Gave In.

A young New York man went into the recruiting station of the Sixty-ninth infantry armory one Sunday with his mother. She gave her consent to his enlisting, and when he was led away for his physical examination she turned to one of the men standing at the desk and said:

"He's been begging me since last Monday to let him go—him and his father too. Between the two of them little is the peace I've had. I staved them off for awhile. 'The boy smells powder,' his father says. 'Sure,' I tells him, 'there's none on me, and he don't run with that kind of girls.' 'He wants to be off with the boys,' he says. 'Sure,' I tells him, 'he'll learn that quick enough right here at home from you.'

"But they kept after me, and this morning after we came home from church I gave in. I had to. There's no living with the men these days. They're all for putting a uniform on their chests and a gun on their shoulders. But I'm hoping now you don't give my boy a uniform. He was going to college this fall. He says he'll be back in time to go just the same. Do you think so?"

Soon the young recruit rushed into the room and threw his arms about his mother's neck. "They took me!" he cried. "They took me!"

Tears were in her eyes, but she turned to the man again. "Ain't he a fine, strapping lad?" she asked. "Do you get them any better than that? It's got to be, I suppose. Well, if you're going, boy, I'm sorry it's only Mexicans you'll have to shoot to save them from themselves. And to think you've got to shoot another man, too, for his own good!"

Old Veterans Rejuvenated.

Noticeable in the crowds about a New York armory, and treated with extreme respect by the men of the regiment, have been a number of civil war veterans. They pass slowly about on their canes, giving each man a handgrip or a word of cheer or gather a group of "boys" together to talk things over. At one such gathering there was present a civilian more than six feet tall and built proportionately.

"Looks like a pretty slim and undersized crowd of boys to me," he volunteered.

The veteran's eyes snapped a moment as he eyed the stranger. "Slim—little, did you say? They're the finest lot of soldiers I ever saw, bar none. And I'd seen plenty of them before you mustered your bottle. Little? Well, maybe they aren't as big as you, but I guess they'll do just the same. You just watch the next Memorial day parade and see which are the ones left—the big or little ones.

"There were a lot of big men in our company, and after we'd gone south and were getting real marching and fighting it got to be a joke with us about waiting for those big fellows to straggle into camp at night two or three hours late. Of course they were all right in a little while, and I'm not saying anything against the big men. But don't you say anything against these wiry young cusses here. They'll stand the gaff, don't you worry about that.

"Say, why don't you enlist? Are you over size? In three days they'd have you dropping off that flesh by chunks and crawling into your dog kennel at night with your tongue hanging out."

But the stranger had slunk away as the old man's speech grew warmer.

"Well, boys," the veteran said, "I guess he's gone—to enlist, I hope. But for you, I'm proud of you, and if you go to Mexico it's God bless you—every one of you."

This Is Real Bravery.

"Will all these men be able to go? Some of them will have families dependent on them, won't they?" one of the New York men was asked.

"They'll go. Take my case. I've got a father, eighty-six years old, and a wife and two children looking to me. I gave up a good job as foreman to do this, and they told me not to come back to the job afterward. But I ain't a coward. And the old man and my woman both said to me: 'You go ahead. We'll take care of ourselves and the kids somehow.' I guess that's the real bravery, ain't it?"

Denver Giant Ready.

Denver, patriotic to the core and ever ready to step into the breach when the rest of the country needs salvation, has sealed the doom of the Carranzistas in Mexico, for it was written on the enlistment books of Battery B, Denver's artillery troop in the national guard, that Carl Reuben Sandell stands ready to go.

And who is Carl Reuben Sandell?

He is the well known giant—he of the towering longitude.

And it is no ordinary record this human tower, who is seven feet five inches in his shoes and who wears 19½ collars, takes with him into the militia. He was color bearer for the First Colorado in the fuss in the Philippines in 1898. He has been a hunter of big game and a plainsman of many thrilling experiences. He is better known to children in Colorado than any other western hero, and his picture has been pasted up by more school children than have thus honored any other idol.

Old Men Plead to Go.

There were old men, gray haired and decrepit, who begged Colonel Donnelly of St. Louis to take them along with him.

"We know more about war than these boys," said one of them in a pathetic appeal. "We can shoot. We have been at Wilson's Creek under Lyon, and there are several of us who were with Grant before Vicksburg. Let us go with you."

Tears came to the eyes of the colonel and of Mrs. Donnelly, standing by his side, when he told them he was powerless to give them the opportunity they craved.

A young girl after a hard fight obtained admittance to Colonel Donnelly and implored that a young looking recruit be exempted from duty.

"He is only seventeen now," she pleaded, "and he is the whole support of the family."

"How did you get in?" the colonel asked him.

"I just passed the physical examination and said I was eighteen."

"I am sorry, little one," said the colonel. "The case will have to go up to the war department, and your brother will be under a charge of false enlistment." And then there were tears.

The mother of Captain Edmund J. McMahon of Company H bravely blinked away tears as she saw her three sons going to the front. They are the captain, Lieutenant James J., just about to be married, and Sergeant William J. Their home is in St. Louis.

Wrist Watches Popular.

Now, please don't smile, for the wrist watch already has proved its serviceability with the army officer, but in view of the alleged prejudice of the wits a telegram addressed to all officers of the national guard in St. Paul and signed by an enterprising jeweler savors more or less of alleged humor. Here it is:

"Every minute counts with the alert American army officer. Your high position demands you be punctual, and this you cannot accomplish without an accurate timepiece. Officers under colors in foreign lands speak volumes of praise for the wrist watch. Prices, $3 to $25."

That the wrist watch is seriously considered as an important part of the soldier's personal effects is indicated by the fact that many guardsmen, particularly the officers, already are equipped with the bracelet timepiece.

"Go to It," Says Dying Father.

Lieutenant A. C. McDonald of St. Louis has a father dying, but is answering the call to arms.

"Go to it, my boy," whispered his father when the boy thought of asking for a discharge. "The country is above everything, and I am only an old man. I wish I could get up and fight for the flag."

As a matter of patriotism a St. Louis man who had passed the age limit—an old soldier who had served through two campaigns—enlisted as assistant cook.

"If I can't do anything else I surely can cook for the boys," he said.

It Didn't Work.

Captain Thomas P. Octigan, adjutant of the Illinois Seventh, was giving instructions to a subordinate when a young woman, sobbing, bearing a child in her arms, approached him.

"I am Mrs. Arthur Karafte," she wailed, "and I came for my husband, who left me to starve and support this infant. He is a private in your regiment."

When Private Karafte admitted his wife had spoken the truth and that he was willing to return Captain Octigan was ready to furnish transportation money to the guardsman and let him return home. The captain looked up the enlistment papers to make out a report when he discovered the man had sworn he was single.

Needless to say the private, who, the captain says, is a good soldier, remained in camp, and the "wife," after admitting she was his sister, went back to Chicago.

Sick Wife Wants Him.

Albert E. Pierce of Chicago left a sick wife and a four-year-old boy.

"My wife doesn't want me to go," he said, "but what's a man to do? I don't want to go for my personal amusement. This is something that comes before even a fellow's own, according to my belief."

"The Italian government issued a call for me," said Frank Bilotta, assistant bandmaster, who was for seven years in the navy, "but I refused. They can't have me. My home is here, my wife is here, my three little sons are here. So I fight for Uncle Sam any time he calls me."

How They Leave.

One thing in connection with the Illinois First cavalry's manner of going to war is worthy of observation. Either the I—me—my correspondents who report the departure of European troops are successful fakers or the technique of the First is woefully in need of repairs. The European war is more picturesque, more heroic. A kiss for the wife, a tear for the baby, a prayer for the fatherland and a curse for the foe is the way he goes to win his honors.

But in other fashion do the swashbucklers of the roaring First march forth. If the Mexicans could have heard what their oncoming enemies had to say of them it would take a hardy self respect on their part to survive it. The men of the First scarcely mentioned them! They couldn't be annoyed by them at all. There was too much else to occupy their attention.

What may happen next—is the thought uppermost in everyone's mind just now. Never was there a Fourth of July so filled with excitement and interest. Yet through it all there seems to run the feeling that no matter what happens everyone must be a good sport.

Maybe this idea has crept into the very fashions—for never was there such an interest in "Sport Things."

Just when you decide that you have seen every possible kind of sport dress—then along comes a new one. Sport dresses in pongee are what you expect—but sport dresses in crepe de chine—a new use—but nothing cooler for beach or tennis ever could've conceived. Imagine voiles that always have been mose demure—appearing in every variety of sport dress—the newest with the cape collars. But the quaint drooping on the shoulder only emphasizes the white leather belts that buckle in the pleats of the sport coats. There are silk dresses—taffetas mostly navy—some with coolest Georgette crepe sleeves—the kind on which you wear the Summer Furs.

Sport shoes—Aren't the white shoes with the rubber soles comfortable?

Sport coats—sweaters—what revolutionary things they are proving to be—rebelling at any that neglect—they continue in the newest colors and the most interesting variety of stripe combinations.

Then on the Third Floor—of course you know these things are all found at Hearn's—Sport hats—Velour, felt, felt and straw, any shape—certainly every color that you would want.

Blouses refused to be ignored—they take up more and more attention with the Russian blouse effect—peplums and all of extensions over the belt.

MRS. HENRIETTA BAUER GIVEN VERDICT FOR $200

Judgment for $200 was entered in the District Court in Elizabeth Thursday afternoon by Judge Abe J. David in favor of Mrs. Henrietta Bauer, of Jersey City, against A. C. Thompson, of this city, as the result of an automobile accident in Jersey City last November 2.

THE FOURTH OF JULY.

The Public Recreation Committee, which is doing such splendid work in this city, has planned to have a community celebration of Independence Day. As a representative of an organization which has been asked to participate in this patriotic demonstration, is well that I state, clearly, what is our understanding of the words Patriotism and Americanism. Such a course is rendered doubly necessary at this time, in view of the present world convulsion, in which we seem to be helplessly tossed in its spasmodic contortions; in which all human relations have been subverted, and in which this land of our choice is confronted with the problem of the hyphen.

"Patriotism," a public speaker said recently, "is a much abused and misused word. From one point of view, it stands for a sort of mad, frenzied, dervish dance around the national emblem. From another it consists in proper regard for the welfare of the country, and the happiness of the people."

The organization which I represent stands for the latter definition of patriotism. Understand me thoroughly. We are proud to be American citizens, and thrill at the glorious beginning of the American Commonwealth, and the American flag; but our enthusiasm will not be aroused, and our reverence will not be augmented when the flag is used as the cheap vaudeville actor uses it, when he unfurls it as a grand finale to his inane and insipid antics on the stage, to turn spontaneous hisses into applause.

We are Americans by choice, else we would not have come here to settle, because we believe that the American flag stands for greater things yet to be accomplished; for the further promotion of the welfare of the human race, and the ultimate realization of man's emancipation from all kinds of servitude.

We are Americans, and proud to be such, because we firmly believe that out of this soil, hallowed by the blood and sweat of all the people of the earth, will first bloom the flower of human brotherhood.

If any of our fellow citizens who are proud to date their ancestry back even to the landing of the Mayflower, resent our attitude, at times, of indifference or seeming antagonism to the flag, to such we point out that it is not to the flag, but to men and movements who of the flag make a protecting shield to further their own private interests, that the shafts of our scorn are directed.

There may be those who have forsaken or may never have acquired, even though born here, the high ideals of Americanism. We hold, then, those of us who were not born here, and who received their early education in the land of Garibaldi, and who learned on their mother's knees to revere the names of Washington, and Jefferson, and Franklin, and Paine and all the host who shed their blood to establish a Government of free people, that if, among the descendants of these, there are degenerates whose activities are destructive of the great principle for which their fathers fought and bled, we, who have made of liberty a holy cause, and of the rights of men an apostolate, have the right, yea, the sacrosant duty, to tear the flag off their viperish bodies and expose them to the contempt and condemnation of the aroused conscience of their fellow citizens.

I have mentioned the name of Garibaldi because Garibaldi loved the American flag. And we love it because he loved it, and what Garibaldi loved is holy; Garoibald, who was not of one country, but of all countries. This legendary hero and champion of oppressed races loved it so that when the cause of the Union looked black, did not hesitate to respond to Lincoln's call to lend the prestige of his name to the cause of the Union in these words, written to the American minister at Brussels, H. S. Sanford.

"Mr. Minister: I should be very happy to be able to serve a country for which I have so much affection and of which I am an adoptive citizen, and if I do not reply affirmatively and immediately to the honorable proposition which your government through your agency has made to me, it is because I do not feel myself entirely free, because of my duties toward Italy. Nevertheless, if His Majesty, Victor Emanuel, believes he has not need of my services, then, provided that the conditions upon which the American government intends to accept me are those which your messenger has verbally indicated to me, you will have me immediately at your disposal."

What a coincidence that the day of the signing of the Declaration of Independence is also the day that Garibaldi was ushered into the world thirty-one years later. This man, destined to be the liberator of Italy, never unsheathed his sword but for a righteous cause. In this connection, it is well to recall his reply to the American Consul at Antwerp, who wrote to the General that if it were so that he was going to America, he would resign his post and join his ranks with thousands of American citizens "who will glory to be under the command of the 'Washington of Italy.'"

"Caprera, June 27, 1861.

"My dear Friend: The news given in the journals that I am going to United States is not exact. I have had, and still have, a great desire to go, but many causes prevent me. If, however, in writing to your Government, and they believe my services of some use, I would go to America, if I did not find myself occupied in the defence of my country. Tell me also, whether this agitation is the emancipation of the negroes or not.

"I should be very happy to be your companion in a war in which I would take part by duty as well as sympathy.

"I am, with gratitude, yours,

"G. GARIBALDI."

And in another to G. P. Marsh, he wrote:

"Varignano, 5 October, 1862.

"I am ill and shall remain so for some months, but I think continually of the disastrous war in America, my second country, to which I would gladly be of some use when recovered. I will go thither with my friends, and we will make an appeal to all the democrats of Europe to join us in fighting this holy battle. But in this appeal, it would be necessary to proclaim to them the principle which animates us, the enfranchisement of the slaves, the triumph of universal reason."

It would seem extraneous to the subject to have spoken of Garibaldi, while I set out to define Patriotism and Americanism in connection with Independence Day. But I have done it purposely. Not only because this is also the day to commemorate Garibaldi, he being eminently the Knight Errant of humanity, who sought nothing for himself, but consecrated his life upon the altar of freedom, and who, like Cincinnatus of old, his work done, returned to the plow, the life-giver, the instrument into which he would that all swords be fashioned of; but also to show that people whose youthful imagination has been fired by the deeds and examples of Garibaldi could not be anything but real and true Americans, in the sense that Garibaldi understood it, and in the sense that the founders of the American Republic would want their descendants to understand it, and carry on their work to higher and still higher plane, until it reach Heaven itself. A plane where no one who claims to be a representative American will ever dare to give a government investigator a reply like the one given to Mr. Walsh, the fearless prober and chairman of the Industrial Relations Commission longshoreman to live on?" (Regarded as a representative American.)

longshoreman to live on?"

Mr. M. (Regarded as a representative American)—"I do not know, sir. If that is all he can get, and he takes it, I should think it was enough." This cynical and brutal reply is, certainly, no expression of Americanism. Any man who has the effrontery to say that a man can live on $10 a week with a wife, and the added burden of raising four or five future American citizens, is NO AMERICAN.

"Life, Liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness," these "unalienable rights" of the Declaration of Independence, in the light of that reply, become "weasel" words, a mere rhetorical phrase.

The real patriot, then, the real American, is he who applies himself to the solution of pressing economic problems, which the founders of this Republic never dreamed of facing, and which is the duty of each generation to solve for the welfare of the living and those yet to come.

The real patriot, the real American, is he who to the wondrous structure that the founders of this Republic have built, which gives us political democracy, shall apply himself to add to it the DOME of industrial democracy from which it shall radiate to the whole world, that America is all that the phrase implies, "A Government of the people, by the people, and for the people." Upon its glorious emblem, then, shall be emblazoned another star, not the kind which would mean territorial acquisition, at the expense of other people, but the radiant, wonderful, all embracing star of human hope.

Reciprocity.

I had a second cousin and he lives out on a farm.
But he became quite smitten with the city's potent charm,
Yes, he did.
His visits to the city he would hail with greatest glee,
And during those long winter months
he visited with me.
He made his home at my house and he stayed there constantly,
Yes, he did.
He said, "Now, Bill, next summer you must bring all your folks down,
And stay upon my farm because it will be hot in town."
Yes, he did.
He said, "I'll notify you and you must come right away;
You've got to be my summer guest,
you must not tell me nay."
Did he ever notify me? Did he name the happy day?
Yes, he did—NOT.

Note on a Certain Gentleman.

"Is the office boy on duty to keep people away from me?"

"Yes, sir."

"Is there a bench in the hall on which busy gentlemen may sit while waiting to see me?"

"Yes, sir."

"Is there a hidden lock on the gate that leads into the outer office?"

"Yes, sir."

"Has the telephone girl been instructed to ask all who call for me their names and business?"

"Oh, yes, sir—our telephone girl knows all about that."

"And to consult me before permitting anyone to talk to her?"

"Yes, sir."

"Is everything arranged here to make it as difficult as possible for people to transact business with this firm?"

"It is."

"Good. Then I'll go into my office and begin impressing people with my importance."

Have You Ever Heard These?

Lives of married men remind me
If I wish my life sublime,
I should leave such things behin me
As summer resorts, hammocks,

I am not referring to all the married folks, understand, I merely speak of "those" I have been told about and "those" I have read about.

- Proctor's Theatre -

Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne are co-starred in a Metro production at Proctor's today, entitled "The Wall Between," a timely subject dealing as it does with United States Army life. This production beside the splendid work of the principals is also distinguished by plenty of action, a well-knit story, touches of comedy relief and the picturesque background of an army post supplemented by semi-tropical exteriors of beauty. The direction of Juh W. Noble, which is good throughout, included the staging of a series of battle scenes, supposed to take place in Nicaraugua, which will give the country a ETA0 sup Mdr tem patrons a splendid idea of the style of country and also the regime through which our soldier boys entraining now for Mexico will encounter. In addition today Gretchen Lederer and Val Paul are featured in "Love Triumphant," and several comedy features including "Sammy Johnson, Magician," and "Gamboling on the Green," are also included in today's program.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the much talked of picture and the most startling film ever screened, "Where Are My Children" will be presented at Proctors'. This dramatic sensation, featuring Tyrone Power, tells a wonderfully truthful story of the most vital and intimate problem of love, life, parenthood and home, telling it in an atmosphere of refinement, intelligence, modernity and fearless facts. The Reverend Doctor Parkhurst endorses this production by stating "Where Are My Children' is a very powerful and gripping picture drama. I am glad to have witnessed it and am prompt to commend it. It deals with a most difficult matter in a manner of the utmost dignity. If the special type of iniquity which it suggests is anywhere near as prevalent as is claimed, the public should have an opportunity to witness the presentation." In addition Monday, "The Mysteries of Myra," will be shown; on Tuesday, "The Secret of the Submarine," and on Wednesday, "The Iron Claw."

HOSPITAL CORPS WILL GO INTO IMMEDIATE SERVICE

Writing as the train was speeding through Indiana on its way to the border, Major Harold Corbusier, of Park avenue, who is commanding the First Field Hospital Corps, says that the corps is in the best of health and everyone is eager to be the first to arrive in Texas. The corps will go into immediate service on the border, according to Dr. Corbusier, while the other corps will go to San Antonio for training. The Major now has a force under his command, including five assistant surgeons, one hundred and seven men; twelve ambulances, ten wagons and seventy-five horses.

MISS MARY PAOLI THE BRIDE OF WALTER HOWE

Miss Mary Paoli, daughter of the late Lorenzo Paoli, of North Plainfield, was married to Walter Howe, of Clinton avenue, in the rectory of St. Mary's church this morning by the Rev. Father Walter J. Hennessey. Miss Eva Lusardi acted as maid of honor while George Wood, of Dunellen, was the best man.

The bride wore a gown of champagne chiffon over champagne silk, while the maid of honor wore a frock of white crepe de chine and hat to match. At the conclusion of the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. D. DiLonardo, of South Second street, and later the couple left for a brief wedding trip.

COMFORTING WORDS.

Many a Plainfield Household Will Find Them So.

To have the pains and aches of a bad back removed—to be entirely free from annoying, dangerous urinary disorders, is enough to make any kidney sufferer grateful. The following advice of one who has suffered will prove comforting words to hundreds of Plainfield readers.

Mrs. William Gardner, 322 East Second street, Plainfield says: "I suffered a great deal from rheumatic pains across my back. My kidneys were weak and irregular in action, and I was in a miserable condition for months. Nothing I tried seemed to give me any relief until I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Randolph's Drug Store. They seemed to take hold at once, removing the rheumatic pains and regulating the action of my kidneys. They improved my condition so much that I soon felt like a different person."

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Kitchen Dishes Have a Merry Dance.

The Broom Crowned Her.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

JACK and Evelyn climbed up on daddy's knees, so he told them the story that a young man once told a princess and her parents, the story of some matches and their friends on the kitchen shelf: "'Let's have a party,' said an earthen pipkin. 'I will begin by telling you all about the things we all experience, something you all understand and that we all like. By the eastern sea and Danish beaches'—

"'That's a nice beginning!' cried all the plates.

"'Well, I passed my youth there in a quiet family. The furniture was all beeswax, the floors washed, and clean curtains were put up every fortnight.'

"'You're a fine story teller!' shouted the broom. 'With clean things running all through it you might be a woman telling it.'

"'That's right!' cried the water pail, giving a little hop that splashed water on the floor. So the pipkin never did get on with its story, although the broom crowned it with a wreath of parsley just for fun. All the plates clattered for joy, and the other dishes clapped.

"'Now I'll dance,' said the tongs, and she began to dance. How high in the air she could throw her legs! The old chair cover in the corner nearly burst laughing when she saw the dance. 'May I be crowned, too?' the tongs asked. So the broom crowned her with a wreath of parsley, just like the pipkin's.

"'They are only the rabble,' said the proud matches, who were rather stuck up. Then the tea urn was asked to sing, but it refused, saying it had a cold and could only sing when it was boiling. But really it was too stuck up to sing except when it was on the dinner table.

"On the window sill in the kitchen was an old quill pen which the servants used to write with. There was nothing unusual about it except that it had been dipped into the inkpot too far. But it was rather proud of this.

"'Outside in a cage is a nightingale that can sing if the tea urn won't,' said the quill pen.

"'I think it is most unkind to invite a strange bird to sing when we have a tea urn that's one of us,' said the kettle, who was half sister to the tea urn. 'I will leave it to the market basket to judge.'

"'I detest this way of having a party!' cried the market basket. 'If we all minded our business we could have a good time.'

"'Let's have a row instead of a party!' shouted all the kitchen things at once." Then daddy stopped for his good night kiss.

Marrying a Butterfly

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

Ethel Isn't Invited to Ride Two Blocks and Wants to Leave Town.

"They are not very neigaborly, not to ask us to ride," snapped Ethel Gordon as she and her husband turned to walk down the dark street toward home.

"There are six in a five-passenger machine. I should think that was pretty near a load." Ralph was relieved to get out of the over-heated, over-scented rooms into the open air. Mrs. Jaynes' reception was a success if numbers were any indication.

"Nobody could have sent regrets, for the whole town was there," he thought.

"It would not have hurt Mr. Morton to have walked and that would have made room for me," began the fault-finding voice at his side.

"It is only a little ways, and the evening is fine. Why should you care?" Ralph's voice was soothing.

"I hate to be snubbed. It is a crude thing to make a woman walk while the man who lives right next door rides."

"Why, Ethel, Mr. Morton does not own the machine. Dr. Ellson and the Mortons are old friends. They came together and it was natural for them to return the same way. The Parsons are the next door neighbors to the doctor, so taking them was a very natural thing. Don't look for slights. People who look for them always find them."

"Oh, we are out of everything. I might as well get used to it," was the querulous reply.

"Didn't you have a good time, dear? You seem out of sorts over something." Ralph patted the tiny hand resting on his arm.

"Oh, it was just a vulgar crush; nothing exclusive about it," was the reply.

"Everybody had on his best clothes and wore his most radiant smile, but my litle wife looked prettier than anybody," said Ralph, falling back on the talk that usually smoothed the frown out of her face.

"That is not saying much when there was not a woman there who was in style except Mrs. Jaynes, and she wore such extreme style and such loud colors that I felt ashamed for her," Ethel replied.

"I felt sorry for Jaynes. He evidently hates these functions and is dragged into them willy nilly. They say his son is a ne'er do well and small wonder when you see the way he was brought up." Ethel did not reply.

"Ralph," she began after a pause, "couldn't you possibly get a position somewhere else? I just hate this town. I am not used to being snubbed, and I do not propose to stand it."

"Snubbed!" he repeated.

"Yes, I call it nothing else, their not asking me to ride tonight."

"Are you harping on that again? I am surprised at you. It is something new for you to be imagining things of that sort." Ralph stopped and looked at his wife as they passed under one of the infrequent street lamps.

"I always had money to do what other people did before I married you," she complained.

"Ethel, if you knew how such speeches hurt me, I doubt if even you, thoughtless as you are, would make them."

"Well, it makes me so cross to have to walk when other people ride. I want to have things like the best. I am used to it."

"And I, Ethel, am used to a home where the woman was thoughtful of other people's feelings and it is hard for me to get used to selfish fault-finding," answered her husband in a stern voice.

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

There is a knock in my car. I have just taken up the bearings, but the noise still continues. It seems to be in the front part of the motor and has a metallic sound like a loose connecting rod. Could you suggest where this might be?

If the bearings are all in good shape look for the trouble at the piston of one of the front cylinders. It might be a piston slap due to the piston being under size, or it might be in the wrist pin bearing. Possibly there is a broken ring on one of the front pistons; but, at any rate, examine them to determine just where it is. It would be difficult to lay the trouble at any point without examination of the engine.

I am having trouble with the differential of my car. Have broken two drive shaft pinions, two drive or ring gears and three differential cross pinions, also the differential thrust bearing balls and ball races are giving trouble. The differential makes a grinding noise when running. Would tightening the wheels on the axle cause any part of this trouble? Please tell me how to assemble and adjust these parts to eliminate the trouble.

It is imperative when installing a new differential that you see that it runs free in the axle housing and that there is no binding whatever. If the differential is too tight it will have a tendency to cut out the races. To overcome this we believe that it might be well to cut out a portion of the housing behind the ball race so that the differential will turn freely.

The growling noise is caused by the pinion and the ring gear meshing too tight. It is practical at all times to make sure that there is a certain amount of back lash in the pinion gear, and, further, one must make sure that the pinion gear is meshing level with the ring gear.

It is impossible to tighten the wheels too tight to cause any of the trouble you are having, as the axle shafts are tapered and on this account the wheel is drawn up on the taper.

What is a high speed motor? Is it correct balance of motor parts and correct valve and ignition timing that make them run up to 3,000 to 3,400 r. p. m.?

By the term high speed motor is meant a motor so designed as to balance, timing and port and valve sizes that it can be run up to unusually high crankshaft speeds without a falling off in power developed and without undue vibration. The term high speed is relative, but engines running a crankshaft speed greater than 2,000 r. p. m. may be considered a high speed motor.

The speed indicating dial of my speedometer oscillates back and forth. Can you tell me how to remedy this?

Try tightening the swivel joint on the end of the flexible shaft near the gear. Also strap the shaft to the radius rod of the car, thus preventing it from swinging. If this does not stop your trouble the inside parts of the speedometer must be worn out and will have to be renewed.

The timing gears in my four cylinder runabout rattle. How can I remedy this?

The rattle you hear is undoubtedly due to excessive wear. The back lash in the gears causes the noise. Would advise you to install new timing gears.

Which of two bulbs would use the more current, a four candlepower or a fifteen candlepower that is dimmed to four? If any, about how many amperes on a six volt system?

The fifteen candle power that was dimmed to four candle power would use more current on any system, as some is being wasted in going through a resistance.

Can you tell me what is the matter with my car? When the motor is speeded up it begins to miss badly on different cylinders. A new carburetor does not relieve the trouble nor does the grinding of the valves, installing a new timer and coil box. The compression is good, however. I bought a new battery outfit also. In addition to the above difficulties there is constant heating. At first I thought the trouble was in the radiator and bought a new one, but this did not remedy the trouble. A pump helped slightly.

It seems from your description of the difficulties that originally the trouble was due to improper high speed adjustment of the carburetor, particularly if, as you did not say, the motor ran well on low speeds. Had you not had the same trouble after putting on the new ignition system a second cause might have been a badly worn timer, but inasmuch as with a new timer installed the same trouble continued, it seems to point to carburetion. It is suggested that you get a good carburetor man on it for adjustment.

The heating which occurred after installation of the new battery outfit in all probability is due to the fact that you carry the spark too far retarded. If it is hand control try keeping the spark advanced as far as possible without knocking. If you cannot cause a spark knock by advancing the spark and do not get a kick on cranking with the spark pretty well advanced it is almost certain that your ignition is too late. Late spark is sure to cause heating.

I am overhauling a very noisy four cylinder motor with overhead valves and would like to know if reducing the valve lift to three-sixteenths or one-fourth of an inch would make any difference in the noise, the present lift being one-half inch. The cams are also very sharp, which I imagine would cause a great deal of noise, but possibly may be remedied by grinding of the points to make them more round. Also, would this affect the power of the motor, and in what way?

You might decrease the noise by doing this, but you would also cut down the power because the valves would be opened less. This would cut down the charge admitted and lessen the possibilities of properly ridding the cylinders of burned gases.

If the speedometer on my car would register accurately with 35 by 4½ tires, how far would it throw my speedometer off if 36 by 5 tires were put on? How many miles in every ten or in one hundred?

If your speedometer registered correctly with thirty-five inch tires and you add one inch to the diameter by fitting thirty-six inch tires you add 3.14 inches to the circumference of the tire. Of course the speedometer is set to register one mile every 5,280 feet, or every time the wheel turns around approximately 576 times, although every time the wheel turns when equipped with a tire one inch greater in diameter than that for which the speedometer is designed the travel is 3.1 inches per turn, or 150.78 feet in 576 turns greater than registered. Thus it will be seen that when your speedometer registers a hundred miles you really will have traveled 102.85 miles, or 2.85 miles more than your indicator registers.

My car carbonizes quickly and smokes a great deal. Do you think a leak proof ring at the top of each piston will do any good?

Very likely this would help, but even better results should be obtained by using a full set of rings.

Would there be any difference in the amount of gasoline consumed in a car going forty miles at the rate of forty miles per hour and the same car on the same trip going ten miles per hour?

There would be a difference in the gasoline consumed going at these two different rates of speed, and the probabilities are that there would be less consumed for traveling the distance at ten miles per hour than there would at forty miles per hour. The reason for this is in the wind resistance. In traveling at ten miles per hour the wind resistance for each square foot of projected area against a vertical transverse plane would be 0.492 pound. At forty miles per hour this resistance has increased to 7.873 pounds. Therefore, if the projected area is twenty-five square feet this pressure amounts to a considerable quantity at a rate of forty miles per hour. The power required to overcome wind resistance can be figured approximately by a formula which is given as follows:

H. P.=0.96 P A M.

In this formula H. P. is the horsepower required to overcome the wind resistance, P the wind pressure in pounds per square foot over area A, and M is the speed of the car in m. p. h. Thus, assuming a car with a front area of ten square feet and speed of sixty miles per hour, the power required to overcome the resistance alone be 20.8.

What is the maximum speed of two cycle engines?

The maximum speed of the two cycle may be expected to be lower than that of the four cycle, due to the fact that with the increase in speed more of the dead gas will remain in the cylinder.

I have a car which I wish to convert into a speedster. Can you tell me what changes are necessary to secure the most speed out of it?

The weight distribution over the front and rear wheels should be made as nearly equal as possible, so that the car will hold the track and take the turns without upsetting. This rule is followed out in designing cars for racing. The center of gravity is made as low as possible to accomplish the same end. The motor should be balanced by making the reciprocating parts as nearly equal as possible in weight. The crankshaft must be perfectly balanced, the connecting rods to weigh the same—in fact, there must not be more work thrust upon one cylinder than upon another. By reducing the body weight the car will give greater speed. The new body should be such that wind resistance is reduced considerably, for this is one great factor in speed. By reducing the gear ratio still greater speed may be obtained, but the life of the car would be short with a gear ratio of less than three and one-half to one.

Is there such a thing as an internal combustion rotary engine?

There has been a great deal of experimenting in the way of internal combustion rotary engines and gasoline turbines. In fact, there are dozens of them on file in the patent office. So far none of them has been a financial success.

NEW RABBI INSTALLED AT TEMPLE SHOLEM

Rabbi Joseph Friedlander, the new pastor of Temple Sholem, officiated at last night's services for the first time. He is a graduate of the Jewish Tacological Seminary of London, and has served in various congregations for the past twenty-five years in New York, Orange and Selma, Alabama. He came to this city from Orange.

The rabbi took for his text last night, "And they shall keep the charge of the Lord," the words addressed to the first high priest in Israel when Moses consecrated them to their sacred functions.

The installation of the new rabbi was in charge of the president, William Newcorn, who made an impressive speech. Rabbi Friedlander responded, urging his people to remember the old Hebrew dictum: "Separate not thyself from thy people."

JUSTICE MINTURN RESERVES DECISION

On a rule to show cause why a writ should not be issued to review the ordinances in the matter of widening Madison avenue, which was allowed by Justice James J. Bergen, in the case of Fred Endress against the Mayor and City Council, the rule was argued before Justice Minturn at Elizabeth this morning. Decision was reserved. G. W. V. Moy represented Mr. Endress and Corporation Counsel C. A. Reed represented the city.

The proceedings attack the ordinance repealing the original odinance; also the ordinance of 1913 and all proceedings thereunder. After listening to the arguments, Justice Minturn reserved decision.

LINEN SHOWER GIVEN TO MISS MAUDE MORRIS

A delightful linen shower was given last night at the home of Mrs. E. S. Ralston, on Leland avenue, in honor of Miss Maude Morris, of George street, whose marriage to McClellan Staats will take place in the near future. Thirty-five friends of the young woman gathered at the Leland avenue hand and showeredher with many handsome pieces of linen. During the evening refreshments were served and progressive games enjoyed.

CHRISTIAN IS GIVEN COUNTY JAIL SENTENCE

Edward Christian, colored, who confessed to stealing $800 worth of goods from the store of A. E. Force & Co., this city, and was arrested June 6, while trying to make his escape, was fined $25 and given six months in the county jail by Judge James C. Connolly in the Union county court yesterday. The leniency of the court, it explained, was due to the able plea of Christian's counsel, Robert Newton Crane.

Immediately afterward Molly Croupen, sister of Christian, was tried on a charge of receiving stolen goods, and was found not guilty. Mr. Crane also represented her. A. E. Force, Lieut. Maurice Higgins and H. G. De Meza were witnesses for the State.

WILLIAM GOELLER'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of William Goeller, of Bradford place, whose death occurred Wednesday morning, was held in St. Mary's church this morning, where a solemn mass of requiem was offered by the Rev. Father Hennessey, as celebrant, Rev. Father Brogan as deacon and Rev. Father McDonald as sub-deacon. The floral offerings were unusually numerous, set pieces coming from the Sauer employes, the Moose, Court Dunellen, I. O. O. F., and friends. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, and the following acted as pall bearers: Thomas Buckley, Andrew McClellan, James Enals, Timothy Cullinane, Thomas Muldowney and Maurice O'Connor.

Raking 'Em Over

EVIDENCE THAT THEY NEED JACK.

The "Sentinel," a Milwaukee paper, reported that Jack Martin, owing to his having tonsilitis, was not taken with the Brewers when they made their trip to St. Paul. However, we see by a later issue that Manager Clark has had to send for Jack and that the local fellow responded, reaching St. Paul by noon and playing in the afternoon tilt. Jack always was a willing worker and gave all that he could to his superiors. It was not with surprise that we read of his dissatisfaction over the trouble and disruption that existed in the western camps.

RUNYON TO HAVE OPPOSITION?

Joe Breckley, a Rutgers star, has entered the pole vaulting event at New Brunswick on the Fourth. Breckley's best mark in actual competition is said to be 11 feet, but, it is added, that he has "done almost 12 feet in practice." The sport writer, who is authority for the statement that Breckley will make things interesting for Runyon, evidently is entirely unfamiliar with what the local vaulter can do and has done. We hope that Ralph will demonstrate just "what's what" next Tuesday.

ADVERTISING FOR PLAINFIELD.

Aside from the fact that an athletic meet held in this city on Labor Day would provide plenty of amusement for sport lovers of this and surrounding sections, there would be no end to the free advertising this city would get from an event of this nature. The large newspapers of New York City have sport writers who devote their attention entirely to track athletics and it is absolutely necessary that they give plenty of space to the most important A. A. U. meets held on Saturdays and holidays. Whenever New Brunswick holds an athletic carnival, from ten to twelve reporters from the metropolis make it their business to be on hand and in the papers of the following day, New Brunswick is lauded to the skies. Now the sport writers have no more love for the Middlesex County Seat than they have for this city, and would be just as willing to "write up" Plainfield, a Queen City, as they have been to laud New Brunswick. It's purely a matter of business and local business men will soon come to this conclusion.

REORGANIATION OF ST. JOSEPH'S.

We are glad to hear of the reorganization of the borough team and hope that the manager will be able to secure some good games. It is no easy task to guide the destinies of a good team these days and should the McDonough lads succeed in ree-stablishing the Saints the managers of other teams in this vicinity should not hesitate to consult with them in regards to dates. The North Plainfielders invite competition and they should get plenty of responses to that invitation.

BITS OF BASEBALL.

We wonder if William Kline is going to supply us with the old brand of baseball this year? So far, all we have seen of the Royal A. C. hasn't given us need of consultation with an oculist.

Someone is going to be surprised if Eddie Conshay twirls in last Saturday's form, when he steps on the hill this afternoon.

Umpires are umpires. It's a business and few have the ability to stick to this business. We believe Henny Winters has the ability. At any rate, he is going to prove it next Tuesday.

PRESS AMATEUR DEPARTMENT

Hope fans, gather around, for today we will discuss your favorites and their chances.

On the mound, Hope has one big lad. Dick Schott is his name and "shot" is the ball when it leaves his brawny right arm. Dick has not had as successful a career as he might have had. He has been doing a little pitching for Hopewell and, while he was at all times master of the situation up there, he did not have a fast team behind him. At any rate, that's a perfectly good alibi. And alibis are necessary when one fails to win a majority of the games in which he pitches.

Jim Nash, the Temple University athlete, has been catching for the Chapel clan during the past few weeks and has been going well. "Goat," as his friends are privileged to call him, is always on the alert and has been of great assistance to his team. Nans Luthman, who formerly caught for the Hopes, has been shifted to first base where he is doing better than he did back of the plate. There is nothing wrong with Luthman's willingness or ability but he hasn't got the build for a catcher. Consequently, his work has been off color, of late, and it was thought that a change of position would do him again. And it has.

"Pop" Martin still linkers in our midst. Martin, while never as fast a man as his younger brother, Jack, has been one of the mainstays of the Hope "speed" machine. As a first baseman—a position new to him—Martin has few peers. He can still cover a lot of ground and when he comes to bat with or without men on the bags, opposing pitchers bear a troubled look.

On second, we have "Soddy" Porter and, at times, Henny Alberts, the former a newcomer and the latter an oldtimer. Both are capable men, Henny still being the dangerous man of old and "Soddy" showing signs of rounding out into the season's sensation.

"Tush" Jaeger, shortstop, needs no introduction to the fans. "Tush" is, in addition to being a fast fielder, a good hitter.

"Hoppy" Walls, master of the third station, can always be depended upon to do what he's told. Last year, someone told "Hoppy" to try his hand at pitching. The obedient third baseman did as he was told and was bumped around for ten hits for an almost equal shower of tallies. There's nothing like being obedient.

In the outfield we have Tommy Heron and Henny Overland, two of the steadiest men in the game. Both are unusually good fielders and have time and again proved their right to permanent positions. And they have these "permanent" positions, too.

According to a scorecard, handed in at this office, Joe Friedman is still on the rampage. Joe has a habit of winning and is going to renew the tonic on July 6. During the intervening time, the Hebrews will be inactive.

During the coming week, we will endeavor to have some lively discussions regarding the merits of each of the City League teams.

SHELF OF PAVING BRICK, LACKING ROADBED, SUPPORTS AUTO

As the result of a spring freshet in Killbuck creek, some sixty square yards of brick paving are doing duty near Wooster, O., undisturbed by the fact that the roadbed beneath is missing.

This shelf of grouted brick, in one place six feet in width, supports a loaded automobile without the slightest sign of yielding. The concrete base has fallen away and the strength of the remaining structure is derived wholly from the lateral cementing of the brick. Engineers pronounce it a remarkable demonstration of the beam strength to be attained by properly grouted brick.

The freshet that caused the damage overflowed the road for many hours. When the water receded, the embankment had been washed away for several hundred feet. For a distance of sixty feet the road was undermined and the concrete base missing. Not a brick, however, had been disturbed. Traffic was cautious, at first, about using a pavement that had no roadbed beneath it, but confidence was gained with each succeeding trial and so far no warning sign of any sort has been placed upon the road and it is in use exactly as before the accident. Engineer Randall Barrett, of Wayne county, faces the unusual task of putting a roadbed under a pavement, instead of a pavement upon a road.

Between 225 and 250 miles of brick pavement is now under contract or proposed to be built in Ohio this year.

JACK MARTIN RETURNS TO BREWER FOLD

Local Player's Illness Does Not Prevent His Playing in St. Paul.

Jack Martin, who has been out of the lineup of the Milwaukee American Association baseball team on account of illness, has returned to his old position at short. Although the local lad was not taken to St. Paul with the Brewers, Manager Clark sent a telegram for him and, as his attack of tonsilitis was about over, Jack hustled over to St. Paul.

However, the local boy's batting eye is still cloudy and Spellman, a catcher, was sent in to bat for him in the last inning of Thursday's game with the "Saints." Jack was unable to get the ball out of the diamond. In the field, though he did fairly well, making two putouts and two assists, slipping up only on Paddock's grounder. One of Martin's assists was juggled by Kraft and made it possible for Glenn and Malone to pull off a double steal. Very few people witnessed the contest.

LOU ROSENTHAL SLUGS HEBREWS TO VICTORY

Lenox Lads, Although in New Uniforms, Fail to Hit Friedman.

The Lenox A. C., composed of baseball boys with new uniforms, held no terrors for the onrushing Hebrew A. C., yesterday morning and, consequently, lost to the Jewish lads, 9 to 7. Lou Rosenthal and Joe Friedman each made a double with two on. Anthony Deady pitched good ball, but was accorded miserable support.

Joe Friedman, who presides over the destinies of the Hebrews, stated this morning that his boys will take a layoff until July 6.

MULLIN WANTS TO PITCH FOR AMBOYS

Local Lad Would Be Designated Second String Flinger

You have to hand it to Tommy Mullin. The local lad, always a good infielder and dependable hitter, now wants to be a pitcher and is eager to do hurling duty for the Perth Amboy Pacers, with whom he performs on Sundays. Tommy, according to information handed out by the Evening Times of Amboy, is after the title of "second string pitcher." He is so anxious to get a chance to pitch that he has requested Billy Ufau, manager of the Perth Amboy club, to allow him to show his wares in the next game, provided, of course, the Pacers have assumed a commanding lead. It is very likely that Tommy will be given a chance and it is not at all improbable that he will make good.

The next game in which the Pacers—supposed to represent Perth Amboy, but more truly representative of Plainfield—will mingle is one with the Elizabeth A. A. This contest will be staged tomorrow and it is expected that a large crowd will be on hand to watch operations. Frank Hand will do the catching for the Pacers.

SHOOTING WITH A RIFLE.

The Proper Way to Aim if One Aspires to Good Marksmanship.

Walter Winans, the famous American sharpshooter, who lives in England, writes to the Scientific American the following directions as to the proper way to aim a rifle:

"The way to shoot is, first, put a big ivory front sight in place of the black one used for target shooting.

"Most real objects one shoots at are more or less dark, and the black front sight is difficult to see on the object; the white one shows up at once.

"Next, have your hind sight put on the rifle at the distance from your eye that you can read print best.

"When shooting do not try to focus a black bullseye, a black front sight and a black hind sight and a half dozen other things alternately while you hold on to your rifle like grim death.

"Look at the object you want to hit. If it is moving judge how much allowance in front you must make, bring up your rifle to your shoulder, swinging it with the movement of the object you want to hit, and press the trigger as the butt touches your shoulder.

"The bullet will go where you want it to without your noticing the sights at all.

"If you want to be a good rifle shot at game, or as a soldier, join the nearest clay pigeon shooting club, and when you can break 90 per cent of the clays you can rest perfectly confident that you can hit a man every shot you fire if being charged by an enemy if you have a rifle in your hands instead of a shotgun.

"If you practice in a 'coal hole' rifle gallery at a stationary black bullseye with a black front sight and see 'three front sights' and a 'blurred back sight' you are not learning to shoot, but merely ruining your eyesight."

Cornish Pies.

There are several dishes peculiar to Cornwall, and a pasty is one. It resembles an apple turnover, but is composed of meat, potato and seasoning, finely chopped. Almost every kind of food is put into a Cornish pie. Squab pie is a great favorite. Herby pie is another peculiar dish, composed of nettles, pepper cress, parsley, mustard and spinach, together with thin slices of pork. Pies are also made with leeks and pilchards, goose feet, gizzard and blood, raisins, sugar and apples and mackerel, parsley and cream.—London Standard.

EDNA WILDEY LOSES AT SLEEPY HOLLOW

Local Woman Unable to Withstand Onslaught of Miss Wagner.

Although she had given great promise in her earlier matches, Miss Edna Wildey failed to extend Miss Marie Wagner in the final of the invitation tennis tournament at the Sleepy Hollow Country Club. She was defeated in straight sets in which the result was never in doubt, Miss Wagner winning twelve out of sixteen games played. As in her semi-final with Mrs. H. Stuart Green, Miss Wagner profited by her willingness to take advantage of the smallest openings rather than play safe. Miss Wildey was not only out-manoevured but out-steadied. A cross shot just inside the boundary and a good deal of effective volleying up at the net were the chief features in Miss Wagner's success.

Miss Wiley covered her court well and hit hard all through, but her game lacked variety. She was unable to win more than two of her eight service games, while Miss Wagner lost only two out of a similar number. Of the four games that were carried to deuce Miss Wildey lost all.

NEWARK IRONSIDES WILL MEET BURNS' BOYS

The Ironsides of Newark, who have defeated the Lincoln Giants, the Long Branch Cubans and other crack aggregations, will play the Elizabeth Tabs at T. A. B. Park, Elizabethport, Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The Newarkers are bound to make the Elizabethans hustle, as they lost two close games to the Abstainers last season, the scores being 2—0, 4—1. "Kid" Kurfess or Eddie Haas will be on the firing line for the Newark representatives, while Marty Sheridan will do the hurling for the Teetolers. The Tabs' grounds are easily reached, being located at the Elizabethport station of the Central railroad.

CLIFTON CLAN CAREFULLY PLAN LOCAL INVASION

The Cliftons, of Newark, will be entertained by the Tabs at Avon Oval, tomorrow afternoon. The locals expect to encounter trouble in the entertainment but hope to annex a victory. Kuber will be on the mound for the visitors, while either Jack or Tone Denny will hurl for the locals.

There will be a preliminary attraction in which Alec McDonald's West Ends will do battle with Mike Montferrant's East End clan. This game is the second of a five game series, the Easteners having won the first encounter, 8 to 2.

VALUABLE PRIZES FOR THE CRANFORD CARNIVAL

The annual Cranford Venetian Carnival will be given again this year on the evening of July 4 and in case the weather should prove inclement the carnival will be held on the first clear Saturday following. The river carnivals at Cranford date from some twenty-five years back, with few exceptions each summer bringing a bigger and better carnival. The carnivals are now under the direction of an association, made up of representatives of all the civic bodies of the town.

This year twenty-five valuable prizes are offered in five classes, besides prizes for house and lawn decorations. The brilliant lighting of the lawns and the wooded shores of the river that winds through the residence section of the town together with the gorgeously decorated and lighted canoes and floats moving slowly along in the river parade, makes a wonderous fairyland. Visitors are welcomed to the fete.

OF GREAT IMPORTANCE.

Mr. Scorer: We would like to have the score of the game played today. To insure fair recognition of the same, you should hand the score in at the office this evening. If you are an official scorer for a City League team, and your team plays "at home" today, it is your duty to the manager and members of that team to hand the score in to the newspapers as soon as possible.—Joe Gallagher, Sporting Editor.

HAND'S EXPRESS CO.

It Pays to Secure a Tenant Who Pays.

The uncertain sort of tenant is easy to find. He is always answering the call of the window sign of "To Let." He is easy to please. Even a rather high rental does not frighten him away.

But the Stay-and-Pay tenant is not so easy to secure. He is surer of what he wants. He does not take the first house, or apartment, or store that he finds. He watches and answers "To Let" Ads.

And to secure him for your tenant is a good day's work—a good week's work.

Property that is advertised adequately in the Plainfield Daily Press is rarely rented injudiciously.

—Until you have canvassed the readers of this newspaper on the matter, do not decide whether or not this may be a "poor time to sell" that property.

NOTICE is hereby given that at a Special Meeting of the members of "The Plainfield Exchange for Woman's Work," held June 1, 1916, the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That in the judgment of "The Plainfield Exchange for Woman's Work," a corporation organized under the Laws of the State of New Jersey, for benevolent purposes and not for pecuniary profit, it is deemed advisable and most for the benefit of such corporation that the same be forthwith dissolved; and to that end it is ordered that a meeting of the members of said corporation be held on the eleventh day of July, A. D. 1916, at 10:30 a. m., at Grace Church Parish House, East Sixth and Sycamore Streets, Plainfield, N. J., the usual place for meeting of said corporation, to take action upon this resolution; and, further, that the corresponding secretary do forthwith, and within ten days from this date, cause written or printed notice of the adoption of this resolution to be mailed to each and every member of said corporation, residing in the United States, and also within ten days from this date, do cause a like notice to be published in the Plainfield Daily Press, a newspaper published and circulating in the County of Union, wherein said corporation has its place of meeting, at least four weeks successively, once a week next preceding the time appointed by this resolution for said meeting.

Notice is hereby further given that a meeting of the members of said corporation will be held on July 11, 1916, at 10:30 a. m., at Grace Church Parish House, East Sixth and Sycamore Streets, Plainfield, N. J., to take action upon said resolution.

TROOP D OFF TO FIGHT MEXICANS

TROOPERS SLEPT BETWEEN SHEETS LAST NIGHT; AT PITTSBURG TODAY AT NOON ON WAY TO THE BORDER

DOUGLAS ANDERSON ALMOST CAUSED A RIOT BY APPEARING IN A SUIT OF REAL PAJAMAS—PARADED THROUGH THE TRAIN.

BREAD AND JAM FOR SUNDAY NIGHT SUPPER

Forethought of "Home Folks" Saved Boys From Going to Bed Hungry—Philadelphia Gave Plainfielders a Rousing Welcome—Brown's Harmonica and Ackerman's Bugle Furnish Music as Train Speeds Toward Mexico.

(By Staff Correspondent)

En Route to Border, Pittsburg, Pa., July 3, 11 a. m.—Last night Watchung troopers slept between sheets with pillows under their heads for the first time since they left their homes in Plainfield two weeks ago. All slept soundly in their Pullman berths, although two were in each lower one, a non-commissioned officer in each upper. Trooper Anderson caused a near-riot when he appeared in a suit of pajamas. From whence they came no one knows, for all baggage was searched before the troop left Sea Girt, and "unnecessary" apparel was thrown out. Anderson paraded the train in his luxurious "sleep-clothes" and attracted as much attention as a polar bear on skates.

Sunday evening was spent by the troopers over cards and newspapers. Every man in the troop eagerly reads all the papers that he can lay hands on, and no organization on the border will be better posted on war news. There was much singing and whistling to the accompaniment of Trooper Brown's harmonica, enlivened by Ackerman's bugle.

At Philadelphia the train stopped under a railroad bridge thick with people who cheered the "boys" as long as their voices could be heard.

Sunday night mess was rather light. Bread and jam and cold coffee was all that was served, but some of the troopers had been supplied by their families and they generously divided. Roger Mellick had enough for almost a dozen hungry men, and he had no trouble in finding someone to share it. This morning the cooks had mastered the situation and for breakfast they served an excellent mess of bacon and hot coffee.

The troop train stopped for two hours in the stock yards in this city. The men were given an excellent luncheon of coffee and sandwiches by the Pennsylvania Women's Division For National Preparedness. The horses were taken from their cars and fed and watered.

Heart Breaking Scenes When Fond Ones Gather To Bid Farewell To Plainfield Soldier Boys

(By Leslie R. Fort)

Mobilization Camp, Sea Girt, July 2.—There's a great big lump chasing up and down in the throat of the Daily Press correspondent as these lines are written. Not that the lump has not had a pretty busy time for the past week, with all the harrowing sights that have been witnessed since the Battery entrained for the Mexican border, but this time it is for the "home folks." And the Press man is only one of the hundreds of Plainfielders who have visited the camp of Troop D during the last twenty-four hours, who have similar lumps this morning. Many years at newspaper work, twelve of which were spent around the Sea Girt encampment, and in other places doing the things which come in an ordinary day's work, have served to make it easier during the past ten days, but this morning that lump just would not behave.

It is all well enough to see someone else's loved one's crying at the thought of their soldier boy departing for the front, that is if you don't happen to know that someone else, and he is merely one of the five or six thousand husky young Americans who have gone before. But when it comes to personal friends, men with whom you have come in contact casually for the last four or five years, and so intimately for the last ten days that you have heard of their little personal affairs and troubles, the task is different. Those two words, "good bye," were mighty hard words to say yesterday afternoon.

Saturday afternoon the friends and relatives of the boys who could not bear to stay over until Sunday to say good bye came to Troop D's camp. The wives, mothers and sisters came in with smiling faces, determined to be brave, and send their husbands, sons and brothers off with the thought that they were content and proud to have them go to goodness only knows what. Some of them smiled until the last minute, but bright faces were few and far between when that last parting minute came. Most of the women were dissolved in tears, and there was more that one man that turned his back, gritted his teeth on his pipe stem or cigar, and wished he was away from there. There may be places where sadder sights are to be seen than at a mobilization camp where a hundred husky young Americans, most of whom you know, are taking farewell from the loved one for an indefinite period, and going to a place which mighty few know anything about. But if there are any such places this newspaper man has never had the misfortune to get the assignment.

The Plainfield men in the troop, especially the older members who have been responsible for the successful growth of the organization, are all true blue, and the new men are only second to them because they are newcomers. There is not one of the men who form the backbone of the outfit, upon whom Captain Borden cannot depend in the greatest emergency. All are real soldiers in every sense, and everyone says that he is already a better man because of the experience here. And incidentally they are officered by three of the finest men that ever wore shoe leather, Captain Borden, who Plainfielders do not know so well because of his residence in South Orange, Lieutenant Charles and Lieutenant Runkle. All of the non-commissioned officers fit excellently in their places, and they have obeyed orders as only a true soldier can. Social position has been forgotten, and everyone of the men is just a plain New Jersey National Guardsman.

All of which explains why it is hard to say "good bye" and why that lump is pushing the long unused tear ducts so that they may yet overflow.

Plainfield Boys Enthused Before Leaving Although Spirits Had Been Broken By Delay

(By J. J. M.)

Sea Girt, July 2.—Delay, linger and wait. Three small words but they summarize the last forty-eight hours of Troop D's stay at the mobilization camp here. After capturing more disappointments than all the other units of militia combined the Plainfield boys, together with Troop B, hailing from Red Bank, are now steaming toward the Texan border. Whether they will encounter other misfortunes to detain them en route remains to be seen but all are singularly confident that Dame Misfortune has exhausted her supply of taunts and, that once started, they will proceed to El Paso without a hitch.

For a week past the Plainfielders have been holding down the anxious seat. They never were certain what the morrow had in store for them and toward the last they accepted with little credence even the so-called information dealt out by officers. One man remarked: "I'm thoroughly disgusted. If they don't let us know one way or another pretty darn quick I'm going back to Plainfield."

One cannot realize the effect being kept in suspense has had on the cavalrymen. For days after opening camp every individual was bubbling over with enthusiasm, anxious to board the "Texas Special." Recently the sharp edge of eagerness has been dulled, the nerves of the men were unstrung, and they were heartily sick of saying goodbyes.

Only when the troop train pulled into the Manasquan depot and the men clamored aboard did they give evidence of again being possessed of their normal spirits. Old man gloom disappeared and as the car windows were slammed to the top each face was wreathed in smiles. Countenances that had become lengthened with each break-up in plans suddenly beamed with a new enthusiasm and all of the Plainfield soldier boys entered with all the vim that was in them into the ovation that was accorded the two departing troops; the last to leave the state mobilization camp for the border.

Despite the fact that Troop D was scheduled to "surely leave by Saturday afternoon" the news of the last delay was soon spread broadcast and friends, relatives and sightseers flocked to the soldier rendezvous up to the last minute. Those who had said goodbyes returned to renew their pledges of good luck and God-speed to the troopers and there were more visitors in camp during the last twenty-four hours than in any one day since the tents were pitched.

Saturday morning the men packed up their traveling equipment and had everything ready to place aboard the trains at a moment's notice. All that remained were the tents when the noon mess was served and these could be pulled down in a jiffy. Clothing, toilet necessities, camp fixtures and all other materials were packed and recorded.

Scowls, harsh words and threats greeted the announcement of a twenty-four hour postponement at noon time. Kits were unrolled, clothing torn loose from packings and everything was thrown back into the tents by a hundred heart-sick youths garbed in olive drab uniforms. "Enough of this. Why can't we be treated the same as the other regiments," declared the boys from Plainfield.

Officers as well as men were thoroughly put out, but managed to conceal their dissatisfaction wonderfully well. Everywhere was heard the remark that Troop D was being made a goat of. When the Essex guardsmen left for the border they took with them some of Troop D's best soldiers as well as thirty-five per cent. of the troop's equipment. Now the signal corps couldn't leave Sea Girt until twenty of Troop D's best horses were turned over to it. And then the signalmen had the nerve to saluate the troop boys as they passed the camp on the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks en route to El Paso late Saturday afternoon. Of all the nerve the Plainfielders have been subjected to this was the best yet. But they were men enough to return the compliment and sent the departing signal corps on its away with a hearty cheer.

Although the last to go from Sea Girt to the border Troops D and B are composed of some of the finest men enlisted from Jersey. Efficient commanders have whipped raw recruits into fairly presentable fighting material and the more experienced troopers have profited noticeably by the ten days' encampment. Every man looks better physically than he did when he boarded a train at the Central Railroad freight yards in

CAPT. BORDEN'S MEN AT LAST GET UNDER WAY; BOTH TROOPS FULLY EQUIPPED AND READY FOR FIGHT

FINAL GOODBYES CAME EASY WHEN THEY WERE SAID YESTERDAY AFTERNOON—TRAIN LEFT AT 4:57.

THEY WILL RIDE TOURIST CARS ALL OF THE WAY

Hundreds of Plainfielders at Sea Girt Sunday to Spend Last Day With Loved Ones and Friends in Watchung Troop—Soldiers Are in Good Spirits and "On Edge" for Whatever Duty May Confront Them in Service of Flag.

BY J. J. M., STAFF CORRESPONDENT.

Sea Girt, Monday Afternoon—"We'll hang Carranza by his whiskers to a sour apple tree." Such were the sentiments expressed by the Plainfield and Red Bank cavalrymen as they pulled out of the Manasquan railroad depot here at 4:57 yesterday afternoon, bound over the Pennsylvania road for connecting points to the border. Bubbling over with enthusiasm and eager to be on their way the troopers presented a vastly different appearance when they left here than they did twenty-four hours previously when it was announced that another delay was forthcoming.

Hundreds of Plainfielders flocked to the camp yesterday and the visitors helped to put the soldier boys back "on edge." The train loading was accomplished in record time and every individual bent his shoulder to the wheel that Troops B and D might get away from Sea Girt before some other hitch bobbed up on the horizon.

Different in many respects was the send-off accorded those who left for Texas yesterday from those given units that have previously been sent out. This was the first detachment to quit Sea Girt on Sunday and this fact, together with the appearance of a record-breaking week-end resort throng, furnished a sufficient number of sightseers to give the boys a rousing ovation.

Ideal weather conditions, carefully laid entraining plans and the cheerfulness of the troopers helped to make the occasion an impressively interesting one. So many times had the Plainfielders said goodbye previously to yesterday that the parting farewells came easy to them. Day after day they were told that they had but twenty-four hours to remain here and of course said their fond adieu to loved ones. But in each instance a postponement for some reason or other was forthcoming and even yesterday the boys were not sure that they were going until the engine began to puff and snort.

One advantage in remaining until the last rests in the fact that the Plainfield and Red Bank soldiers were thoroughly equipped when they left Sea Girt. This is more than can be said of some of the other units that had departed before. Saturday afternoon a carload of equipment rolled into the depot and even the "rookies" were marched from the camp to Sea Girt and assigned their articles of wearing apparel and mess kits. Horses arrived yesterday afternoon and each man is now provided with his own steed and saddle. This was probably well worth the wait.

Captain Albert Borden was in command of the two troops that left yesterday. The boys in the respective units have become pretty well acquainted during the two weeks at Sea Girt and this will prove another advantage during the long trip.

One thing the two troops had yesterday that stood out above all others and furnished food for conversation during the entire day was the tourist car service. Five of this type of traveling coach were provided, being brought to Sea Girt all the way from Tennessee for the cavalrymen.

When the big train rolled out of the Manasquan depot automobile horns and whistles tooted, bells rang, humans cheered and flags waved. The din of noise was kept up until the troopers were far out of sight. Automobiles lined both sides of the street adjacent to the depot for blocks around and people crowded in droves on to the big meadow surrounding the station.

Among those who had come to see the boys off were many from Plainfield, numerous autos arriving at this place during the afternoon. Camp was broken at 2 o'clock, but the better part of two hours was consumed in checking up equipment and loading horses. Tired and hot the men stepped aboard the special shortly after 4:30. As those in the first of the two coaches allotted to Plainfield clamored up the steps former Mayor Charles Fisk personally shook each hand and wished each trooper God-speed and good luck. Men, women and children clung to the soldiers' necks and hundreds of moistened eyes watched the train pass over the horizon on the level Penn tracks.

"Drop me a line soon," and "Take care of yourself," were the final words shouted by loved ones as the train clatter died away in the distance.

Even though the boys might have been in Plainfield they could have not been treated more royally than they were yesterday. Manasquan outdid itself. Sea Girt sent its best and the representation at the depot was a countrywide one.

CELEBRATION PLANS ARE NOW COMPLETE

Fine Program Will Be Presented in the City Park Tomorrow.

Everything is in readiness for the Community Fourth of July celebration tomorrow at the city park. The program will begin promptly at 3:45 o'clock. There will be a concert by the band, selections by the chorus of five hundred voices, the Venetian Quartet of New York, and an address by Judge J. W. Wescott. Champlain L. Riley, chairman of the Public Recreation Committee, will introduce the speakers.

Preceding the celebration a luncheon will be given at Truell Inn to Judge Wescott, at which former Mayor Percy H. Stewart will be the toastmaster. Champlain L. Riley and r. Henry M. Maxson will both respond to appropriate toasts.

Mr and Mrs. James Mauger, of West Seventh street, will leave on Thursday for China to be gone about one year. Mr. Mauger has business interests in the Orient which compel his presence in that country.

SEND THE SOLDIERS.

Stripes of flannel, two yards long, ten inches wide, for abdominal bands; dust-proof goggles, sewing kits, safety pins, handkerchiefs and towels, tooth brushes, combs, safety razors, shaving stocks, pocket mirrors, wrist watches with leather straps, heavy jack knives, witch hazel and bay rum, rubber heels, lots of reading matter, especially newspapers, small pocket kodaks.

In the matter of food cakes of sweet chocolate, hard barley, sugar candy, covered with granulated sugar to keep from getting sticky, preserved fruits, jams and other canned delicacies.

Use parcel post and be sure you designate exact rank, troop, squadron and State.

DO NOT SEND

Cakes, pies, cookies and other home made food; shoes, socks, clothing of any kind, blankets, mosquito netting, perfumes, disinfectants, medicines, umbrellas, rubber coats, underwear, money unless they ask for it in individual cases; neckties.

SANITARY TROOPS ARE ON THE BORDER

Arrived Safe Saturday—Maj. Corbusier Awaits Orders for Duty.

El Paso, Tex., July 3.—New Jersey's sanitary troops are safe at their destination. They arrived here Saturday morning, Hospital Company No. 1, of Elizabeth, under command of Major Harold D. Corbusier, and Ambulance Company, No. 1, of Red Bank, under command of Captain Peter P. Rafferty. To say that the end of the long journey was welcome is putting it mildly, for the train trip was long, tiring and depressing.

The ordeal was broken by one favorable event—the hearty reception accorded along the entire route from Trenton, Corona, Harrisburg, Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Louisville, Ky., Oklahoma City, Santa Rosa and this place.

As was fit for sanitary troops, the trip was marked by no serious illness among the 111 enlisted men of the two companies. There were a few headaches, one or two cases of train sickness and some stomachaches, but otherwise everyone reached the Mexican border in first-rate shape. The commanding officers are first-class physicians, members of the United States Medical Corps, and so are their staffs.

It could not be learned definitely today exactly where the two companies will go. The equipment and condition of the two companies make it certain that the companies will be used immediately. It is probable that they may be attached to the main body of New Jersey troops, though they may be used elsewhere for a few days. At present they are quartered in the big camp of mobilization just outside of El Paso, within gunshot of Mexico. Major Corbusier reported today to General Tasker H. Bliss, commanding here, and he and Captain Rafferty were complimented on their showing.

ANOTHER TROOPER ENGAGED.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton C. Barkalew, to Reginald G. Ralli, of West- announce the engagement of their daughter, Marguerite Kissam Barkalew, to Reginald G. Rolli, of Westfield, a member of Troop D, First Squadron, Cavalry, N. G. N. J, now on the way to the border. He is the son of Conny S. Ralli, of England. No date has been set for the wedding.

PERSHING DRAWS IN CLOSER TO BORDER

Gets Ready to Fight Mexicans—The Situation is Unchanged.

Washington, July 3.—The Mexican situation was apparently unchanged this morning, no word having yet been received about the Carranza note. War Department officials practically admit the drawing in of Pershing's lines, as reported in press dispatches today. It is stated that the lines of communication have been altogether too long. Gen. Pershing, acting on his own initiative, withdrawing to a point 100 miles from the border. It is stated no orders went out to him to do so.

CORPS AT DOUGLAS.

Mrs. H. D. Corbusier, of Park avenue, received a night letter from her husband, Major Corbusier, of the First New Jersey Field Hospital Corps, conveying the information that his corps did not stop at Fort Bliss, but went on to Arizona and is at present stationed at Douglas, Arizona. Relatives and friends of the members of the Field Hospital may reach them by mailing all letters to that city. It is probable that the entire New Jersey troops will be stationed at Douglas.

NAMED AS ASSISTANT.

Official announcement was made Saturday that T. C. Smith, formerly of this city, but now of Glen Gardner, has been appointed assistant freight claim agent for the New Jersey Central. W. H. Druse, of this city, is the freight claim agent.

HETTY GREEN DIES AT HOME IN N. Y.

New York, July 3.—Mrs. Hetty Green died this afternoon. Mrs. Green was born November 21, 1835, and was reputed to be the richest woman in America and probably the greatest woman financier in the world. She was interested in many large corporations and enterprises all over the world. She personally managed her large property in stock and bonds and real estate in Chicago, New York and elsewhere.

NEED HAVE NO FEAR.

Relatives and friends of Plainfield troopers who have left for the Texan border need place no credence in the reports that have been going the rounds the past week to the effect that the troopers would be thrown into an arid desert, forty miles from civilization. In all probability the Plainfield men will go to Fort Bliss where their comrades in the Essex Troop have already located.

This fort is about five miles from El Paso and is connected with that city by a street car line. The men will be given plenty of time off, for a while at least, and will be allowed to visit El Paso and other points in Texas.

The territory in which the fort is situated is hot in the day time but cool at night. Everything has been provided for the comfort of the men by Uncle Sam and it is not likely that they will suffer to excess from heat or cold. Heavy woolen sweaters are part of the equipment, while each man should have in his possession at least one thin jersey.

FRENCH WIN IN FURIOUS ATTACKS

Germans Driven Back From Second Lines Near Firse Village.

London, July 3.—After two days of furious fighting in the great drive north and south of the Somme River French troops today occupied sections of the second line of German defence in places along their front. The French also captured the village of Frise after a desperate battle and further east drove the Germans from the Mereaucourt. Wood. These successes have been officially announced by the Paris War office.

On the British front north of the Somme the village of Fricourt has been occupied after a battle that lasted for more than fifty hours. On all points of the twenty-five mile front on which the Allies began their great offensive to drive the Germans from France they continued to make progress despite fierce German counter attacks and desperate resistance.

Frise, Fricourt and the village of Curlu in between, which was captured by the French during the fighting on Sunday, mark the new line on which the French and British troops began their third day of the great battle. In just a few hours of fighting today they have advanced this line and are now battling at points quite a distance to the east.

The Interdenominational Bible Study Class will meet in the association Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. This is the last meeting until the fall and a full attendance is desired.

LITTLE CHANCE OF CO. K MOBILIZING AT SEA GIRT

No new developments that would indicate that there is a probability of Company K being ordered to mobilize appeared today. When queried this morning, Captain Charles Peterson said that the chances for the company being called out were diminishing all the time, and in a telephone call to the local headquarters Saturday Colonel William B. Martin, commanding the Second Regiment, said there was one chance in a thousand of them going unless something new arises. The first glimpse of Sea Girt the local soldier boys will get will probably be on July 22, when they leave for the week's annual encampment.

WHERE TO ADDRESS TROOP D MEN.

Although the State and Federal authorities have suddenly clamped the lid down hard on information relative to the Troop D route and probable destination they will go to Douglas, Arizona.

Numerous inquiries were made by the troopers before departing as to whether or not the Daily Press will keep in touch with the movements and mail address of the troops. Any information of this sort will be gladly furnished by the Daily Press and every effort will be made to secure the exact location of the cavalrymen at all times.

Letters sent out now should be addressed as follows: "Mr. John Doe, Troop D, First New Jersey Cavalry, Douglas, Arizona."

SPECIAL SCHOOL ELECTION TOMORROW

Citizens Organize to Oppose the Appropriation of $50,000.

A special election of the voters of this school district, called by the Board of Education, will be held in School No. 1 on Wednesday night, when the citizens will be asked to appropriate a sum of $50,000 for the purpose of building and furnishing an eight-room addition to School No. 1, and making necessary repairs to the main structure. The polls will remain open for one hour and as long after that as is necessary to allow everyone to vote.

A large number of people from the township and borough, in an effort to prevent the appropriating of $50,000 at the school election Wednesday, are taking active steps throughout the school district to persuade the voters to vote against the proposition. Tomorrow a committee of sixteen will spend the day on a campaign tour throughout the district, distributing literature and talking with the residents, and plans are being made to have conveyances for voters from the outlying sections on Wednesday night. The committee includes the following: Irving Betts, Ten Eyck Beardsley, Offley Brown, Frank Clifford Peter Loeffler, George Eberle, Emil Eckhardt, Maurice Hyer, Harry Jespersen, Samuel McAnneny, Harry McNamee, Luke Pandick, Harry Robinson, George Scudder, Charles Sheelen, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Van Hoesen. Charles Sheelen is chairman of the committee, and is gathering his cohorts for a full day of work tomorrow.

QUIET JULY 4.

Fourth of July promises to be quiet in Scotch Plains and Fanwood. There will not be the noise that marked the day in former years, and neither will there be any patriotic celebration, baseball games or other festivities. The postoffices will be open until 10 o'clock, while practically all of the stores will close the entire day.

OFF FOR MEXICO.

As the last of the three sections that were carrying the Fourth Regiment, N. J. N. G. to Mexico flashed past the Fanwood station Saturday afternoon a grey-headed figure in a khaki uniform stepped on the rear platform and doffing his hat, waved a farewell until the train was a speck in the distance. It was the Rev. J. Madison Hare, pastor of the Baptist church, but now captain and chaplain in a regiment of over five hundred men on their way to the border. Over one hundred people stood at the station for several hours with flags and bunting waiting for the trains to go by.

A regular meeting of the Saturday Night Club was held in the Fanwood fire-house Saturday night, and was attended by thirty people. A program arranged by Miss Edith Palmer, Miss Durar, Eugene Lidgate and Harold Hastings was enjoyed.

The monthly meeting of the new Borough Council for July will be held in the Fanwood fire-house tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

After being seriously ill at the home of his daughter, Mrs. R. G. Meggy, of North avenue, for the past two weeks, J. G. Paxson is showing signs of improvement and his recovery is expected.

Miss Mildred Brown, of New York, is visiting her brother, Councilman Offley Brown, of Forest road.

William Beeken, of North avenue, has accepted a position with F. A. Dunham, of Plainfield.

Frank Farrell, an Italian living in the borough, will be given a hearing before Recorder Charles Sheelen some time during the week on a complaint lodged against him by John Miller, who keeps a store on South avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Robinson, of North avenue, are spending the Fourth of July at Red Bank.

Mr. and Mrs. John Brick and family, of Terrill road, spent yesterday at Coney Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Knight, of Tilliston road, are the parents of a young son.

Miss Marie Boise, of Plainfield, is visiting Mrs. Ernest Kieb, of North avenue.

Miss Lena Jahn, of Park avenue, has resigned her position with the Bosch Magneto Company and taken one with the Cott-Lap Company, of Somerville.

William C. Strong, of Martine avenue, left today for a several months' business trip through North and South Carolina.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Shields, of Tilliston road, are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Harold Todd, of New York.

SECRETS OF SPACE

What Might Be Revealed if Nature Lifted the Veil.

WONDERS OF THE INVISIBLE.

Evidence That What We Call the Universe Is Only a Part of a Far Grander and Perhaps Infinite System of Suns and Worlds and Planets.

Men of science have found reasons for believing that there may be, far off in infinite space, other material systems besides the one visible to us. We seem to be able with modern telescopes to reach the boundaries or farthest limits of the stellar system to which our sun belongs.

It is found that with increase of distance the relative number of stars decreases until, in most directions at least, a point is reached beyond which virtually no more stars can be seen. Then, too, it has been found that the stellar system has a fairly definite shape—a fact which in itself implies boundaries. The shape is that of a vast spiral, with curving arms surrounding a central agglomeration. If you will imagine floating in the middle of the room where you sit a roughly globular swarm of bright particles, distributed with a fair degree of uniformity as to distance from one another, and then outside of the swarm surrounding it, but separated from it by a space which is nearly but not quite empty, an irregular spiral ring of similar shining particles, you will have before you a picture of one of the latest astronomical conceptions of the form of the visible universe.

The central swarm will represent the assemblage of stars of which our sun is a modest member, while the enveloping spiral will represent the immense system of the Milky way, whose stars are vastly more numerous than those composing the globular swarm. The stars of the Milky way are the most distant members of the entire system, which appears to be shut in all around by black space. Viewed from afar off in the ebon depths of that space, this universe of ours would resemble a phosphorescent jellyfish, with faintly sparkling tentacles, afloat in the sea of immensity.

This being so, the question naturally arises, May there not be, or must there not be, an indefinite number of other such systems scattered through the limitless expanse of space? That question would forever remain a matter of pure conjecture if we did not have certain very suggestive facts which seem to indicate that it ought to be answered in the affirmative.

The facts of which I speak are objects of visual observation. But that does not necessarily make them parts of the "visible universe," because they appear to be unconnected with it and to lie beyond its boundaries.

These objects are known as spiral nebulae. The photographs that have been made of them in the past few years are simply amazing. The forms of many are surprisingly like that which has been described above as characterizing the stellar system. They have central agglomerations with enveloping spirals. They have knots of light which recall the globular clusters of stars found in the visible universe, but they are so distant that no separate stars can be detected in them.

They look like masses of more or less condensed glowing gas, but the spectroscope shows that the light coming from them is not that which is characteristic of gas nebulae, but that which belongs to the stars. The influence is that these wonderful objects may actually be other universes lying out in the ocean of space beyond our shores.

This inference is strengthened by what we know of the distance of some of these objects. The utmost diameter of the great spiral of the Milky way probably does not [illegible] from 4,000 to 6,000 "parsecs," or from 800 to 1,200 million times the earth's distance from the sun. A parsec, which corresponds to a parallax of one second of arc, equals about 19,000,000,000,000 (nineteen trillion) miles. But some of the spiral nebulae appear to be at least 10,000 parsecs distant.

If, that is so there exists between them and the outer frontiers of the visible universe a gap far broader than the entire diameter of that universe. It can hardly be supposed, then, that they are outlying parts of or attendants upon our universe, but it is much more reasonable to conclude that they are other universes constructed on a similar plan, but so far away that as viewed with our utmost visual powers, our mightiest telescopes, they are but gleaming specks! Perhaps the nearest of these strange objects is the Andromeda nebula, which, in a small telescope, looks like a faint spindle shaped wisp.—Garrett P. Serviss in New York Journal.

Vengeance on the Caddie.

"What! Buying more golf clubs? I thought you had a pretty complete outfit before."

"I have, but that caddie of mine had the nerve to snigger when I topped my drive yesterday, and I'm going to make him carry double weight."—Pall Mall Gazette.

Bearded Freak.

One of the earliest of the American bearded freaks was Louis Jasper, who lived in southern Virginia at about the time of the close of the Revolutionary war. His beard was nine and a half feet long and correspondingly thick and heavy. He could take his mustache between his fingers and extend his arms to their full length and still the ends of the mustache were over a foot beyond his finger tips.—Exchange.

MOTION PICTURES IN BRAZIL.

They Have Some Curious Rules in the Theaters That Show Them.

South America is fast becoming a paradise for the motion picture theater, but some curious rules prevail. For example, the best motion picture theaters in Rio de Janeiro do not allow patrons to drop in or out at will. A film is advertised to begin at a certain hour of the afternoon or evening. At the appointed time doors are closed, or in most cases a heavy and highly decorated curtain is dropped, and the show in the auditorium begins its functions.

A rather novel arrangement, also noted in other Brazilian cities, is the waiting lobby immediately in front of the entrance proper. After purchasing a ticket the patron enters the lobby or corridor, takes a comfortable seat and waits until the termination of the first section of the play, the time of which may be a few minutes or half an hour. While waiting one may listen to the band of music, which may be heard equally well by those within the lobby or in the audience.

At times the crowds become congested and all the lobby seats are occupied. In such cases the ticket seller withholds further admissions, and the crowd remains upon the street, but the brilliant electric lights (if night) and the music of the band continue to swell the number of waiting patrons.

The night is the most popular hour for the crowds, as at that time the whole family turns out, and every one who can afford an automobile presses it into service. At one of the best motion pictures in Buenos Aires a writer counted more than 200 machines drawn up in lines awaiting the closing of only an average attraction. The hour was near midnight, and about as much ceremony was observed as if the finest opera company had been the star performers.—Argonaut.

A ROMANCE OF BAGDAD.

Peculiar Story of Nazim Pasha and an Armenian Beauty.

A remarkable tale of Nazim Pasha, the commander in chief of the Turkish armies against Bulgaria in the Balkan war, is told by Sir William Willcocks, K. C. M. G., in an article in Blackwood's Magazine:

"After Nazim Pasha became wali of Bagdad there lived in one of the best houses in the place an Armenian girl of eighteen, who was very pretty, very wealthy and an orphan. All the young Armenians in the Turkish empire were eager suitors for her hand, but she would have none of them. The wali invited her to his palace and told her that in her unprotected condition she might get into trouble, but that if she were to marry a countryman of hers in his household she would have both a sterling husband and his own protection. She accepted, but on reaching her home sent the nazim word that she preferred remaining single.

"'You shall remain single for life!' said the wali, and put a cordon of soldiers round her house, which prevented her from leaving it.

"She escaped to the French convent one day, dressed as a French nun, and the cordon of soldiers moved to her new residence. After some delay she escaped as a French monk, took refuge on Lynch's boat and sailed for Basra under the British flag. Boats full of soldiers surrounded the steamer at Basra, but the girl ran across the deck, jumped into the Russian consul's boat and took refuge under the Russian flag. The consul saw her safely on to the British India steamer, and she descended at Bushire, in Persia.

"Not many months afterward Nazim Pasha himself was deposed and ordered to return to Constantinople. He returned there finally and was, as we all know, murdered by the Young Turks."

Milo Was a Glutton.

Milo, the famous athlete of ancient Greece, born 520 B. C., was victor at both the Olympic and Pythian games for six times in succession. On one occasion he ran four miles with an ox on his shoulder, killed the animal with a blow of his fist and then ate the entire carcass in one day. An ordinary meal for this gluttonous Titan was twenty pounds of bread, twice that much meat and fifteen pints of wine.

Original Era of Good Feeling.

The phrase applied to the administration of James Monroe, "the era of good feeling," first appeared in a Boston newspaper, the Columbian Sentinel of July 10, 1817. From that time until the present hour the two administrations of Monroe—a period of eight years, 1817 to 1825—are referred to in the terms of the newspaper paragraph which so aptly expressed the public sentiment of the day.

Lay of the Cow.

"What are oxen?" asked the teacher. The little foreigners looked blank. "Does any one know what a cow is?" she asked hopefully.

A dingy hand waved wildly at the back of the room. "I know. I know, teacher. A cow she lays milk!"—Harper's Magazine.

TROOPER TAPS

Francis J. Blatz, president of the Common Council, visited Councilman (Sergeant) Rowland Cox at the camp Saturday. Mr. Blatz has taken a summer cottage at Manasquan and was among those who saw the boys get underway.

Mrs. W. B. Tyler to Corporal Tyler: "Why don't you wear one of those nice black ornaments strapped to your belt like the other men do?" She referred to a formidable looking pistol which had been furnished the men. Her husband had purposely left the weapon at his tent in order not to alarm her and she spoiled his plot.

Plainfield troopers left the camp sorry but for one thing. That was because they didn't learn the identity of the miscreant in the signal corps who thought it was 5:30 Saturday morning when the hands of the clock pointed to only 4:30, and blew the bugle awakening them.

Jim Conway even went so far as to inquire of Corporal Tyler if the bugle call meant "get up" and didn't discover that the corporal was all wrong until he had been up a half hour.

Several of the men who had previously been rejected by the Federal examiners were summoned by telephone from Plainfield Saturday and started yesterday with the troop for the border.

Wells (Fat) Creager spent his first day at Sea Girt making up for lost sleep. Trooper "Fat" arrived in camp shortly after 2 o'clock Saturday morning and rather than wake the officers up spent the remainder of the night sleeping under a tree. After morning mess he lost himself in a pile of hay and didn't come out until it was time to eat again.

One thing the Plainfielders will miss on that Texas desert is the mosquito. The troopers became quite well acquainted with the pest that made Jersey famous while at Sea Girt and a delegation of the blooming blankety-blank insects, almost as big as aeroplanes, is visiting the lone occupant of the Press tent as this stuff is being written.

The Plainfield boys would liked to have had one of those big American eagles that lived in a camp tree as a Mexican mascot, but the birds had a family of three young ones to take care of and wouldn't enlist. The eagles and their nest were the objects of considerable attention from Troop D visitors. The birds were of unusual size and the nest was built near enough to earth to afford a fair view.

Four of the most regular visitors at the camp have been former Mayor Charles J. Fisk, Arthur Perrin, Joseph Bebout and A. C. Wadley. All of the quartet have taken an active interest in the boys, particularly Mayor Fisk, who provided a number of luxuries that were certainly appreciated.

Sergeant Cox was caught stealing a fine sized green apple from Sergeant Mellick's supply in the kitchen tent Saturday afternoon. But he's an officer and for some reason or other didn't either get sick or reprimanded.

"We'll hang Carranza to the sour apple tree," was the parting notice served on several hundred people at the Sea Girt depot Saturday afternoon by the Fourth Regiment as it left for Texas.

When the signal corps came down to Troop D's headquarters Saturday with instructions to take twenty of the Plainfield boys' horses the local troopers managed to work one great big useless animal off on the signalmen. This steed had created nothing but trouble since it was introduced to National Guard life the day before and even those troopers who had been mauled by the equine were glad to see it go, although they didn't get revenge on it.

PLAINFIELD BOYS ENTHUSE

Plainfield two weeks ago tomorrow and all admit that they feel tip-top.

What climatic conditions they will encounter at the border is a matter that has been speculated on considerably during the past week by the guardsmen. Someone concocted a yarn to the effect that the troops were going to be shipped to a tract of desert waste eight miles out of El Paso. This story reached camp Saturday and the men didn't quite know whether to take it at its face value or look for more authentic information.

Saturday was the hottest day the men put in at Sea Girt. Many stripped to their undershirts and Captain Borden was flooded with requests for permission to take an ocean bath after the announcement that another delay was made. But he had to refuse as the new horses were expected in at any minute, and he had to have men on hand to unload, inspect and brand them. The tooreprs contented themselves with baths under the pump on the portion of the field vacated by the signal corps.

Despite the fact that relatives had been previously warned against stocking the boys with good things to eat prior to leaving, cakes, candy and other appetizing morsels reached the tents over the week-end and the last few hours before departing was spent in gobbling up stray bits as the boys had no room for excess luggage.

Even those turned down by the government inspectors when the mustering in time came hung around the camp until the last moment. All admitted that the two weeks' experience at Sea Girt had profited them much and they voted it the most enjoyable vacation they had ever spent. Not a vacation free from work but one brim full of busy routine that carved finely trained men out of the rough. It was a new experience for many and the newness naturally brought with it enjoyment.

This afternoon the Buckelew Farm on which the Troop D located two weeks ago with Battery A, of East Orange; Troop B, of Red Bank, and the Jersey City Signal Corps, is deserted. Nothing remains to tell the tale of National Guard life but trodden grass on a vast acreage of meadow land which may be best likened to a plateau. The camp pump, a stripped cherry tree and a nest of American eagles, with three small birds crying for food, are all that remain on the immense stretch. How long before the residents of Manasquan will be thrilled with another two weeks' of excitement with several hundred soldiers keeping them company remains to be seen.

All in the village have the highest respect and best of praise for the Plainfield boys. They have been classed by the neighboring farmers as the most gentlemanly and best behaved group of soldiers that ever visited this section. There was no night carousing and "growler" parties in Troop D. The officers forbade and the men didn't want them anyway. But few night "passes" were issued and a man had to have considerably more than the ordinary excuse in order to get out.

"Plainfield people have treated us like kings," one trooper told the Daily Press representative. But the guardsman didn't have to enlighten the Press on this subject. The generosity of big hearted patriotic Plainfielders was plainly in evidence from the time the first tent pole was driven until the last one was pulled from its moorings. Anything the boys wanted they could have for the asking. Nothing was too good or too expensive for Plainfield's soldiers. They knew it and appreciated it.

Now they are on their way to Mexico. En route, no doubt, they will encounter a new brand of hospitality, a kind which no one of them has ever before experienced. Red-blooded Americans from here to the border saw to it that the troops which have gone before them wanted for nothing and it is likely that Troop D will receive the same treatment from towns along the line. They were well stacked with cigarettes and eatables when they cast anchor from here but the trip is a long one and the supply will need replenishing ere they reach their destination.

BOY SCOUTS ATTEND PATRIOTIC SERVICE

Rev. Dr. D. W. Skellenger Preaches Eloquent Sermon at Hope Chapel

Representatives of all the Boy Scout troops of this city, together with the Camp Fire Girls, attended a patriotic service at Hope chapel, last night, when Rev. Dr. D. W. Skellenger, the pastor, preached a stirring sermon on "Patriotism." During the service John Richards sang a bass solo. The choir also sang patriotic selections.

Troops 12, 7 and 13 had the largest representation. The scouts met at the Seventh-Day Baptist church, and proceeded in a body to Hope chapel, led by a fife and drum corps. They were met at the chapel by Troop 12. Scout Commissioner A. V. Searing, Jr., and several other officials and scoutmaters attended the service.

FIRST UNION SERVICE IS LARGELY ATTENDED

The firs fof the series of union services arranged for July and August was held at the First M. E. church last night and was largely attended by members of the uniting congregations. The sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, his subject being "Stretch Forth Thy Hand."

Rev. J. Y. Broek, of Trinity Reformed church, offered prayer, and Rev. Dr. Charles E. Hedding read the Scripture lesson. Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson and Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, the la— of the First Baptist church, also took part in the service. The service next Sunday night will be at Trinity Reformed church, and Rev. Dr. Herring will preach.

WITNESSED EXHIBITION.

Among the forty-five thousand persons who witnessed the annual exhibition of field and track events given under the auspices of the New York Policemen's Association, for the benefit of the widows and orphans of men who sacrificed their lives in the performance of their duty, at Sheepshead Bay, Saturday afternoon, were the following Plainfielders: Miss Mary McCullough, Miss Helen Bryniarski, "Doc" Doyle, John Kyle and Thomas Carty.

ARTHUR DODSON.

Arthur Dodson, colored, aged eight years, died in Muhlenberg Hospital yesterday. He had been an inmate of the local institution for several months. His home was in Jersey City.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS PLAN FOR CARNIVAL

"Krause Greater Shows" Will Appear Here Week of July 10-15.

Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, is congratulating itself upon securing the "Krause Greater Shows" for its annual carnival which will be held on the lot at Clinton avenue and West Front street, the week of July 10-15. These shows do not need any recommendation to amusement lovers of Plainfield as the reputation established on their former visit is a guarantee of the high-class productions offered.

The shows are all new, clean and meritorious and there will be nothing to offend the most particular man, woman or child. The streets of Cairo and other so-called oriental shows, with their dancing girls, are conspicuous by their absence. Mr. Kause, sole owner and proprietor of the shows, has made it an imperative rule that any attraction that had to depend on the vulgar or low tastes of the audience was not worth while and this rule has always been enforced. There are fifteen shows and attractions carried by Mr. Krause so diversified in the nature of the performances given that each and every patron will be sure to find something that appeals to the taste. The engagement is for one week only, July 10-15.

MRS. JOSEPH HAPPE DIES IN 68TH YEAR

Mrs. Joseph Happe, for many years a resident of Liberty Corner, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Edgar Brokaw, of 29 Regent street, yesterday morning at 11 o'clock. She had been ill but a short time. She was a member of the Liberty Corner Presbyterian church, having been one of the parishioners of that church during the pastorate of the Rev. Charles B. Condict. Mrs. Happe is survived by five sons and five daughters. They are William, now in Illinois; Mrs. Frank Winn, of Millington; Frank, of Basking Ridge; Mrs. James Foster, of the borough; Mrs. Charles Beekman, of Bernardsville; John, of Liberty Corner; Mrs. Fred Bauman, of Morristown; George, of Liberty Corner, and Mrs. Edgar Brokaw, of the borough.

The funeral will be held on Wednesday with short services at the house and at the Presbyterian church at Liberty Corner. At these services the Rev. Charles B. Condict will officiate. Eleven years ago Mrs. Happe's husband died.

RECOMMENDED FOR JOB.

Fred Zior, of Elizabeth, has been recommended for re-appointment as a Democratic member of the Union County Board of Elections. Charles H. Matthews, of Somerville, has been recommended for re-appointment on the Somerset county board, and Howard H. Brown, of Old Bridge, for member of the Middlesex county board. Governor Fielder will make the appointments.

ANOTHER LOCAL INVENTOR.

Clement Howe, of Clinton avenue, has just received word from Washington that he had been awarded a patent on a new device for opening a door. He filed his claim over two years ago. Instead of turning the knob it is only necessary to push on it, and it is probable that Mr. Howe will start the manufacture of them.

VIRGINIA SHEA.

Virginia Shead, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Shea, of 319 West Second street, died yesterday, following a brief illness. She was three years and nine months old, and was the last of six children of Mr. and Mrs. Shea. The funeral will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, and burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

RECEIVE 62 MEMBERS.

Sixty-two new members received the right hand of fellowship at the communion service at the First Baptist church yesterday morning. The majority were converts at the Bleerwolf evangelistic campaign. There are still as many more new members to be received after baptism.

RECREATION NOTICE.

All representatives of organizations or other persons having flags or banners that they wish to loan to the Recreation Committee for the Fourth of July celebration are asked to have them on hand at the City Park not later than 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

FINED FOR FIGHTING.

Silas Crite and Ernest Harvey, colored, were tried before Judge De Meza in police court this morning on charges of disorderly conduct. They had a fight on West Third street Saturday night. A fine of $3 was assessed in each case.

PATRIOTIC EXERCISES.

Members of local Catholic societies will take part in patriotic exercises to be held in Roselle tomorrow morning. The local delegation, which will leave on the 9:27 train will be accompanied by the T. A. B. S. Fife and Drum Corps.

HOME FROM COLLEGE.

John F. Mulkeen, of 611 New street, a student at Epiphany Apostolic College in Baltimore, has returned home for his summer vacation.

SUPERVISOR WRISTON ANNOUNCES SCHEDULE

Parker Field League Teams all Ready for Opening Day—Five Teams Entered.

The schedule of the Parker Field League for the first of the season is as follows:

July 5, Lennox A. C. vs. Shamrock A. C.; July 6, Hebrew A. C. vs. Shamrock A. C.; July 7, Diamond A. C. vs. Hebrew A. C.; July 10, East End Juniors vs. Diamond A. C.; July 11, Lennox A. C. vs. Hebrew A. C.

The schedule has been made only for one week in order to give any other teams that may wish to enter the league a chance to enter the schedule before it has run too far.

Mr. Wriston would like to see the captains and managers of the various teams on Wednesday to see if it will be possible to run double headers on certain days and thus get more games in the schedule than would otherwise be possible.

The regular season on the field in all lines opens on the fifth of July. The outdoor gymnasium is open daily and various contests are to be arranged on the rings and other apparatus.

In a few days there will be a definite announcement of a kite flying contest. The boys entering the contest will be required to make their own kites and the awards will be for the kites flying the highest and also for the most striking appearing kites.

There is now a playground badge given for certain athletic attainments to both boys and girls. Be sure to watch for the announcement, or get the details from Mr. Wriston at the field.

SCOUT CAMP IS NAMED FOR SENATOR ACKERMAN

In recognition of the helpful service of Ernest R. Ackerman the Boy Scout camp has been named for him. Camp Ackerman opened last Saturday and is now in full swing. A large number of boys are enjoying the summer there, and in addition to being given a happy vacation they will be taught many things of benefit in their lives. The Scouts staying over the Fourth are Taylor, Marshall, D. Warren, P. Warren, Harvey Taylor, Kenneth Spratt, David Carmichael, and Paul Peck. Many visitors were out Sunday to inspect the camp and they all complimented the committee and the director on its appearance.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Martin, of New York City, are spending the week-end and the Fourth with local relatives.

Miss Marguerite Kress, of Brooklyn, N. Y., is visiting her cousin, Miss Frances Newman, of Duer street, the borough, for several days.

DEATH SUMMONS ASHER FLEMING

Prominent Resident of Dunellen Succumbs to Long Illness.

Following an illness of two years, Asher Fleming, of Dunellen, died Saturday afternoon at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Cornelius M. Ryno, of Center street, that place. His death was caused by a complication of diseases. Mr. Fleming was born in New Brunswick seventy years ago and resided there until twelve years ago when he came to Dunellen to make his home with his daughter. He was employed for forty years as a lineman for the Western Union Telegraph Company.

Beside his widow, Mr. Fleming is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Janet Selover, of New Brunswick; Mrs. C. Lester Rule, of New Market, and Mrs. C. M. Ryno, of Dunellen, and one son, John Fleming. Another son, Archibald Fleming, died two years ago, while a brother, Isaac Fleming, died in New Market two weeks ago.

The funeral was held this afternoon from the home of his daughter, at 2:30 and was in charge of Rev. H. L. Polan, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church of New Market. Burial took place in the Piscataway Township cemetery, the following acting as pallbearers: C. Lester Rule, Asher K. Fleming, Fred C. Fleming and C. M. Ryno.

LOCAL DELEGATES TO ZIONIST MEETING

Dr. Solis-Cohen Makes Interesting Address Before Assemblage.

The following delegates from the local Zionists attended the opening of the Federation of American Zionists in Philadelphia yesterday: M. Mendelsohn, Samuel Rosenbaum, Harry Katz and Edward Nadler. Prominent Hebrew speakers from various parts fo the country addressed the sessions. Among them were Dr. Harry Friedenwald, Dr. Solis-Cohen and Louis Edward Levy. In part Dr. Cohen said:

"As American citizens we cherish in common with the great bulk of our loyal fellow countrymen the hope that it may be the merit of our country to hasten the peace in the world, and to restore the bonds of fellowship and humanity among the warring peoples. As Jews and Zionists in America should we not hold still more strongly to the hope that it may be our merit to restore with pease and unity also happiness and freedom and opportunity to our suffering brethren among the nations now at war. But how can we become an instrument for peace and union if we ourselves set the example of strife and division? That strife and division do exist in American Israel none may deny. I shall not attempt to apportion the blame. Suffice to say it is not all on one side. But however that may be, it is the duty of every American Jew to do all that he may to put an end to the unseemly and dangerous dissension."

JOSEPH J. RANDOLPH DIES IN THE BOROUGH

Joseph J. Randolph, of 213 Watchung avenue, died this morning following an illness of two months duration. He was seventy-four years of age and up to the time of his illness was employed in various capacities. Before moving to the Watchung avenue address he lived at 204 Liberty street. Two months ago his wife died and since that time Mr. Randolph has steadily declined in health. The funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 at the undertaking parlors at 402 Park avenue, and interment will be at Samptown.

FORUM

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

In my article of Saturday last the printer omitted the forepart of a question, repeated twice the concluding part, and added an extra explanatory parenthesis, with the result that the reader would find it hard to get any meaning out of it. The paragraph following "the fearless prober and chairman of the Industrial Relations Commission" should read as follows: "Mr. Walsh—Do you believe, Mr. M., that $10 a week is enough for a longshoreman to live on?" "Mr. M.—(Regarded as representative American) I do not know sir." etc.

SOLDIERS' RELIEF LEAGUE

The New Jersey Soldiers' Relief League was formed at a meeting of some of the most prominent people in the State held in the Governor's cottage at Sea Girt last week. Mrs. James Fielder, wife of the Governor, is president of the organization that intends to work for the relief of the families of Guardsmen in Mexico.

The Fourth Day in July

One hundred and thirty-eight years ago today a proclamation was read on the steps of Independence Hall in Philadelphia that changed not only the map of America, but the map of the World.

American Independence has meant for more than the releasing of British oppression.

It gave the whole wide world a new thought on Government FOR, BY and OF the people.

It did more than any document ever written to bring about Brotherhood, Fraternity and Equality. It gave impetus to France, to Switzerland, to Portugal, to every republic now in the world.

And how many other nations now ruled by arrogant monarchs it will influence toward Democracy, only time can tell.

ADMITS HOLD UP STORY WAS FAKE

Boy Station Agent at Netherwood Confesses After Police Get Facts.

TWO OTHERS IN CASE

One Who Has Greater Part of Money at Large—Clever Detective Work Bared Daring Plot in Time to Arrest Conspirators.

The confession of John Southard, eighteen-year-old station agent at Netherwood, in which he told of planning of the fake robbery of himself last Friday night reads like the scenario for a movie thriller, and like the plots in most movies there was just enough clues left in it for detectives to unravel the full story and arrest the conspirators.

Southard was arraigned before Judge William DeMeza in police court this morning on a charge of grand larceny. With him was Gabriel Grovetti, another Scotch Plains youth, Grovetti has been in trouble here before. A third youth has not been arrested. All were held to await the action of the grand jury on bonds of $1,000.

The confession of young Southard was not volunteered and credit is due Chief Kiely and Lieut. Higgins for detecting the plot in the "hold-up" and gathering evidence of the guilt of Southard and Grovetti.

Last Friday night Patrolman Nolan found Southard lying on Netherwood avenue, Netherwood, apparently unconscious. He and Patrolman Martin called an ambulance and the young man was sent to Muhlenberg. There he quickly regained consciousness and despite his claim that he had been sandbagged he was soon able to walk about the hospital. The attending physicians could find no trace of a blow. Chief Kiely and Lieut. Higgins doubted the story told by Southard and they soon found proof of his guilt. After talking to him they went to Scotch Plains, the home of the young man, and after an hour spent there learned that two friends of the boy station agent had left about 7:30 Friday night, coming toward Plainfield. One was Grovetti and the other a young man named Albert Walpole. The officers also found that Walpole had visited Southard at the station late Friday afternoon when the "hold-up" was probably planned. With this evidence they went back to the hospital and catching Southard in several impossible statements in connection with his story they forced a partial admission of guilt from him.

Grovetti was arrested at his home about daylight Saturday morning. In his room was found $145 of the $600 that was taken from the station. He admits his part in the robbery. Later in the day Southard made a complete confession. He told of his plan to meet Grovetti and Walpole on Netherwood avenue where he was to turn over the money. He arrived at the appointed time but they were not there to "rob" him and he went back to the station and waited a half-hour. On the second trip he handed over the money, crushed his hat with a stick, and sat down to await the arrival of a "discoverer." It proved a long wait. Southard tired of lying in the road and sat on the curbstone. When he heard someone approaching he would fall in the roadway. Several people passed within a few yards of the point where he was lying, but none came near enough to see him, until Patrolman Nolan made his rounds at 10 p. m. The "unconscious" station-agent had been sitting there more than an hour and a half.

Attorney Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., appeared for the two boys in police court this morning. He entered a formal plea of not guilty but waived the reading of the complaint and asked that they be allowed bail for their appearance before the grand jury.

An officer of the New Jersey Central aided Chief Kiely and Lieut. Higgins in handling the case.

Walpole will probably be arrested later.

MISS NAVOTNY BRIDE OF OTTO J. LANG

Father B. N. Bogan Officiates at Ceremony in St. Mary's Church.

Miss Elizabeth C. Navotny and Otto J. Lang, both of this city, were married yesterday morning at 10 o'clock in St. Mary's church by the pastor, Rev. Father Bernard M. Bogan. Following the ceremony the couple proceeded to the Hotel Kensington, where the proprietor, J. J. Sullivan, had prepared a wedding breakfast for the young couple and their immediate friends. Early in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Lang left for an extended automobile trip in the former's car and on their return will make their residence in the Hotel Kensington.

The bride is a native of Raritan, but came to this city when a young girl and attended the local public schools. For several months she acted in the capacity of cashier for the U. S. Astor Theatre in this city, but resigned later to take a position with the Wanamaker store in New York city.

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

What is the object of a clutch brake?

A clutch brake is a device to check the momentum of the clutch while changing speeds. Usually when the clutch is thrown out or disengaged it tends to spin for some time, due to the momentum it received from the engine. The clutch brake rubs on the clutch or clutch shaft in such a manner as to slow it up so as to make quiet gear shifting without having to wait for the gears intended to be meshed to assume approximately the same speed.

What is your opinion of a two wheeled trailer with solid tires for use with a small car on country roads? Do you think this trailer will be harder to manage and better for the car than if I put a heavy load on the automobile itself for long trips over hills and muddy roads?

The use of two wheeled trailers with solid tires for the purposes you mention is rapidly becoming common practice, as there are a number of advantages in favor of this adjunct to the passenger automobile for light commercial work such as you describe. There are three important factors to be kept in mind in considering the suitability of the trailer for the work to be performed. First, the trailer should be strongly and compactly constructed, and at the same time its weight should not be excessive. For a light car the trailer should be of a weight which could be easily pushed about by hand. Second, the trailer should be equipped with some type of coupling bar, which will prevent road shocks and abrupt stopping and starting from jarring the vehicle and perhaps loosening the load. Usually these bars are made with a spring arrangement to take up thrust. Third, the axle is one of the most important parts of a trailer, and you should be sure that this is in good condition and that the wheels turn smoothly and easily on their bearings without excessive lost motion.

If the trailer you are contemplating using satisfies you that it will be a practical vehicle for your use, the points mentioned above being considered, it should be a good investment, as this form of carrying heavy loads is far superior to piling things into the tonneau of your car so that the wear on the rear of your chassis and the tires is greatly increased, while the whole balance of the car is destroyed.

I would like to put a compressed air tank on my car and want to know how large it would have to be and how much pressure would be sufficient to inflate three or four 36 by 4 inch tires to eighty pounds pressure. Will you please give me this information?

The size of the tank required to inflate three or four 36 by 4 inch tires to eighty pounds pressure is not as important as the pressure of the air within it. For example, with a tank of 500 cubic inches volume, which is about the size of one of the larger tanks used for acetylene headlights, a pressure of 1,800 pounds per square inch would be sufficient to do the work you require. This is a good, practical size and if made sufficiently strong to obviate the possibility of breaking or exploding should be satisfactory, though if you desire you can use a larger tank at a lower pressure.

How many dry cells should I use to operate a motor driven electric horn on my car? Would it be very expensive to use dry cells for this purpose on a car that is not driven much during the season?

If you really desire to use a motor driven electric horn in conjunction with dry cells you will find that a set of six cells will be necessary for use with a large horn. Our experience is that it is necessary to renew these cells about once a month, even though the car is not driven to any great extent. Unless you have a storage battery on your car it will be both more satisfactory and more economical to use a hand operated type of horn.

My car caught fire, and the storage battery, starting switch and practically the entire electric system were destroyed. I am rebuilding the car, but do not intend to fix up the starting or lighting system. The generator is all right, but the distributer is burned. If I get a new distributer what would I have to buy to put the ignition system in shape? The generator will be used for ignition only, as I have cut the starter and lighting out.

Putting the ignition system in shape entails almost as much work and expense as to rehabilitate the lighting, starting and ignition. For the ignition it will be necessary for you to have the distributer, battery, ignition coil and relay—in fact, everything except the starting switch, and you will rejuvenate the starting system of your car. You might leave out the starting and wire the car for lights, but in any event if you renew the ignition system it will cost you very little more to put the whole electrical system in shape.

How can one measure the square feet of wind resistance?

Figure the area of exposed surface which the wind would strike. To get it approximately multiply the average height by the average width of the object.

Will you kindly describe a universal joint and its action?

A universal joint is a mechanism that is designed to have free angular movement with positive rotary movement. Its function is to allow two shafts at varying angles to each other to have a positive driving connection.

Can you tell me the difference, if any, between a torsion, torque, strut and radius rod?

Torsion rods, torque rods, torsion tubes and torque arms are all the same in office. This office is to prevent a live driving axle from twisting axially in response to its own and the vehicle's inertia instead of transmitting the torque of the drive. In other words, all of these devices are to resist the torque reaction. The torque is the twisting effort of the driving means, whose object is to turn the wheels. There are two general forms of torque members, the torsion tube and the torque arm. The torsion tube is a tubular inclosure for the driving shaft, which is usually yoked or otherwise pivoted to the frame at its front. The reaction of the axel in driving causes it to press on the underside of the frame. The reaction in braking is in the reverse direction and causes it to pull downward on the frame. A torque arm has a similar mission, but it is in the form of an arm, either to one side or directly under the driving shaft.

The radius rod or strut rod is a member designed to keep the axle in place against its tendency to move forward under driving stress or to move backward when the brakes are applied. The terms are synonymous.

Would it be better for starting my motor to shorten the intake manifold and use a cowl gasoline tank? Would it improve the pulling to any extent?

Probably beneficial results as far as motor operation is concerned would come from raising the carburetor and shortening the intake, as you would give last chance for condensation of the fuel, but it is doubtful if the results obtained would warrant the expense and trouble.

The gasoline tank on my six cylinder car is on the rear end of the car, and the gasoline is forced up to an auxiliary tank on the dash. It then flows down to the carburetor. I also have a four cylinder car, and the gasoline tank is under the front seat, and the gasoline flows from there to the carburetor. When running very slowly for twenty minutes in hot weather the gasoline will stop flowing to the carburetor, and the car stops. If I wait five minutes the gasoline will begin to flow again and everything will work properly. Both cars work exactly alike in this respect. Can you give me some advice on this?

The fact that two cars act the same renders this a very mysterious state of affairs, but there are two explanations which may fit the case. The first explanation is that there are air locks in the piping. It very often happens that in installing the gasoline line large vertical bends are allowed to occur in the piping. When this happens there are certain times when the gasoline will be drawn away and what corresponds to a large bubble will form in the bend. The result is that the gasoline is choked and cannot flow until this bubble is broken, which occurs due to the weight of the gasoline after a few moments' wait. When the gasoline is again drawn through the piping another bubble is apt to form and the same occurrence happens again.

The second explanation for your trouble is that instead of the gasoline ceasing to flow the condition of running on a rich mixture for twenty minutes results in flooded engine, which will not again operate until sufficient gasoline has evaporated to bring the mixture down to the range of explosiveness. Above and below this range a mixture of air and gasoline will not explode. With the ordinary carburetor the auxiliary air valve will remain closed at very low speeds, with the result that practically all of the suction of the motor falls upon the jet and nothing but raw gasoline is drawn into the manifold. After running a short time in this condition, with more gasoline being drawn into the manifold than is being used, the motor is choked and stops. When you wait for five minutes, as you say, the accumulated gasoline evaporates, with the result that an explosive mixture is again formed and the car will run properly until the same condition is again set up.

The remedy for the trouble is either to make a lighter adjustment on the air valve or to install some device admitting extra air to the manifold. A number of these are on the market and can be attached by simply tapping into the intake manifold and by installing a control system to the steering column or some convenient position in the car. Whenever the mixture becomes super-rich, so that it is necessary to dilute it with an extra supply of air, this can be done from the driver's seat. Such an installation not only guards against the trouble which you mentioned, but also permits a reduction in your gasoline bills by making a leaner mixture for higher speeds at which the car is practically continuously run during a tour through the country.

PLAINFIELD PRESS COMPANY,
193 NORTH AVENUE

THE SERVICE SHOP

Above is shown the emblem of the Business Men's Association of Plainfield. About seventy merchants of this city are members of the organization, and most of them display this emblem in a conspicuous position on their windows. It stands, however, for more than mere membership in a commercial body. It stands for business honesty, and it is displayed by the merchants in this city who believe that honesty and fair dealing is worth more to them than any temporary advantage which may be gained by taking short cuts which others think brand them as "shrewd." The emblem will never be found on the window of a "fly-by-night" store that comes here for a few weeks or months to take advantage of holiday trade. The store in front of which this emblem is displayed is not here for a few days. It has probably been under the same management for years, and will continue under that management. It is a guarantee that if you have purchased anything in the store which displays it, and you are dissatisfied, you can go back at any time and have any reasonable complaint properly and courteously attended to.

There are many reasons which can be presented in favor of trading in Plainfield. The emblem shown above is the best one of all. The stores which display it are the ones where purchasers are assured of honest values, for every member knows that he will be taken to task by the others if he tries any shady merchandising methods. Perhaps you will say "that sounds all well enough in an advertisement, but they do not practice what they preach." If any reader of this has any doubt that the members of this organization are not jealous of the emblem, it can quickly be dispelled by attending any regular meeting. The frankness with which the business men discuss each other's faults will no doubt be surprising, but it is just that frankness which is making the business men of Plainfield, allied with this organization, strive to be fair to the public in every way. The meetings are held the 1st Monday of every month in Coward's Hall, on Park avenue, and visitors are always welcome. Our members are given a chance to get acquainted with many of the people of the city, and the kicker is made more welcome than the fellow who is easily satisfied, and comes out of mere curiosity. We know that we can all benefit from what the kicker says, for nine times out of ten his kick is a just one.

"But who are the members of the Business Men's Association?" perhaps you will ask. That is a fair question, for it is only for the members of this organization that these advertisements speak. In the next talk the names of every firm will appear.

Action of the fire committee of the Common Council in deciding to submit three separate recommendations on the buying of an engine for the Netherwood station threatens more delay in this important matter. While those who have been selected to handle the people's business wrangle and hesitate an entire community is momentarily threatened with disaster and even death because of inadequate protection against fire. If Chairman Cose and those who serve with him on the fire committee could not decide at one meeting, or more, if more were held on the subject, the kind of an engine to buy, they should have met again and again until they had reached an agreement. Three reports are worse than no report at all. How can Mr. Cose and his colleagues expect the Council as a whole to select the engine best suited for Netherwood when, after weeks of authorized investigation, he comes back with three separate reports, each recommending a different make of apparatus? The proper parliamentary procedure at tonight's meeting would be for President Blatz to refer the matter back to the fire committee with instructions to that body to come to some agreement, but it is to be hoped that a way will be found that will give Netherwood relief at once.

The Allies are testing their driving power. It is the German who now has his back to the wall, after two years of forcing the fight, and the next few months will bring knowledge of the real strength of the armies opposing the German alliance. English advances in the sharp offensive of last week may have resulted from surprise, but Russian gains in Galicia are real. Wonderful things are expected of Kitchener's armies that are just now swinging into action, but even the boastful pro-British papers of this country refrain from comment because of the seriousness of the test. English soldiers are today fighting not only for the future of their country, but for that of all Europe, for victory or defeat for them in their new campaign means victory or defeat for the Allied cause. England's fleet controls the North Sea, and England's submarines claim to have blockaded the Baltic. Now while France holds Verdun and the Russian Bear keeps the Austria-Hungarian armies busy defending Lemberg England's armies have started out to crush the Germans. Surely "The Day" has come.

Tomorrow we celebrate. The anniversary of the signing of the declaration of American independence is a fitting time for those who enjoy the many blessings of American citizenship to add up the debt they owe that handful of brave souls who defied the great British Empire that their sons and daughters might forever be free. They builded the greatest country the world has ever known, but not all of its people are worthy of the heritage. We hope every Plainfielder will make Tuesday a day of reconsecration to American principles. It is not enough to hang out a flag, shoot a few firecrackers and listen to a spread-eagle oration. Spend at least one hour of the day trying to find some way in which you can make your country better, and stop at least once on the Fourth, come to "attention" and salute your flag. This act alone will make you a better citizen.

Plainfield's soldier boys are off to the front. Goodbyes have been said, parting gifts have been bestowed and the recipients of all the love and honor that a community can know are now speeding toward the border in answer to the call of their country. Every individual in this section has a lively interest in events in the lives of these men while they are away, for they are voluntary representatives of Plainfield and its environs gone forth to battle for us all. The Daily Press will seek to give accurate, timely news of their movements, but many a long lonesome night, lonesome as only a desert night can be, will be cheered by a letter from "back home." If you know someone in Troop D, or any of the other "boys" from Plainfield, write him a letter as often as possible. It will lighten his heart and makes him a better soldier.

The alertness of the Plainfield Police Department was demonstrated Saturday night in the Netherwood robbery. Only a few minutes before the youthful agent left with $600 in his pocket a policeman offered to watch the money if it was left in the station all night, he was found by a policeman, and within a few minutes after discovery of the crime Chief Kiely was personally in charge of the investigation. In order to follow a "hot trail" Chief Kiely, Lieut. Higgins and other members of the department worked all night. They are entitled to the thanks of a grateful community for a work well done.

Carranza points to the fact that almost one hundred Mexicans have been killed on this side of the border recently. If a machine gun or two hadn't jammed, and the "greasers" hadn't been so clever in planning their robberies the list would have been longer. We should apologize to him at once for our poor marksmanship.

Carranza has evidently been taking lessons from a neighbor. He wants to fight by letter.

INTERESTING EXPERIENCE OF LOCAL AGRICULTURIST

The American Agriculturist in its issue of today contains the following article, relating the experiences of C. M. C. Wurmser, of Plainfield, which no doubt will be read with considerable interest by many Plainfielders:

"Thirty-three years ago I had some apples that grew in clusters no bigger than nuts. Four years ago I put some mixture on them to see what it would do, and now they have grown to the size of ordinary Pippins. I do not know any name to give them, but I call them Winter Pippins. They are very fine eating, baking or cooking. I have kept them in the cellar until the month of July. I have 700 peach trees which have been set out four years. I also applied the same mixture to the peach trees and find that it has worked splendidly. I have had two large crops of peaches on my four-year-old trees. There are only a few this year, as the frost has killed all peaches around here.

There is no doubt that the production of "Where Are My Children," will have, upon persons of modern, the effect of a sermon. Announced in an introductory sub-title as a document on the subject of birth control, this picture is resolved, in its main theme into an attack upon the avoidance of motherhood. The central figure is a district attorney, played by Tyrone Power (whose work is excellent, by the way), whose wife, unknown to him, enlists the help of a criminal in escaping motherhood, despite the fact that her husband desires children intensely. After the wife has introduced one of her women friends to this person, with the usual result, the wife's brother comes visit her, and wrongs the daughter of the housekeeper. Then the wife gives him the name of the criminal, to whom he takes the girl. But the criminal bungles this time and the girl dies. The criminal is placed on trial by the District Attorney, and gets fifteen years for his crime. Just as he is leaving the court-room after his sentence, he counsels the District Attorney to look after his own household affairs before he prosecutes others. Then it is that the lawyer learns by reading the criminal's ledger what his wife has been doing. When he reaches home, he finds his wife surrounded by her women acquaintances, and he drives them out of his house with the statement, "I ought to prosecute all of your for manslaughter, but instead I will content myself with asking you to leave my house." Such is a synopsis of this engrossing subject which has set the whole country talking, and which marks a new epoch in educating the masses by means of the motion picture. In addition to this feature today the ninth episode of "The Mysteries of Myra" is shown. On Tuesday, the fourth chapter of "The Secret of the Submarine" will be included in the program and on Wednesday the nineteenth episode, next to the last, of "The Iron Claw" will be added. Our prices these three days only have been slightly increased, owing to the tremendous cost of "Where Are My Children."

5,000 NEW JERSEY TROOPS ARE EITHER ON THE BORDER OR ENROUTE THERE; RECORD FOR STATE

(By L. R. F., Staff Correspondent.)

Sea Girt, July 3.—In less than two weeks after the President's call for three regiments, two batteries, a signal corp and a squadron of cavalry the New Jersey National Guard authorities have completed the order, and have the men, numbering approximately 5,000, out of the State and on the way to the Mexican border. And this has been done in spite of numerous delays on the part of the Federal government. Had the State been given authority to purchase needed supplies, Adjutant General Sadler is confident that this record would have been beaten by at least three days. It is a record as New Jersey is the only State thus far that has completed its work of getting the troops off.

The final detachment to go, Troops B, of Red Bank, and D, of Plainfield, pulled out of the siding at the Manasquan station of the Pennsylvania Railroad late yesterday afternoon. The men were ready to go from noon on, but had to wait the arrival of cars containing 175 mounts for the two organizations. These animals had been inspected and branded at Englewood, where the government purchased them, and when the special train bringing them from the Bergen county town arrived here shortly after 3 o'clock, all that needed to be done was shift the cars to the troop train, and start the commands on their way.

The two troops were the first organizations to leave Sea Girt in the cars which will take them to the border. Two standard and three tourist sleepers were provided for the 212 men and officers on the train. The latter included Major William B. Bryant and his staff, consisting of Lieutenant Henry H. Bertrand, squadron adjutant; Lieutenant Louis D. Kilgus, quartermaster, and Sergeant-Major Vredenburgh.

There was a big crowd at the station to wave a final farewell to the men of the departing commands.

The delays in getting off began to wear on the men's nerves yesterday morning, and there was more grumbling heard in camp than at any time since they came here nearly two weeks ago, when it was found that once again there were prospects of delay. It had been stated that the horses would arrive at Sea Girt by 6 o'clock, and when the troops tumbled out of bed they were prepared for a busy morning, and departure by noon. All felt that these repeated leave takings, as the departure was delayed from day to day, were hard on their wives and families, and nearly as hard on the men, and they wanted to get started.

They started the work of breaking camp with a vim, and long before 9 everything was packed, and ready for the wagons, which immediately began hauling the equipment to the cars. The camp was thoroughly cleaned up, all the waste and refuse burned, and aside from Major Bryant's tent, the cook shelter of Troop D and a few other small pieces of canvas, everything had been packed by 9 o'clock. About this time one of the men who had gone to the train discovered that during the night the passenger coaches that had been attached to their train had been taken away, and Pullman cars and tourist sleepers substituted, there being two of the former and three of the latter. This assured them comfortable traveling from the time they left Sea Girt, and was one of the welcome bits of news of the early morning.

At 10 o'clock there were still no signs of the horses, and the prospects of an early start were knocked into the proverbial "cocked hat." The boys began to think of another night in camp. The sun was beating down, forming the hottest day thus far of the encampment, and were it not for a stiff southwest breeze, the suffering from the heat, in the absence of tents or other shade, would have given them an unpleasant taste of what is promised at the border.

At 11 o'clock Colonel David Hill, of the quartermaster's department, announced that the horses were on the train, somewhere between New York and Sea Girt. He had the sidings cleared at the station's freight-house, and everything in readiness to shift the cars immediately to the troop train. The horses had been inspected, branded, and most necessary steps taken before they were shipped from Englewood.

As soon as the cars arrived and were placed a detail from the troop started the work of watering and other necessary steps which must be done before the command could leave, the inspecting being done by regular army officers. Most of the mounts were found in excellent condition, and the work was well under-way within a few minutes. In the meantime, at the camp, the last baggage was packed, and the wagons hauled to the trains, and on to flat cars, leaving nothing to be done but load the horses when the various necessary steps had been taken.

When the Signal Corps pulled out on Saturday afternoon, they had taken every mount in camp with the exception of twenty-seven, most of which belonged to individual members of the Plainfield and Red Bank troops. One hundred and six animals are supposed to be with each troop, and Major Bryant and his staff have half a dozen more, making a total of 218 were the command at full strength. Troop D is short a few men, however, so that with the 202 horses taken on the train, and a few more belonging to the New Jersey guard which were taken by Troops A and C, which will come to the two departing yesterday, when they arrive in Texas, it is figured that all will have mounts. The surplus stock with Troops A and C is accounted for by the fact that when those two organizations left camp they had not had their physical examinations, and a few of the men will probably be rejected when these are held at the border. Their horses will then come to the Plainfield and Red Bank commands.

Unless the plans of the War Department for calling out more militia are changed, there will be at least two weeks of summer camp work at Sea Girt, similar to that held in the past. According to the general orders issued by the Adjutant General's office a few weeks ago, all five regiments were to come here for a week's tour of duty, beginning last Saturday with the First Regiment. The mobilization order has changed this in part, but the Second Regiment of Trenton, Elizabeth and other cities, will come on the scheduled date, July 22, and remain for a week. On July 29 they will be succeeded by the Third Regiment of Camden.

General Bird W. Spencer, inspector general of rifle practice, expects to have a busy summer, even if no troops come here for their annual try at the targets. Plans have been made to have the various civilian rifle clubs which were formed last winter under the authority of an act of Congress, come to Sea Girt and use the ranges, and the exact dates for these men will be announced soon.

Late yesterday and this morning there was a general scattering of the staffs which have been doing yoeman service getting the troops off. Adjutant General Sadler expects to make his personal headquarters in his cottage on the camp ground here, so long as Governor Fielder remains, and the other members of his staff will be frequent visitors. The surgeon general, Colonel William G. Schauffler, was on the job until the last troop pulled out yesterday, when he packed up and left for his summer home at Spring Lake. He will be ready on an hour's notice to resume his work, if volunteers should be called and drilled here, or at any point in the State. Probably the most disappointed man is Major Harry L. Harris, quartermaster on General Hine's staff. The regular army makes no provision for this position, and he was left behind, but not until everyone from the Governor down had wired to Washington, imploring the President, Secretary Tumulty, Senators Martine and Hughes, and a number of Congressmen to use their influence to have him sent on. It is probable that in view of the excellent work he has done here, efforts will be made to procure for him some commission in the quartermaster's department in case volunteers are called out.

One of the most important pieces of human machinery which has aided the successful movement of all the troop trains out of Sea Girt, without a single accident of the slightest nature to either men, equipment or rolling stock of the road, was L. W. Berry, the superintendent of the New York and Long Branch Railroad. Mr. Berry has been at Sea Girt since the first troop train pulled in nearly two weeks ago, leaving all his other work that could not be attended to by wire to subordinates. He has aided the State authorities in every way, and withall has been probably the quietest and most unassuming man on the grounds. Whether things could have run so smoothly with some other man on the job is doubtful. W. G. Besler, president of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, one of the four well known railroad men selected throughout the country to facilitate the movement of trains, has also been a visitor on frequent occasions, as has W. C. Hope, the general passenger agent, and Ira E. Whyte, the district passenger agent. Mr. Whyte has personally seen every Central Railroad movement started.

The telegraph and telephone companies have also had large staffs of men, the former maintaining five operators all through the encampment. The telephone company had over a dozen extra wires run into the camp ground before night on the day the troops arrived, and five others at the cavalry camp at the Buckelew farm. The arrangement made it possible to get individual troopers and privates to the 'phone with little delay, and was the most perfect seen at Sea Girt since telephones came into use.

THE SPIRIT OF '16

THE MAN WHO DIED TWICE

Mystery of Jean, the Hairdresser of Marie Antoinette.

There are many puzzling features of French history, but perhaps the most puzzling of all, though it has to do with a comparatively minor personage, is that surrounding the mystery of the hairdresser of Marie Antoinette. It is not a common occurrence for a person to die twice, a circumstance which has occurred in the case of this hairdresser, who was known as Jean Antie, alias Leonard.

This Antie, or Leonard, was a Gascon, born in 1758, who acquired a reputation in Paris by reason of his great ingenuity in building the elaborate coiffures of the time of Louis XVI. In 1791 he was lodged at the Tuileries as hairdresser of the queen.

When Marie Antoinette and the royal family made their fruitless attempt to flee from France, Leonard was sent ahead as a scout. He was seized, brought back to the French capital and condemned to be executed as a traitor to the state.

So far as any one then knew, he was duly decapitated, his death being properly recorded in the register provided for the purpose. Investigation has, however, elicited the interesting fact that the ex-hairdresser was very much alive in Russia in the year 1814, and to complicate matters the Paris register showed his second death certificate under the year 1820. The question naturally arises, just how did Leonard manage to evade the penalty that every one had no doubt he had suffered? A great many guesses have been ventured, and the following explanation, offered by one puzzled historian, seems of all of them the most reasonable:

One day, while a group of condemned were awaiting their turn for execution the guillotine broke down and had to be repaired. A number of victims had been executed; ten or a dozen were obliged to stand waiting until the repairs had been accomplished.

It appears that one individual, the twentieth on the list, whose hands were, as was the custom, bound behind him, grew faint at the delay. He leaned against the line of officers that separated the prisoners from the mob of spectators. Suddenly a gap opened behind the man. Almost unconsciously he slipped through, and the line closed once more. A bystander reached over and placed a hat on the man's bare head, and the people crowded about as if to hide him. A short time thereafter a man with his hands behind him was seen in the Champs Elysees, walking with the air of one out for a quiet stroll. This man was said to have spent the next night in a ditch and to have made his way to Russia subsequently. If this person, saved by a fortunate accident or by collusion, was Leonard the story explains the mystery of the two death certificates.—Washington Star.

Domestic Discussion.

"My husband accuses me of extravagance. I spent about $10,000 last year."

"I wouldn't mind being scolded on that basis. I have to stand for the same accusation on $20 a week."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Bohemia.

Bohemia has not existed as a separate independent nation since 1620. That year was fought the battle of the White mountain, which resulted in the total overthrow of the Bohemian forces and the subjugation of the country to Austria.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Tale of Seven Ravens At a Spring.

From Each She Drank a Little.

[Adapted from Grimm's Fairy Tales.]

THE clock said almost bedtime, so daddy hurried to tell the children their story: "There was once a man who had seven sons," he began, "and one daughter. One day she was so sick they thought she would die, so the man sent his seven sons to the spring for some water to christen her.

"Each boy wanted to be first. So in their haste they stubbed their toes and let their jugs fall right into the spring. Their father waited and waited, and when they did not come back he flew into a terrible temper and said, 'I wish they were ravens!'

'He looked up and saw over his head seven ravens fluttering and knew that h's wish had come true. So he had to comfort himself with his little daughter, who daily became stronger. For a long time she did not know what had become of her brothers. Then she heard an old woman say, 'Yes; she is beautiful, but it is too bad that her brothers had to be lost for her sake.'

"She made her father tell her the truth and then felt bound to do all she could to bring her brothers back. So she took a little ring, some bread and a pitcher for water and a little stool to sit on and went out to travel to the world's end to find her brothers. She visited the sun and the moon and the stars in her long hunt, but the stars sat on their own little stools and could not help her, although they were very kind. Then the morning star arose and gave her a little piece of wood. 'With this piece of wood you can unlock the castle that stands on the glass mountain where your brothers live,' said this star.

"She wrapped the wood in her handkerchief and went to the castle, but on the way she lost the piece of wood. So she took her knife and cut off her little finger, which was just the size of the piece of wood. It opened the door!

"A nice dwarf came and offered her food, for she was very hungry, but when she asked for his masters he said they were not at home. Then he put seven glasses on the table, and from each she drank a little bit, but in the last glass she put the ring she had brought from home. Soon she heard a fluttering and a croaking and knew that her brothers had come. When one drank from his glass he croaked: 'This is my sister's ring. If she were here we could be freed.'

"Then she ran forward, and all seven ravens took their right form. So they all hugged and kissed each other and went happily home together," daddy ended, with a good night hug.

Marrying a Butterfly

By MRS. EMA LEONARD

A Week-End Visit Starts Rather Inauspiciously.

"Ralph, what do you say to going down to Mrs. Tellson's to spend Sunday? She invited us so cordially to come out for a week end." Ethel seated herself on the arm of her husband's chair.

"We could not go entirely unannounced, could we?" asked Ralph.

"Why not telephone, though she said any Saturday would be all right," Ethel was bent on going.

"Would not next week be better? I must be early at the office on Monday."

"There is a train Sunday night if it is necessary to be there before the morning train comes in; besides, the maid is going to be gone all day Sunday—and——"

"Oh, I see. That settles it," grinned Ralph. "We must eat."

"You mean you must," pouted Ethel.

"Well, have an early dinner and have the stuff in the suitcase on Saturday and we will be off." Ralph turned again to his paper.

Only the slowest of local trains stopped at Riverdale, and the coach in which Ralph and Ethel found themselves seated the following Saturday was dingy and not very clean. At first Ethel was all gayety, but as they crawled over the tracks or listened to the regular breathing of the engine on the sidetrack as they waited for the flyer to pass them a frown gathered on her pretty face. Then, too, they were jerked and bumped every time the train was stopped or started by the careless trainmen. The car was close and uncomfortable. Ethel looked the other occupants of the car over, and her aristocratic nose went into the air as she counted the babies and tired, draggled looking women who were caring for them. The hand baggage would not have passed any inspection where appearance counted many points.

"I can't see why people will travel with bird cages," she remarked in disgusted tones. "When the birds get to singing and the babies crying at the same time——"

"The birds are surely to be commended for trying to drown the noise of the babies," interrupted Ralph, laughing.

"The place for birds and babies is home," snapped Ethel.

"Perhaps that is where they are going." Ralph's tone was cheerful.

"It's where I wish we were." Ethel dusted a place to rest her elbow on the window with a page of the paper Ralph had laid down.

"What?" Ralph looked at her in surprise.

"Yes, I mean it. There is no pleasure to be had that will pay the price of this disagreeable journey," was the discontented answer.

"Well, I like that. You were the one who proposed it, and I might say insisted on coming." Ralph folded the remaining pages of the paper and put them in his pocket.

"It was a lovely journey in the automobile, and the whole thing left such a pleasant memory that I wanted to repeat it. But going this way——" She stopped for want of forceful words to express her disgust.

"It is in this as in everything else. The people with money can have a good time and they are the only ones who can," she continued.

"Ethel, don't you think of anything except in terms of money?" There was asperity in Ralph's tone.

"Well, it amounts to this: that you cannot have any pleasure in life if you are not rich." Ethel looked gloomily out of the window.

"Ethel," there was pain in Ralph's tone, "you have a very pretty home, a maid to do your work, a comfortable income and you have me, your husband, whom you profess to love. Is all this nothing?"

"The home isn't ours; we cannot afford the maid or anything we have, and I am constantly displeasing my husband because I spend a dollar or so a month. You cannot blame me for saying that money is everything." Ralph sighed and looked away.

FISHED WITH A GANDER.

And Now the Poor Fowl Shows a Distinct Aversion to Water.

A gander was so upset by experiments made upon and through him by a mischievous boy that for a long time he would not go into the water.

The gander's determination to abstain from water as a means of bathing grew out of the following circumstances:

The boy thought he would tie a fishing line to the gander's leg and with a hook properly baited turn the bird out into the water. The bait was a frog.

The gander went into the mill pond, where he swam around for half an hour, turning "flipflaps" and diving for food. Suddenly he felt a pull at his leg and looked as surprised as the "lone fisherman" when he caught a whale.

The gander thought there was something the matter, and he looked to ascertain the cause. The pickerel on the hook gave several jerks, whereupon the gander decided he wanted to go home.

He at once started for the shore, but the pickerel on the hook wanted to go the other way. The gander seemed frightened at first. Then he evidenced signs of anger and tried to fly to shore, but the pickerel pulled him back.

After half an hour of the hardest work he had ever done the gander came ashore, dragging a six pound pickerel up the bank.

The boy took off the pickerel and baited the hook with another frog. He tried to induce the gander to go in for another swim, but no amount of persuasion could get the bird to do so. He simply would not be driven in. For many weeks the gander would not go into the water. He would proceed with the rest of the flock to the water's edge, but there he would stop. He would seem to be arguing with them with reference to the danger they were courting.—Los Angeles Times.

Your Uncle Sam'l Speaks

My temper is not a hair trigger
I bow to the gentleman's law.
Because I am stronger and bigger
I don't slap a little man's jaw.
But, son, if some fellow
Believes I am yellow
And thinks that with safety I'm kicked,
Just take it from Sam'l, your old Uncle Sam'l, that some one's about to be licked!

If any durned, pesky musketer
Keeps buzzing just out of my touch
I say, "There are songs that are sweeter;
But, pshaw! You don't bother me much!"
But, son, if that creature
Should bite any feature,
Believe me, it will not be rash
To bet that old Sam'l, your stung Uncle Sam'l, will flatten that skeeter kersmash!

Of glory I never go raving
Or swearing belligerent oaths.
The banner I seldom am waving,
Though sometimes I use it for clothes.
But, son, if a greaser
Who thinks he's a Caesar
Throws mud on that flag of my pride,
Just take it from Sam'l, your hot Uncle Sam'l, that soon I'll be tanning his hide!

SONS IN MANY ARMIES.

Six Nationalities Share In Distribution of a Large Estate.

Six nationalities—American, French, German, Russian, Italian and English—will figure in the distribution of the estate of Mrs. Eleanor K. O'Connor, who died in Paris March 11 last.

Mrs. O'Connor was eighty-five years old at the time of her death. She was born in Danbury, Conn.; went to California with her father, who was a forty-niner, and after the death of her husband in 1875 went to Paris with her five daughters, who married gentlemen of five different European countries. The son, John F. K. O'Connor, lives in New York.

The five daughters mentioned in Mrs. O'Connor's will, which has been filed for probate, are Mrs. Ellie Vallette, wife of Colonel Vallette, now in the French army with his son; Mrs. Margaret Cambiaggio, whose husband was a member of the Italian foreign office at Karlsruhe, Germany, and is now connected with the Italian army; Mrs. Sara K. Griffin, wife of a physician living at Wimbledon, England; Mrs. Fannie Krumpel, wife of Rudolph Krumpel of Moscow, a colonel in the Russian army, and Agnes Klipfel, who died recently in Muenster, Germany. Her husband is in the German army, and their son was recently killed in an aeroplane flight.

HOT WATER THE BEST LIVER AND BOWEL MEDICINE
Says glass of hot water before breakfast washes poisons from system.
Physicians the world over recommend the inside bath, claiming this is of vastly more importance than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing ill health, while the pores in the ten yards of bowels do.
Men and women are urged to drink each morning, before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of helping to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.
Just as soap and hot water cleanse and freshen the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the eliminative organs.
Those who wake up with bad breath, coated tongue, nasty taste or have a dull, aching head, sallow complexion, acid stomach; others who are subject to bilious attacks or constipation, should obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to demonstrate the value of inside bathing. Those who continue it each morning are assured of pronounced results, both in regard

CITY LEAGUE CONTESTS PRODUCE SURPRISES

Netherwood Team Loses to Dunellen, But Tabs and Hopes Win.

The City League contests played on Saturday were productive of plenty of surprises, and these were not all pleasant surprises. The Netherwood team had a terrible time in Dunellen, where they encountered a little trouble with the Apgar clan. The Tabs and the Farmers had a tight battle, the former being lucky to get away with the victory. The Hopes and Baptists were tangled up in an exciting mix-up and the Hopes annexed the win, but not until the Baptists had played themselves out.

The games were all marked by good fielding and by exceptionally hard clouting. The scores, with the exception of the Tab-Farmer game, were all high, due to the unusually hard hitting. The umpires did good work and they handed down their decisions in a manner that seemed to meet with the approval of the fans.

NOTHING COULD STOP AMBITIOUS HOPES

Patterson Ineffective Against Chapel Rivals, Who Win in Final Frame.

The Hopes and Baptists had a baseball battle on West End Field on Saturday and in this battle the Hopes were victorious, being the proud owners of a 10 to 9 triumph. The game was featured by heavy hitting, accomplished for the most part by Luthman, Schott, Van Norden and Garretson.

Honors in all departments were about even, in fact, the finish was more than exciting. It appeared to those present that the Baptists had earned the right to win, but evidently the Hopes thought otherwise, for they romped over the platter with just enough runs to put an end to all budding hopes their opponents might have had.

A shoestring catch by Jenny Overland, perhaps, was the most important thing that happened during the fraces. Neither Schott nor Patterson were in the best of form, and each was touched up for several timely bingles. The score:

LOU SLOUCUM FORCED TO TAKE A REST

Dunellen Batters Convince Lou That He Needs a Vacation.

Dunellen decisively defeated the league leading Netherwood at Maurer Oval, Dunellen, Saturday afternoon by the score of 14 to 3. Slocum, who occupied the mound for Manager Eddie Coughlan's team, was obliged to retire in favor of Clark in the seventh.

For the first two innings Slocum twirled in old-time form and held Tommy Apgar's men at his mercy. Gunzelman and Brown, the first two men to face him, were fanned in rapid succession. Trust, next up, singled but he was left stranded when Bergen struck out. In the second inning McLaughlin, Wilson and Dixon were retired in one, two, three order and it looked like the Netherwoods' game, with Slocum twirling in such fashion, for he had been given a lead of two runs in the first inning when his teammates scored twice on errors by "Box" Apgar and Gunzelman, and singles by Heberman and M. Coughlan. The game, however, took an abrupt turn in Dunellen's favor in the next inning when Tommy Apgar's men scored six times. The contributing factors were bases on balls to "Box" Apgar and Brown, a single by Moulton, a two bagger by Gunzelman, a sacrifice bunt by Trust, two errors on throws, and a passed ball. With Warry McLaughlin, the Dunellen veteran, twirling in mid-summer form, the outcome of the game was never in doubt from then on. Incidentally Warry didn't walk a man during the entire game.

Manager Tommy Apgar introduced a new player in the eighth inning. His name is Allison Trust, and he is a brother of George Trust, the Ty Cobb of the league. In the only time he appeared at the plate, he doubled to deep right. Those who have heard of his playing say that he has a reputation of being as fast and as heavy a hitter as his brother.

JACK DENNY HURLS TABS TO VICTORY

City League Contest Unusually Exciting, Farmers Losing Only After Battle.

Eddie Conshay and Jack Denny, pitchers for the Farmers and Tabs, engaged in an exciting duel on Soccer Field Saturday, the Abstainer twirler gaining the decision and winning the game, 2 to 1.

The contest was one of the greatest seen around these parts in some time. In the final frame it appeared that the Farmers would tie things up and that the encounter would go on a little further. Billy Ryan tripled in this frame and it was up to Claude Hann to bring him in. But Claude could not come across with the needed wallop, tapping a slow grounder to Denny. The score:

Denny and Kuber Engage in Duel, Newark Lad Getting the Decision.

Jim Scott's T. A. B. S. lost a close battle to the Clifton A. A., of Newark, on Avon Oval Sunday afternoon, the visitors managing to grab the larger end of a 4 to 3 score. The home boys got a hard start in the first inning by allowing the visitors to squeeze over a couple of runs on two hits and as many glaring errors. The score:

CONDENSED REPORTS OF LOCAL GAMES

Detailed Accounts of Which Failed to Arrive in Time for Publication.

Owing to the fact that the following games were received at a late hour, it is impossible for us to print more than the details of each game. The box scores of these games were not received until late this morning and pressure of other business made it impossible for us to present a detailed account of things as they happened. Had the scorers of the various teams heeded our request to have the accounts of their games in by Saturday night, it would have been possible for us to attend to things in the proper style.

St. Josephs Win.

The recently organized St. Josephs started off their season with a 9 to 6 victory over the Westfields on Hyde Oval Saturday. Owing to the non-appearance of Dan Denny, Francis McDonough undertook the pitching assignment. He did exceptionally well, allowing only six bingles. In fact, he permitted only two hits up until the final frame. Joe Carty played well and hit to all corners of the lot, getting a double and a triple.

Winning Streak Broken.

The Pans' winning streak of seven games was broken by the match with the Inner Triangles Saturday, the score of the game, which was an eleven inning affair, being 11 to 10. The contest was an exciting one throughout and it was due to Newell's ascension and the inability of the Pans to get to Velard that the West End players lost the contest. Hannon started the hurling business for the Triangles, was ineffective, and retired in the fourth in favor of Velard, who was invincible during his entire stay in the box. Scruton, the Triangle third baseman, sprained his ankle during the contest and will be out of the game for the rest of the season. Velard, Scruton and Hansen were the stars for the Triangles, while McCarty, Garrido and Muir led their teams.

Royals Open Season.

The Royals had little trouble defeating the Plainfield A. C. on Parker Field Saturday, the score being 13 to 1. The game was close up until the sixth inning, but after that frame the Royals drew far away from their rivals. Butler pitched a wonderful game, fanning sixteen. Foster Kline, a young lad, entered the fray in the third inning, and by his ability both to field and hit, won the favor of the fans.

INDEPENDENCE DAY PROGRAM OF EVENTS

Civic Celebration and Sports of All Sorts Have Been Arranged.

A varied program of activities is scheduled for Independence Day in this city and local persons who will remain at home over the Fourth will have enough to keep them entertained and busy. There will be one delivery of mail tomorrow and the stores and banks will be closed all day. In order to accommodate belated shoppers, members of the Business Men's Association will keep their stores open until nine o'clock tonight.

Beside the many double-header baseball games which will be played by the City League, golf matches will be played at both the Hydewood and Plainfield Country clubs. The Plainfield Airdome and Proctors' Theatre have arranged a delightful program of photoplays to please both old and young.

The largest celebration to be held locally will be the Community Fourth in the City Park in front of the Plainfield High School. This celebration will commence at 3:45 and the population from both the east and west ends of the city will meet in a joint event. A spacious grand stand has been built to accommodate five hundred singers and the band. Speeches will be given by prominent local and visiting men and every number will follow a patriotic theme.

KENYON GARDENS WILL BE OPENED ON WEDNESDAY

The Kenyon Gardens on Arlington avenue will be open to the public on Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. All interested are invited to inspect them. If the weather should prove stormy the Gardens will be open on Thursday afternoon at the same hour. Small plots of 8x12 will be provided for the children where they will be taught besides the nature and use of soil, the parts of the plant, the use of air and sunshine and valuable lessons of the use and care of the body.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT OF MISS ANNETTE BRENNER

The engagement of Miss Annette Brenner, of New York city, and Arthur H. Richards, of this city, was announced at a reception tendered in their honor at the Lenox Assembly rooms, New York, last night. No date has been set for the wedding.

Mr. Richards has been successful in the jewelry business in this city, conducting such a department in the Tepper Brothers' store. He is also an energtic worker in the Y. M. H. A. of this city. His fiancee is popular among the younger set of her home and is engaged in teaching. She is also engaged in charity organization work in the city and takes an active interest in the institutions for the blind.

J. F. M'CARTHY WEDS MISS GRACE RONBERG

The marriage of Miss Grace Ronberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ronberg, of North Plainfield, and John Franklin McCathy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin McCarthy, of 825 West Fifth street, took place in the rectory of St. Mary's church, Saturday evening at 8 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Father Joseph S. McDonald and was witnessed by Miss Ethel Brown and Edward O'Loughlin, respectively, as maid of honor and best man.

Following the wedding the couple left for Newark by automobile where the bridal party enjoyed a dinner at the Robert Treat Hotel. After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. McCarthy will reside at 825 West Fifth street. Both Mr. McCarthy and his bride are well known in the west end and the borough, and each have a large circle of friends. Mr. McCarthy holds a responsible position with the International Motor Company, of this city.

Roasting Coffee.

A good chunk of money can be saved in a year by roasting your own coffee, and it is not so hard at that. All that is needed is a good big heavy skillet. Before roasting a pound of green coffee put in a chunk of butter the size of an almond mixed with a teaspoonful of sugar. Roast on the stove or flame, steadily shaking and stirring in the old fashioned double shuffle way until all is a uniform rich brown. Shake fast when coffee "pops" or smokes. Please don't burn. The butter and sugar surely help the flavor, aroma and bouquet of the delicious drink. But the butter must be good and not too much used at one time. The smaller the quantity to do the job right the better.—New York Press.

Colors In Coral.

Genuine coral may be red, pink, white, blue, yellow, green or black, the last being the rarest and most highly prized. The next valuable is the red coral, which is susceptible of high polish and is most in use for jewelry, being the coral of commerce.

Corals are roughly classed under two heads, the horny corals and the time lime or stone corals. To the former belong the red and black forms and the white to the latter. Red coral is chiefly found in the Mediterranean. The corals found on the Atlantic coast of Florida are the lime or stone corals, which are the reef building forms.

HAND'S EXPRESS CO.

It Pays to Secure a Tenant Who Pays.

The uncertain sort of tenant is easy to find. He is always answering the call of the window sign of "To Let." He is easy to please. Even a rather high rental does not frighten him away.

But the Stay-and-Pay tenant is not so easy to secure. He is surer of what he wants. He does not take the first house, or apartment, or store that he finds. He watches and answers "To Let" Ads.

And to secure him for your tenant is a good day's work—a good week's work.

Property that is advertised adequately in the Plainfield Daily Press is rarely rented injudiciously.

—Until you have canvassed the readers of this newspaper on the matter, do not decide whether or not this may be a "poor time to sell" that property

Roasting Coffee.

A good chunk of money can be saved in a year by roasting your own coffee, and it is not so hard at that. All that is needed is a good big heavy skillet. Before roasting a pound of green coffee put in a chunk of butter the size of an almond mixed with a teaspoonful of sugar. Roast on the stove or flame, steadily shaking and stirring in the old fashioned double shuffle way until all is a uniform rich brown. Shake fast when coffee "pops" or smokes. Please don't burn. The butter and sugar surely help the flavor, aroma and bouquet of the delicious drink. But the butter must be good and not too much used at one time. The smaller the quantity to do the job right the better.—New York Press.

Colors In Coral.

Genuine coral may be red, pink, white, blue, yellow, green or black, the last being the rarest and most highly prized. The next valuable is the red coral, which is susceptible of high polish and is most in use for jewelry, being the coral of commerce.

Corals are roughly classed under two heads, the horny corals and the time lime or stone corals. To the former belong the red and black forms and the white to the latter. Red coral is chiefly found in the Mediterranean. The corals found on the Atlantic coast of Florida are the lime or stone corals, which are the reef building forms.

Here's to a Safe and Sane Fourth

Insist on having a safe and sane Fourth for the children—no dangerous fire crackers, rockets or matches. Be equally particular that the youngsters eat only "safe and sane" ice cream.

This Fourth make it yourself in one of the famous Alaska Freezers. It is the open-spoon dasher in these freezers, whipping air into every particle of the cream, which makes ice cream frozen in Alaska Freezers so wonderfully delicate and smooth.

And, making it yourself, you will have the satisfaction of knowing that it is absolutely pure.

An Alaska Freezer will last a lifetime. But be sure it is an Alaska.

We also have on hand the White Mountain and North Star Freezers.

PLAINFIELD CELEBRATES FOURTH IN A PERFECTLY SAFE AND SANE DEMONSTRATION HELD OUTDOORS

THOUSANDS OF MEN AND WOMEN JOIN IN SINGING NATIONAL AIRS AS THEY STAND UNCOVERED IN CITY PARK.

ATT'Y GEN. WESTCOTT PRINCIPAL SPEAKER

Declares American Government is a Political Partnership in Which all Men Are Equal—Much Praise for Recreation Commission and Committee That Arranged Big Program.

As safe as the Star Spangled Banner from the hands of an alien enemy and as sane as the principles for which Old Glory stands was Plainfield's celebration of the Fourth.

Thousands of her citizens gathered in City Park yesterday afternoon in a community demonstration that was really a reconsecration to the country and the flag—a thanksgiving service to the handful of brave pioneers who signed the Declaration of Independence and a rededication of body and brain to the fundamental truths of Americanism therein expressed. Martial music, oratorical fireworks and voices of men and women blended in singing the national airs stirred the citizens and imbued them with a higher patriotism and a better understanding of their individual responsibilities to the government.

The celebraton was held under the auspices of the Recreation Committee, and Champlain L. Riley was chairman of the special committee in charge of the day's program. Attorney-General Westcott was the principal speaker, and Clifford Braider, who organized the big Biederwolf choir, had charge of the chorus that led in the singing.

Garibaldi, the great Italian Liberator, shared honors with Thomas Jefferson, "Charles Carroll, of Carrolltown," and other American statesmen and patriots, for in addition to being the anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of American Independence it was the anniversary of the birth of Italy's hero and Plainfield showed its cosmopolitan character by combining the two celebrations. A Venetian quartet had a prominent part in the program, appearing in costume and singing songs of their native country.

The celebration was attended by about 4,000 people. They thronged City Park, filling the small number of seats provided long before time for the exercises to begin, and through the entire program stood in rows of hundreds to add to the chorus of voices that sang "America," "Columbia" and "The Star Spangled Banner." The audience was peculiarly representative of the community. Jammed against laborers from the city's great manufacturing plants were silk-hatted brokers and bankers, all brothers, paying equal homage to the country that gave them birth or refuge.

The celebration was free from noise and free from hyphenates or reference to them. The Dutch Arms band, which furnished music for the afternoon, appeared for the first time in new summer uniforms and made a pleasing appearance. Before the procession left the park, Paul Collier took a number of pictures of the band and of the Venetian Quartette from New York.

Boy Scouts had a prominent part in the celebration. All councils in the city were represented, and the scouts formed downtown and marched to the park. A first-aid tent was set up by the scouts in the park, with a Red Cross flag flying over it, but there were no accidents and no calls for the services of the youthful members of the hospital corps.

Chairman Riley was in charge of the program. After a selection by the band and the singing of "America" by the entire audience, Mr. Riley read the Declaration of Independence. The chorus choir then sang "Tenting Tonight," and the Italian singers were heard in two native songs. The band played "Stars and Stripes Forever."

Mr. Riley said that no patriotic demonstration would be complete without the presence of some representative of the public schools, and he introduced Prof. H. M. Maxson, superintendent of the Plainfield schools.

Prof. Maxson told of the important part the school teacher played in the development of the country through training of its citizens while their minds are pliable. Dr. Maxson said that some patriots never heard the roar of cannon nor felt the smell of powder, that some were called to live for their country as well as die for it, and that the school teacher performed a duty as high and as useful as that of the soldier on the battlefield. Dr. Maxson complimented the Plainfield Recreation Committee on the wonderful manner in which its work was being done. The only great nation is the one whose people spend their leisure time in useful ways, said the speaker, and to teach boys and girls how to play is to teach them how to live.

After the address of Dr. Maxson the chorus choir sang "Dixie." It

DEATH OF AGED BORO RESIDENT

Miss Sarah McKissick Wright Passes Away in Her 98th Year.

NATIVE OF MILLSTONE

For Nearly Thirty Years She Taught in Public Schools of New Jersey—Funeral to Be Held Friday Afternoon at 3 O'clock.

Miss Sarah McKissick Wright, aged 97 years, one of the oldest residents of North Plainfield, died this morning at the home of the Misses Emma and Anna Smalley, of 33 Manning avenue. Death was due to the infirmities of age and complications.

Miss Wright was born at Millstone, Somerset county, April 7, 1819, and had resided in this State practically all her life. Her parents died when she was a child and after their death she made her home in the family of an uncle, Dr. Wm. McKissick, a prominent practing physician of that day. At the death of her uncle, when she was about thirty years of age, she decided to take up teaching as a vocation, graduating shortly afterwards from the Trenton Normal School. For more than thirty years after that she taught in the schools at Washingtonville, now Watchung, Smalleytown, Pleasant Plains and Alabama. There are still many men and women in this section who studied their first lessons under her guidance.

Miss Wright was in charge of a school in Alabama when the Civil War broke out and with many other Northerners, hurried back to New Jersey. In after years she became very fond of traveling and spent her summers visiting in all parts of the country. She was always observing and her descriptions of the points of interest she had journeyed to made her a most entertaining talker. Up until two years ago Miss Wright was an ardent reader of the newspapers and there was hardly a current topic that she could not discuss. The perusal of papers had been denied her of late because of impaired eyesight, but she was always a keen listener when anyone talked about the happenings of the day, especially when the latest doings in the European war zone and Mexico were touched upon.

Her grandfather, Dr. William McKissick, of Middle Brook, this State, who was of Scotch descent, was an officer of the Revolutionary War.

Miss Wright was a member of Grace M. E. church and attended services regularly there as long as her health permitted. Miss Wright had a large number of relatives but only a few in or about Plainfield. She had two sisters, Mrs. Caroline McDonald Lunger, who was the mother of Mrs. Voorhees W. Laing, of East Front street, and also Mrs. Amanda Hoagland, of El Paso, Ill. There are also a second cousin, Harry Manning; grandniece, Miss Ethel Laing, and a grandnephew, E. H. Laing, all of this city.

The funeral will be held from her late home, at 33 Manning avenue, Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock and will be in charge of Rev. C. S. Gillespie, pastor of the Grace M. E. church. Interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

TWELVE YEAR OLD YOUTH LOSES LEG

Robert Wright, of Jersey City, Westward Bound, Meets With Accident.

Because he tried to get on a fast westbound freight with two companions yesterday afternoon at the "Fanwood curve," just east of the Fanwood station, Robert Wright, a twelve year old youth, of 541 Ocean avenue, Jersey City, is in the Elizabeth General Hospital with his right leg off at the knee. Wright's two companions, when they saw what had happened, ran away and were not caught.

Moving pictures and dime novels put the spirit of adventure in the three boys and they were bound for the West when they decided they could make better time by riding a freight. Wright was the first to try and board the train but could not reach the step and was swung underneath the cars. The other two boys ran up the railroad bank and although a search was made they could not be found. Wright was taken to Elizabeth on a "pusher" engine, and it is expected he will recover.

CONTEST TO FEATURE KNIGHTS' CARNIVAL

Votes Will Decide Who is to Be the "Queen" of the Big Affair.

Among the many features offered by the Knights of Columbus in connection with their annual carnival and one that will prove very exciting as the contest draws near its close is the popularity or "Queen of the Carnival" contest.

This will be open to any young woman in Plainfield and vicinity of good moral character. A number have been nominated and have accepted, and several others have been nominated and they will be called on tomorrow. If any one desires to name a candidate they may do so without cost by sending their names to J. W. Boyd, manager of contest, or give their names to any of the Knights who will see that they are formally entered.

The rules are as follows: Each vote costs one cent, ten cents counting for 10 votes, etc. All candidates will be furnished with envelopes for voting and envelopes will also be placed with the ballot boxes, which will be at ten local stores. To vote you write the name of the candidate you desire to vote for with the amount of money enclosed, seal and place in ballot box. These votes will be collected and the result announced in the Daily Press each day. The first collection will be made Thursday between 5 and 6 p. m. and the result announced in Friday's newspaper. After the carnival opens there will be a booth at the grounds where the vote will be received and results posted. A number of the Knights went to New Brunswick the other evening and complimented Mr. Krause on the quality of the shows carried and predicted a very successful engagement here.

Young men don't forget to have your best girl entered in the contest if you have not already done so. The awards are: First prize, a solitaire diamond ring; second prize, a gold watch; third prize, a diamond, surrounded by pearls Lavalliere. All the prizes were purchased in Plainfield and are guaranteed to be worth trying for and are now on display in the show window of J. J. Varley, Paris store. You can vote often as you like and no one will be "arrested" for repeating.

The Krause shows have many attractions not usually seen with any other company and promise a week of fun and enjoyment that will always receive a hearty welcome whenever they return to Plainfield.

FALLS FROM WINDOW WHILE HANGING CLOTHES

Mrs. Pulia Sitko, of 823 East Second street, was seriously bruised yesterday morning when she fell from a second story window of her home. Mrs. Sitko was hanging clothing on a line and lost her balance. She was attended by Dr. Currie and will be confined for some time.

LOCAL SINGERS WIN.

The singing section of the Plainfield Gesang and Turn Verein was very successful in the annual singing contest held at Carlstadt yesterday. The local Verein captured first prize in the second class, defeating Concordia branch of Perth Amboy. A beautiful silver loving cup comes as a prize to the Plainfield society. This cup will be formally presented at an early date, when State officials of the Verein will be presented.

LIEUT. HIGGINS LANDS WALPOLE

Third Man in "Fake" Holdup Caught in Brooklyn Monday Night.

DRESSED UP IN SILK

Had Only $143 of Stolen Money—This Makes Total of $300 Recovered for Railroad—Clever Work in Unraveling Plot.

Albert Walpole, the third of the youthful conspirators who engineered a fake holdup at Netherwood last Friday night, was arrested by Lieut. Higgins, of the Plainfield police dedepartment, in Brooklyn Monday night. Walpole is in jail in Brooklyn and will be brought back here as soon as the legal requirements can be met.

Clothed in silk and flannels the young Scotch Plains boy who only a short time ago was driving a taxicab here was enjoying the fruits of his crime. Through use of the same cleverness that characterized his handling of the entire case Chief Kiely and Lieutenant Maurice Higgins learned where Walpole was in hiding and Monday the officer went to Brooklyn. In the evening he was waiting at the corner of 54th street and Fourth avenue. Along came Walpole. At first Lieut. Higgins refused to believe. The young man was "dressed up like a sore finger." He was almost floored by suddenly coming face to face with Lieut. Higgins, believing that he was safe there. He had been spending his time fishing in the daytime and visiting cabarets and theatres at night. Only $143 was found on him. He carried away almost $500. When Grovetti was arrested $145 was found in his room. Young Southard, the station agent who was "robbed," got none of the money but was to receive half of that which Walpole carried away.

Walpole did not know of the arrest of Southard and Grovetti. He thought the story of the hold-up had been believed and that he was safe to spend his share of the loot, also Southard's share, it appears. He denied all knowledge of the crime at first but is said to have confessed later.

The three boys who planned and executed the "hold-up" have now been arrested and almost half of the money recovered. Southard and Grovetti are being held in bonds of $1,000 each to await the action of the grand jury. Most of the evidence in the case was worked up by Lieut. Higgins, under the direction of Chief Kiely, of the local department, and it was he who secured facts that forced a confession from Southard.

RAISE OLD GLORY AT BOROUGH SCHOOL

Inspiring Music and Patriotic Addresses by Mayor Smalley Feature Celebration.

Inspiring music and patriotic addresses were features of the flag raising exercises at the Harrison Avenue School, the borough, yesterday morning at 10:30 o'clock. The flag was presented to the school by members of the Jr. O. U. A. M., of this city, and it was received by Col. Albert G. Perry with a short address.

While Old Glory was being floated to the breeez a chorus of twenty children sang "The Star Spangled Banner" and there was a canon salute in charge of Fred Pratt.

The address of the morning was made by Mayor William L. Smalley, who spoke on "Patriotism." His remarks aroused the large audience to great enthusiasm as he impressively recalled what the flag stands for. He said that today every loyal American loved Old Glory more than ever, and not a single one would permit it to be lowered or disgraced by an enemy. Throughout his excellent address there was hearty applause.

AMOS ANDREWS HONORED FOR EFFICIENT SERVICE

Amos Andrews, who on July 1, completed twenty-five years' service as superintendent of the Plainfield-Union Water Company, was presented with a massive sterling silver tray, suitably inscribed. The gift was in recognition of efficient and valuable services rendered the company. Frank Bergen and William J. Whelan, representing the board of directors, made the presentation to Mr. Andrews.

FUNERAL OF J. J. RANDOLPH.

The funeral of Joseph J. Randolph, of 213 Watchung avenue, whose death occurred Monday morning, was held this afternoon at 2:30 from the undertaking parlors at 402 Park avenue. Rev. B. S. Hudson officiated. Interment took place at Samptown.

PLAINFIELD TROOPERS ENJOYING SOUTHERN HOSPITALITY; ARRIVED AT MEMPHIS, TENN., THIS NOON

Y. M. C. A. BUILDING TURNED OVER TO TROOPERS AND GUARDSMEN FROM THIS CITY ENJOYED SWIM—RED BANK MEN HAD TO LOOK ON.

EX-CONFEDERATE SOLDIER ISSUES A WARNING

Old Man Waited at Paris Depot Until 3 O'clock This Morning to Deliver Two Baskets of Good Things and Warn Troopers to Keep Their Canteens Full—Letters Tell of Ride to Denison, Ohio.

(By Telegram to the Daily Press)

Memphis, Tenn., July 5, 11:40 a. m.—The Watchung Troopers with Troop B, of Red Bank, arrived here this morning and one of the first things we learned was that the Memphis Y. M. C. A. had offered us the use of its building, including the swimming pool and shower baths. This announcement brought forth an enthusiastic cheer from the Plainfielder but all was gloom on Troop B, for the Red Bank guardsmen were vaccinated last night and were forbidden to go in the water. All of the Painfielders, except those who have been vaccinated within the last seven years, will submit to the operation this afternoon. While all are glad that the injection was not made before the swim this morning no one is looking forward to the operation this afternoon with any particular delight.

When the Memphis people told us we could have the use of their Y. M. C. A. they certainly meant it. The entire building was at our disposal and the Red Bank boys occupied their time in shooting pool, reading the newspapers and playing various other games. We had plenty of time to take a good wash and swim and took turns in giving each other rubdowns. It certainly made our blood tingle and we were much refreshed for the reception that was in store for us after leaving the tank.

The troop is now practically on army rations, the supply of delicacies given us by friends as we left Sea Girt having become exhausted. But the people all along the line continue to flood our cars with eatables and useful articles of wear and none of us are worrying about having to go on a diet of bacon, beans and hardtack. We are always hungry and food is always welcome.

Even when we arrived at Paris, Tenn., at 3 o'clock this morning there was something awaiting us. Two baskets filled with crackers, fruit, cake and other dainty morsels were passed to one of our night guards. These were marked, "N. G. Wynn, an ex-Confederate." The guard who received them for us told us this morning that the old man's last words as the train departed were: "Be sure to keep your canteens filled, boys." We are heeding the admonition religiously.

The rest of the town had waited at the depot until midnight but the old soldier declared that he would stick there until the train came and he did.

The troopers have found both Southern hospitality and beauty to be a fact. Paris is the home of Governor Thomas C. Rye and he sent along personal greetings. Last night Captain Albert G. Borden, who is in command of the two troops, being the senior captain, lined the boys up and delivered a talk on the supplying of troops in the field.

Everybody is well and anxious to get to the border. Our cars are unusually comfortable and no cases of train sickness have been reported. We leave Memphis late this afternoon.

Louisville, Ky., 11:42 a. m., July 4.—Train carrying Watchung troops stopped four hours to exercise and feed and water horses, after smooth run from Pittsburgh through rich country, bright in sunshine, weather clear and cool throughout. Men in perfect condition and spirits. Along road, towns lined with flags and people who turned out to wave and cheer, but event of run was reception given train by six thousand inhabitants of Denison, at about 8 p. m. To the smallest baby they were at the station to crowd about train, passing in magazines, hot coffee, oranges, bananas, cake and pie so that as "Tunk" Righter said hardly place was left to sleep. Last night in mess car Sergeant Andrews lectured noncoms on rifle. Sergeant Righter demonstrated distribution and assemblage of parts and each noncom will pass on information to his squad. Captain Borden has appointed Clinton Ivins and Joe Van Deventer corporals.

U. S. MAY AGREE TO LEAVE MEXICO

Carranza Note Pleases Washington—Believed That Crisis is Passed.

Washington, July 5.—All other phases of the Mexican situation were transcended by the arrival of the Mexican note today. It is believed a prompt reply will be sent expressing satisfaction over its contents and laying the basis for a settlement of the troubles between the two nations. Predictions are made that the United States will agree to withdraw its troops close to the border and to change the character of the Pershing expedition from a punitive to a protective one. Mexico on its part will agree to co-operate in a practical military way in the work of weeding out the bandits.

Secretary of State Lansing declined to comment on the Mexican note today. He also refused to say whether he regarded the situation improved by it. He announced, however, that he was leaving on a month's vacation tomorrow, to be spent near his old home in Watertown, N. Y. This is believed to be a sufficient indication that the crisis has practically passed, although the Secretary will be in direct touch with all developments.

OFFICIALS TO MEET.

A joint meeting of the elders, deacons and trustees of the Watchung Avenue Presbyterian church will be held Monday night, July 10, in the church. All members are requested to be present.

CAMP ENDEAVOR WILL OPEN UP TOMORROW

Sixty Children Will Get Two Weeks' Outing at the Camp.

After several days of preparation, Camp Endeavor will open tomorrow on the mountain in back of Scotch Plains for the summer, when between fifty and sixty children from various parts of the county arrive there for a two weeks' vacation. They come mostly from Elizabeth, Elizabethport and Plainfield. The camp will again be under the direction of Miss Jennie Stoddard, of Elizabeth, who will supervise the work with the assistance of several helpers.

A number of improvements that will add to the comfort and also provide additional amusement for the youngsters have been made since the camp closed last fall, and yesterday some thirty workers of the Christian Endeavor Society were at the camp completing arrangements for the reception of the children tomorrow. The officers of the society expect it to be the most successful year the camp has known, and everyone is working to make that possible.

SLIGHT AUTO MISHAP.

A slight auto accident occurred on Park avenue near Front street, at 2 o'clock this afternoon, when a machine owned and driven by Mrs. Harry McNamee, of Fanwood, ran into the rear of a machine standing at the curb. Mrs. McNamee in trying to pass another vehicle drove too near the curb and rammed the other car, smashing the mudguards of both machines. Mrs. McNamee agreed to pay damages and there was no arrest made.

NO LET UP IN FRENCH ADVANCE

Continue to Take German Trenches Through Fierce Attacks.

Paris, July 4.—French war statement: "To the north and south of the Somme river the steady advance of the French continues in spite of rain storms and serious counter-attacks by the Germans. North of the river German trenches east of Curlu were captured in a storm attack and the French also captured Sormont Farm. South of the river the Germans using fresh troops delivered strong attacks and succeded in occupying Belloy en Santerre, but were driven out by the French counter-attacks. There has been no let up in the savagery in the fighting at Picardy despite the stormy weather.

CANOE CLUB TRIP.

The Ishiwana Canoe Club of this city, enjoyed a four days paddle up the Raritan river, leaving Bound Brook early Saturday morning and returned to Plainfield yesterday afternoon. The party was composed of the Misses A. L. Vogt, of New York city; Winifred Stringham, of Plainfield; Jean Marshall, of Brooklyn; Katherine Kelly, of Orange; M. D. Stringham and Roy Stringham, Donald Sminck and Colis Case, of this city. Three canoes were used and the delegation took provisions for the entire trip as well as tents and sleeping blankets. Nightly stops were made and the members pitched tents on the banks of Raritan where they camped each night. The party went as far as Trenton when the return was made.

Arthur and George B. Stewart, of Lincoln place, spent yesterday at Keansburg.

MRS. E. B. D. BARRETT DIES AT SON'S HOME

Former Plainfielder While on Visit Here Succumbs to Heart Trouble.

Mrs. Eliza Bagot Doane Barrett, wife of the late Thomas Townsend Barrett, of Brooklyn, N. Y., died last night at the home of her son, John Y. Barrett, of 31 Regent street, the borough, where she had been a visitor since June 3. Heart trouble was ascribed as the cause of death.

Mrs. Barrett was born at Barrington, Nova Scotia, on August 13, 1841, but came to Brooklyn with her parents five years later. She moved to Plainfield sixty-two years ago where her marriage took place. She continued to reside here until the death of her husband in 1901 when she again took up her residence in Brooklyn.

Beside the son at whose home she died, Mrs. Barrett is survived by two other sons and two daughters. These are Ernest D. Barrett, of New York; Thomas T. Barrett, of Plainfield, and the Misses Sarah D. and Martha T. Barrett, of Brooklyn. There are also three brothers surviving. These are Chief T. O. Doane, John H. Doane and Charles E. Doane all of this city.

The funeral will be held Friday morning and will be private. The Rev. H. St. G. Burrill, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, will officiate and burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

Harvey Fisk and family, of Prospect avenue, are spending the summer at Woodstock, Vt.

Mrs. E. V. Cox, of East Seventh street, is spending the month of July at Nova Scotia and the remainder of the summer will be spent at Norfolk, Conn.

FEAR SPREAD OF EPIDEMIC IN N. Y.

Health Authorities Send Out Warning to New Jersey Towns.

Thousands of children and adults are leaving New York because of the epidemtic of infantile paralysis that is raging there and many of them will come from infected districts despite the vigilance of quarantine officials. Plainfield probably will shelter some of the refugees and officials of the local Board of Health have sent out a warning.

Fifty thousand children left New York city yesterday, according to reliable statistics, most of them for New Jersey points. That some are from families that are infected is almost certain and there is danger of the disease being spread to Plainfield and other cities unless precaution is taken.

The State Health Department has sent a notice to Plainfield warning the health board here be ready ready to take care of cases of infantile paralysis that may occur or may come in from the outside. Instant and complete isolation is demanded. Quarantine at home or in a contagious disease hospital and thorough disinfection of all bedding and clothing of the patient is the first thing to be done. All persons are requested to notify the health department at once if symptoms are found. It is important to remember that while infantile paralysis is to take care of cases of inattack adults as well.

BOROUGH COUNCIL AWARDS CONTRACT

Charles Lentz, of Rahway, Gets Street Paving Work at Dunellen.

Contractor Charles Lentz, of Rahway, was awarded the contract for paving North avenue from Washington avenue to Madison avenue with what is known as Tarvia D, at the meeting of the Borough Council Monday night. Before placing the Tarvia Contractor Lentz will lay crushed stone of a thickness of several inches. The contractor will commence work next Monday.

The sewerage engineer in his monthly report stated that the sewer work was progressing satisfactorily. The South avenue line has been completed between Grove street and Madison avenue. The work is now concentrated on Madison avenue between North avenue and the manhole north of the railroad tracks. The estimated cost of the work yet to be completed is $14,500. This is based on unit prices and includes the completion of the Sanford avenue line between North and Dunellen avenues.

The contractor, the report stated, has been instructed to begin his repair and cleaning of the sewer by July 15, so that the final inspection may be completed in August, with the finishing up of the new sewer work. The estimated cost of the work for the month was $2,403.61 and to July 1, $115,551.47

THE FORUM

Editor Plainfield Daily Press:

To the men and women voters—A circular has been distributed through our town which is decidedly against the advancement or enlargement of education. In the first place, this circular bears no names, only the word committee, and how are we to know who is responsible for such a backward move.

I for one shall vote yes, and use as much influence in that direction as I can.

This $50,000 is a long-needed want and is a necessary move to meet the requirement of the State educational laws.

As to what will be necessary as stated in the circular in six or eight years is only problematical, as you will see after reading the circular.

I trust every loyal man and woman voter in the school district who has a charitable interest in giving the children in our vicinity a proper and necessary educational chance in life will come out and vote yes.

I personally do not think that this circular is such an economical move as the committee would have the voters think.

WILLIAM I. GUEST.
Scotch Plains, N. J.

July 5, 1916.

ENJOY CAMPING TRIP.

About fifty boys, comprising Troops 23 and 28, Boys Scouts of America, spent the holiday on a camping trip in this section. After today the two troops will leave, the former going back to Newark and Troop 28 taking a hike through South Jersey. Monday the boys were camped on the mountain back of Scotch Plains and received instructions in cooking, swimming and other details of camp life. A visit was also paid to the Boy Scout Camp on Terrill road, and yesterday they participated in the Fourth of July demonstration at Plainfield.

DRIVING A TRUCK.

According to last reports that have been heard from Maurie Hall, of South avenue, who is with the Seventh Regiment, N. Y. N. G., along the Mexican border, he is driving an army truck over the arid wastes of Texas. "Maury" takes to camp life like a duck to water, and with his previous "experiment" in the army to help he is having an easy time showing the guardsmen how to be regular soldiers.

The first bi-monthly meeting of Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., for July will be held in the lodge rooms tomorrow night.

The monthly meeting of the Bucket and Engine Company was held in the firehouse on Bartle avenue Monday night. Only monthly routine business was transacted.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Muir and children, of Harrison, spent the holiday with Mrs. Muir's father, H. C. Meyer, of Front street.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Banks, of Plainfield, have been visiting the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Z. Hatfield, of Stout avenue.

The business meeting of the Epworth League, of the Methodist church, will be held tonight and afterward the members of the League will enjoy their annual Fourth of July picnic.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Robinson, of North avenue, have returned from spending several days at Red Bank.

Miss Rita DeMott, of Scotch Plains, has been spending her vacation at Ocean Grove.

Yesterday was one of the quietest Fourth of Julys that the borough or township has ever had, and as a result not a single injury aside from a few light burns were reported.

Watchung.

A large number attended Miss Hauser's canning demonstration, which was given in the Watchung School on Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. MacDonald gave a lawn party to a number of their friends at their home last evening. A display of fireworks was a feature.

Miss Theresa E. Schmidt is spending the summer at Lake Sunapee, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Crane, of Montclair, have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Hughes.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter B. Rendall and family, who have been spending the Fourth at Camp Rendall, have returned to their home in Jersey City.

Mr. and Mrs. George Fawcett, of New York, are the guests of Mrs. J. Meyers.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard J. Vail, of Lakeview Cottage, entertained a number of relatives and friends over the Fourth. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. LaMonte Vail, of New York city; George Gillie, of Edgewater; Miss Edith Vance, of East Orange, and Miss Isabel B. Gillie, of Edgewater.

Theodore V. Moldenke is entertaining a number of his classmates of Wagner College, Rochester.

Many young people were entertained last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard J. Vail. There was a display of fireworks and the remainder of the evening was spent in playing games.

David F. Gaston is spending a few days at Montrose, Pa.

The Misses Aubrey, Mary and Starbright Eaton, who have been ill with scarlet fever, have recovered and are out of quarantine.

Bolke T. Luerssen, of Reading, Pa., is the guest of his mother, Mrs. Dorothea Bartels.

SAFE AND SANE CELEBRATION

was evident that the singers were not from South of the Mason and Dixon line.

Another selection by the band and the singing of "Columbia" by the audience were enjoyed, after which Mr. Riley introduced the speaker of the day, Attorney General Westcott, of the State of New Jersey

Judge Westcott was pleased at the absence of noise in this city's celebration. The noisy, dangerous Fourth of Julys of a few years ago were gone, he said, and the American people have come to a better understanding of what Independence Day really means to them. "We are a people too thoughtful for noise now," he said, and this was his only reference to the situation that has called thousands of the young men of the nation to the Mexican border to resist foreign invasion. The progress of the American people from the age of the cave men can best be shown by the national tendency to live in peace toward their brothers, he said, in contrast to the quickness of the men of Europe to revert to the primitive type.

The American government is a political partnership, he said, in which every man, irrespective of wealth or position, has an equal voice. The voters, however, do not realize the responsibilities upon them and many fail to vote or fail to vote intelligently. Many vote for a candidate because of his name, and he declared that the man who voted a name was a moral coward and a traitor to his country.

Judge Westcott said that the present prosperity of America, the greatest that any country had ever known, was due to the elastic currency, and other reforms in government brought about within the past four years.

The audience sang "The Star Spangled Banner," as a finale to the celebration.

The committee in charge of the celebration was warmly congratulated on its success. This committee follows:

Clifford A. Braider, Dr. and Mrs. A. K. Brennan, Allen E. Beals, Mrs. Harold D. Corbusier, wife of Major Corbusier, of the First New Jersey Field Hospital Corps; Mrs. Archibald Cox, E. T. Dickerson, Leslie R. Fort, Charles H. Frost, Mrs. Francis De L. Hyde, F. W. Iredell, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Jones, Dr. E. S. Krans, Mrs. Dr. Clara de H. Krans, Dr. Henry M. Maxson, Miss E. Mellick, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Riley, Samuel Rothberg, G. Story Rowland, William M. Sanford, Mr. and Mrs. G. Stuart Simons, Mrs. Joseph Smith, Councilman Charles S. Smincк, of the East End Association; E. A. Stevenson, Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. P. Vesey, Mr. and Mrs. H. Crofut White, G. B. Zimmer and the officers of the West End Association, consisting of J. J. Carroll, president; W. J. Boyd, Mrs. W. W. Gallaway and Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Vail.

Those who were in the executive end of the arrangements for this celebration include Champlain L. Riley, president; H. C. White, first vice-president; A. B. Jones, second vice-president; Walter H. P. Vesey, secretary; William M. Sandford, treasurer; DeWitt Hubbell, treasurer of funds for the Fourth of July celebration, and F. T. Dickerson, president of the chorus.

MID-WEEK PRAYER MEETING.

The mid-week service will be held at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church tonight at 8 o'clock, and will be in charge of Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, the pastor. Those attending are urged to bring the Biederwolf campaign hymn books. A large attendance is expected at the service.

Left Behind

His wistful eyes are dim with tears,
His heart is lead today;
As forth amid the shouts and cheers
The soldiers march away.
They're off to great Adventure's shore,
The true romance to find;
They're answering the call of war
And leaving him behind.

Ah! Why must he stand idly there
All hope of glory gone,
A sorry figure of despair
While they go marching on?
Why must the cruel hand of chance
Stretch forth, so stern and grim?
Why must the country of romance
Deny its door to him?

But every hero may not share
The great and splendid deeds
Of those who nobly do and dare
To serve their nation's needs.
And though the savage battle light
Still beckons him away,
He's just a little young to fight—
He's eight years old today!

GERMAN SOLDIER FOUGHT IN TWO ARMIES OF ALLIES

Deserted Both Teuton and French and Joined Belgian Forces.

The record of Max Kohler, a clever and crafty German, aged twenty-six, who made a brief appearance at Marlborough street police court, London, is interesting. His record follows:

Served in the German army and deserted.

Served in the French army and deserted.

Joined the Belgian army.

Married a French girl in Paris two years ago.

Married an English girl six months ago.

Was being taken from England to France as a deserter in the Sussex when she was torpedoed.

Was rescued and taken to Folkestone, where he escaped rearrest and went to London.

Worked in the west end and was again arrested when he admitted that he was a German.

Kohler speaks English, French and German fluently.

At the age of twenty Kohler was called up for service in the German army, but after a few weeks' service he deserted from the army and made his way to England and then to America. He served in a weird variety of occupations. He is an electrician by profession, but he has been a sailor, a mechanic, a waiter, a pantryman, a fitter and an associate of criminals.

From America he went to France and for some time lived in Paris, where he was captivated by crime. Bonnot, the famous motorcar bandit, was one of his friends. A few months before war broke out he married a French girl in Paris. He joined the French army at the outbreak of war and was among the first troops to be sent to the front. On the very first day he was in action—Aug. 22, 1914. He was reported to be missing, and later it was found that he had deserted and had been taken by the Germans at Charleroi. He told them he was a German and persuaded them to allow him to make his way through Belgium to Holland.

He then saw a chance of going to England. He posed as a Belgian refugee and as such was admitted. He visited several towns in England and Scotland, where he obtained employment in a well known munition works. That was in the early part of 1915.

In Newcastle he made the acquaintance of the daughter of the foreman of one of the departments in the munition works, proposed to her, was accepted and they were married about six months ago.

NEW STYLES FOR MEN.

A Novelty Resembles the Fatigue Hat of National Guardsmen.

Fashions for men have begun to take a surprising turn. From Spain recently came something quite new in the form of the sandal coat, which, according to prediction, will be popular when the hot weather sets in. And now a new style hat for men has been found to rival the old standby sailor. It made its appearance in New York, where it attracted considerable attention.

The new model is very like the broad, flat fatigue hat of the national guardsmen. The hats were seen on five or six fashionably dressed men. These hats are being sold in some Fifth avenue shops, where it was stated that they were originated to supplant the Mexican sombrero.

IS "CHARLES EVANS" NO. 1.

Bridgeport (Conn.) Baby Was Born Day Justice Was Nominated.

With returns from many other cities still missing, it was estimated at the Hughes campaign headquarters that Bridgeport, Conn., deserved the honor of having the first baby named for the Republican candidate.

The youngster is Charles Evans Williams. He was born the day Mr. Hughes was nominated. A letter from the father was received by Mr. Hughes imparting the joyful information. The candidate replied, saying he hoped Charles Evans Williams would some day be a presidential candidate himself.

To Get Horse Out of a Hole.

Unusual methods were employed at Vandalia, Mo., in effecting the rescue of a valuable mare that fell into a well twenty-two feet deep. The owner, assisted by neighbors, began throwing hay in the well, the mare climbing on the hay as fast as she could and at last reaching the top safely.

BLUE CROSS TO ORGANIZE.

Mrs. S. G. Van Hoesen, of Fanwood, has been appointed chairman of a committee that is to work in this State to organize a Blue Cross Society. Following the suggestion of Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, William Stillman, head of the National Humane Society, has started the formation of the Blue Cross Society throughout the country, its purpose being to take care of animals injured on the battlefield.

MOBILIZATION IN RECORD TIME

All Militia Ready One Month After Call Was Issued.

PLEASED WITH THE RESULTS

War Department Says Achievement Would Do Credit to European Power. Sufficient Supplies of All Kinds Are on the Border—Use Fewer Machine Guns Than Does Europe.

It is expected that the mobilization of the national guard will be completed within a month from June 21, the day when it was ordered by President Wilson. Officials of the war department insisted that getting 133,000 militia troops ready for service on the border in that time was in itself a task which would do credit to any of the European war staffs.

It was a far more difficult task, they added, to get men from civilian life into shape for military service along the proportions stipulated by the national guard mobilization than to mobilize regular troops, as the European powers did at the outbreak of the war.

Great Britain required a month to get 100,000 regular troops with necessary equipment into Flanders when the war broke out, army officers explained. It now requires a week for the German army to move one army corps of 40,000 from one front to the other, which is a distance of 450 miles, while in the American mobilization troops in some instances will be required to go nearly 3,000 miles to their destination.

Contrast With Spanish War.

In a general way war department officials say they are now assured that there will be no shortage of equipment, no shortage of ammunition and that artillery and machine guns will be provided as soon as personnel can be trained to use them. All signs point to a striking contrast between conditions which the war department is now encountering and conditions which were found to exist at the outset of the Spanish war.

By way of illustration one staff officer said that he remembered having seen 600 freight cars waiting idle at Tampa, Fla., at the beginning of the Spanish-American war because no one knew where they were to go or what was to be done with the supplies they contained.

"There is no sign of any such confusion now," he added. "In fact, supplies are moving with regularity in practically all cases, and reports from all parts of the country show satisfactory progress."

The manner in which the railroads are co-operating with the war department is also commended at the war department, and there are said to be several instances to which troops fully equipped have got away sooner than expected.

Because secret agents of Carranza are understood to be closely watching the progress of the mobilization to the border the war department has decided not to make public any detailed information which might show just how many men are reaching there or in what measure the first phases of the mobilization are being successively carried out. Secretary Baker announces that orders have been sent to department army commanders to suppress news concerning troop movements.

Officials at the war department said there was a sufficient supply of machine guns for the regular army and the militia trained to use them efficiently. One of the lessons of the European war has been to demonstrate the great value of the machine gun and to initiate an enormous increase in the number of these weapons.

The same holds good in regard to artillery, it is explained. Before the war the ratio of artillery for troops in the field was about 3 per cent of the force. Now it has been more than doubled as a result of the last two years' fighting in Europe. The supply which the United States army calculated it would need with respect to artillery equipment was on the old 3 per cent basis, but measures have been already taken to put the American forces on the basis of the thoroughly equipped European armies.

In case of hostilities in Mexico there would be sufficient artillery for the style of campaign in which the troops would be expected to engage, it is declared, but in the meantime a rapid increase in artillery and machine guns would be the persistent policy of the army.

The increases in the number of machine guns which the European armies have been using in the field is said to be one of the most surprising lessons of the war. Reports show that the Germans on the Russian front have used one machine gun to every twenty men. There is, of course, no such abundant supply of machine guns available in the United States army.

"We must remember that this is the first time we have mobilized the militia under modern conditions," said an officer, "and in this respect it might be looked upon as a rehearsal in which minor mistakes are bound to occur, but the militia generally is surpassing our most sanguine expectations."

To Distribute 5,000,000,000 Fish.

The United States bureau of fisheries expects to distribute this year among the rivers, streams, lakes and coastal waters of the country 5,000,000,000 or more baby fish.

A Want Ad Is Often the First Link in a Chain of Consequences

It initiates something of far-reaching importance to you. You meet someone with whom you will do business for years—or you buy or sell property that changes the currents of your daily affairs. Many a want ad is of but transient importance of course. But others influence your life for years and years.

TROOPERS ENJOY HOSPITALITY

night's supper, which consisted of two slices of bread, blackberry jam and a cup of iced tea. It certainly touched the spot. We thought the meals we had at Manasquan were good but the one last night had them beaten to a frazzle, although it was not quite so substantial.

Everybody slept fine the first night. All commented on the fine berths, white sheets and soft pillows. It was quite a change from a bag of hay and a pair of army blankets and each fellow let out a sigh of relief as he crept between the sheets. All arose about 7:30 Monday morning and took a good wash. Water is plentiful and this adds to our comfort. Some of the men shaved. Everyone needed it but most of us were too busy returning the cheers of people along the tracks to think of our personal appearances. Breakfast consisted of two slices of bread, two slices of bacon and coffee for each man. Those who had long reaches got a little extra.

We arrived at Pittsburgh about 11 o'clock and left the train that the stock might be fed and watered. All of the troop was lined up for roll call by Captain Borden and then took the horses off the train, lugged bags of oats and bales of hay out of our supply car. We had some fun getting the animals out of the car and putting them in the stock yard.

We were royally received at Pittsburgh and treated to a dandy lunch of sandwiches and coffee by the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Pennsylvania Women's National Preparedness League. They also supplied our men with linen gauze, Durham Deplex razors, witch hazel, tooth brushes, combs, soap and almost everything you could ask for.

Trooper Dick Bird just shouted to a companion nearby: "Stick your hand out, Jim. Get as much as you can now for things won't be so plentiful down in Texas."

Every man had both hands full when he went back to the train. At 2:15 we began reloading our horses and at 3:30 we again answered roll call to Captain Borden, it being feared that some of us might have eloped with some of the pretty Pittsburgh girls who looked after us during our visit. We got under way exactly at 3:50. The funny part of it was that we were all hungry again. Some hungry bunch!

Trooper Kirby, of North Plainfield, the fellow who was thrown from a new horse Sunday morning, was taken to a Pittsburgh hospital and given treatment during our stay there. His shoulder is badly wrenched bue he was able to proceed with us and we all envy him for he has strict instructions not to do any work and there's plenty of it to be done.

"Baz" Stewart slept an hour longer this morning. "Six foot three" Cook had to tie himself in a knot in order to sleep in a berth. Johnny Logan has been sitting sideways in his seat ever since he left Manasquan returning the waves of fair ones along the route. He has been dubbed the "official waver." His head is always out the window in the daytime and at night he sticks his feet out. Nothing is going to get by him. He says the scenery is considerably different from that around Dunellen and he's going to get all that's coming to him, while the getting is good. His brother, Leo Logan, who sleeps with him, is authority for the statement that he is on his elbow at 4 o'clock in the morning.

Everybody is happy and one of the men in our front coach has a whistle which awakens the countryside an hour before we get there. "Clint" Ivins and "Joe" Van Deventer were appointed corporals today. They're all swelled up but we're scheming to take some of it out of them before we reach Texas.

Trumpeter Warren Ackerman brought along an extra supply of wind and hasn't stopped blowing his bugle once since we left the camp. He's learned some new tunes and he's getting lots of practice at our expense. Our train consists of four trooper tourist cars, one officers' Pullman car and one day coach, one mess car, five supply cars, nine horse cars and one caboose. The people of Pittsburgh surely gave us a great reception and send-off when we left. All the engineers who had engines in their command shrieked whistles and crowds cheered and waved the Stars and Stripes.

Leo Logan has just been detailed by Sergeant Cox to hold onto his brother's foot and keep him from falling out the window. I've just discovered who the culprit with the whistle is. He is Trooper John Winzenried.

Pittsburgh people told us we had the longest train that went through there. The Jersey City Signal Corps, the tramps that took our horses, stopped here yesterday. Our cars are chalked with the letters "Watchung Troop" on the sides.

Russell Currier, a recruit, cannot keep step while marching and he spent half of last night walking up and down the car aisle trying to learn how to take a skip to get back in step.

J. Clifford Mickle, while stopping in Pittsburgh, approached an old fruit vender and nearly missed the train talking about Philadelphia with the vender. The latter originally came from the Quaker town and proceeded to relate the story of his life to Trooper Mickle.

Our next stop is Denison, Ohio, 102 miles west of Pittsburgh. Will write you again tomorrow."

(Special Letter to the Daily Press)

Newark, Ohio, July 3.—We are most comfortably fixed as to car accommodations. We have Pullman tourist cars with all conveniences and a day coach in which our meals are served. This means a great deal as it gives us a change and saves our living cars from disorder. At Pittsburgh we found a committee of the Pennsylvania Women's National Preparedness League awaiting our arrival. They gave us a noon day meal and distributed razors, brushes, tobacco, pillows and all sorts of luxuries. Several Plainfielders met old friends in Pittsburg. At Denison, the first stop in Ohio, hundreds of people greeted us. Bushels of delicious sandwiches, pies and cakes were given us men. Men passed through the cars with hot coffee. Crowds are on hand at every station to salute us and many bands are playing along the line. Our friends back home were so good to us and then to receive the treatment we are now getting warms our hearts beyond anything that we could imagine before.

We have a fine lot of men and we are all fond of our officers who are most efficient and thoughtful. The life at Sea Girt and these happy experiences en route inspire in one the desire for good, high training; not only that we may do well our part in warfare, if need be, but because we are learning much each day of what must be done in order that our country shall keep its place among the great powers, and our training may prove helpful to others and the coming generation.

Home news will be greatly appreciated.

FIFTY ATTENDED LUNCHEON GIVEN FOR GEN. WESTCOTT

The luncheon given by members of the Recreation Committee to Attorney General Westcott at Truell Inn yesterday, was attended by fifty of the prominent men of Plainfield and fifteen women active in recreation work who had a part in planning the Fourth of July celebration. Champlain L. Riley, chairman of the committee, introduced Percy H. Stewart as toastmaster. Henry C. White, of the Recreation Committee, was the first speaker and he told of the religious and educational advancement of the nation, comparing favorably the present with only a few years ago. This advance in civilization is noted in the attendance at public schools, and he pointed to the thousands of students enrolled in Plainfield schools last year. Plainfield, he said, is near the front in educational work.

Dr. Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of the city educational system, talked on preparation for citizenship. He said that the hyphen in America presented a serious problem, but that the problem would be solved through efficient work of the schoolmaster in training the future citizens of this country. There are forty nationalities represented in American citizenship, said Prof. Maxson, and he told of a scene in one of the lower East Side schools of New York recently when the adopted children sang the "Star Spangled Banner," with a glow in their faces that was an inspiration to native sons and daughters.

E. R. Harding was the Boy Scout representative at the luncheon and he told briefly of the work of this organization. There are now 250 scouts in Plainfield, said Mr. Harding, and 15 scout masters.

Judge Westcott, in responding to the introduction of Mr. Stewart, said that he was not a seeker after office, because he believed that the office should always seek the man. In his discussion of the future of the country he paid an eloquent tribute to American womanhood, saying that the women of today were now finding themselves and that the future rests with the women of the world.

DEATH SUMMONS MRS. ELEANOR DUNN

Passes Away at Her Home on Norwood Avenue After Long Illness.

Mrs. Eleanor Dunn, aged seventy-four years, died this morning at the home of her son, William E. Dunn, of 22 Norwood avenue, following an illness which began in January. Since that time she had been sinking steadily. Mrs. Dunn was a native of New York city and for thirty years taught in the old Twelfth Street School in that city. She had been living in Plainfield for the past fourteen years. For the last two or three years she had been the secretary and treasuer of the Plainfield Branch of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and continued in that office up to the time of her death. Despite her advanced age she took an active interest in this line of work.

Beside Mr. Dunn, she leaves one brother, Archibald Davie, of North Plainfield, and several nieces in Connecticut and New York. The funeral will be held at the late residence Friday afternoon at o'clock and the service will be in charge of the Rev. H. St. G. Burrill, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross. Interment will be in Plainfield avenue cemetery.

WILLIAM W. WALSH SUES TRAVEL STAMP COMPANY

Judge Walter L. Hetfield in the District Court this morning reserved decision in the case of W. W. Walsh, the druggist, against the Travel Stamp Company. The action was brought to recover damages for injury to business. Mr. Walsh claimed that he entered into an agreement with the defendant company for the use of travel stamps, it being understood according to the contract that the company was not to supply stamps to any other druggist in this city.

Mr. Walsh said that a few months later the stamps were given to another local druggist. The defense set up by the company was that Mr. Walsh had broken the contract because he did not give stamps to every customer. This was denied. Martin B. Stutsman represented Mr. Walsh, while Bilder & Bilder, of Newark, represnted the defndant company.

SUMMER SCHOOL OPENS JULY 10 FOR SIX WEEKS

Summer school will open Monday, July 10, for a period of six weeks. The sessions this summer will be held in the High School Building, from 8 to 12 o'clock.

The school is conducted for the benefit of those in the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades only, there being no work for the High School department. Non-residents will be required to pay $6 for the term, and all arrangements for enrolling in the school can be made at the High School building on Monday morning, July 10.

The teachers assigned to the work of the summer school are: Mrs. S. L. Wardner, principal; Miss Olive B. Griggs, Miss Mabel Trenbath, Miss Rita C. Pond, Miss Edna Burdick, Miss Esther Opie, Miss Lena Jackson, Miss Rose Andrews, Miss Elsie Schmidt.

SEVEN ARRESTED FOR SHOOTING PISTOLS ON 4TH

Not a single accident was reported anywhere in Plainfield yesterday as a result of the celebration of American Independence. Many violators of the no-fireworks ordinance were on the streets, but policemen made arrests in cases where pistols were used and minimized the danger. Seven men were in police court this morning for shooting firearms within the city limits, but most of them were foreigners who thought that the Fourth of July was the day to shoot and Judge DeMeza let them off with a suspended sentence.

MANY PLAINFIELDERS AT SPRING LAKE FOR THE SEASON

Included in the large number of Plainfielders who have cottages at Spring Lake are: R. L. Hecht, of Belvidere avenue; William M. Clark, of West Eighth street; William M. Wherry, Jr., of Madison avenue; H. W. Herrman, of West Seventh street; V. W. Nash, Sr., of Prospect avenue; Leslie R. Fort of Cedarbrook road; Mrs. James H. Brewster, Jr., of Watchung avenue; Mrs. Walter L. Righter, of West Seventh street; Mrs. William B. Tyler, of Evergreen avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gillman, of Lenox avenue. The husbands of the latter three are with Troop D on the Texas border. A large number of Plainfielders have also registered during the past week at the New Monmouth Hotel, at Spring Lake, while relatives have been at the camp.

FUNERAL OF MRS. HAPPE.

The funeral of Mrs. Joseph Happe, of Liberty Corner, whose death occurred Sunday was held this morning at 11 o'clock from the Liberty Corner Presbyterian church. Rev. C. B. Condict, of Newark, officiated at the service. Interment took place in the Liberty Corner cemetery.

ARTHUR S. MOSHER DIES IN 40TH YEAR

Well Known Plainfielder Succumbs to Lingering Illness at Asbury Park.

Following a nervous breakdown which he suffered early in March, Arthur Seely Mosher, of 302 Watchung avenue, the borough, died on Monday, at the Lorraine, Ocean Pathway, Ocean Grove, where he had been living since June 12. Although the best of medical attention was provided, Mr. Mosher sank rapidly and the change of residence which was thought might benefit him, was of no avail, complications setting in rapidly.

Mr. Mosher was born in Jersey City forty years ago, but came to this city at an early age and has resided here the greater part of his life. He was a violinist of note and was the leader of the Park Avenue Baptist church orchestra. He was active in both the Sunday school and church work of the Park avenue congregation and was quick to make and hold friends. Both socially and professionally he had hundreds of warm friends who will mourn his untimely death. Until the time of his fatal illness he was employed as manager of the composing room of the American Bank Note Company, of New York, holding this position for the last twelve years. He had no local fraternal affiliations.

Beside his widow, he is survived by a son and daughter. The latter are Grace A. Mosher, aged fourteen, and Arthur Seely Mosher, Jr., aged twelve years. One brother, Clinton C. Mosher and his mother, Mrs. Mary A. Mosher, both of Bloomfield, also survive him. The funeral will be held from his late residence on Watchung avenue, Friday afternoon at 2:30, and will be in charge of the Rev. Dr. B. D. Hudson, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church. The latter will be assisted by Assemblyman William N. Runyon, superintendent of the Sunday school. Interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE TO MEET FRIDAY NIGHT

A special meeting of the Union County Republican Committee will be held Friday evening in Elizabeth. Sen. Edge will be in attendance and will make an address. This meeting is the opening of the coming campaign and leaders of the party from every community in the county are urged to be present and take part in the discussion of plans.

ITALIAN PARTY BREAKS UP IN A FREE FOR ALL

In a little house on St. Mary's avenue a son of Sunny Italy last night called together a number of friends from his native land to entertain with games. One game they played was so hotly contested that it had to be settled with chairs, sticks and other weapons. One woman got a pitch fork and might have done serious damage had not a sturdy lover tapped her gently with a chair. Lieut. Morris Higgins arrived in time to arrest all of the players. They presented a sorry looking appearance when lined up at the police station, but the blood was washed off them and no one was badly hurt. In police court this morning Judge DeMeza assessed a fine against five separate defendants. One was dismissed.

FUNERAL OF VIRGINIA SHEA.

The funeral of Virginia Shea, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Shea, of West Second street, was held yesterday morning at 10 o'clock. The service was in charge of the Rev. Father Walter J. Hennessy, of St. Mary's church. The floral offerings sent by relatives and friends of the little child were numerous and beautiful. Interment took place in St. Mary's cemetery.

The Missouri River.

The Missouri river is one of the great drainage channels of the United States, measuring in total length about 2,400 miles. It drains 527,155 square miles, a territory as great as that embraced in the states of New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, North Carolina, Tennessee, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi.

Although Missouri river may never again be utilized as a means of communication and transportation, it is destined to play a large part in the better development of its drainage basin by furnishing water for irrigation and for generating power.—Geological Survey.

Ring Finger the Weakest.

The finger on which the wedding ring is worn is anatomically the weakest of the ten. Pianists have to give the third finger twice as much drill as the others. Place both hands together, palms facing, and all but the middle fingers stretched, you will be able to separate all couples easily but the two third fingers. The anatomical explanation of this weakness is that the tendon of the extensor muscle of the third finger is attached by a cross slip to that of the second and sometimes of the fourth. This slip is sometimes cut in violinists, who need all the freedom and power they can get.—Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph.

CHAINED TO A ROCK

How the Turks Once Imprisoned a Greek Battleship.

DARING OF A YOUNG OFFICER.

His Pluck and Strategy Resulted in Making the Powerful Enemy Vessel Lie Helpless Within the Landlocked Waters of the Gulf of Arta.

It was during the war between Greece and Turkey in 1897 that the inhabitants of Gala Krini—a large village, since destroyed by the Turks, on the shores of the gulf of Arta—awoke one morning to find that a Hellenic battleship had entered the gulf and cast anchor off the shore. The surprise of the inhabitants of Gala Krini was nothing compared with that of a party of five Turkish officers, who, from the very crest of a hill towering above the village, watched the vessel through their telescopes.

These Turkish officers were on an urgent and important mission—to block out the Hellenic fleet from the gulf of Arta. Behind them, at the bottom of the deep ravine, were a number of heavy guns which had been dragged all the way from Saloniki, a long and difficult task, and with this artillery they had been ordered to fortify the strait.

To reach the strait, however, the Turkish column had to run the gantlet of the battleship's heavy guns, which meant sheer destruction. Somehow or other they must escape the man-of-war or prevent her interference with their work, but to do this seemed impossible.

In the midst of their discussion a young officer who had been listening said he could hold the vessel a prisoner if they would allow him. His pleading won, and, hurriedly changing his clothes for those of a shepherd, he descended in that disguise to Gala Krini.

Late that night a number of figures stole through the dark alleys of the village toward the shore. Close to the water's edge was an old boathouse, used as a shed for repairing boats. This the party silently entered and by the flickering light of a taper searched the black interior. At length there was a gentle rattle and from the gloom emerged Hassan, stripped to the waist, dragging a heavy chain. This, with the help of his comrades, he began to pull, and after an hour's laborious work the end of the great chain—once the cable of a Turkish vessel—was reached.

From the beach the chain was loaded on board a large caique, whose sides and floor had been covered with cloth to deaden the sound. This task accomplished, three men got in with Hassan and rowed with muffled oars toward a large rock in the middle of the bight. Round this rock the chain was laid and securely fastened. One man having been landed on the crag to keep guard over this end, the boat set out cautiously for the battleship, looming like a phantom in the distance. Not a sound did the men make as link by link the massive chain was paid out over the stern into the still water till they reached the vessel.

There was an excited gleam in Hassan's eyes as, with a sign to his comrades, he gradually lowered himself into the dark water, guiding himself by passing his fingers over the battleship's plates. A slight grating of the chain against the hull was all that his anxious companions in the boat heard, though now and then a reassuring pull was felt on the line that Hassan held, directing them how to pay out the chain. Hours rather than minutes seemed to have gone by ere the young officer came to the surface. So exhausted by his long dive was he that he had to be almost lifted into the boat.

"It is round the propeller," he gasped. "I have fixed it so that nothing can move it. Back you go."

Then link by link the tedious work was renewed until the boat returned to its starting point, where the other end of the chain was secured. The risky task was done, and the Hellenic battleship was securely moored to an immovable rock by a double thickness of cable.

The early rays of dawn revealed a sight which astonished the Greek commander. A whole regiment of Turks were on the march toward the strait of Arta, with train after train of artillery, the last of which disappeared beyond the intervening head before the ship's guns could be brought to bear on them. The commander gave orders for the guns to be run out and decks cleared for action, while the anchor was weighed, his intention being to prevent the Turks from fortifying the strait before they had become too strong. "Full speed ahead!" went the order to the engine room, and, propelled by her mighty screw, the battleship advanced, only to lurch backward as if dragged by some unseen force. Work as the engines would, the vessel seemed to be in an enchanted circle, beyond which it was impossible to go.

It was not until the sun's rays had penetrated the deep blue water alongside that the secret was revealed and the massive chain was discovered passing round the ship's propeller and the adjacent rock.

Before it could be removed, however, the strait had been sufficiently fortified by the Turks and a powerful Greek warship lay a helpless prisoner within the landlocked waters of Arta.

Kindness is a language the dumb can speak and the deaf can hear and understand.—Bovee.

PATRIOTIC ADDRESS.

Joseph S. Frelinghuysen made a patriotic address at the Independence Day celebration at Three Bridges last night, speaking on "Preparedness." The former State Senator was given a great ovation.

—Do the available household workers of this city, who read the classified columns of this newspaper, know that you need a good servant?

Above is shown the emblem of the Business Men's Association of Plainfield. About seventy merchants of this city are members of the organization, and most of them display this emblem in a conspicuous position on their windows. It stands, however, for more than mere membership in a commercial body. It stands for business honesty, and it is displayed by the merchants in this city who believe that honesty and fair dealing is worth more to them than any temporary advantage which may be gained by taking short cuts which others think brand them as "shrewd." The emblem will never be found on the window of a "fly-by-night" store that comes here for a few weeks or months to take advantage of holiday trade. The store in front of which this emblem is displayed is not here for a few days. It has probably been under the same management for years, and will continue under that management. It is a guarantee that if you have purchased anything in the store which displays it, and you are dissatisfied, you can go back at any time and have any reasonable complaint properly and courteously attended to.

There are many reasons which can be presented in favor of trading in Plainfield. The emblem shown above is the best one of all. The stores which display it are the ones where purchasers are assured of honest values, for every member knows that he will be taken to task by the others if he tries any shady merchandising methods. Perhaps you will say "that sounds all well enough in an advertisement, but they do not practice what they preach." If any reader of this has any doubt that the members of this organization are not jealous of the emblem, it can quickly be dispelled by attending any regular meeting. The frankness with which the business men discuss each other's faults will no doubt be surprising, but it is just that frankness which is making the business men of Plainfield, allied with this organization, strive to be fair to the public in every way. The meetings are held the 1st Monday of every month in Coward's Hall, on Park avenue, and visitors are always welcome. Our members are given a chance to get acquainted with many of the people of the city, and the kicker is made more welcome than the fellow who is easily satisfied, and comes out of mere curiosity. We know that we can all benefit from what the kicker says, for nine times out of ten his kick is a just one.

"But who are the members of the Business Men's Association?" perhaps you will ask. That is a fair question, for it is only for the members of this organization that these advertisements speak. In the next talk the names of every firm will appear.

CHECKED SIGN FOR RAILROAD CROSSING

New York and Long Branch Railroad Adopts New Design for Painting Gates.

In order to attract drivers' attention at a safe distance, the New York and Long Branch Railroad has adopted a new safety-first plan. This consists of painting the gates at main railroad crossings in black and white checks.

In the daytime drivers, particularly motorists, will thus be able to discern the warning gates much farther ahead than in the past. But the importnat point is that in the evening they will also be visible a good distance away.

The first crossing gate to be decorated in this manner was the one at Hollywood, the nearest railroad station to Shadow Lawn, President Wilson's summer home.

The blame for many accidents has been laid to too quick an approach at crossings. These glaring signs were designed to capture the motorists' eye.

At crossings where there are no gates, watchmen have been armed with signs in the form of large red disks in the center of which is painted in white "Stop."

THIS APPEARS TO BE OF LOCAL INTEREST

An organization of Seventh Day Baptists to study the history of their sect and keep a library and museum, has been incorporated under the name of "The Seventh Day Baptist Historical Society." In a certificate filed in the office of the county clerk at Elizabeth, the requirements for membership are outlined. The society is open only to Seventh Day Baptists and involves the payment of $5 annually for contributing or $50 for life members.

The headquarters of the society will be Rooms 316-318 Babcock Building, 240 West Front street, this city. The five trustees for the year are: William M. Stillman, Frank J. Hubbard and Asa F. Randolph, of Plainfield; Corliss Fitz-Randolph, of Newark, and Elsie F. Randolph, of Great Kills, N. Y. Their terms of office will expire at intervals of one year, so that eventually only one of the five trustees will be elected each year. They will be assisted by an advisory committee elected at the annual meting. The members of the first advisory committee are as follows: Arthur E. Main, William C. Whitford and William L. Burdick, of Alfred, N. Y.; Walton A. Angham, of Fort Wayne, Ind.; Willard D. Burdick, of Milton, Wis.; Theodore L. Gardiner, of Plainfield; George Benjamin Utter, of Westerly, R. I.; Samuel B. Bond, of Salem, W. Va., and George W. Post, of Chicago, Ill.

THESE ARE BUSY DAYS FOR RED CROSS SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., July 5.—These are busy days for the American National Red Cross Society, which has its headquarters in the stately marble edifice that faces the wide sweep of grounds back of the State Department and White House. Since the present war cloud appeared on the horizon the headquarters of the society has become a veritable bee-hive of industry.

Almost daily conferences are held by the society's executive committee, which includes among its members Miss Mabel Boardman, Secretary Franklin K. Lane and Surgeon-General William C. Gorgas. Within the past week many extra clerks have been engaged to handle the work of the nurses enrollment bureau, the hospital field units division and the other departments of the organization which, in the event of real warfare between the United States and Mexico, will have a leading part in supervising the work of "ameliorating the condition of wounded soldiers in the armies and in campaigns on land or sea."

No details of the preparations made by the society to carry on its work have been made public, since the secrecy that surrounds the work of the War Department in these days has also extended to the Red Cross. It has been learned that parties of field workers have already been despatched to the vicinity of the Rio Grande, but the exact points of destination have been kept secret for the reason that to make them public would be to divulge the future plans of the War Department.

Fortunately the Red Cross society has always practiced preparedness. The war relief board, which is the bureau of the society that will have charge of the organization work in the event of actual hostilities, is thoroughly prepared for the task that now confronts it. Months ago it made a thorough study of field hospitals, ambulances, private automobiles, the supply of capable volunteer nurses and kindred subjects, so that there would be no danger of unpreparedness in just such an emergency as has now arisen.

DANIEL SYLVESTER WEDS MISS SINGER

Rev. Evarts C. Conover Performs Ceremony at Home of Bride's Parents.

Miss Elsie M. Singer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Singer, of 334 East Sixth street, and Daniel Sylvester, also of Plainfield, were married yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents by Rev. Evarts C. Conover, pastor of the Temple Baptist church. The ceremony was witnessed by a large number of relatives and friends of the couple.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was attended by her aunt, Miss Catherine Singer, while Frank Sylvester, a brother of the bridegroom, was the best man. A reception followed the ceremony, during which congratulations were offered. The bride received a large number of gifts.

The couple will reside for the present at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. Sylvester is employed at the International Motor Works in this city.

BOARD OF EDUCATION DAYS AT OCEAN CITY

The State Federation of District Boards of Education will on July 13 and 14 have special Board of Education days at Ocean City in connection with the summer school activities at that place. Frank H. Sommer, president of the State Federation, and Dr. C. N. Kendall, State Commissioner of Education, will deliver addresses dealing particularly with the work of district school board members. There will also be a round table discussion of the district board problems to which all board members throughout the State are particularly invited. All board members are requested to register at the Federation headquarters upon their arrival at Ocean City and meet members of the reception committee.

THIEF GETS DARLING'S HORSE AND HIS BUGGY

A horse and buggy was stolen from the barn of John Darling sometime Monday night. The loss was discovered at 8 a. m. yesterday and Mr. Darling notified police headquarters. There were two horses in the barn and the thief passed up the most valuable. The animal stolen was a bay of medium height, with black legs and white marks on rear feet. The buggy has a black top and red running board. Notices with descriptions of the horse and buggy have been sent over the country.

Miss Helen Moss, of Annapolis, Maryland, returned to her home in Brooklyn, today, after spending a week with the Misses Mary and Theresa McCullough, of Steiner place, the borough. Miss Moss is engaged in settlement work in Brooklyn.

RALPH RUNYON, PENN STATE POLE VAULTER, CAPTURES FIRST PLACE IN THAT EVENT

Local Lad Secures Cup as Prize—Clears Bar at Twelve Feet, Three Inches—Gets Second Place in Running High Jump.

Ralph Runyon, of this city, competing unattached, easily won the pole vault event at the Safe and Sane Athletic Meet in New Brunswick yesterday afternoon. Runyon, who is a former Pastime A. C. athlete and who is a student at Penn State, did unusually well, crossing the bar at a height of twelve feet and three inches. This mark is better by three inches than any made by him in previous meets or in practice. His training at Penn State has been of considerable benefit to him and he hopes to be able to better his mark of yesterday. Other entrants in the pole vault were Joe Breckley, of Rutgers; Joe Nagle, of N. Y. A. C.; Ernest Nebeling, Kings County A. C.; George Emmons, of Empire A. C., and Arthur McKee, of Union Settlement.

Some brisk competition was seen in the running high jump handicap. Five of the seven contestants cleared the bar at six feet. Ralph Runyon was one of the five. Wesley Oler, of Yale, the intercollegiate champion, was the scratch man in this event, but the handicaps proved too great for him. He was placed just outside the prizes. D. W. Walker, of the New York Athletic Club, with a handicap of three inches and an actual jump of six feet, six inches, was the winner. Ralph Runyon also made a jump of six feet, six inches, but his handicap was five inches. Ralph obtained second place and Emil Loescher, who jumped six feet, four inches, with a handicap of one inch, was third.

The thousand yard dash was won by Joe Higgins, of Holy Cross College, after a spirited contest, in which Jimmy Powers, running unattached, figured prominently.

"SHORT GRASS," LOCAL HORSE, SETS RECORD FOR ONE MILE ON AQUEDUCT TRACK

Betters Mark Made by "Stromboli" in 1914 — Almost Equals Record for Straight Track—Local Horse Wins at Weequahic.

Adam C. Blair, a local liveryman, drove "Reuben Hall," a horse owned by a Montclair man, to victory in the 2:28 class at Weequahic Park races held in Newark yesterday. There were seven starters in this event and the Montclair thoroughbred outclassed them all.

Dr. H. E. Winter drove "Oyamack" in the 2:15 class and won in five heats. "The Baron," also owned and driven by Dr. Winter, captured first place in the 2:22 event. Both of these horses will be entered in the next matinee race held at the Weequahic track.

"Short Grass," a horse owned by a party in this city, set a world's record for a mile on a track with a turn. The time was 1:35. This time is not as good as that made by "Salvator" on a straight track at Monmouth Park, Aug. 28, 1890. But the local horse's record is better than that made by "Stromboli," the holder of the world's record for one mile on a track with a turn. "Stromboli's" mark was made on Belmont track on September 7, 1914. "Short Grass" bettered this record by seven-tenths of a second on the Aqueduct track.

CLAIM BASEBALL PLAYERS ARE PAID

Transfer of Garretson From Baptist to Hope Chapel Team Raises Question.

That the City Baseball League is threatened with professionalism developed at the weekly meeting held in The Daily Press office Monday night, when John Garretson, who has been playing first base for the Baptist team, asked for his release, and was afterward signed up by Hope Chapel. The simple change of this player from one team to another in the league would probably have gone through without a hitch except for one thing.

Prior to the meeting Garretson told Daniel Randolph, the secretary, in the presence of the president of the league, that he was through playing baseball "for love," that he was going to get paid or he would not play. Notwithstanding this fact Manager Duncan Patterson released Garretson at the meeting, but the league's action was reconsidered and by a majority vote the question was settled by prohibiting the player named from going to the Hope Chapel team. While there was no evidence beyond Garretson's statement, that he was to be paid, it was the belief of the league representatives that he was to receive compensation. This he would neither deny nor confirm at the meeting.

Secretary Randolph spoke plainly on the subject, opposing the hiring of players by any club in the league. It was openly stated by persons present that some players were paid last year and that other players are being paid this season. They refused to disclose the names of such players, however.

In spite of the fact that Garretson said he was through, he played with the Baptist team yesterday morning, but did not appear for the afternoon game. It is known that there are league representatives who will leave the organization if professionalism is allowed. The league was formed as an amateur body and according to the constitution no player can legally receive compensation either directly or indirectly. It is the intention of the league to settle this matter at its meeting Monday night.

BASEBALL SEASON AT PLAYGROUND

Parker Field League Opened Today With Shamrock and Lenox Clubs Playing.

The Parker Field summer season opened this morning with a large number of boys in attendance. The playgrounds at the various schools were also opened and each supervisor reported that quite a number of both boys and girls attended the opening exercises.

The grounds are all under the supervision of trained playground workers. At the Irving School, Miss Ruth Wean is again in charge with Miss Ruth Ralston as assistant. The Franklin School playground is in charge of Miss Marion Mair with Miss Sadie Rothberg as assistant. Miss Harriet B. Moe is in charge at St. Mary's while at the Bryant School Miss Louise Franke is in command.

Supervisor George W. Wriston, who has complete control of the work at Parker Field, opened the baseball season at that popular playground this afternoon. The Shamrocks and the Lenox A. C. were the teams that assisted in prying off the lid. Games will be played daily and everything that goes to make up a regular "big" league will be provided for the amusement of the boys.

DUNELLEN BATTERS CHAPEL DEFENSE

Morning Section of Holiday Bill Goes to Apgar Outfit.

Dunellen and Hope Chapel divided honors in a double header at Maurer Oval, Dunellen yesterday, Dunellen winning the morning game by the score of 6—3, and Hope Chapel the afternoon game by the close count of 7—6. In the morning game the opposing pitchers were Schott for Hope Chapel and Bogert for Dunellen. Schott had a sore arm and could only lob the ball across the pan. Nevertheless, the Dunellen batsmen were only able to register two safe drives and to score a like number of runs during the first five innings. In the sixth inning, however, they got busy and put the game on ice when they scored two runs on doubles by Apgar and Moulton and a single by Dixon. The runs were driven in by Moulton's double. The feature of the game was a great catch by Heron, Hope's left fielder. The catch was made in the sixth inning when he ran over back of second base and speared a line drive from Wilson's bat with his gloved hand. The playing of Brown and Jaeger, the respective shortstops also elicited favorable comment. The game was marred by a dispute in Hope's half of the seventh between Brown and Harriman, a Hope Chapel player who was not in the game. The dispute ended in a fistic encounter, Brown hitting Harriman twice, it is said, before fellow players could intervene. According to witnesses, Brown was set on second to receive a throw from the pitcher to force Nash when the latter ran into him hard. Brown turned like a flash, it is said, and tried to trip Nash, whereupon Harriman came running out on the field, pointing an accusing finger at the Dunellen shortstop. The score:

REVENGE IS SWEET SAY HOPE MEN

"Hoppy" Walls Twirls Chapel Team to Victory in Afternoon Contest.

A large crowd turned out to witness Warry McLaughlin work against the Hopes in the afternoon, but they were grieveously disappointed, because the veteran failed to show up. It was reported late last night that illness accounted for the non-appearance of the popular Dunellen twirler. Stahl, the North Plainfield High School star, who was booked to pitch for the Hopes, also failed to show up. When the game started the opposing slabmen were Walls, who plays regularly at third for the Hopes, and Johnny Dixon. Taking everything into consideration, Walls pitched a remarkable game. Dunellen scored three times in the initial frame, but Britt Martin was responsible for two of the tallies when he let Apgar's bounder get away from him with the second and third stations tenanted. Dunellen was unable to score again until the eighth, when Trust, who had singled, scored on Apgar's long two-bagger to deep left. The Hopes in their half of the eighth inning were unable to score against Lew Brown, who had relieved Dixon the inning previous and when the Dunellen team went to bat in the opening of the ninth it needed three runs to tie the game and four to win.

Moulton, the first batsman, got no further than home plate. L. Wilson, the next man up, hit a grounder to Jaeger at deep short and went to second when "Tutsie" threw the ball over the head of the first baseman. Gunner then popped to Jaeger for the second out in the inning. Gunzelman, who had been hitting hard all day, started a promising rally when he doubled to left, scoring Wilson. Brown, next up, singled past third, scoring Gunzelman. With but one run needed to tie the score, Trust doubled to left, sending Brown to third. Apgar, next up, was hit by a pitched ball, filling the bases. With the fans praying for a hit, Johnny Wilson stepped to the plate. He let the first one go by and it was a ball. The next one was a strike and the succeeding two balls. Walls was perceptibly nervous and he put one dead across and Wilson hit a hot grounder to Jaeger. The little shortstop of the Hopes received the ball in deep short. He fumbled momentarily, and then made the long throw across the diamond in perfect fashion, nailing Wilson by a step amid the groans of the Dunelen contingent.

Bergen, the regular Dunellen receiver, was unable to participate in either game, owing to the illness of his child. His place behind the bat was taken by "Box" Apgar, the Plainfield High School catcher. "Box" caught very creditably in both games. He threw to second with great accuracy. The score:

TOMMY MULLIN IS NOW A PITCHER

North Avenue Player Twirls Three Innings, Making Auspicious Debut.

Tommy Mullin is now a pitcher. The local lad has been angling for a chance to pitch for some time. But it was not until Sunday that his request was granted.

In a game between the Perth Amboy Pacers and the Elizabeth A. A., Harry Applegate, a regular pitcher, started the fray and held the Betsytown boys to no runs. In the sixth frame, Applegate was taken out and Tommy put in. The local lad held the visitors to one run for the rest of the game. Tommy was almost as effective as his partner and lost none of his popularity by allowing the Elizabeth team to score. As a pitcher is not expected to be a hitter, Tommy did not wish to upset that rule. Hence, he failed to hit.

Guard Your Health by Keeping Cool and Resting Occasionally

Intensely hot kitchens cause many heat prostrations in trying summer days, but it is impossible to keep a kitchen cool when a coal range is used to cook the meals, to heat the water and on ironing days, because there is a continued hot fire before, during and after the time of actual work.

Where a Cabinet Gas Range, a Gas Water Heater and a Self-Heated Gas Iron are used it is possible to keep a kitchen cool and have time for rest and recreation. The heat is concentrated where required and begins and ends with the work. Fuel expense is incurred only while the work is being carried on and ceases instantly when it is done. A Cabinet Gas Range will properly cook a big meal in less time and with more comfort to the housewife, and at less cost than the finest coal stove.

A Gas Water Heater will heat water for dish washing in from three to five minutes at a cost of less than a cent; for a bath, in from 10 to 20 minutes for less than two cents, and on wash days, as needed, for less than ten cents.

A Self-Heated Gas Iron will do the ironing of the average family in two hours' less time than it would ordinarily take if a coal stove were used to heat the irons—and it costs about one-sixth as much to iron with a gas iron.

$3.00 per month buys a handsome Cabinet Gas Range, with glass door, as shown; $1.00 per month, a Water Heater, and 50 cents per month, a Gas Iron.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, JULY 5, 1916.

THE WOMEN WHO WAIT.

The part of women in the national crisis that has called many of New Jersey's bravest and best sons to the Mexican border will not be merely a waiting one. Plainfield led the way by organizing a society for the purpose of extending relief to families of militiamen and volunteers, and its women have so far been most active in the work, but there is in process of formation now a State league for this work which will be made up entirely of women. Men will be permitted to have a part in the work by contributing, but the organization is for women and will be conducted by women. Mrs. James F. Fielder, wife of the Governor, is at the head of the newly formed league and she sends an appeal to all parts of the State for volunteers.

Such an organization will prove necessary if the militiamen are to stay for any length of time on the border. Some communities like Plainfield are able to extend relief to the families of all their soldiers, but there will be others that cannot raise sufficient funds to keep "war widows and orphans" from suffering want while their bread-winners are fighting for the flag, and the duty of the State toward them should be clear to every citizen.

New Jersey's women are as loyal and patriotic as her men, and they will make whatever sacrifices are necessary to answer the calls for relief that will soon be coming in from all parts of the State.

THE FOLLY OF CRIME.

There is a lesson for every youth of Plainfield in the sad plight of John Southard, eighteen-year-old station agent at the Netherwood station who was bound over by Judge De Meza Monday for participating in a "fake" hold-up. Never was crime planned by youth that had more chances of success. The boy station agent had $600 in his possession, to take home or leave at the station as he pleased. He passed along a dark, deserted street, and it would not be hard to believe that he was held up, in fact it would be unusual in this day if he were permitted to continually pass safely. Southard and his two companions neglected nothing in their arrangement of details, and yet they were arrested before the money was half spent. Any one of a number of clues cried out their guilt to trained officers of the law, and it took detectives only a few hours to unravel the plot. If the boys had won they would have enjoyed the doubtful pleasure of a few hundred dollars wasted in riotous living, but they lost, and the loss is reputation, liberty and a lifetime of happiness. Forgetting the moral side, they gambled for a few hours of pleasure, and the odds were a million to one against them.

John J. Carroll assumes the duties of clerk of the city of Plainfield on July 15. Mr. Carroll is fitted by training and character for the work and the Council has not erred in his election. He is one of the few individuals who, as private citizens, have taken an active interest in municipal affairs and he has always been on the side of community progress.

Netherwood at last is to have an automobile fire engine. The apparatus ordered should certainly be the best on the market for the Common Council has been almost a year deciding this important question.

BUY FIRE ENGINE FOR NETHERWOOD

Council Decides to Accept Bid of American-LaFrance Company.

Netherwood's new automobile fire apparatus is to be an American-La France triple combination engine, chemical and hose wagon. Its purchase was authorized at Monday night's meeting of the Common Council and the company will be notified at once of the acceptance of its bid.

The engine is to cost $8,000. It will be delivered as soon as possible, probably within 60 days, and is purchased subject to acceptance after adequate tests by the local fire department after delivery.

Two reports on fire engine bids were turned in by the fire committee Monday. On was signed by Chairman Cose, Councilmen Edgar, Ryan and Hamilton. It recommended the purchase of the American-La France engine. The other was a minority report from Councilman Graves. He favored the purchase of an Aarons-Fox engine. In speaking for his report Mr. Graves said that the Aarons-Fox was the most expensive engine on the market, but that he had witnessed a number of tests and had seen this apparatus working steadily for eight and ten hours, while others were forced to drop out. Councilman Hamilton presented a resolution authorizing the purchase of the American La France. Mr. Graves moved to amend it to read Aarons-Fox, but the amendment was killed and the Hamilton resolution passed. It was explained that the American-La France Company would give an unlimited guarantee that it has more fire engines in use today than any other company. Ninety-nine of this make have been sold since January 1, and thirty-nine since May 1.

ELECT CARROLL TO SUCCEED M'MURRAY

New City Clerk Will Give All His Time to Work; Salary is $1,500.

John J. Carroll was elected clerk of the City of Plainfield at Monday night's meeting of the Common Council. The resignation of James T. MacMurray, who went out of office on March 6, was not accepted until Monday. It was brought up and upon motion of Mr. Babcock was accepted. A resolution thanking Mr. MacMurray for his efficient service during the 22 years he served as clerk of the city was then passed. A copy will be sent to him by the clerk. Councilman Babcock then presented a resolution appointing Mr. Carroll to the office, which was passed by unanimous vote. Mr. Carroll will go into office July 15. This date was fixed because of the fact that Mr. MacMurray must sign the $30,000 in school bonds to be issued soon. Mr. Carroll is to give all his time to the office and will receive a salary of $1,500 a year.

Proctor's Theatre

Scene from "Where Are My Children," at Proctor's Today

Tonight marks the last appearance at Proctors' of the sensational film production, "Where Are My Children," which has attracted large and enthusiastic crowds to that popular playhouse, and which has created the greatest furore throughout the entire country of any picture spectacle yet produced. In addition to this headline feature today the 19th episode of "The Iron Claw," acknowledged to be the greatest serial yet produced, will be shown, and next week this serial will be concluded. It is becoming more interesting each week and the majority of film fans are still pondering who the mysterious "Laughing Mask" really is.

Tomorrow is Triangle day and the features include Willie Collier, Jr., son of the famous comedian and Triangelite, who makes his first appearance on the screen in a Thomas H. Ince production entitled "The Bugle Call," a finely produced patriotic feature in which the acting, photography, directing and settings are simply beyond the description of words. Master Collier is ably assisted by a splendid cast, including Anna Lehr, who won renown by her excellent work in "Civilization's Child." Other features today include the latest Keystone comedy, and several other interesting subjects.

On Friday a finely balanced program will be presented, including Katherine Kaelred and Julian L'Estrange in a picturization of Clyde Fitch's immortal play, "The Girl With the Green Eyes;" J. Warren Kerrigan will be seen in a gripping Universal feature entitled "The Melody of Love," and there will be several comedy and educational features.

On Saturday, Hamilton Revelle will star in "The Half Million Dollar Bribe," a remarkable five-part Metro production and other features will include "The Scorpion's Sting," and "Betrayed by the Camera."

Among attractions booked to appear in the near future at Proctors' are Charlie Chaplin in his latest comedy, "The Vagabond," and "Anna Pavlowa in "The Dumb Girl of Portici."

GET 4 BIDS ON SEWER ADDITIONS

Successful Contractor Will Be Announced Sometime This Week.

Company K Wants $15,000 to Help Complete Armory—Three New Policemen Appointed — Order More Street Lights.

Bids for the construction of a number of sanitary sewers as additions to the system of Plainfield and for the erection of a pumping station were received by members of the Common Council at the meeting of Monday night. They were submitted on the different items in the work and until Street Commissioner Gavett has figured the cost the lowest bidder cannot be determined. He will make an announcement sometime this week. Those who entered into competition for this work were Landis & Hazlin Company, Ridgewood; J. M. Kelly & Sons, Baltimore; Joseph P. Burke, Plainfield, and Joseph Ferry & Sons, Baltimore.

A communication from the Union County Board of Freeholders calling attention to the fact that school buildings can be used for holding elections at a great saving to the county was received. It suggested that this be taken up with the school board, but Mayor Calkins looked into the subject sometime ago and found that it would prove impractical in Plainfield.

An ordinance giving to the Public Service Corporation the right to lay a double track on Watchung avenue, between Fourth and Fifth street, and on East Fifth street, between Watchung avenue and Richmond street, was passed on its first and second readings.

A communication from the West End Civic Association complaining that steps on the Fourth street cars were too high was received and filed.

Captain Peterson, for Company K, requested an appropriation of $15,000 to aid in completing the armory. The letter was referred to the finance committee.

The Public Service was instructed to install five 100 candlepower lights on West Third street, between Liberty street and Plainfield avenue, and three 32 candle power lights on Woodlawn avenue, between Prospect and Randolph road.

J. Sacher sent a communication to the Council asking that sewers be laid in Sacher place.

Reports of the Building Inspector and the Streeet Commissioner showed that 34 building permits and 12 sewer permits were issued during the month of June.

Ordinances to regulate curb lines and establish grades and to provide for new storm sewers were passed on the third and final readings.

George Lorch, James P. Conway and Ludwig Heftie were appointed special policemen.

A communication from Mrs. Randolph Marsh complaining about the condition of Plainfield avenue was referred to the streets committee.

L. Moraller & Sons were allowed an appropriation of $30 for taking care of the town clock.

The Plainfield-Union Water Company reported that it installed a fire hydrant on Prospect avenue.

THE FORUM

Editor, the Plainfield Daily Press:

Speed saves lives and property. Lack of speed in getting to fires has been the drawback. Motor driven apparatus has ushered in a new era in fire fighting. A minute or two saved in reaching the scene of a fire may mean the saving of many lives and much property. The day of the horse in fire departments is a thing of the past. The sooner municipal authorities recognize this condition the better it will be for all concerned. I am thoroughly convinced of the superiority of the motor driven apparatus. The first run of a new piece in Pittsburg saved five lives that ninety-nine chances out of a hundred would have been lost had they had to depend on the horse drawn apparatus. With motor driven apparatus I believe 99 per cent. of the fires will be fought without the use of water. The soda and acid chemical tank will have their first real opportunity to prove how good they really are.

VISITING NURSE ASSOCIATION CARES FOR MANY BABIES

Since the baby clinics and milk stations were opened by the Visiting Nurses' Association the last week of May, 84 babies have been registered and have had the care of the doctors and nurses. The total attendance at both stations have been 187 babies. Five second hand baby carriages have been received and given out again to help in this good work and many more are needed.

Two babies have been so ill that they had to be removed to the hospital for care. The others are getting along nicely but the hot weather is just beginning. By continuing to watch the babies very carefully we hope to escape the terrible epidemic of infantile paralysis such as they are having in the city and to save all the babies this summer. The stations are opened four days a week. Information can be secured by telephoning 103 or by calling at the office, 323 Babcock building.

Thumbs Down For Martine.

The Wescott United States Senatorial boom, which had displayed a propensity to travel on flat tires, is in better shape now that James R. Nugent, the Essex "boss" has declared for the Camden candidate, says The Camden Post-Telegram. "Big Jim" gave the "Farmer Orator" a few kind words recently which swelled him up with the hope that he would have the Essex organization at his back. But "Stand by the President" is the cue, and the White House having shown a leaning toward Wescott, Senator Martine is to "get it where the chicken got the ax." While thumbs are turned down for the man whom Wilson picked for United States Senator in 1911, he will die battling valiantly against hopeless odds. Martine is lifting up his voice at every opportunity to appeal to his fellow Jerseymen for support. There are not a few Democrats who think that if Martine was good enough material for the Senate in 1911 he should be good enough now, especially since his independence has been demonstrated.

International Scandal Mongering.

Nobody has yet conclusively proved the origin of continued reports that Japan is encouraging Mexico to battle against the United States, and is giving both material and moral support to the Carranza government. Three or four times reports were sent to Washington that Japanese warships had arrived off the coast of Mexico and that plans were undorway for the establishment of a Japanese naval station on the Pacific coast of the revolution-torn republic. Investigation proved in each case that there was no basis for the reports, and a similar statement has just come from Admiral Winslow, who had been ordered to make an inquiry concerning the latest allegation. Just as soon as the word came from the admiral that he could find no Japanese warships anywhere along the Pacific coast front of Mexico, another story popped up that the Japanese colony at San Francisco had promised the support of Japan to Mexico "against Yankee rapacity." This promulgation is hardly as effective as warships in creating a "yellow peril" scare, but it shows that there is some hidden influence always on the lookout for Japanese-Mexican concoctions to serve up to the people of the United States for special purposes. If the origin of these baseless reports could be determined, then there would be little difficulty in drawing a satisfactory conclusion as to their intent. One sure thing is that these yellow tales do not come out of the air, though some of them have been suspected of being transmitted by wireless.—Newark Evening News.

3,377 JERSEYMEN DIED DURING MONTH OF MAY

Trenton, July 5.—According to an announcement made at the office of the State Department of Health of the 3,432 deaths tabulated as occurring in New Jersey during the month of May, 3,377 were of residents of the State, and 46 of non-residents, giving a resident death rate of 13.81 for the month.

By age periods there were 495 deaths among children under one year, 258 deaths of children over one year and under five years of age, and 1,136 deaths of persons aged 60 years and over.

Deaths from typhoid fever, scarlet fever and diphtheria showed a slight increase, while deaths from tuberculosis of the lungs, cancer and diseases of the circulatory system and pneumonia showed a decrease. The number of deaths from Bright's disease is above the average.

The non-residents who died in the State for the month are from the following places: Connecticut, 1; Delaware, 1; District of Columbia, 1; Illinois, 1; Maine, 1; Maryland, 1; Massachusetts, 1; Ohio, 1; Canada, 1; New York City, 17; New York State, 3; Philadelphia, 9; Pennsylvania, 8.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

Elise Dines On Some Wild Crabapples.

She Came to a Wild Crabapple Tree.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

AFTER supper daddy took the children on his lap and told them: "Once a little princess went out in the woods to find her eleven brothers that their wicked stepmother had turned into wild swans. She got lost and had to sleep all night under some bushes, but in the morning she found a beautiful pond with waters so clear that she could see her face just as plainly as in a mirror.

"But when she saw her own face she was frightened at herself, for in order to make the king hate his daughter the queen had stained Elise's face brown. But now she wet her hands in the pond and rubbed her face and forehead till her own white skin shone through. She was no longer ugly. A more beautiful royal child could hardly have been found in the world. If the king could only have seen her!

"Then Elise had a nice bath in the pond, which made her feel happy in spite of her hunger. She put on her clothes again, braided her long hair and drank some sparkling water from a spring near by, for you children must always remember not to drink pond water. Elise made a little cup out of her hands and took another drink; then she wandered off in the woods again to find her brothers.

"Soon she came to a little wild crab apple tree heavy with fruit. She made a breakfast of apples and put props under the branches so they would not break with the weight of fruit. It was so quiet in the woods that she could hear her own footsteps. She could hear every withered little twig snap under her feet. Not a bird was to be seen at midday, and the leafy branches kept out the bright sun. The trees stood so close together that when she looked ahead it seemed as if a thick fence of beams hemmed her in. She had never been so alone before.

"That night was very dark. Not a single glowworm sparkled in the marsh. Sadly Elise lay down to sleep. It seemed to her that the branches above her parted and an angel's head peered through at her. But in the morning she could not feel sure whether she had dreamed this or whether it was really something true.

"After a breakfast of crab apples and a bath in the pond Elise walked on through the forest. Soon she met an old woman with a basketful of berries, which she gave Elise, who asked her if she had seen eleven princes anywhere. 'No,' said the woman, 'but yesterday I saw eleven swans with gold crowns on their heads swimming in the stream over there.'"

Marrying a Butterfly

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

Ralph Enjoys a Trip to the Woods—His Wife Isn't With Him.

Ethel and Ralph stood on the front porch of Mrs. Tellson's house in the golden October sunshine, looking off over the fields edged with a border of wine-colored blackberry bushes interspersed with bright patches of golden rod. The distant woods stretched like rich tapestry against the horizon. Ralph drew in deep breaths of the spicy air.

"Isn't this great?" he asked, looking at Ethel.

"Yes. I wish I had a dress the color of that sky." Ralph's answering smile was cynical, but she did not notice it. He looked down at her pale blue slippers and dainty lace trimmed negligee.

"Have you anything sensible to put on; anything that you could go to the woods in?" he asked, eyeing her critically.

"Sensible! What do you mean? Of course I have something besides a morning dress," she answered aloofly, for his voice had been unsympathetic.

"I should like to go down to the woods and see if there are any nuts to be had, but it is no pleasure to go if you must wear white kid shoes and a handsome traveling suit that must be guarded against accident." Ralph looked off across the fields with eyes alight with appreciation.

"No, I have no ground gripper shoes, if that is what you mean, nor any khaki camping suit." The tone of disgust with which she mentioned these articles of dress showed that they found scant favor in her eyes.

"I think dress should be so appropriate at all times that after it is once on, no more thought need be given to it. That is a test of its suitability." Ethel turned up her nose.

"Those dowdy women on the car yesterday seemed utterly oblivious of their clothes and I suppose you think therefore that their dress was appropriate." The disdain in her voice irritated him.

"Those women never thought of their clothes; they had something more important to think about. They had the care of children and home on their minds. At any rate they can put their fingers on something they have done in their life, even if they have not been great ornaments to society." Ralph's tone was bitter.

"Meaning, I suppose, that I cannot," retorted Ethel.

"Can you? I leave it to you." Ralph fixed his eyes on his wife's face.

"The time was when you would have said I was of some use, and I knew as much then as I do now." Ethel fingered her engagement ring.

"I did not," was Ralph's laconic answer. A silence fell between them. Finally, Ralph said: "Are you going to the woods with me?"

"No I will not spoil your enjoyment by going in clothes that are not sensible." With this parting shot Ethel turned into the house. Ralph sauntered down the walk and off across the fields, whistling a merry tune. The sweet autumn odors floated up from the dying leaves as he entered the woods and he rustled through the dry leaves under the trees as he had done when a boy.

"I am glad she refused to come. As long as we have no pleasures in common, I may as well get all I can by myself," he reflected bitterly. "And she certainly spoils every trip to the country that we take together."

Ethel, left to herself, wandered discontentedly around he house and wished she had accepted the invitation of Mrs. Tellson to accompany them to church.

"Ralph might have stayed and helped me pass the dull hours," was her reproachful thought. "It is shameful the way he neglects me."

SUMMARY SHOWS MARKED INCREASE

U. S. Census of Manufacturers Indicates That Plainfield Has Kept Pace.

$7,161,000 IS INVESTED

Value of Products in 1914 Was $5,009,000 An Increase of 37.3% in Five Years—Salaries and Wages Total $1,541,000.

A preliminary statement of the general results of the census of manufacturers of Plainfield has been issued by Director Sam L. Rogers, of the Bureau of Census, Department of Commerce, at Washington, D. C. It consists of a summary comparing the figures for 1909 and 1914, by totals, prepared under the direction of William M. Steuart, chief statistican for manufactures.

The figures are preliminary and subject to such change and correction as may be found necessary from a further examination of the original reports.

The census of 1914, like that of 1909, with reference to manufactures, excluded the hand trades, the building trades, and the neighborhood industries, and took account only of establishments conducted under the factory system. In the last census, also, as in that for 1909, statistics were not collected for establishments having products for the census year valued at less than $500, except that reports were taken for establishments idle during a portion of the census year, and whose products for such reason were valued at less than $500.

The word "establishment," as used in the census reports, may mean more than one mill or plant, provided they are owned or controlled and operated by a single individual, partnership, corporation, or other owner or operator, and are located in the same town or city.

The reports were taken for the calendar year ending December 31, 1914, wherever the system of bookkeeping permitted figures for that period to be secured, but when the fiscal year of an establishment differed from the calendar year a report was obtained for the operations of that establishment for its fiscal year falling most largely within the calendar year 1914.

Percentages of Increase.

The population of Plainfield at the census of 1910 was 20,550, and it is estimated that it was 23,000 on July 1, 1914.

The statistics represent the establishments located within the corporate limits of the city.

The summary shows a consistent increase at the census of 1914, as compared with that for 1909. In the order of their importance, from a percentage standpoint, the increases for the several items rank as follows: Materials, 80.5 per cent; salaried employes, 39.7 per cent; value of products, 37.3 per cent; salaries, 29.9 per cent; wages, 21.5 per cent; capital, 10 per cent; wage earners, 4.2 per cent; and primary horsepower, 3.9 per cent.

Capital Invested.

The capital invested, as reported in 1914, was $7,161,000, a gain of $653,000, or 10 per cent over $6,508,000 in 1909. In this connection it should be stated that this inquiry contained in the census schedule calls for the total amount of capital, both owned and borrowed, invested in the business, but excludes the value of rented property, plant or equipment which was employed in the conduct of manufacturing enterprises. In the final bulletins and reports the rentals paid for such property will be shown separately.

Cost of Materials.

The cost of materials used was $2,761,000 in 1914, as against $1,530,000 in 1909, an increase of $1,231,000 or 8.5 per cent. In additon to the component materials which enter into the products of the establishment for the census year, there are included the cost of fuel, mill supplies, and rent of power and heat. The cost of materials, however, does not include unused materials and supplies bought either for speculation or for use during a subsequent period.

The census inquiry does not include amounts paid for miscellaneous expenses, such as rent of offices, royalties, insurance, ordinary repairs, advertising, traveling expenses, or allowance for depreciation.

Value of Products.

The value of products was $5,009,000 in 1914 and $3,649,000 in 1909, the increase being $1,360,000, or 37.3 per cent.

The value of products represents their selling value or price at the plants as actually turned out by the factories during the census year and does not necessarily have any relation to the amount of sales for that year. The values under this head also include amounts received for work done on materials furnished by others.

Salaries and Wages.

The salaries and wages amounted to $1,541,000 in 1914 and to $1,249,000 in 1909, the increase being $292,000, or 23.4 per cent.

The number of salaried employes was 299 in 1914 as compared with 214 in 1909, making an increase of 85, or 39.7 per cent.

The average number of wage earners was 1,832 in 1914 and 1,758 in 1909, the increase being 74, or 4.2 per cent.

The monthly business meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 in their rooms on Madison avenue.

NARROWLY ESCAPES RAILROAD ACCIDENT

Dr. Richard Moldenke Luckily Misses F. F. V. Flyer That Was Wrecked.

Dr. Richard Moldenke has just returned from a trip to West Virginia. He had all arrangements made to leave home on Sunday, June 25, but was called away a day sooner, thereby missing the wreck of the Sunday F. F. V. flyer on the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, which he would otherwise have taken. While in the natural gas regions of Southern West Virginia, Dr. Moldenke made some interesting tests on the recovery of high grade gasoline from this natural fuel.

While on the way home from the South, Dr. Richard Moldenke attended the meeting of the American Society for Testing Materials in Atlantic City, and delivered the eulogy in memory of the late Leslie S. Robertson, son of Lord Robertson, of India. Mr. Robertson, a prominent engineer of Great Britain, was attached to the staff of Earl Kitchener and went down with him on the Hampshire.

MEYER—BODENHEIMER.

Miss Flora Anna Bodenheimer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bodenheimer, of Watchung, became the bride of Charles Meyer, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Meyer, of Watchung, at a quiet wedding ceremony performed at the parsonage of the Watchung Avenue Presbyterian church last Saturday. The pastor, Rev. J. O. McKelvey, performed the ceremony. The couple were attended by the bride's sister, Miss Sadie Bodenheimer, and Albert Newmiller, a nephew of the bridegroom. Following a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Meyer will be at home to their friends at 7 Johnston Drive.

Vacations Wanted

If you could rescue one little child or one overworked mother from the city's hot, glaring walls and pavements and stuffy rooms, and give them an outing at the beach with bountiful food, rest, coolness, fresh air, a daily dip in the surf, shady porches and sandy beaches, would you not regard such a gift as well worth giving?

Such a gift is entirely within your power. Ten thousand of these mothers and children are waiting for invitations to our Sea Breeze Summer Home. You can send as many as you will for a day, a week or a fortnight.

Allow 50 cents a day or $3 a week for each person, and direct your gift to George Blagden, Treasurer.

HOLIDAY EVENTS AT COUNTRY CLUB

Fine Program Attracts Many Players to Popular Golf Course.

COMPETITION IS KEEN

Four-ball Handicap and an 18-hole Handicap Chief Events of the Day —Dinner Dance Enjoyed in the Evening.

Ideal weather with a course in perfect condition brought out a large number of golfers at the Plainfield Country Club yesterday. Throughout the entire day the course was thronged with enthusiastic players and low scores were the rule. One of the leading events of the day was a four-ball handicap, 36 holes, in which there were many competitors. The winners were A. W. Kleinecke and H. E. Moore, who made a net score of 127. The leading scores:

A. W. Kleinecke and H. E. Moore, 175, 48—127; E. B. Sheemaker and W. T. Kaufman, 161, 32—129; J. P. Stevens and J. P. Stevens, Jr., 167, 36—131; W. M. Alling and J. R. Evans, 164, 30—134; A. A. Tilney and Willard Wadsworth, 165, 30—135; S. D. Lounsbery and Leighton Calkins, 156, 18—138; J. R. Shoemaker and R. S. Rowland, 157, 18—139; W. G. Cooke and W. W. Coriell, 177, 38—139; E. A. Lyon and O. H. Fleming, 170, 30—140; M. J. Dumont and H. E. Butler, 164, 24—140; S. H. Patterson and Clifton Wharton, Jr., 167, 26—141; D. H. Barrows and W. Lester Glenney, 153, 12—141.

There was a large field in competition in an 18 hole handicap tournament, the leading scores being as follows:

H. E. Moore, 91, 25—66; J. A. Lane, 88, 20—68; H. A. Robinson, 99, 27—72; F. W. Wallace, 100, 27—73; W. W. Coriell 94, 21—73; S. H. Patterson, 85, 12—73; W. B. Gresham, 97, 21—76; S. T. Perrin, 93, 17—76; R. C. Blancke, Jr., 102, 25—77; W. M. Alling, 87, 10—77; W. G. Cooke, 95, 18—77; D. W. Taylor, 97, 20—77; D. H. Rowland, 99, 21—78; O. H. Fleming, 89, 10—79; L. S. Ayer, 107, 27—80.

The three leading scores in the sweepstakes event were: J. P. Stevens, 93, 25—68; J. P. Stevens, Jr., 84, 15—69; W. W. Coriell, 94, 21—73.

The holiday was concluded with a dinner-dance at the clubhouse in the evening, at which there were an unusually large number of members. An excellent dinner was served by Superintendent John Eke, after which the dancing continued until a late hour. Music was furnished by a stringed orchestra.

Dilts and McDonough, Garbed as Baptists, Almost Down Netherwoods

Although Oscar Dilts pitched a brilliant game of baseball, his team, the Baptists, lost another close encounter to the Netherwood "Ironsides," yesterday morning, the score of the battle being 3 to 2. The game was an interesting and exciting one throughout and was, in reality, a pitchers' duel between the youthful Dilts and Russ Stewart, with Russ having a slight shade over his opponent.

In the eighth, Eddie Coughlan gathered in a bingle and stole the keystone sack. Matty Coughlan then hit a long fly to Van Norden, who made a "Ringling" catch. Eddie made for the third station, which should have been under the care of Townley, designated to receive a relay throw. Dilts, who had obtained the ball on a throw-in from Van Norden, whipped it to third, but Townley could not field it. Coughlan raced home on the pitch, the game being won at that instant.

EDDIE CONSHAY FAILS TO PUZZLE TABS

Abstainers Use Bats to Advantage, Winning Over Farmers in Morning.

Driving Eddie Conshay from the mound in the first inning and continuing the attack on Joe Morley, the Tabs, with Benny Rosenson pitching the kind of ball that made Walter Johnson famous, had an easy time defeating the Farmers by the overwhelming score of 10 to 0, yesterday morning.

The Abstainers took a liking to Eddie Conshay as soon as they were first allowed to bat. This liking rapidly turned to runs, earned by virtue of heavy hitting. Conshay was forced to retire after he had been reached for five runs and had permitted the whole Tab batting order to face him in one inning. Joe Morley, the Farmer manager and catcher, went in to finish the game. Joe got away to a bad start, allowing four runs to score in the second and one in the third. After the third canto, however, Morley did exceptionally well. Benny Rosenson pitched wonderful ball and was never in danger. In the field Ryan, Denitzio and Peterson did good work.

The holiday bill certainly changed the league standing, Mr. City League Fan! 'Tis true, sir, that the Netherwood boys remained on top, but had Oscar Dilts carried out his well-formulated and almost executed plans, such would not have been the case. Dilts pitched a masterful game and was accorded good support until the eighth and deciding frame, when his own throw was muffed by a helpmate. In the afternoon affair, Dunc Patterson proved easy for the Netherwoods and they completed a profitable day's labor by trimming the Baptists in quick order and to the tune of extremely martial music.

The surprise of the day, however, came with the excellent showing made by the Tabs, who took two games away from the Farmers. The morning tilt was hurled by Benny Rosenson and the "Morley Mates" could not touch Benny. Neither could they score on any of the legal devices that they tried. In the curtain raiser, the Farmers were equally as weak. Had Conshay twirled in the afternoon, perhaps he would have been accorded a warm reception. He had trouble with his arm in the morning attraction and was no puzzle to a single Tab. Morley was also hit hard and the afternoon section of Farmer flingers consisted of untried recruits and infielders, among them Sims, Randolph and Peterson.

Hope Chaped had a semi-profitable day in Dunellen, losing the morning encounter 6 to 3 and winning the nightcap 7 to 6. Both games were first-class attractions and were well attended.

The umpiring for the day was generally considered good and the average attendance up to expectations.

BAPTISTS TUMBLE FROM HIGH PERCH

League Leading Netherwoods Take Decided Fall out of Baptists on Diamond.

The Baptists were easy victims for the Netherwood clan in the afternoon section of yesterday's double bill, losing to the tune of 12 runs to 4.

Owing to the fact that several of the Baptist men failed to put in an appearance, it was necessary for Manager Patterson to present a somewhat patched up team. Billy O'Loughlin was kindly loaned to the Baptists by Acting-Manager Jimmy Monahan, of the Tabs.

During the fracas, Dunc Patterson's nose was broken by a batted ball. Patterson was hurried to the home of a nearby physician and the broken member was set.

ABSTAINER ROLLER CRUSHES FARMERS

Teetotalers Continue Heavy Clouting in Afternoon Game With Tailenders.

The afternoon tilt engaged in by the Tabs and Farmers was a farce from start to finish, the West End lads being outclassed throughout the entire game, which, consequently, went to the Abstainers by the score of 18 to 1.

Jack Denny was invincible during the whole game and the only run scored by the Farmers was a homer by Randolph. This ball was touched by Wahl, but it was too far above his head to be caught and fielded. The clout was a good one and no credit should be taken from Randolph.

The Farmers used Sims as their pitcher. Frank opened up well and was going along nicely for a few minutes. Even he, however, fell a victim to the terrific Tab slugfest. Randolph assumed the pitching burden after Sims had been recalled. Randolph was in turn followed by Peterson. The score:

FISTIC ENCOUNTERS MARRED GAMES

Instances of This Nature Will Not Be Repeated Say League Heads.

At the City League meeting, held in the Daily Press office on Monday evening, several important changes in the rosters of the various teams were made. The Farmers, who have been going poorly of late, added Pasch and Mead, both St. Joseph players, to their list. No men were dropped to make room for the newcomers. The Dunellen team added Veneto and Bogart, while the Baptists made the most changes of all. This team dropped E. Terry, adding Pierson Bailey. Sammy Dorman was also released and Earle Pierson was taken on. Jack Garretson was also released, but he played with the team in yesterday's games.

The next league meeting will be held on Monday evening and at this time some lively discussion will take place. In the Dunellen-Hope morning game yesterday, one of the Dunellen players sought to engage in a fistic encounter with a Hope Chapel man. Ill feeling ran high for a few minutes and the game had to be delayed for some time. Personal grievances of a Tab and a Farmer player led to words between the two in the morning end of the double bill between these two teams. Unpleasant instances of this nature will not be repeated if the word of the league moguls count for anything.

HYDEWOOD GOLF CLUB CELEBRATES

An Attractive Holiday Program is Enjoyed on the Borough Course.

FLAG CONTEST FEATURE

Carroll Taylor Wins Unique Event —R. M. Smith and Walter Whitehead Victors in Four-ball Foursome.

Several events combined to make Independence Day at the Hydewood Golf Club an enjoyable one for the members of that organization. Conditions were perfect and during the day the attractive course was occupied with many players who took part in the various competitions. In the morning there was a "flag contest," a novel event, which aroused much interest. This was won by Carroll Taylor, who reached the home green on his round. He received a fine American flag as a prize for his achievement. H. E. Blazier finished second in the competition.

In the afternoon there was a four-ball foursome, 18 holes, medal play handicap, which was won by R. M. Smith and Walter Whitehead with a net score of 148. The leading scores:

R. M. Smith and Walter Whitehead, 192, 44—148; W. H. Nischwitz and A. C. Van Arsdale, 212, 50—162; R. G. Morse and R. V. Carpenter, 196, 33—163; Charles P. Lyman, 222, 59—163; H. E. Blazier and J. J. Green, 195, 27—168; Dr. H. K. Carroll and Clarence J. Hand, 208, 38—170; Carroll Taylor and A. A. Cannon, 208, 38—170.

Another event of the afternoon was a ladies' driving contest which was won by Mrs. Walter Whitehead.

The holiday festivities included a display of fireworks in the evening, which was enjoyed by a large number of members and their guests, after which dancing was participated in by those present. This part of the enteraainment was in charge of the house committee of the club and made a fitting end to one of the best holiday affairs in the history of the club.

BASEBALL

It begins to look as if Chicago retired from the championship business when the Feds withered.

A year ago the White Sox were tearing along at the front in the American League race and Cleveland was running backwards.

Robby Robinson's Brooklyn Bobbies have whaled the tar out of Pat Moran's Phils this season to the tune of 9 victories out of 12 games played.

Detroit and Cleveland are the centers of the world's peace activities. Whenever the Tigers and Indians clash, Sweeney is tossed the peace stuff.

Perhaps if the Giants had taken their time instead of rushing up within striking distance of the top, they might have been better prepared to stick around awhile.

Winning his first three games gave Pitcher Marty O'Toole a fine start with the Omaha Western League team.

Coach Fred Mitchell has rejoined the Braves after finishing the work of developing one of the best Harvard nines in years.

Milwaukee officials are making war on the baseball pool, one of the greatest separators of a bug and his money ever invented.

Larry Lajoie must have overheard some one say he was an old-timer the other day, for he promptly went out and stole four bases in a double-header.

The difernce between Manager "Smiling Bill" Donovan of the Yankees and "Wild Bill" Donovan, manager of the Yankees, is the difference between the Yankees winning and losing.

Being "hitless wonders" proved such a good thing for the White Sox that the Red Sox have entered the class and are doing well at it.

It isn't Sisler's fault that the Browns are not traveling faster. That bird can play any position in the yard and play it right.

Fighting their way to the top of the Western League and then hustling back home to the cave has kept the Topeka team busy this season.

The "bush" leaguers will have to start early for their big show trial this season or the college pastimers will have copped all the rookie berths.

Fred Tenney's Newark team, which was running away with the International League pennant earlier in the season, has apparently dropped the pennant idea, for the present at least.

The movies have lost several thrillers this season, such as "Slim" Sallee tearing up his Cardinal contract, Johnny Evers telling John McGraw his opinion of the Giants and their manager, and a picture of "Old Fox" Griffiths after the Athletics had taken a game from Washington.

Wit of Disraeli.

There is a story about Disraeli that is much like him and will give an idea of what he was at this time (1877). As he was leaving a house he asked some one to give him his arm down Piccadilly. The man, who must have been a person of some wit, said, "At such a time as this I should wish to be met by my creditors." "No," said Disraeli, "it is not at such times that your creditors meet you. Your creditors meet you when you are carrying a bundle."

There you have the literary quality of the man.—E. S. Nopel in Outlook.

Will the managers of the following clubs make themselves known to this office and gain due recognition in this directory?

Somerset F. C.; Highlanders; Antler A. A.; Boys' Athletic Club, Laurel A. C.

Watch for this feature daily. It will enable out-of-town managers to write directly to local leaders and will also engender keen rivalry among local clubs.

WITH EVERY MODERN FACILITY we can promise a quicker and more efficient job of auto repairing than is possible in an establishment less thoroughly equipped. Owners of expensive cars have found this place the best at which to have their repairs made. There's a reason.

Buy Your Roofing Here—at Home

Roofing that you send away for may be cheap in first cost, but it's more than likely to be expensive in the end. You can buy roofing for almost any price you want to pay, but we know that repair-proof, wear-proof, fire-resisting

Pronounce "U" as in RUBY
RU-BER-OID ROOFING
COSTS MORE - WEARS LONGER

will cost you less in the end than the cheap roofings, because it lasts longer. We know of many RU-BER-OID roofs that have given more than 20 years of service and are good for many years longer.

We can deliver RU-BER-OID immediately; we can save you time and freight charges and give you factory prices.

Our customers who use RU-BER-OID tell us that mail order roofings cannot compare with it.

RU-BER-OID has been widely imitated, because it is worth imitating. So-called "Rubber roofings" are not RU-BER-OID. The genuine has the "Ru-ber-oid Man" (shown above) on every roll.

The U. S. Appellate Court has enjoined imitators from using the word "Rubberoid or any similar name as the trade name or brand" of their roofing.

Come in and get our prices and a sample of RU-BER-OID.

Here's to a Safe and Sane Fourth

Insist on having a safe and sane Fourth for the children—no dangerous fire crackers, rockets or matches. Be equally particular that the youngsters eat only "safe and sane" ice cream.

This Fourth make it yourself in one of the famous Alaska Freezers. It is the open-spoon dasher in these freezers, whipping air into every particle of the cream, which makes ice cream frozen in Alaska Freezers so wonderfully delicate and smooth.

And, making it yourself, you will have the satisfaction of knowing that it is absolutely pure.

An Alaska Freezer will last a lifetime. But be sure it is an Alaska.

We also have on hand the White Mountain and North Star Freezers.

FRENCH PIERCE GERMAN THIRD LINE IN GREAT SOMME DRIVE; RESERVES HOLD ENGLISH BACK

KAISER RUSHES MEN AND BIG GUNS TO OPPOSE BRITISH AND LAUNCHES COUNTER ATTACKS.

GAINS MADE ONLY AFTER BLOODY FIGHTING

Surprise No Longer a Factor in Giant Offensive, and Allies Find Foes Prepared—Notre Dame Cathedral is Shelled by German Gunners—More Neutral Mail Seized.

BRITISH DRIVE IS CHECKED.

London, July 6.—British troops have renewed their attacks against the Germans in the region of Thiepval, between the Ancre and Somme Rivers, pressing the Teutons back and gaining further ground, it was stated in an official report issued by the War Office at noon today. The advance, however, was slight owing to the terrific artillery fire of the Germans and the great masses of reserves hurled forward to contest the progress of the English. Some German prisoners were taken during the fighting around Thiepval last night.

Paris, July 6.—French war statement: The French gains west of the Peronne on the Somme River front have been further extended by the capture of a wood north of them, it was announced today by the War Office. The communique makes it plain that violent fighting was in progress around them last night, for the Germans by means of powerful counter assaults managed to occupy two pieces of woodland in the same district. Hem, which was captured yesterday by the French, lies south of Curlu and about four miles northwest of Perrone in the Somme marshes. French forces north and south of the Somme, having smashed the first and second lines of the Germans, are now hammering away at the third and last line in front of Peronne, which has already been pierced at several points.

North and south of the Ancre the Germans have launched strong attacks against the new positions of the British, whose advance by reason of the heavy German forces massed there and the unfavorable nature of the ground, has been slower than that of the French. German artillery on the Verdun front was very active yesterday and last night the famous old cathedral of Notre Dame was violently shelled by the German gunners.

British Take More Mail.

New York, July 6.—A cable received by the Norwegian American line states that the steamship Bergensfjord arrived at Bergen noon yesterday. A wireless despatch via Cape Race states that the steamship Kristianiafjord was 1,362 miles east of the Ambrose Channel at noon yesterday. The vessel is expected to arrive Saturday at noon. At Kirkwall 1,000 bags of mail were taken off. The vessel is carrying only 10 bags of mail.

Gaston Herve Killed.

Paris, July 6.—Gaston Herve, brother of the famous Socialist, has been killed in action at the Somme, according to a casualty list just posted.

Britons Disappoint Paris.

Paris has stood amazed and delighted with the successes of the army south of the Somme, but there has been some disappointment over the comparative slowness of the advance north of the river. This is explained by the ability of the French to move faster than the British, who take up the battle a mile above the stream. The British seem to be meeting with extraordinary resistance at every point on their front, and especially on the right they have been unable to make an appreciable advance since Monday.

Large German reinforcements were hurried forward against the British all of yesterday and Tuesday. These came largely by the Cologne-Cambrai railway, which discharges the troops in the very centre of the sector attacked by the British. Counter attacks have been of extreme violence at every important point from Montauban to Gommecourt, and nothing General Haig

FRESH AIR CAMP RE-OPENED TODAY

Over Three Hundred Children Are Received—Improvements Being Made.

The Netherwood Fresh Air Camp opened this morning for the summer with three hundred and thirty-three youngsters from the East Side of New York, the first ones to enjoy a vacation. Miss Sara Curry is again in charge of the home and is assisted by a number of young girls interested in the work. Although some of the children will be kept all summer, the majority of those who arrived at the Home today will leave in ten days or two weeks to make room for other children.

A number of improvements have been made at the Home since last summer, and at present work is being completed on the building of a one story structure that will be used as a dormitory and amusement hall. It will be large enough to house thirty-three boys, and in bad weather will be used as a play and study room.

This year it is planned to teach the youngsters to do as much practical work as possible. In rainy weather they will receive instruction in the new building, and the older boys will keep the grounds in shape and have garden patches.

TO JAIL FOR 60 DAYS ON VAGRANCY CHARGE

Joseph Green, who faced Judge DeMeza in police court this morning on a charge of vagrancy, will have plenty of time to think his trouble over. He had been before the Judge before on the same charge and was given a sentence of sixty days.

James Hendry and Arthur Alberts, of South Second street, were guests of Bangor friends over the Fourth.

VILLA ALIVE IS LATEST REPORT

Peace Talk Stops at Mention of Feared Mexican Bandit.

MAY HAVE AN ARMY

Attack on Carranza Troops Charged Against Him—Former Chief of Staff Says He Came Directly From Villa Headquarters.

Washington, July 6.—Villa is alive again today. Yesterday Washington believed the story of a former follower who claimed to have seen the bandit leader buried, but this morning the situation is changed again.

The reappearance of Villa is a serious matter in Washington. With him dead or even sleeping there is hope of peace between the United States and Mexico, but Villa alive and able to conduct raids across the border at will clouds the situation greatly.

The most reliable information received concerning him since his attack on the Arizona town of Columbus is that the Mexican bandit and one-time revolutionist has a strong army behind him. This comes from General Manuel Mediavetia, once Villa's chief of staff, who arrived at El Paso, Texas, with the assertion that he came directly from Villa's headquarters in Mexico.

This information was transmitted here by a State Department agent at El Paso. Medinavetia said Villa was organizing to combat any invasion of alien troops, or to fight his old enemies and one-time friends, the Carranza factionists.

More evidence of the existence of strong groups of Villa banditti in the North comes in details today of the fight near Jiminez, Chihuahua, on Monday, in which 600 de facto Mexican government troops were routed and their commander killed. This may have been the work of the reorganized Villa army, as reported at El Paso by Medinavetia.

The situation finds the American government in a peculiar position. The last Mexican note had smoothed out the situation to an extent that it was believed the American expeditionary forces would be removed from Mexico, having already moved much nearer the border in the last few weeks. If Villa should begin border operations again it would begin again the controversy with the Carranza government with its contention that American troops should not enter, Mexico bandits or no bandits and the American argument that the border must be protected, protest or no protest.

The American punitive expedition was sent into Mexico originally to pursue Villa after his murderous raid on Columbus. Its removal would be on the basis that Villa was dead or his strength eliminated by the Mexican troops.

The situation until it develops one way or another will prevent, it is deemed probable, the removal of the National Guard organization today on border patrol or moving to the border from the several States. With Villa again active their protection of the border and that of the standing army would be necessary to patrol that vast stretch of border from the gulf to the Pacific. Even with that force a relatively small number of Mexicans could easily take any of the small posts on the border by a half way determined surprise attack.

Order Doctors to Border.

The first general call to field duty of the recently created Medical Reserve Corps of the army was issued today by the War Department, when 46 civilian physicians were ordered to report to General Funston for assignment to duty. They are expected at Fort Sam Houston as soon as possible and be distributed among the militia.

LITTLE SHOPPER, FAILING TO SEE AUTO, IS KILLED

Bound Brook, July 6.—Anna Stillwell, seven, started proudly on her first shopping trip yesterday. Anxiously she scaned the list of things her mother wanted. So intent was she upon memorizing it that she did not lok up as she crossed the street, and failed to se an approaching truck. Today she is dead, a victim of a broken neck.

She was the daughter of Irving Stillwell of East street. Ralph Pferfer, driver of he truck, was arrested on a charge of manslaughter and furnished bail in $3,000.

INFORMAL TEA OPENS THE KENYON GARDENS

The Kenyon Gardens Association held an informal tea in its bungalow on Arlington avenue, yesterday afternoon to meet the children and mothers. The women in charge were Mrs. Henry D. Hibbard, Mrs. William Griscom, Mrs. J. W. DeGraff and Miss Arnold. A number of citizens viewed the gardens and expressed themselves as much pleased with the manner in which the project is conducted.

LOCAL TROOPERS IN SAND STORM

Plainfielders With Newark Detachment Kept Busy Holding Down Tents.

EQUIPMENT DAMAGED

No One Injured in Fierce Storm That Swept Camp for a Half Hour—Plainfielders Also Help Run Down a Deserter.

(By Telegraph to Press.)

Troop C Headquarters, Douglas, Ariz., July 6.—The ten Plainfield troopers who joined the Essex detachment are all well and thus far have weathered the fierce heat. We got a taste of a real Arizona wind and sand storm last night. Shortly after 7:30 o'clock the storm broke over our camp and lasted for a half-hour. It kept us busy holding down our tents and keeping their equipment together.

Sand blew across the tented village in clouds, and no one could venture out of the enclosure. We all have sand glasses but were afraid to even brave the dust and sand in these. Rain fell during the afternoon but it was light and not sufficient to keep the sand down when the wind started to blow.

When the storm came up over the horizon the Paterson regiment was just getting off the train and was bringing its stuff into camp. Our troop, together with Troop A, of Newark, First Field Hospital Corps, in charge of Major H. D. Corbusier, Battery A, of East Orange, and the First Ambulance Company, of Red Bank, were already in camp and were busy cutting brush when the storm came up. We all suffered damage to our equipment, but no one was hurt.

The Plainfield boys had an exciting time yesterday afternoon in helping to run down a deserter who had escaped from the guardhouse. We went across the border with some of the regulars and exchanged a number of shots, finally getting him about 500 yards from the border into Sonora. It created a lot of excitement and had the camp "on edge" for a while.

TROPICAL STORM IS NO LONGER DANGEROUS

New York, July 6.—The Weather Bureau this morning gave out the following:

"The tropical storm has moved inland and was centered this morning about the middle of the line between Alabama and Mississippi. It was attended by winds of hurricane force and heavy downpours of rain in extreme western Florida and along the coast of Alabama and Mississippi. It is diminishing in force and its future course and behavior will be that of an ordinary cyclone storm, producing no serious consequences."

PICTURES OF TROOP D TO BE SHOWN AT PROCTOR'S

Exclusive pictures taken of Troop D, First Squadron, of Plainfield, at Sea Girt just prior to the cavalry leaving for the border, will be shown at Proctor's theatre on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. Mayor Leighton Calkins and other city officials have accepted an invitation to be present Monday night at 8 o'clock and Mayor W. L. Smalley and other officials of the borough, will attend Tuesday night at the same hour.

These pictures were taken by Henry Bryniarski, special moving picture photographer for Proctor's theatre, and are said to be unusually good, showing every man in the local cavalry organization.

PRECAUTION IS TAKEN BY BOARD

Health Authorities Seek to Prevent Introduction of Infantile Paralysis Here.

SECURE LEGAL ADVICE

There is No Immediate Cause for Alarm—Board is Prepared to Meet Situation Should Any Cases Develop Here.

The Board of Health is fully alive to the epidemic of infantile paralysis now prevalent in New York, and the matter was thoroughly discussed at the July meeting of the board last night. The board is well aware of the gravity of the situation and has secured legal and other advice preparatory to taking all possible precautionary measures against the introduction of infection in Plainfield.

A petition from a number of Netherwod residents was received by the board, calling attention to the possibility of the infection being brought from the city to our community by the children at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home.

The board believes that there is no occasion for alarm in the opening and maintaining of the home, particularly as the children are kept under careful medical observation and are to be confined to the home grounds. There have been no cases in the families, houses or neighborhoods from which the children came and an examination by a local physician has shown the absence of any suspicious condition. There is far more reason for alarm in the fact that children are being sent away from the city to Plainfield and other suburban places to private homes without the knowledge of the health authorities, thus rendering the precautions which are being taken in the institution impossible in such cases.

The board is prepared to meet the situation should any cases develop in Plainfield, and the public is assured that everything possible will be done to protect the interests of the community.

The summary of inspections for the month is as follows: Milk supply, 165; food inspections, 162; nuisances, 279; communicable disease, 20; disinfections, 5; general work, 1,401; plumbing work, 150; total 2,182. There were 52 births during the month, 30 marriages and 36 deaths. The examination of cultures gave the following results: Diphtheria, 5 negative and 2 positive; tuberculosis, 19 negative and 2 positive; typhoid fever, 3 negative; malaria, 1 negative.

877 CHILDREN CARED FOR AT DAY NURSERY

Expansion of Work Shows the Great Need of Funds to Meet Expenses

Announcement was made at the monthly meeting of the trustees of the City Union of King's Daughters held this morning at the Day Nursery on West Front street, that 877 children had been taken care of at the home during the past month, which is a hundred more than the institution has ever had enrolled. Beside these day children the nursery has taken care of five baby boarders, the youngest staying both day and night, while their parents were occupied in providing for the family. At the session this morning Mrs. J. A. Peterkin, the president, was in charge, and nine circles of King's Daughters answered the roll call.

As the result of a gift to the nursery by Mrs. Peterkin, the grounds in front of the home are enhanced by a beautiful American flag. The contributor gave both the emblem and the flag pole and the latter was erected in time for the Fourth of July, on which day the flag was displayed.

At the meeting this morning a request for more funds was made and the public was asked to co-operate with the various circles and give their donation to the nursery before they go away on their vacations. As a result of several features, the nursery has incurred added expense and the large number of children attending has nearly doubled the cost of the upkeep of the West Front street house. Because of the five boarders, an extra nurse has been needed and on Tuesdays and Fridays, Dr. S. R. Titsworth holds baby clinics to which mothers may bring their infants. Persons having extra vegetables and fruit in their gardens are asked to bring them to the nursery, where they may be utilized.

In previous years the Daily Press has joined in the work of securing funds for the carrying on of the work of the nursery, and this year will again co-operate with the King's Daughters. Send your contribution to this paper and acknowledgment will be made through these columns each day. The smallest donation will be gratefully received and applied to a worthy cause. The contributions received thus far are $5 from Stuart H. Patterson, and $1.32 from Miss Stella Butler.

PLAINFIELDER SUPPLIES TROOP WITH TRUCK LOAD OF MELONS DURING STOP IN LITTLE ROCK

ARKANSAS HOSPITALITY AMAZING LOCAL GUARDSMEN WHO ARE WELL AND ENTHUSIASTIC—BIG RECEPTIONS EVERYWHERE.

ARRIVED IN HAILEYVILLE, OKLAHOMA AT 10.05

Stuart Patterson, Formerly of This City, Host in Little Rock—Troops Paraded Through the Memphis Streets Yesterday and in Field Brinkley, Ark., Last Night.

(By Telegraph to the Daily Press)

Haileyville, Okla., July 6, 10.05 a. m.—The train bearing Troop D, of Plainfield, and Troop B, of Red Bank, just arrived here and the men are now detraining, anxious to get the work over with and enjoy some of the sights which a short stay here will afford them. Plenty of pretty girls continue to show up at each stop and Haileyville is no exception. The Plainfielders are all well and are keenly enthusiastic over the reception given them in Memphis, Tenn., yesterday. The Business Men's Club of Memphis provided breakfast and luncheon for the troopers and in the interval between the guardsmen were paraded through the streets. This served to loosen up joints and the parade was held in a constant din of noise. The old town turned out and lined the curbs of the principal business streets through which the men marched in command of Captain Albert G. Borden.

The march ended at the Y. M. C. A., where the men indulged in a refreshing swim and came out with some more big appetites. Another drill was held yesterday at Field Brinkley, Arkansas, when the train stopped there at 7 p. m. A similar ovation was accorded the militiamen. The Plainfielders have collected so many addresses of pretty misses along the line that Captain Borden is seriously considering the placing of a ban on calling cards, etc., for they will soon become excess luggage.

About 11 p. m. the train rolled into Little Rock and here one of the most enjoyable features of the trip was in store for the soldiers. When the men got off the train a whole truck load of big juicy melons awaited them and they set to work with a will to lighten the load. These were particularly acceptable, being the gift of Stewart Patterson, a Plainfield man who owns a big melon farm in Little Rock. He acted as host for the troops while they were there and they gave him three rousing cheers when parting time came.

The men are almost constantly astonished by the wild display of enthusiasm in these western towns. It could not be greater if the troopers were the first coming through to the border with war actually declared, instead of the twelfth or the fifteenth detachment with a strong chance of missing active service.

(Special letter to the Press)

Note—Following is a letter from one of the Plainfield men who were transferred to Troop C, of Newark, the first detail of New Jersey militiamen to leave for the border. They are now at Douglas, Ariz.

Santa Rosa, New Mexico, June 30.—Our squad was on detail at Santa Rosa feeding and watering the stock and believe me, we had some fun. A lot of this Newark bunch act as though they had never seen a horse or mule before and they are scared to death when one of the animals tries to get a little bit friendly. Three or four of us had to do all the work but then it was fun for us and we had a good time. After we got through Captain Kyle told us to take a bath and we stripped and had the hose turned on us. Some bath.

We heard that Troop D left Sea Girt yesterday. Us for the Plainfield troop as soon as it gets to the border. The Newark squad is all right but we are anxious to get back with our old pals and anytime they try to keep us from joining Troop D when it gets here there's going to be a little warfare right among the United States troops

We have been treated fine all along the line. People turned out in great numbers at every station and at Memphis, Tenn., we stayed over for fifteen hours. The people of that place will never forget the troop from Newark, N. J. They furnished a band of music and we had a dance on the depot platform. All the prettiest girls in the town turned out and when us Plainfielders boarded the train we each had promised about fifty million pretty misses that we would write to them. If we live up to our promises we won't have time to do any work for Uncle Sam.

Some of the western cattle dealers came over to look on while we were branding cattle and remarked that we did the job as though we were experts. This is the branding that should have been done at Sea Girt, but the horses arrived too late so we had to postpone the operation until today.

One of the Plainfielders had a lot of fun with a mule. About a dozen fellows were trying to subdue the animal and it was cutting up something fierce. The Plainfielder walked up softly to the side of the mule and was just about to grab the bridle when the animal reared and leaped to its hind feet. The trooper couldn't do anything but grab the beast's tail and this he did. The mule sped around the corral at a lively clip and the trooper held on for dear life. At last he let go and fell into a bundle of straw, escaping injury. Regular Charlie Chaplin stuff, the fellows are laughing yet every time they think of it. If a motion picture operator had been here he would not have had to work the rest of his life.

We have lost one horse thus far and three are sick. The one we lost died after a day's illness. This is fine country. The ground is so level that you can see about twenty miles with field glasses. You ought to have some of it in Plainfield and you could have a baseball diamond and football gridiron on every block. Following is a clipping we cut from the June 30 edition of the Arkansas Democrat:

BID $115,235 ON SEWER WORK

New Jersey Concern Lowest in Competition—Other Proposals.

Lange and Haslam Company, of Ridgewood, were lowest bidders in the competition to build sanitary sewers and a pumping station in Plainfield. Bids for this work were received at the Council meeting Monday night. They were referred to Street Commissioner Gavett for a report. This morning he gave the amounts of the bids as follows:

Lange & Haslam Co., Ridgewood, $115,235.17; Jas. Ferry & Sons, Inc., Baltimore, Md., $119,113.48; John M. Kelley Co., Camden, $124,202.59; Jos. F. Burke Co., Plainfield, $129,892.48.

HIT NEIGHBOR WITH A ROPE; IS FINED $10

Sabino Fusco, an Italian woman, was fined $10 when tried before Judge DeMeza in police court this morning. She was arrested on complaint of a neighbor who charged that the woman struck her in the face with a rope during an argument over their children.

HOLY JUMPERS GET CASE POSTPONED

Goes Over Another Week Will Appeal Decision to Supreme Court.

Mrs. Laura Wilson and Miss Levina Leach, through their attorney, G. W. V. Moy, asked for a continuance when arraigned in police court this morning charged with holding a street meeting without a permit and the cases against them were allowed to go over for a week. The two women are members of the Pillars of Fire. They have been repeatedly told that they would not be permitted to hold meetings on the streets of Plainfield and were tried in police court for the same offense only a short time ago. At that time Judge DeMeza sentenced them to a short period in the county jail, but suspended sentence provided they would not repeat the offense. Attorney Moy announced in court this morning that he was prepared to take an appeal to the supreme court of the State if his clients were ordered to jail.

Scotch Plains and Fanwood

VOTE $50,000 FOR SCHOOL ADDITION

Fanwood Township Residents Turn Out Enmasse and Settle Controversy.

"ANTIS" ARE DEFEATED

By a Majority of 70 the Proposition to Make Present Building Fireproof and Construct Eight-room Wing is Approved.

After one of the heaviest votes ever cast at a local school election, the Fanwood Township Board of Education, at a special election held in School No. 1 last night, succeeded in getting a majority vote of 281 to 211 for the appropriation of $50,000 for the building of an eight-room addition to School No. 1 and repairing the main structure.

Every sort of conveyance from a one-horse team and a "flivver" to a temporarily established bus line brought the four hundred and ninety-two voters to the polls from even the remotest sections of the township. Although the polls were not scheduled to open until 8 o'clock, the crowd began to gather two hours before that time, and when the voting began in a room on the second floor, the crowd extended in line four and five abreast down the stairs, through the halls and out on the street as far as the trolley corner. For the first time in the history of a local school election, it was necessary to keep the polls open longer than the required hour so that all present could vote.

Campaigning that never marked a Presidential nor any other election was going on all Tuesday and yesterday. Political leaders of the various parties forgot their differences for the time being and pros and cons on the school question spent their time canvassing the borough and township over every square inch of surface. Residents of the "Big Woods" that hardly knew there was a school in Scotch Plains, had to listen to advice for an hour at a time, and there were those at the election that frankly said that they had never been inside the school before—it has been standing for nearly thirty years, too.

As time for the opening of the polls drew near two bus lines were started as if by magic, one from the "Big Woods" section and one from the Willow Grove section, and for an hour trips back and forth were made at top speed. Autos, carriages and all sorts of moveable vehicles lined the road in front of the school for hundreds of yards. Even the prayer meetings, Council meeting and social parties were called off so that all could have a chance to be on hand.

When the polls closed at 9:10, the ballots filled three boxes and caused the tellers and counters to have visions of a midnight job before they were all counted. As it was the last one was called off just one hour after the count started, and it was found the appropriation carried by a majority of seventy. During the counting the vote kept close and every time one side or the other gained a slight advantage murmurs of approval or disgust were easily heard from the crowd of people that filled the room, waiting for the count.

Having succeeded in gaining the appropriation, the Board of Education will probably get the actual building of the addition and improvement of the main structure started as soon as possible, because under the present conditions it has been said that it would be impossible to open the school in the fall unless something is done. No trouble is expected in having the plans approved by the State authorites, and it is probable that the end of another month will see the opening of bids for the contracts.

EPWORTH LEAGUE HOLDS FOURTH OF JULY PICNIC

Thirty odd members of the Epworth League, of the Methodist church, enjoyed their annual Fourth of July picnic on the lawn of the church last night. Japanese lanterns and lights were strung about the trees, and music and games provided several hours of amusement. Later in the evening refreshments were served.

Previous to the picnic the monthly business meeting of the League was held, only routine business being transacted.

ENDEAVOR CAMP OPEN.

Camp Endeavor opened this morning on the mountain in back of Scotch Plains for the summer, when fifty children from all over the county arrived for a two weeks' outing. The camp will remain open until the latter part of August and will have a new lot of youngsters every fortnight. Miss Jennie Stoddard, of Elizabeth, is in charge, and a successful year is expected.

NEW GOLF COURSE PARTLY FINISHED

Nine Holes of Shackamaxson Links Ready—Other Work Progressing.

After work lasting the better part of a year, the first nine holes of the Shackamaxson Golf Club in the Willow Grove section of the township were ready for play on the Fourth of July and found a number who were pleased with the course. There will now be competition for the record of the course and as work progresses on the other nine holes of the course the links will be more and more in use.

The links itself, laid out by A. W. Tillinghast, well known golf architect, has a playing length of more than 6,600 yards, but auxiliary teeing grounds on many of the holes will place the distance of daily play considerably under this yardage. There is a picturesque lake, and one of the greens, the ninth, is built upon an island, which is open to a mashie pitch only after a long and accurately-played drive reaches beyond the trees which screen the green from the left.

When Shackamaxson is completed entirely the course will present an exacting test of the expert's game, yet on not a single hole will the player of ordinary ability be confronted by necessary shots which are beyond his power. There is always to be found a safe route to the green.

The lengths of the holes. Out—253, 429, 328, 392, 593, 426, 364, 178, 310. In—641, 140, 441, 479, 233, 403, 469, 196, 340. Out, 3,273 yards; in, 3,342 yards. Total, 6,615 yards.

Starting from the clubhouse, a well-hit ball opens up the small green to a mashie pitch. There is nothing difficult in the play here, and following along the boundary fence to the left, two long shots will find the second green. No. 3 calls for a pitch over a water hazard in front of the green, after a good drive. From the teeing ground the drive to the fourth must carry over water hazards to the fairway above, extending through the trees from which a midiron can be used.

At the fifth another stretch of fairway through the woods, and after the drive a brassie shot across the lake will open the green to a running approach. Two long shots will get home. The drive to the next is the most important, and the second stroke to the green depends entirely upon the length of the tee shot.

No. 8 is the first of the one-shotters. The built-up green presents a good face to the midiron or jigger. The last of the holes on the outward journey is typical of the distinct dog's leg. The drive, if well hit, can be followed by a pitch to the island green.

The longest hole of the lay-out is the tenth, 641 yards, while the eleventh is the shortest one, being only 140 yards. It is closely bunkered about the green, however, and the controlled shots must be played. Segregated fairways feature both fifteen and sixteen, yet the two holes are very unlike.

The summer houses nor shelters that will eventually dot the course have not yet been built, neither has the skating house on the edge of the pond. Improvements are yet to be made, also, on "Lambert's" pond, so that there will be swimming. It is planned to make a beach along one side of the pond and wall the other banks with cement. A driveway around the pond and a park in the neck of land formed by the curve near the dam are other features that are yet to be completed. The work of making the island green for the ninth hole is now being completed.

The clubhouse when completed will be in two wings, each of two and a half stories, sixty feet in length, with veranda fifteen feet in width, extending around the building. The building is on the highest point of the property and contains twenty-two rooms, including ten sleeping rooms and eight baths. Generous space has been allotted for tennis courts, with fishing, bathing, canoeing and rowing as side issues.

BOROUGH COUNCIL TONIGHT.

At the monthly meeting of the Borough Council held in the Fanwood firehouse last night, Mayor William H. Hoar adjourned the meeting until tonight. The reading of the minutes was the only thing done, but tonight the regular business will be transacted and it is probable that the sewer and sidewalk questions will be discussed at length.

METHODIST BOARD MEETING.

An important meeting of the official board of the Methodist church will be held tomorrow night, at which time the advisability of repairing the church will be discussed. It is proposed to install steam heat and make a number of other needed improvements.

ENROLLED AT PLATTSBURG.

Leslie Hetfield, of North avenue, left yesterday for Plattsburg, where he will stay for the next month in the military training camp. Mr. Hetfield has been drilling in New York for several months and has become enthused over the Mexican situation.

A POLICE WARNING.

The police of Scotch Plains and Fanwood ask that residents who are contemplating going away for several weeks or the summer let them know when they go so that special provision can be made to safeguard the property.

KEEPING TABS ON LOCAL BOYS BOUND FOR AND NOW ON THE MEXICAN BORDER

Colonel Frank H. Norton, well known here and a brother of Charles Norton, of Midway avenue, is now on the way to the Mexican border at the head of the Twenty-third regiment, N. Y. N. G., comprising 1,050 men and 45 officers. The regiment is considered one of the best in Brooklyn, and a number of local people went to New York to see it entrain Tuesday night.

Maurice Hall, of Seventh avenue, who is a member of the Seventh regiment now on the border, is becoming accustomed to the life. He is, according to last reports, driving one of the regimental trucks and is said to be in excellent health.

Another local boy left for the border yesterday when Frank Carter entrained with the First Signal Corps at Jersey City. The corps, consisting of one hundred and seventy-seven men, with full telephone and telegraph equipment and the aviation branch, including four biplanes, is in command of Major William C. Malaham, and will reach the border about Saturday.

One of the last to enlist in Troop D, of Plainfield, before it left Sea Girt, was William H. Hardy, of Scotch Plains. Hardy is taking to soldiering like a duck to water, although it is his first "try" at it, and is scheduled to arrive at the border today with the rest of the troop after a ride across country that started from Sea Girt last Saturday.

Leonard McAnneny, a boyhood resident of this place, but recently living in New York, and brother of S. W. McAnneny, of North avenue, left today for the Mexican border, as corporal of the machine squad, Squadron A, N. Y. N. G. Squadron A is New York city's "dandy" cavalry, and numbers many millionaires in its ranks. Mr. McAnneny has been in the squadron some years and is eager for some sort of action.

REV. J. MADISON HARE REPORTS ALL GOING WELL

In a letter posted from Chicago on Monday, the Rev. J. Madison Hare, chaplain of the Fourth Regiment, N. J. N. G., reports that himself and all the rest of the regiment are in the best of health. After the three trains carrying the troops passed through here on Saturday, a stop was made at Buffalo, where horses and men were allowed to exercise. The citizens turned out in great crowds and did everything they could to help.

Chicago was also a stopping point and today the regiment is scheduled to be speeding over the border from Oklahoma to Texas. Arrival on the border is expected sometime tomorrow. Word is received from day to day from Mr. Hare and as often as anything of interest appears it will be published in these columns.

GATHERED AT RANDOM

A sale of home-made candy is being conducted this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Walter Brown, of Forest road, under the auspices of the Junior Department of the Baptist church.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Todd and daughter, of New York, have arrived in the borough to spend the remainder of the summer.

Mrs. Luke Pandick, of North avenue, is in a New York hospital, where she is recovering from an operation performed Monday.

Mrs. Ernest Kieb, of North avenue, is entertaining her sister from New York State.

The weekly prayer meeting will be conducted in the Methodist church tomorrow night by the Rev. Raymond E. Marshal.

Owing to the school election the weekly prayer meeting in the Baptist church was postponed from last night to tonight, when A. D. Beeken will be in charge.

The members of the Lend-a-Hand Society of the Baptist church will hold a regular meeting tomorrow afternoon.

Scotch Plains is sending large delegations to the evangelistic services being conducted at Mountainside for two weeks. The local male quartet sing at the services.

At the meeting of the Saturday Night Club to be held on July 15, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Shields and Dorothy and Donald L'Heureux will entertain.

Miss Emily Garda, of North avenue, left this morning for East Northfield, Mass., to attend a convention.

Warrenville.

The Misses Elizabeth and Rose Zipf, of Irvington, are visiting their parents here.

Mrs. J. K. Roddy has returned home after spending a few days in Jersey City.

Henry Worster, of Brooklyn, has returned after visiting his parents here.

Raymond Bellows, who has been visiting J. K. Roddy, has returned.

Miss Bertha Steffens is spending two weeks with Mrs. John Brown, of Brooklyn.

Mrs. Edward Shellenberg has returned to the home of Mrs. R. S. Steffens, after a visit to her home in Plainfield.

WESTFIELD RIFLE CLUB LOCATES ON COOK FARM

Plans are being made by the Westfield Rifle Club, which has a membership of about one hundred, to have a range on the estate of Percy Cook, of Springfield road. Mr. Cook, who is an ex-officer in the English army, is intensely interested in the movement and is doing all he can to help the club be a success.

When approached on the subject of having the range on his farm, Mr. Cook said: "I want the Westfield Rifle Club up on my farm and I stand ready to turn over everything I have there they wish. Surely a few peach trees will not stand in the way. Mr. Cook alluded to several fruit trees that will have to be cut down to make room for the 500-yard range. Mr. Cook has offered the assistance of his men in putting the range in shape and it is expected that all will be ready for the first shoot in another ten days.

Town Topics

"What seems to be the matter with the plans for the second annual 'Community picnic?'" That is what the Rev. J. Madison Hare asked a Daily Press reporter, as he boarded the train bound for the Mexican border last Saturday. Mr. Hare was under the impression that plans were progressing rapidly, but the real truth is that since he has left, matters have come to practically a standstill, and unless someone takes the initiative shortly the picnic may not materialize. To have the affair become a success there must be a number who are willing to work, but unless there is one that is willing to shoulder the greatest part of the responsibility the others lag. With Mr. Hare away, someone else must step forward and start things. There seems to be a number of men who could do that with little trouble, but we agree with Mr. Hare when he says that John Z. Hatfield would probably be better to devote his time to it than the majority of ohers.

Fanwood and Scotch Plains are justly proud of their soldier boys who are doing duty on the Mexican border or those that are awaiting the call to do so. Although the boys go willingly it is rather hard to practically sever home ties to live on the Texas desert and cases of homesickness can be partly avoided by letters and papers from home. As it does with all the other troops from this section, the Daily Press keeps in touch with the various units along the border and at any time relatives or friends wish to write or get in communication with the local boys the Press will do what it can to help them.

MARSHAL SULLIVAN BUSY.

Marshal Florence O'Sullivan is still on the trail of peddlers in Scotch Plains that do not take out licenses and Tuesday had several of them before Recorder Philip Jahn. The recorder gives them the alternative of taking out a license or paying a fine.

MELONS FOR TROOPERS

"From a climate in which overcoats have been in frequent and comfortable use, en route to a land of intense heat, members of a division of the New Jersey National Guard stopped at the Rock Island station in Little Rock for a few moments Thursday afternoon while the thermometer registered 90 and better. 'It doesn't get much warmer on the border does it?' they asked, hopefully, wiping grimy sweat from greasy faces, and calling hoarsely for the coca-cola boy, who was wisely 'on the spot,' and ready to accept their Woodrow Wilson coin from New Jersey. Grim determination to 'stand it' at whatever cost, was written on their faces as they were informed that the day's weather map showed temperature of from 100 up on the border and southward. 'We can stand it long enough to trim Old Carranza's whiskers for him,' volunteered a beardless enthusiast in khaki, who looked as though he must have lied heroically to convince the enlisting officers he was '18 or over.'

Guardsmen First to Border.

"New Jersey guardsmen who passed through Little Rock Thursday were jubilant, chiefly because of the information that they were the first to the border, beating even the crack New York organization. They had mobilized at Sea Girt, N. J., expecting to spend at least a week in drill. Instead, they were entrained immediately, without even the formality of Federal army examinations. This was made possible, officers said, because of the rigid standards maintained by the New Jersey militia itself. The first train left Sea Girt at 5 o'clock Tuesday morning, followed at intervals of four hours by other trains, consisting of 25 cars each.

"Battery B, Field Artillery, consisting of 125 men, four field guns, large quantities of shrapnel, and 80 horses and mules, passed through Little Rock, with only a brief stop, Thursday forenoon.

"Field Hospital Company No. 1, of Elizabeth, N. J., consisting of six officers and 52 men, and Ambulance Company No. 1, of Red Bank, N. J., consisting of 49 men, reached Little Rock at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon, a brief stop being made while stock numbering 90 head, horses and mules, was watered and fed. The train was under the command of Maj. H. D. Corbusier, who also was in charge of the field hospital company. The ambulance company was in charge of Capt. T. P. Rafferty. Fifteen ambulance wagons and large quantities of medical supplies were carried by the two companies.

His Swimming Pool.

"At 6 o'clock Thursday evening Battery A, Field Artillery, consisting of 125 men, four field guns and ammunition, reached the city over the Rock Island from Memphis, for a three-hour stop. Artillerymen were given leaves of absence from the train, and 34 found their way to the Central Y. M. C. A., where they were given the freedom of the pool. 'I didn't know God's country reached so far down this way,' said an enthusiastic private of the company. 'Why you have real swimming pools and everything.' Like a bunch of frogs just out of school the militiamen plunged and swam and splashed for more than a half-hour, the building ringing with their shouts of delight. Present in all their minds was the fear that it might be the last real swim in a real pool with real water that they would be able to enjoy for many a hot and dusty day, and they made the best of it.

"Other trains were to pass through Little Rock Friday afternoon and night until the entire New Jersey guard is mobilized on the border. Other Eastern States are following as rapidly as they can be handled. Although the New Jersey guards had been promised regular sleepers, they are making the long journey in old-fashioned day coaches in which there are few comforts. They turn two seats together and draw the cushions each about half-way out, sleeping as best they can on the improvised beds. Heat and sweat, dust and lusty beards soon turn their faces into weird combinations of colors, and they look like young savages. Yet all are happy. They are on a great adventure. They are going to help do a much needed task. Something in their eyes tells you they are filled with some subtle intoxicant which makes hardships seem as nothing. Even the officers notice it. 'They put up with anything,' said Major Corbusier. 'They do not complain. For the first time in their young lives they are 'following the flag.'"

The Bethlehem Music Festival.

The Bach festival at Bethlehem is one of the most interesting events in musical production in this country. "Musically Bethlehem, Pa., is the most remarkable town or settlement in the United States." In 1780 Bethlehem had an orchestra, probably the first in the United States. In 1901 the Bethlehem music festival was marked by the first performance in America of Bach's complete Christmas oratorio. Bethlehem has been called "the American Oberammergau" and "the American Baireuth." The music festival is held each year.—New York Times.

Trebizond and Polo.

Polo probably came to us indirectly from Trebizond, where the Kabakmeidan, or Pumpkin square, was the site of a medieval polo ground. The game found great favor with the nobles of Trebizond and was played on horseback, much in the same way as modern polo. It produced intense excitement among the spectators, rivaling that of the hippodrome, possibly because it was dangerous as well as fashionable. Polo caused the death of one emperor of Trebizond—John I., who was killed by a fall from his horse.—Westminster Gazette.

DRINK HOT WATER IF YOU DESIRE A ROSY COMPLEXION

Says we can't help but look better and feel better after an inside bath.

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material which if not eliminated, form toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste material and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Men and women with sallow skins liver spots, pimples or pallid complexion, also those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad-taste, nasty breath, others who are bothered with headaches, bilious spells, acid stomach or constipation should begin this phosphate hot water drinking and are assured of very pronounced results in one or two weeks.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and freshens the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside organs. We must always consider that internal sanitation is vastly more important than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.—Adv.

CORPORATION NOTICE

ASSESSMENTS FOR STREET IMPROVEMENTS IN THE CITY OF PLAINFIELD.

Notice of Hearing before Commissioners.

The subscribers, being the commissioners appointed by the Court of Common Pleas of the County of Union, by order of said Court, entered on the sixteenth day of June, 1916, to estimate and assess benefits conferred by the permanent improvement of streets under the ordinance of the City of Plainfield, entitled "An Ordinance for the Permanent Improvement of Certain Streets and Portions of Streets of the City of Plainfield, with permanent and durable Macadam Pavement, and to provide the Necessary Funds in Advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits," approved October 4, 1915, directing the permanent improvement of, with permanent and durable macadam pavement

Sherman Avenue, from the macadam on Grant Avenue to a point 700 feet easterly therefrom

East Fourth Street, from the westerly curb line of Richmond Street to the present macadam on said East Fourth Street;

Fillmore Avenue from the macadam on North Avenue to the macadam on East Third Street; which ordinance was adopted under and by virtue of an act of the Legislature entitled "An Act to authorize the improvement of streets and highways in cities of this State, and to provide for the payment of the expense of the same, and for the assessment of the benefits of such improvement upon the land and real estate benefited thereby," approved June 13, 1898, and the amendments and supplements thereto, to which ordinance reference is hereby made for greater certainty.

The subscribers, the Commissioners appointed by the Court of Common Pleas of the County of Union, as aforesaid, and for the purpose of performing the duties and exercising the powers conferred by said acts of the Legislature, having duly qualified as required by law, do hereby, pursuant to the order of said Court, give notice that on Tuesday, the eleventh day of July, 1916, at 8 o'clock p. m. at the Council Chamber, No 140 North Avenue, in the said City of Plainfield, said Commissioners will proceed with the discharge of their said duties and hear any person or persons interested who may present themselves to be heard, and at such time and place, and at such other times and places to which they may adjourn for that purpose, the said Commissioners will attend and give a public hearing to those persons who may desire to be heard.

MONEY IS MUCH ADMIRED.

Liberty Is a Full Length Female Gowned In Folds of Stars and Stripes on the Half Dollar—Wears a Winged Cap on the Dime—Quarter Shows Her Uncovering Shield.

Adolph Alexander Weinman, designer of the new United States fifty and ten cent pieces, and Herman A. MacNeil, designer of the new twenty-five cent piece, have given the following descriptions of their designs and the artistic thought back of the drawings.

Mr. Weinman said:

"While I was given an entirely free hand in the designing of the coins, the subject of the designs was determined by the law governing the coinage of the United States, which law sets forth just what is to appear upon the obverse and reverse of each coin. The manner of representation is, of course, left to the artist, subject to the approval of the director of the mint and the secretary of the treasury. Thus the obverse of the half dollar bears an impression emblematic of Liberty, with an inscription of the word 'Liberty' and the year of the coinage. The same applies to the obverse of the dime.

"Upon the reverse there is the figure or representation of an eagle, with this inscription, 'United States of America.'

"The character of the subject for the reverse of the dime has not been mentioned in this law on coinage.

"In my design for the half dollar I have represented Liberty in a full length female figure enveloped in the folds of the stars and stripes, progressing in full stride toward the glorious dawn of a new day, carrying branches of laurel and of oak, symbolical of civic and of military glory. Her right hand is extended in bestowal of the spirit of liberty upon the 'land of the free and the home of the brave.'

"The design for the reverse of the half dollar shows the American eagle perched high upon a mountain crag, his wings unfolded, fearless in spirit and conscious of his power. Springing from a rift in the rock is a sapling of mountain pine, symbolical of America.

"The design for the dime, owing to the smallness of the coin, has been held quite simple. The obverse shows a head of Liberty with a winged cap. The head is firm and simple in form, the profile forceful.

"The reverse shows a design of a bundle of staffs with battle ax, the 'fasces,' emblem of unity and symbol of strength and preparedness. Surrounding the fasces is a full foliaged branch of olive, symbol of peace."

Adolph Alexander Weinman, sculptor, was born in Karlsruhe, Baden, Germany, Dec. 11, 1870. He obtained his education in Germany and in this country.

Typifies Preparedness.

Mr. MacNeil said:

"It seemed to me a good plan to try to typify in the issue of the new coins not only our country's development artistically, but also to express, so far as possible, the development of the country itself since the last issue, some twenty-five years ago.

"With this in mind, it seemed to me that the idea most in the minds of the whole people these last few years, was an awakening from the slumber of security in their own strength. It is a well understood fact that strength trained doubles its value and efficiency, so in the obverse of the coin I suggested the figure of Liberty in the act of uncovering her shield to typify preparedness and had her also bearing the olive branch to signify there was no aggressive idea in it.

"From the point of view of numismatics, as well as carrying out this idea, I placed the figure stepping forward to what might be called the gateway of the country. Artistically you will understand that it is a very difficult thing anyway, even without the prescribed limitations, to express in so small a thing as a coin anything more than the mere kernel of an idea."

Herman Atkins MacNeil, sculptor, was born in Chelsea, Mass., in 1866. He was graduated from the Massachusetts State Normal school in 1886. He was a pupil of Chapin at Julien academy and spent twelve years at the Ecole des Beaux Arts in Paris.

PLAN SING SING REGIMENT.

Prisoners Ask Governor Whitman For Chance to Serve Country.

Permission to form a convicts' regiment to fight in Mexico has been requested of Governor Whitman by members of the Mutual Welfare league at Sing Sing both by telegram and through the official organ of the league. The leading article of the Bulletin, published by the league, is entitled "The Call to Arms—A Regiment For Prisoners. Why not?"

Warden Kirchwey said that undoubtedly 200 or 300 men in the prison would like to go to the front, but expressed himself as very skeptical of the governor's acceptance of the proposal. "It is easy to guess what the governor will answer to that," he remarked.

His Excellent Defense.

Arrested on a charge of attempting suicide, Brooklyn man said he was only trying to shave with a safety razor.

HIS ORIGINAL RULINGS.

Henry Watterson's Debut as a Parliamentary Lawmaker.

In Henry Watterson's "History of the Manhattan Club" the author tells of his experience as temporary chairman of the Democratic national convention of 1876:

"The night before the assembling Mr. Tilden's two or three leading friends on the committee came to me and said, 'We can elect you chairman over Cox, but no one else.' I demurred at once. 'I don't know one rule of parliamentary law from another,' I said. 'We will have the best parliamentarian on the continent right by you all the time,' they said. 'I can't see to recognize a man on the floor of the convention,' I said. 'We'll have a dozen men to see for you,' they replied. So it was arranged, and thus at the last moment I was chosen.

"I had barely time to write the required 'keynote' speech, but not to commit it to memory, nor sight to read it even had I been willing to adopt that mode of delivery. It would never do in such a matter to trust to extemporization. A friend, Colonel Stoddard Johnston, who was familiar with my rough penmanship, came to the rescue. Concealing my manuscript behind his hat, he lined the words out to me between the cheering, I having mastered a few opening sentences.

"Luck was with me. It went with a bang—not wholly without detection, however. The Indianians, devoted to Hendricks, were very wroth. 'See that fat man behind the hat telling him what to say,' said one to his neighbor, who answered, 'Yes, and wrote it for him, too, I'll be bound.'

"One might as well attempt to drive six horses by proxy as preside over a national convention by hearsay. I lost my parliamentarian at once. I just made my parliamentary law as we went along. Never before nor since did any deliberate body proceed under manual so startling and original. But I delivered each ruling with a resonance—it were better called an impudence—which had an air of authority.

"There was a good deal of quiet laughing on the floor among the knowing ones—though I knew the mass were as ignorant as I was myself—and, realizing that I meant to be just and was expediting business, the convention soon warmed to me, and, feeling this, I began to be perfectly at home. I never had a better day's sport in all my life."

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

How are pistons lapped in?

Pistons are lapped in by running the motor by some external power until they are a good working fit, using plenty of oil while doing it. After having assembled the engine the easiest way to drive it is to drive by a belt over the flywheel face. If yours is a motor with a detachable head it is not necessary to put the head on when lapping in the pistons.

Can you tell me the difference between a progressive and selective transmission?

They are both under the general heading of sliding gear transmission. The words "progressive" and "selective" apply to the operator's control. In the progressive type transmission it is necessary in changing gears to pass through the gears in their natural order, but in the selective type it is possible to shift into the gears at random.

Does a mechanical lubricator need any adjusting as to how much oil to feed is needed?

A mechanical lubricator generally has adjustments for each of the individual pumps which force the oil through the independent leads. The adjustment generally controls the length of the pump stroke, which in turn governs the amount of oil fed.

What are the number of degrees off center the valves should open and close to get the best results from the majority of cars?

For the average motor the timing is as follows: Inlet opens 11.5 degrees past upper center; exhaust opens 46.9 degrees before lower center; inlet closes 37.3 degrees after lower center; exhaust closes 6.5 degrees past upper center. This is the result of averaging a great number of engines.

There is a knock in the motor of my car. I took the engine down and put in new bushings, new pins, new rings and new valves and tightened the connecting rods and main bearings. When the spark is advanced a clicking sound is heard, but with it retarded it knocks. The knock is not as noticeable when advanced, but with the spark retarded it makes the engine very hot, and it has not the power that it has when advanced. The lights are connected with the magneto and sometimes when burning and the spark is fully retarded the motor does not knock. It will run smoothly for about two miles and then give two or three spark clicks and then stop knocking. Can you tell me the cause of this?

This might be ignition trouble due to improper manipulation of the spark lever. You may be advancing the lever too far to be in proper relation to the speed of the motor. Experience shows the driver of any car where to put his spark for all conditions of travel, and once you have mastered this you will probably not have this knocking. There are extremes to advancing the spark and just as bad extremes to retarding, and it would seem that you work your spark lever too far each way. When running ordinarily there is no need of touching the spark lever. It is only when running at a high speed that you need advance the spark beyond the normal running position, and when you are pulling in heavy places it is time to retard it somewhat, but not too much. When going up hill it is often necessary to bring the spark down a little, but not to the point where there is knocking. Find the best all around running position of the lever and do not change it unless as above. Of course when starting the spark should also be retarded.

There is a slight leak from the bottom of my carburetor. The cork float is good, and the valves appear tight. Can you tell me what is the cause of this and how I can remedy it?

The repair of the leak will depend upon whether or not it is of a permanent nature or merely the condensation of the gasoline in the manifold after stopping the motor. If the gasoline leaks from the carburetor for a short time after the motor is stopped and then stops leaking it is the gasoline which has been drawn up in the manifold condensing and then running back into the carburetor, causing it to overflow. The remedy for this is in the fitting of hot air connections which assist in thoroughly vaporizing all the gasoline. If the leak is a steady one it shows that the cork float is slightly water logged, in which case it will have to be dried out and reshellacked or the valve to the gasoline inlet does not set tightly and will have to be ground in.

You should make sure that the float valve seat and the bowl gasket in the bottom of the bowl are in good condition, with the float at the proper height—that is, one and one-sixteenth inch from the top of the bowl to the top of the float. If these three points are correct the carburetor will not leak.

Does it harm a battery to let it become fully discharged during the winter months and then have it recharged in the spring?

Yes; this treatment would harm the battery. It should be kept as nearly completely charged as possible during the period that it is out of service.

Will you kindly explain why and how harm will come by using the motor as a brake on hills?

The practice of using the motor for a brake puts more tooth pressure between the gears than occurs when ordinarily driving the car. If you were to turn by hand a train of gears which instead of having a reduction of four to one had, on the contrary, a stepped up ratio of one to four, you would notice the difference in pressure required to turn the gears. It takes the same amount of power applied over the same length of time to bring a car to rest as it does to bring it up to a given speed—that is, the amount of work done is the same. So it is true to state that if the stop is made in the same distance the gear wheels are transmitting the same amount of power. Where the factor of increased tooth pressure enters is that instead of having a reduction to work with of four to one, as in driving a car, the ratio becomes one to four in stopping it. Thus the proposition becomes similar in many respects to two inclined planes. If you had to drive a plane which had a slope of one to four by pressing vertically downward upon it, it would not move nearly as readily as one which had a slope of from four to one, and, while this analogy is not accurate, it expresses the condition which occurs when the teeth of the small bevel gear sustain the pressure that they do when the drive comes through them in an inverse direction. With a worm and gear this analogy is quite accurate.

There is a crack across the center of the driving disk on the friction drive of my car. What might cause this?

The exact cause would be hard to find, but possibly it was due to putting too heavy a load on the drive system, such as pulling out of a deep rut, etc.

I am building a high speed engine, 4 by 6. What is the best timing for the valves? What size flywheel should be used?

Open the exhaust about 45 degrees before bottom center and close at about 10 degrees after top center. Open the inlet a little past top center and close it at about 50 degrees past bottom center. This is merely a suggestion and might not work out as well as some other timing. It would be impossible to state arbitrarily what timing would be best without knowing the engine and experimenting with it.

The size of the flywheel would depend on whether it were a four or six and on other considerations. You cannot arbitrarily fix the weight of the flywheel by knowing the bore and stroke.

Will it harm my generator to drive with the storage battery disconnected?

It will harm the generator of any electric lighting and starting system to run with the storage battery disconnected. It is likely to burn out the internal windings of the electric unit.

In which car does it take the most power to drive, one with the transmission in a unit with the axle or with it mounted midway?

There will be no difference in the economy with any of the three locations of the gear set, except in so far as the number of universal joints is concerned. The fewer the universals the less the friction at this point and the greater the economy theoretically. Consequently a car with one universal, such as found more frequently in the unit plant, should be, theoretically, slightly more economical than those with more universals.

There is a knock in my car. The bearings are tight. The cylinders are three sixty-fourths inch larger one way than the pistons and one thirty-second the other. Would this cause the knock, and, if so, how shall I bore and finish them? The cylinders are four and one-fourth inches in diameter.

This is probably due either to loose rings or to the fact that the cylinders are out of round. It would be strange if there were no noise with the cylinders in this condition. They should be put on a lathe and reground, but you had better take the car to a good garage and have it done by a mechanic who has the equipment and knows how to do such work through experience.

A peculiar condition has arisen after overhauling the motor of my car. Drops of water can be seen clinging to the inside of the discharge pipe of the muffler, and when the motor is running little drops of water are occasionally expelled from the muffler. More water accumulates in the muffler as fast as it is expelled by the exhaust gases. The motor has been overhauled and cleaned out thoroughly inside. Fresh oil was put in, and there has been no chance for water to become mixed with the lubricating oil. The motor fires perfectly at all speeds. Can you tell me what the trouble might be?

The only cause to which we can ascribe this phenomenon is the formation of water as a product of combustion. It might be, however, that in boring out the valve ports you sprang a very small leak in the wall of the water jacket, due to a thin spit or sand hole, but from what you say this seems a remote possibility.

Beautiful "Period" Furniture In The Semi--Annual Sale

$165.00 Living Room Suite at $119.50.

The suite that is eminently desirable for either library or living room use. There are three pieces, the Davenport, the rocker and the arm chair.

The suite is upholstered in high grade tapestry of beautiful design. Each piece has full spring edge and is fitted with loose cushions, which themselves, are filled with springs.

$110.00 Bedroom Suite at $84.00.

This suite is a reproduction of the artistic Colonial period. Great charm of the design lies in the simplicity. We were enabled to offer these suites at these low prices because they were purchased before the advance in cost of materials. You may have your choice of either birdseye maple, American walnut or mahogany. May be purchased separately as follows:

$29.50 Dresser at $22.50.

$29.50 Chiffonier at $22.50

$23.50 Dressing Table at $17.50.

$27.50 Bedstead at $21.50.

$179.00 Walnut Bedroom Suite, Four-Piece, at $129.50.

This suite is a reproduction of the popular "Adam Period." It is well constructed and beautifully finished in every detail. Individual pieces may be purchased at the following prices:

$52.50 Dresser at $38.50.

$51.50 Chiffonier at $36.75

$35.00 Dressing Table at $24.50.

$40.00 Bedstead at $29.75.

$192.50 Colonial Mahogany Bedroom Suite, $152.50.

This is an excellent reproduction of the old, colonial period. The design is most pleasing, and the suite is handsomely finished throughout. There are four pieces, the dresser, chiffonier, dressing table and bedstead, which may be purchased separately, at a saving of $10.00 on each.

$265.00 American Walnut Dining Room Suite, Ten Pieces, $195.00.

This suite is, without a doubt, one of the best values we have ever offered. It is a reproduction of the Queen Anne period, which is decidedly popular. The suite is made in American walnut. There are ten pieces in all: Buffet, china cabinet, serving table, five side chairs and one arm chair.

$184.00 Walnut or Ivory Bedroom Suite at $139.50.

This suite is a reproduction of the artistic, Hepplewite period. There are four pieces in all, which may be purchased separately at the following prices:

$52.50 dresser at $38.50.

$51.50 chiffonier at $37.50

$37.50 dressing table at $29.00.

$42.50 bedstead at $34.50.

$125.00 Living Room Suite at $89.50.

The suite consists of three pieces, the sofa, arm chair and arm rocker. Sofa has two separate pillows and bolster filled with silk floss. Frames have cane sides and backs and are finished in a rich, brown mahogany.

It may be had in velour, damask, or tapestry covering. The period is Adam.

READ THE PLAINFIELD DAILY PRESS

Miss Marion Lynn received second honors in the competition for the Plainfield Press prize at the Plainfield High School. Her essay on "The Municipal Control of Garbage in Plainfield," follows:

The health, comfort, and happiness of a community depend largely on the manner in which the public hygiene is directed. Many people, in considering a change of residence, select a city in which sanitary conditions are well-managed. To a person considering making Plainfield his home, one of the most noticeable features in the management of our city, is the system, or rather the lack of system, of our garbage collections. Hundreds of cities and towns of the size of Plainfield, and in some cases much smaller, have a municipal system of garbage control.

The present method of garbage collection in our city is unsatisfactory, unsanitary, and expensive, and there is need of establishing a system whereby garbage could be removed frequently from every house in the city, and then disposed of in a sanitary method.

That the present system of collection is unsatisfactory can easily be seen. There is an ordinance which provides that all garbage must be removed at least once a week in winter and twice a week in summer. The collectors make a contract with a householder, agreeing to remove garbage a certain number of times a week for amounts varying anywhere from twenty-five cents to two dollars per month. If for any reason the collector fails to remove the garbage, the householder is held responsible by the Board of Health for violation of the ordinance. Since the removal of garbage is by private contract, the householder must depend upon the collector to carry out his agreement. But if, on the other hand, the householder does not fulfill his part, the collector is under no obligation to collect the garbage.

Moreover, the present mode of collection is most unsanitary. The garbage is now fed to hogs on farms situated in or around Plainfield. These farms are a nuisance and a health menace to the citizens living around them, and Plainfield has no right to subject these people to the odor emanating from the hog pens and from the garbage placed there, a large portion of which the hogs will not eat. A small quantity is also fed to the chickens. The garbage which is not removed by collectors is either burned, buried, or sometimes thrown into the yard where it is left to decay and breed flies. It is disgraceful to think that a city as prosperous and as well-managed as Plainfield should have to put up with this violation. Those citizens who pay for the disposure of their garbage, and who take pride in keeping their property in order, to maintain the beauty of our city, should not have to tolerate the unsightliness and unhealthiness which garbage thrown in to the neighboring yards causes.

This method, besides being unsatisfactory and unsanitary, is also expensive. The collectors are private individuals licensed, on a payment fee of three dollars, by the Board of Health to carry on their business. In 1913, there were twenty-seven collectors using thirty-four wagons, and there is practically no system as all of these wagons traverse the entire city. In this way only a part of the garbage is collected. From actual figures obtained from these collectors, about fourteen hundred and twenty-five families are taken care of, and when one considers that there are over five thousand forty-four hundred premises in this city it can easily be seen that fourteen hundred and twenty-five represent only twenty-six and five-tenths per cent. of the whole number.

These fourteen hundred and twenty-five householders pay a total of eleven thousand, two hundred and fifty-seven dollars and fifty cents, or an average of seven dollars and ninety cents per year for uncertain service.

In 1903, a circular letter was sent to about a thousand taxpaying citizens of Plainfield regarding a municipal control of garbage. Four hundred and twenty-three replies were received; four hundred in favor of, and twenty-three against this method of collection. As a result the city purchased the property on Dunellen avenue, formerly owned by the Plainfield Sanitary Company, for two thousand, one hundred dollars. From that time until now, very little more has been accomplished.

If municipal control were adopted by Plainfield, the whole situation would be placed on a more satisfactory basis. Garbage would be collected from every house three times a week, and it would then be cremated in the crematory owned and operated by the city, and such a procedure would greatly add to the beauty and comfort of our city. Under this system, the cost of the collection and disposal of the garbage of the entire city would cost little more than eight thousand dollars annually and would necessitate only three or four horse metal carts with two men to a cart. Citizens would no longer be subjected many times a day to the sight of broken-down garbage wagons, and the odor issuing from them.

Therefore, it is the duty of every loyal citizen of Plainfield to urge on this plan of municipal control and thus help to do away with the old unsatisfactory, unsanitary, and expensive method of garbage collection and disposal.

Let us strive to keep up the fine reputation which Plainfield now enjoys, and to uphold the name which it so eminently deserves: "Plainfield, the Queen City of New Jersey."

HER HUSBAND'S OFFICE.

A Story For Wives Who Just Drop In During Business Hours.

"Will you please," asks a secret sufferer, "write something about wives who make unexpected calls at their husbands' offices? I am not guilty of anything, but I think that even the most innocent of men suffers acutely when his wife visits him at his office. There is no way for me to make my wife understand this unless I appear boorish and brutal. Can't you say something about it? Many wives read your column."

Yes, friend, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. We will put it in the form of general propositions, hoping thereby to step on no individual toes. We hold these facts to be proved:

That no husband ever wants his wife to call on him at his office during business hours, except upon his invitation.

That no wife can know how she upsets his routine, disorders the mental processes that go on during those hours and subjects herself to the gossip of his office mates.

That there is no easy way to make a wife see this.

We proceed from these truisms to a few observations.

A lovely creature breezes into her husband's office just because she happens to be passing. She says:

"Now, don't let me disturb you a minute—I know you are busy. Dearie, what good does that desk light do you at that angle? Don't you know you will ruin your eyes? What a mess your desk is in! Look at Mr. Officemate's—how neat it is! Well, just let me stick this little package in your lower drawer and you bring it home with you when you come.

"Well, I must run along, for you're busy. Come out to the elevator with me, dear; I want to speak to you. Who is that disreputable looking man who is waiting in the outer office to see you? Why, it's a perfect disgrace to have such callers!

"You have an appointment with him? How can you make an appointment with such a creature? Well, goodby, dear. Get your shoes shined before you come home—you look awfully sloppy."

And if husband protests against that call her eyes fill with innocent tears and she says:

"Why, I wasn't there five minutes, and you weren't working at anything when I came in! And men call on you and stay half an hour! Of course I'll never come again. Are you ashamed of your wife?"

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, JULY 6, 1916.

HOW NEW JERSEY ANSWERED.

The State of New Jersey was the first to respond to the call of the War Department for its full quota of militiamen. Within less than two weeks after the order to mobilize was received by Adjutant General Sadler every man asked for had been equipped and was on his way to the border, a fighting man insofar as the duty of the State is concerned. That Troops D and B did not go Saturday instead of Sunday was due to the failure of the Government to provide horses and not to any fault of the Adjutant General's staff. This record is one that Governor Fielder and General Sadler are proud of, and their pride can justly be shared by the entire State. It means that the men of New Jersey were ready and willing to fight for their flag; that they were physically "fit;" that the militia officers had done their work well in the past years, and that General Sadler and others in charge of the mobilization were thoroughly competent. Not a man grumbled as he went. They were drilled, fed, and otherwise treated well at Sea Girt and they went off to the border happy in the knowledge that they were honored by being enrolled on the list of New Jersey's minute men. There was not a mobilization camp in all the States where so few complaints were heard. Some New Jersey soldiers "kicked" a little over being held in camp for a week, but this was because of their eagerness to be off "to the front." The only complaint made against General Sadler during the twelve days of mobilization was that his dog bit a reporter, and the newspaper man agreed to mediation, confessing that he "fired first." Militiamen in every State demonstrated that they were loyal Americans, true to the higher responsibilities of citizenship under the Stars and Stripes, but New Jersey led them all.

GIVING THE BOYS A CHANCE.

With the rush of mobilization over comes a new demand on the volunteer spirit of the people, says the Newark Evening News. Arrangements are already being made, as the law requires, for the recruiting of reserve battalions from which the ranks of the regiments at the front may be kept full.

As army plans work out, every possible opportunity for advancement should be opened to the boys who volunteer their services to the government. In principle this has been recognized by the recent law making those who have done a year's training eligible, upon examination, for West Point. Three positions are offered each State under this law and thirteen entered in competition recently in this State for the privilege of taking the West Point course.

Sentiment is even stronger than this law. Several broader suggestions have been urged. One plan was to permit each State to send as many as five representatives for each militia regiment, another was one to the regiment, still another was to permit any guardsman who could pass the examinations to take the course. But the main idea of all these suggestions was to give men who had voluntarily undertaken training the right of way over civilians.

The chance really offered is not large, but then only a small proportion of the members of the guard, probably, either wish to go to West Point or are prepared to take the examinations. It is advisable to restrict this privilege to the ambitious fellows who are willing to work, but for such men there should be encouraging opportunities for advancement. It is the least we can do if we persist in depending upon voluntarism for our defense.

Some idea of the magnitude of the threatened railroad strike may be had from the statement that 20,000,000 people, one-fifth of the population of the country, are directly interested in the financial results of the railroad industry, and yet prospects of a complete "tie up" of all the roads in the United States does not interest the public one-tenth as much as the Giants' score.

General Funston picked out a nice shady spot for the New Jersey militiamen to camp. Some of the boys will need cooling off a little before they can be trusted within reach of a Mexican.

Attorney-General Westcott still insists that he is not running for United States Senator. However that may be, we are reliably informed that he is in the way of a man that is running.

Troop D sent word from Memphis that it enjoyed southern hospitality. No wonder. In Tennessee hospitality and fried chicken are synonomous.

AID RED CROSS WORK.

At the June meeting of the State Board of the New Jersey Woman Suffrage Association held in Boonton, a resolution was unanimously passed that the Association should recommend its two hundred local branches to co-operate with the New Jersey Red Cross Association in work which can be done for our American troops on the Mexican border. Several local leagues have already started co-operative work with the Red Cross. The league of the Oranges sent over two hundred dollars to the National Red Cross several weeks ago, and other leagues are planning to hold Red Cross and suffrage entertainments, and all-day meetings for the making of bandages and other supplies.

WILL MEET IN JERSEY.

The National American Woman Suffrage Association, of which Miss Carrie Chapman Catt is president, has decided to hold its next annual convention in Atlantic City, September 8-14. This will be the first meeting of the national association in New Jersey, and the State association is making extensive plans for the entertainment of many distinguished suffragists from all over the country who will attend the convention. The New Jersey Woman Suffrage Association expects to send fifty-two delegates and the same number of alternates, to represent it at the convention.

Bibles on Watch Chains.

The devout in all lands have their own particular way of giving outward demonstration to their piety. In Russia it frequently takes the form of wearing miniature Bibles as charms on the watch chains. They are got up in attractive form about an inch square and three-eighths of an inch in thickness and contain the first five books of the Old Testament. The text of the book is in Hebrew and the titles in Latin. It is true that the book could not be read without the aid of a powerful magnifying glass, but that does not trouble the Russian "unco guid." He places great reliance on the fact that he carries the "word" on his person.—London Spectator.

Slightly Repaired.

As the tourist walked along a quiet highland road he saw a cottager chopping wood with a very ancient looking ax.

"That's surely an old hatchet you have there," he began.

"Ay, it is," replied the cottager, pausing in his labors. "Aince it belanged to the great Sir William Wallace himsel'."

"Indeed!" exclaimed the tourist in surprise. "I should not have thought it was as old as that."

"Aweel," came the cautious reply, "ye ken it's had twa new heids and fower new haun'les sin' then."—London Globe.

PLAINFIELD BOYS IN ESSEX TROOP FIND STRANGE COUNTRY SURROUNDING DOUGLAS

Major Corbusier With Hospital Corps Knows the Territory and is Looked Upon as a Man of Unusual Value—Being Royally Treated in Arizona Town—Report of Two Men Being Killed is Erroneous.

Headquarters, Douglas, Ariz., July 6.—Troops A and C, the latter including ten Plainfield boys, which arrived Monday at daybreak, completed the New Jersey troops, which left Sea Girt June 27. They are camped on a bleak and sand-swept desert, one and one-half miles southwest of town, near the village of Pirtleville, close to the border. The entire brigade, including the Arizona regiment, is under arms. There are 4,000 regulars on the other side of the town. The hills of Mexico are in the distance, and it is reported General Calles, Mexican commander at Aguaprieta, has cannon in position.

Correspondents are not permitted to state troop movements, but the troops are in position here quickly to silence any artillery fire. The brigade under Colonel Fraser is in direct line for a drive across the line in the direction of Pulpit Pass, the outlet in Sierra Madres, between Chihauhau and Sonora.

The temperature is around 130 degrees, and dust and sand storms are frequent. The camp controls and guards the smelters of the Copper Queen mine.

The regiment spent a quiet Fourth, officers visiting and being visited by regular army officers, many of whom in the past have been instructors at Sea Girt. General Davis is greatly pleased with the personnel and training of the New Jersey troops.

Major Jean F. Wolfs, First regiment; Major Harold D. Corbusier, field hospital; Captain William O'G. Quinby, Essex troop; Captain Peter P. Rafferty, ambulance company, and Lieutenant William V. Gale of Battery A, all New Jersey Medical Corps men, conferred with their assistants and mapped out a comprehnsive sanitary and hygenic system. A field hospital was established and the First regiment hospital is ready. About thirty men were overcome from heat, exhaustion and the altitude, and a few suffered minor injuries, but there were no serious cases. The medical officers, after consultation with regular army men, announced that the troops would be kept quiet in camp until they are acclimated.

No drills are being held except setting up exercises in the morning. From 10 o'clock until evening the men are kept quiet under canvas, not being allowed in the sun except when absolutely necessary. The water, which is from artesian wells, is good, but contains alkali, and this adds to the discomfort of the men during the breaking-in process. Doctors announce there is no danger from typhoid here and practically none from smallpox, although that disease has developed along the border from Mexicans. There is no danger from sunstroke, but heat exhaustion is to be guarded against. The altitude has affected some of the men strangely, but not seriously.

Captains Russell P. Freeman and Wilbur Kyle, of Troops A and C, report that a current story of the killing of two men is false. They lost two horses. At Memphis they were accorded a great reception, given a banquet at the station and a dance was organized for them on the platform. The men made the entire trip in day coaches and are worn out but happy.

The Field Ambulance company came through in day coaches, but the men knocked out the backs of the seats and made beds. There is indignation among the men of all the commands because of the way they were dragged along the line, but now that they are here the complaining is less frequent.

The Field Hospital also came in day coaches, and Sunday Dr. Watson Rodemann, a surgeon lieutenant, conducted religious exercises during a stop. The First regiment has begun the organization of the machine gun company, which is necessary in every regiment. Captain Gerrish Newell, regimental commissary, will be in command, but as yet the men have no machine guns.

Monday night the New Jersey officers were the guests of the regular army officers at a dance at the Country Club.

In Douglas the police force has been supplemented by military police, but the town is not under martial law. General Davis says there is nothing to warrant extra precautions other than the usual army vigilance.

Everything out here has horns—the cactus, the toads, the range cattle and the flowers. The men are in a new world. When dust storms roll in, followed by whirl spouts of sand in great towering spirals, the eyes and throats of the troopers are filled. The men look as if they had been in the field for years. They are becoming tanned and are dust covered. No one here seems to remember when it rained last. The grass, which grows in spots, is burned yellow and heat waves dance over the sand and cactus and the great red foot hills which roll on toward towering mountains.

The camp is filled with mascots. The cavalrymen have a pet lamb and a bull dog, the field hospital has a month-old goat and the regiment has an assortment of dogs and canary birds and a young pig.

Major Corbusier, of the field hospital, was born in this vicinity and knows the country. His father, an army surgeon, was with the command that caught Geronimo in Skull Canyon. Almost within sight of the camp are Mexican trenches that were occupied by Mexicans on the border and used during the fight a year ago at Agua Prieta. Directly ahead of us are the regulars in Mexico, and from our position we are really the supporting base of this column.

In the Arizona regiment there is a company of Mexicans and a company of Indians. Colonel Fraser has been assured by their commanders that these troops can be relied on.

The townspeople have a case of nerves, but this does not prevent them from charging war time prices to soldiers who visit town.

General Calles, across the line, is not considered to be desirous of fighting because he is friendly to us, but there is no doubt that we are on the line of the main drive if trouble comes.

When Colonel Fraser was ordered here from El Paso there was a mixup. Colonel Bell ordered him here, but the railroad people said they had orders to take him only to Columbus, N. M., and the United States Quartermaster Corps supplied us with provisions for a trip to Nogales. As a result of the conflict in orders we lay on the desert for hours while Colonel Fraser tapped the telegraph and got in touch with General Bell.

The making of camp by the New Jersey troops has been completed. The first section, First Regiment, Captain Bert Batterson commanding, had the supplies and equipment unloaded when the second section, including Colonel Fraser and staff and a battalion and a half under Major William H. Camfield, arrived. The third section under Major Arthur H. Mackie, pulled in Monday afternoon, and before sundown the tents were up.

Because of the uncertain conditions and the possible nature of the campaigning all medical officers will carry side arms, as will the enlisted men of the hospital and ambulance organizations. This is unusual.

There has not been one man of New Jersey placed under military arrest on the entire trip and not one serious breach of discipline has occurred. Arizona is a prohibition state, but firewater is not unknown at that, although Jersey troopers have not indulged.

The field staff and line and medical officers are lecturing the men on what to do and how to act in this climate. Because of the heat, thorns, dust and sand, the camp has been unofficially named Little Hell.

WILLIAM S. HART, IN NEW TRIANGLE PLAY, "THE PRIMAL LURE," AT PROCTORS' MONDAY.

Willie Collier, Jr., just fourteen years of age and the son of the famous Broadway comedian, appears today as the featured star in a Thomas H. Ince Triangle production at Proctor's entitled "The Bugle Call," a delicately colored story of the eternal boy—who takes life more seriously than his elders. He shapes his actions by a peculiar sense of devotion to the memory of his mother and his attitude toward his stepmother causes her many heartaches—but ultimately a common danger establishes a great and touching bond of sympathy between them. "The Bugle Call," in addition to being a drama of pathos and humanely appealing qualities is also a play of thrills. The falls that are taken by the Indians who participate in an attack on the frontier post are the most amazing horseback falls ever seen on the screen and they come thick and fast. This feature also contains some of the greatest battle scenes every filmed by Thomas H. Ince and is a production that will meet with unbounded praise from all classes of theatregoers. In addition today Mack Swain, the droll Keystone comedian, is seen in "Ambrose's Cup of Woe," and there are several other features including "Twixt Love and The Iceman," and "Mr. Fuller Pep Breaks for the Beach."

The headline photoplay feature tomorrow is a Pathe picturization of Clyde Fitch's renowned play, "The Girl With the Green Eyes," in which Katherine Kaelred and Julian L'Estrange are cast in the leading roles. Warren Kerrigan will also be seen tomorrow in a strong dramatic story entitled "The Melody of Love," and there will be numerous smaller subjects.

Saturday will bring Hamilton Revelle in "The Half Mission Bribe," a Metro release, "The Scorpian's Sting" from the Universal Studios and many comedy features.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in addition to the regular program exclusive pictures will be shown at Proctor's of Troop D of Plainfield in camp at Sea Girt, all of the company being shown in addition to many scenes showing them at work about camp preparatory to their leaving for the Mexican border.

OFFICIAL MINUTES OF THE BOARD OF CHOSEN FREEHOLDERS OF UNION COUNTY.

An adjourned meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County was held at the Court House, Elizabeth, New Jersey, on Thursday, June 22d, 1916, at 2:30 p. m., with all members present, except Freeholders Hall, Randolph, Wilbur and John Woodruff.

A communication from the Township Clerk of Linden, requesting that this Board construct a bridge over East Brook, Mitchell avenue, in said township, was read and referred to a committee of three. The Director appointed as said committee, Freeholders Krouse, Brokaw and Buckle.

A communication from Warner-Quinland Asphalt Co., requesting information in regard to an application which was filed with the Board of Freeholders in 1891, for a license to build a dock, wharf or pier in from their premises on Staten Island Sound, was read and referred to a Committee of Three, the County Attorney and County Engineer. The Director appointed as said committee, Freeholders Krouse, Meisel and Marsh.

A report was received from the Committee on Old Shunpike road, Culverts, Summit, recommending the changing of the line of this stream through the Gaffney property for about 75 feet, said changes only to be made with the consent of the owner, and the cost of the whole work not to exceed $150 was read, and on motion by Freeholder Krouse, this report was received and ordered placed on file, and the recommendations contained therein were on roll call adopted.

A report from the Committee on Culverts in Cranford, recommending the construction of new culvert crossing Cummings street in Centennial avenue, culvert crossing Thomas street at Lincoln avenue, Thomas street at South avenue, the cost of the three culverts together not to exceed $500, was read and on motion by Freeholder Marsh, this report was received and ordered placed on file, and the recommendations contained therein were on roll call adopted.

A report from the Committee on Culvert on Forty Acre Road, Linden, recommending the construction of a new culvert at this location at a cost not to exceed $600 was read, and on motion by Freeholder Wilbur, this report was received and ordered placed on file and the recommendations contained therein were on roll call adopted.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the appointment of a committee of three to examine the drainage conditions at Springfield avenue and New England avenue, and at Ashwood avenue and Russell place, Summit, and report at the next meeting of the Board. The Director appointed as said committee, Freeholders McMane, Smith and Teller.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the appointment of a committee of three to look into the advisability of painting bridge on Parker road, Elizabeth. The Director appointed as said committee, Freeholders Brokaw, Haviland and Perry.

A resolution was on rall call adopted authorizing the issuance of $67,000 of bonds of the County of Union for road and bridge purposes.

A resolution was on roll call adopted providing for the various matters relative to the $67,000 1916 Road and Bridge Bond and defining its proper form.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the Clerk of the Board to communicate with the various Boards of Education and Municipal Bodies throughout the County, asking permission to use their buildings and schools as polling places for the coming election without cost to the County.

On roll call the approved bills were ordered paid.

On motion by Freeholder Krouse, the Director declared the Board adjourned until Thursday, July 6th, 1916, at 2:30 p. m.

J. EDWARD HOWE,
Clerk.

The Swans Settled Close Beside Her.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How Elise Found Eleven Swans' Feathers.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

THE children clapped for a story, and daddy told them about a little princess, Elise, who went out in the world to find her eleven brothers that their stepmother had turned into swans. "One morning Elise met an old berry woman," said daddy, "who led her down a slope at the foot of which a brook flowed. The trees locked their branches over this stream to make it shady, and in this shade Elise walked along by the brookside till it flowed into the open sea.

"Elise saw not a sail, not a boat, on the beautiful open sea. How was she to go any farther in her hunt for her brothers? She looked at the little pebbles on the beach and saw that the waves had worn them quite round like marbles. Glass, iron, stone, whatever had washed up on the shore, had taken their shapes from the water, and yet it was softer than her own little hand. Elise looked at the waves at her feet and decided that she would be just as untiring in her hunt for her brothers.

"Beside her in the seaweeds lay eleven white swans' feathers. She picked them up and made a bunch of them like a bouquet. Drops of water were still upon them, but she could not tell whether they were dew or tears. It was very lonely by the sea, but Elise did not feel lonely, because the sea was ever changing. If a big black cloud came up the sea said, 'I can look black too.' Then the wind blew up, and the waves showed their white crests. If the clouds were red with sunset the quiet sea looked like a rose petal. But, however still the sea, there was always a little motion close by the shore, just as the chest of a child rises and falls in its sleep.

"Elise stayed by the beautiful open sea all day. Just as the sun was going down she saw eleven white swans with gold crowns upon their heads flying toward the shore.

"They flew in a swaying line, one behind the other, like a ribbon streamer. Elise climbed up on the shore and hid behind a bush. The swans settled close beside her and flapped their great white wings. When the sun sank the swans shed their feathers and became eleven princes. They were Elise's brothers. She sprang into their arms, and they laughed and cried and were happy to have overcome the work of their wicked stepmother. The princes were delighted to see what a big, beautiful girl Elise had grown to be," daddy added, with a big hug.

"Thank you, daddy!" cried the children.

And daddy gave them a kiss.

Marrying a Butterfly

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

The Maid Commits Another Crime and Ethel Bakes Some Muffins.

"Would you like to hear the latest about my maid?" asked Ethel Gordon, running up on Nell Morton's back porch where that busy housewife sat paring her vegetables and enjoying the golden October weather.

"I believe I could write a book about my experiences." Ethel's face was flushed and she was very much upset.

"Sit down here." Nell sat down her basin of vegetables and placed a chair for her neighbor.

"Do you remember that plum colored crepe de chine waist of mine?" began Ethel.

"The one trimmed with ecru lace?" asked Nell, holding her paring knife in the air while she thought.

"Yes. What do you think that impudent girl did?" asked Ethel impressively.

"Stole it?" Nell was rolling a potato around in the water as she watched her caller.

"She might as well have stolen it for all the good the thing will ever be to me now," answered Ethel bitterly. "She took that waist to a cheap-skate of a dressmaker and had her copy it."

"Copy it?" echoed Nell, looking at the tragic face in front of her.

"She copied it in the cheapest mercerized imitation silk and cotton lace, a perfect caricature of mine. I was so angry I cried."

"She surely would not have dared to take the waist out of the house. She must have described it or the dressmaker may have seen you with it on." Nell picked up a potato and began paring it.

"Indeed, she did take it out of the house. She owned up to it when I charged her with it, saying that she had been very careful not to hurt it; had wrapped it in tissue paper and had not crushed it a bit, etc." Ethel made a despairing gesture with her hands.

"Well, she is a hopeless proposition." Nell successfully repressed a smile. "What are you going to do about it?"

"Do? There is nothing to do but give her notice, and commence a fruitless search for a new maid." There was despair in Ethel's tone.

"The more I see what trouble you have, the more I glory in my own freedom. Why don't you throw off the yoke and be independent of the entire trouble." Nell gazed pityingly at the dejected little figure.

"Well, I certainly shall not keep her, and I may be unable to find any one else. It looks as if I should have a chance to enjoy my freedom," righed Ethel.

"Don't you care," counseled Nell cheerfully. "I will help you get started and you will soon grow to think with me that it is better to 'serve yourself and be well served.' It is easy to get a little girl to wash dishes and they are not hardened in stealing at least."

"Thank you; you are very kind, but you do not know what you are letting yourself in for. I am unthinkably dull in all such matters," said Ethel drearily.

"Come on in and take your first lesson now. I am going to start dinner." Nell rose and started for the kitchen, followed by Ethel who was trying to assume an interest in the proceedings that she did not feel.

"Here, put on this big apron to protect your pretty morning dress and you shall make the muffins for dinner." Nell was carrying her halting neighbor along in the tide of her own enthusiasm as she would a reluctant child. "You can make a double recipe and surprise your husband with muffins for dinner of your own making."

INTERRUPTING.

(By Burges Johnson.)

They say it's wrong to interrupt when someone talks to you,
But I don't do it near as much as grown-up people do;
For while I'm telling Mother some important piece of news
She is counting up my buttons or examining my shoes.
And just when I have gotten to the most important part,
And she ought to pay attention to my words with all her heart,
All at once she says, "Come here!
I very greatly fear
A button's coming off your clothes, and I must fix it, dear."

It's just the same with Father—he's no better, I'm afraid,
I always want him to admire important things I've made.
But when I start to show him, so that he will understand
Where I nailed it or I sawed it, and just how I worked and planned.
He'll nod his head, and say, "Indeed!" in an attentive way,
And acts as if he saw it, but then like
as not he'll say,
Just when I've got a-going,
"My boy, your nose needs blowing,"
Which proves he doesn't hear, nor even look at what I'm showing.

ARGENTINA CLUB DE MADRES.

The Club de Madres, of Buenos Aires, Argentina, is deeply interested in having a National Council of Mothers in that great republic. Mrs. Abel Renard, wife of the Commander of the Navy of Argentina, spent three years in the United States, and translated the literature of the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations into Spanish.

The Club de Madres were so grateful for the inspiration and help given them by the president of the National Congress that they voted to send her a medal exquisitely designed as a token of gratitude.

The letter accompanying it expressed the appreciation of the help given for starting a mother's movement in Argentina and the purpose to follow the example of American mothers.

The Club de Madres has a playground for children which seems an excellent thing for other mother's circles to follow. There is also a municipal palyground with a library and reading room, all of which are popular with the children.

A SUSTAINING THOUGHT.

With such a mother! Faith in womankind
Beats with his blood, and trust in all things high
Comes easy to him; and though he trip and fall
We shall not blind his soul with clay."

THINGS TO THINK ABOUT.

A clean tooth never decays. Have your children keep their teeth clean and save dentists' bills, look nicer, and have better health.

Five cents' worth of corn meal, 25 cents' worth of sirloin steak and 50 cents' worth of codfish all give the body the same nourishment.

Give your children plenty of milk, eggs, oatmeal, soups, cornmeal, etc., but little pie, cake and candy, and no coffee, tea, alcoholic drinks nor tobacco.

Send your children to school clean and keep them clean. Cleanliness is next to Godliness. Disease breeds in dirt.

Never let them sleep in a room with the windows all closed.

For every dollar spent on education, $8 are spent on alcohol and tobacco.

Flies and mosquitoes carry disease, and breed in filth and stagnant water. Do not have any breeding places for them.

Some patent medicines contain much more alcohol than beer and wine.

Too much work weakens the eyes of young children and causes need of glasses.

SCHOOL ALL YEAR ROUND.

The all-year schools of Newark are commended in a special report that is usually taken at the beginning of the fall term to review the pupils in the work of the preceding grade is not necessary for pupils who attend continuously or with only short vacations.

In regard to the health of the children who are kept in school during the summer months, Dr. Deffenbaugh declares:

"The medical inspectors of Newark report that the health of the children who have attended school all year has not been impaired in the slightest degree. The regular school medical and nurse service continues in the summer, so that the health of the children in school is better cared for than that of those not in school. Good health habits acquired during the regular term are not broken up by a long summer vacation when the children not in school are beyond the influence of the school physician and the school nurse. The physician and nurse both report that the children who have been out of school during July and August come back in September in poorer physical condition than those who have attended these two months, and that even the children who have been away to a summer resort are in no better physical condition than those who have been in school, since their recreation is likely to have been of a dissipating nature.

WILLIAM H. JONES DIES AFTER LINGERING ILLNESS

Following a lingering illness, William H. Jones died last night at his home, 36 Pearl street, the borough. He was in his fifty-eighth year and was a native of Wales. He had been a resident of Plainfield for the last four years, coming here from Belleville and was a mason by trade. Beside his widow no local relatives survive him.

The funeral will be held in the Church of the Holy Cross on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and the service will be in charge of the rector, Rev. H. St. G. Burrill. Interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

PIERCE GERMAN THIRD LINE

has been able to do has sufficed to overcome the opposition except at certai widely separated positions, which avail little in the larger task of breaking the whole German wall.

Observers here, seeking an explanation for the tenacity with which the Germans are holding before the British while the French are gradually encroaching on Peronne, find it in the German press cry to "Beat England!" and in the fact that, while anticipating a British offensive and consequently preparing for it, there was a general belief that France was too near exhaustion to attempt an attack in force, and consequently less preparation was made to meet a blow from the French front.

Turks Defeat Russians.

London, July 6.—The capture by the Turks of the town of Kermanshah in Persia has been announced officially in Constantinople, the statement reporting the defeat of the Russians in a battle which lasted a day and a night.

The text of the statement follows:

"After the Russians had been beaten in a battle west of Kermanshah, which lasted all day and night, our troops entered the town.

"The day before the battle it was established that the Russians had determined to defend themselves in the village of Mahidesst, but owing to the swift and encircling movement of our forces, the enemy could not hold the place and, under the protection of his rear guard, began a retreat to prepared positions west of Kermanshah.

"The next day the Russians' rear guard was withdrawn from Mahidesst and our troops entered th village and started in pursuit of the enemy.

"By nightfall he was obliged to evacuate his positions and withdraw to the town of Kermanshah. In the morning, without leaving the enemy time to organize street fighting, our troops in three detachments penetrated the town, forcing the enemy to fly."

HANDVILLE-MILLER.

Miss Ethel Handville, of Somerville, became the bride of William Miller, of this city, at a ceremony performed in the rectory of St. Mary's church, last night at 7:30. Father Joseph S. McDonald, the pastor, officiated. The couple were attended by Miss Elizabeth Smith, of Bound Brook, and Frank Miller, a brother of the groom.

Died Same Date, Not Same Day.

While it is true that Cervantes and Shakespeare died on the same date, they did not die on the same day. Shakespeare died Tuesday, April 23, 1616; Cervantes died Saturday, April 23, 1616. The explanation lies in the difference between the calendars in use at that time in England and Spain. As a matter of fact, Shakespeare outlived Cervantes by about ten days.—London Observer.

The Word Vaudeville.

The word "vaudeville" sprang from Vaux de Vire, the name of a hamlet in the picturesque town of Vire, in Switzerland. In the fifteenth century this town was the home of Oliver Basselin, the author of witty drinking songs. One of the best known of these songs was a merry dissertation on the author's red nose.

Insatiable.

Clarence had wearied his mother with a lot of questions. Finally, she exclaimed: "Clarence Briggs, if you ask one more question you march right off to bed."

Clarence pondered. Then he said: "When pa asks where I is will him be sent to bed, too?"—Exchange.

Too Convenient.

"We had a scheme to arrange a checking room so that lady shoppers could check their husbands."

"How did it pan out?"

"Wouldn't work. We didn't know what to do with husbands left over thirty days."—Kansas City Journal.

Wrong Position.

"You've gone and put the prizefighter's picture at the bottom of the page."

"Well, what of it?"

"If you have any regard for the fitness of things make it an upper cut."—Baltimore American.

A Want Ad Is Often the First Link in a Chain of Consequences

It initiates something of far-reaching importance to you. You meet someone with whom you will do business for years—or you buy or sell property that changes the currents of your daily affairs. Many a want ad is of but transient importance of course. But others influence your life for years and years.

Raking 'Em Over

By "JINKS"

RALPH RUNYON MAKES GOOD SHOWING.

Participating in the Safe and Sane Athletic Meet at New Brunswick Tuesday, Ralph Runyon made a creditable showing. He captured first place in the pole vault and was an easy second in the running high jump. The fact that Ralph did twelve feet, two inches in the vaulting event indicates that he has been receiving careful training at Penn State, at which institution he has been studying for the past year. While he was in Plainfield High School, the best he could do was a little short of twelve feet and it was rarely that he tied that mark. At one time, Caldwell, a metropolitan vaulter of repute, defeated him, scaling the bar at only an even twelve feet. Ralph fell a little short on that occasion and, ever since that time, has been practicing faithfully in order that he might better the even dozen mark. The announcement that he has attained the goal for which he strove so diligently, is greeted by Plainfield sport lovers with gratification.

"PROFESSIONALISM" IN THE RANKS.

When the City League was organized it was announced to the baseball public of this city that the circuit would be a strictly amateur one and that no player would be allowed to receive anything more than "thanks" for his services. Of late, some one has had reason to believe that some one else is paying one or two of his stars. The person who claims to possess information along these lines is going to have a chance to prove his statements in a short time. The league moguls are going to hold a meeting next Monday night. At this meeting the matter of "professionalism" will be fully thrashed out.

FIGHTING ON THE FIELD.

There are several baseball players in this vicinity who will have to learn pugilistic tendencies if they expect to continue in the City League. That fact will be made known to either them or their managers at the next league meeting. No one is anxious to curb rooting, but every one deplores "roasting." Personal remarks should not be allowed on the ball field and any player who persists in employing such tactics should be shown the exit. Fighting on the ball field will stop. That's the decree from headquarters.

SETS RECORD FOR TURF.

That a horse, "Short Grass," owned by a Plainfielder, should establish a new world's record for a mile, is of more than passing interest. Shattering a previous record made by "Stromboli," the local horse dashed around the mile track at Aqueduct in record time. Other local horses had a big day on the Fourth. "Oyamack" and the "Baron," both owned and driven by Dr. H. E. Winters, easily won the events in which they participated. All of which goes to show that this city possesses the best there is in every branch of sport.

• • • • • •

TOMMY MULLIN AS A HURLER.

Tommy Mullin once intimated that he would like to pitch a few innings of a big game. No one took Tommy seriously and it is doubtful if he himself gave the matter more than passing interest. But nevertheless, Tommy was given a chance to show his wares. He did well and allowed only one run in the three innings in which he was on the mound. Take it from us, Tommy is some hurler.

OSCAR DILTS IN DEBUT.

The Baptists sprung a surprise when they exhibited Dilts, the former North Plainfield High School pitcher, on the mound on Tuesday. Another unlooked-for happening was the presence of Andy McDonough behind the bat. Both the borough boys did exceptionally well. Dilts had considerable on the ball as was evinced by the fact that he fanned twelve of the Netherwood sluggers. Oscar should be a valuable addition to the Baptist forces and with his partner, McDonough, should be the stellar half of the best battery in the league.

A CASE OF "BROTHERLY LOVE."

There are few managers who are willing to part with one of their most valuable men on a day when victory means much. But that was just what Jimmy Monihan, acting as manager of the Tabs in the absence of Jimmy Scott, did. Dunc Patterson was without a catcher for the afternoon's game and, as the Tabs were playing only a few blocks away from West End Field, where Patterson's team was in operation, the big fellow hopped on a bicycle and rode over to see Monihan. It took him less than three minutes to secure one of the best catchers that ever performed in this city. That man was Billy O'Loughlin and he, although he is not a Baptist, played as earnestly as any "regular" member of the team. The Tabs could have used Billy in the outfield, but they had no need of him behind the bat. Few such cases of genuine sportsmanship are to be found in this vicinity in these days of egotism.

ROYAL GIANTS SIGN TO PERFORM HERE

Simmon's Lads Arrange to Play Westfield Team on Parker Field.

The Royal Giants will play the Westfield Athletic Club on Parker Field Saturday, the game being called at 3:30 promptly. This game will be the second one of the season for the Royals, who had little trouble defeating the Plainfield A. C. on Parker Field last Saturday.

The Royals will meet any team in this vicinity here or elsewhere and have gathered together a formidable array of baseball talent. Sidney Butler has been secured to do the pitching. It is quite unusual for a youngster to pitch for such fast company as the Royals, but Sidney has had no serious trouble up to the present time. Condict, a new man and a good one, will again be seen behind the bat, while the rest of the positions will be taken care of by such well known local players as "Tune" Kline, Paul Coleman Barnes, Foster Kline, "Senor" Maiden and Johnson.

The Westfield lineup has not been anounced, but it is understood that the team will present a much more capable array than that represented on Hyde Oval last Saturday. In the borough game, which the St. Joseph's had little trouble annexing, Francis McDonough, an outfielder acting as pitcher, was a complete puzzle to the visitors.

Any manager who desires games with the Royals should write to Pete Simmons, 121 Madison avenue, 'phone 1988.

PARKER FIELD BASEBALL LEAGUE OPENING MARKED BY SHAMROCK VICTORY

John O'Keefe Twirls Five Hit Game, Defeating Lenox A. C.—Lou Feiring Touched up for Even Dozen Bingles.

The band played, Pitcher John O'Keefe took a deep breath and the first game of the Parker Field baseball season was on. The Shamrocks, as green as the sod on which they played, easily secured their first victory, defeating the uniformed Lenox A. C., by the score of twelve runs to four.

Not since the days of Willie Keeler has such an auspicious debut been witnessed in this vicinity. John O'Keefe, as tall a young hurler as Cy Falkenberg, had everything on the ball, while Lou Feiring, as minute as Jack Warhop, was extremely off form. The Shamrock slabman convinced himself that more than five hits was too much for his pals, the Lenox lads, while Feiring, always a generous lad, permitted a full share of bingles.

Freddy Sears obtained two bingles off the Shamrock twirler, but he was the only member of his team to dent O'Keefe's delivery for more than one hit.

RUBE OLDRING, ONCE LOCAL DIAMOND STAR, MAY BECOME A MEMBER OF THE YANKS

Former Member of Crescents, of This City, Retired on Account of Health—May Accept Donovan's Terms—Connie Mack Willing.

Rube Oldring, who began his baseball career with the Crescents of this city and who obtained his release from the Athletics the other day on a plea that he wanted to retire from baseball owing to poor health, is now being sought by the Yankees. The accident to Frank Gilhooley in Washington on Monday and Fritz Maisel still being on the disability list, put the Yankees in a bad way for outfielders and yesterday Connie Mack receievd word from Bill Donovan asking for permission to dicker with Oldring.

Mack informed Donovan that as Oldring had been released by the Athletic club, he had no claim to his services and that he had no objection if the New York club did business with Oldring. Mack, however, informed Donavan that inasmuch as Oldring had secured his release after promising that he was retiring he did not think that the New York club could secure him. Donovan is making a try and has sent an agent to Oldring at his farm near Bridgeton, N. J.

Rube was a member of the Crescents of this city, at the time when Phil Dabb was manager. At that time, Ernie Lindeman did the hurling and Willie Keeler, one of the greatest players that ever lived, played in the outfield. Oldring was very popular locally and his big league operations have always been watched with interest by local fans.

PRESS AMATEUR DEPARTMENT

The lid is off. The boys have already begun their league season and every one is happy. The Shamrocks and the Lenox clubs, while made up of "friends" in private life, are the bitterest of enemies on the diamond. The Lenox lads have suits and, perhaps, the Shamrocks are "green" with envy. At any rate, these two teams are going to be the "life" of the league.

The Pans have a Cuban infielder. His name is Garrido and he is employed in this city. Not unlike the fleet Aragon, the Cuban, American Leaguer, Garrido is a fast man and can hit. The Pans, as a whole are a fast bunch and the fact that the club numbers among its players a Cuban does much to insure the team plenty of opposition.

If this continued discussion relative to the "amateur" standing of the City League is allowed to hang fire any longer, we will not "dare" to refer to the league through the medium of this department. Should the City League moguls decide that professionalism does exist in the ranks, we will have to undertake the management of a "Professional Department."

Eddie Conshay certainly did not last long in the morning battle with the Tabs. Eddie has the stuff, but exhibited very little of it on Tuesday. However, at least on two occasions drives that went for singles should have been easily gathered in by the Farmer infield.

"Tune" Kline was at the Tab-Farmer afternoon exhibition. Anyone who attended the game and who failed to realize that "Tune" was on hand, must be troubled with a bad case of sleepiness. Kline admonished the members of the Farmers pitching corps for not "keeping them around the Tabs' knees." Frank Sims heard Kline's warning and tried to follow his advice. And Sims found it a profitable stunt—for just two innings. After that, Sims found that it was just as well for him to pitch from the outfield.

While, to the best of our knowledge, there are no local clubs that cater to the pugilistic element, there are two or three local baseball players that are eligible to membership in such clubs. Prize-fighting on the ball field is something that should be discouraged at all times.

Foster Kline and Sid Butler were the main factors in the overwhelming defeat handed the Plainfield A. C. by the Royals on Saturday. Butler twirled in fine form and Kline, a youngster as is Butler, clouted the cover off the pill. Now that the Royals have started, it is to be hoped that they will continue.

There is one thing Plainfield baseball fans can be proud of and that is the fact that there are no local players who make a practice of stealing second with the sacks full. Mike Mowrey, a Dodger "vet," did that little thing on the Fourth. Perhaps, Manager Wilbert Robinson could afford to send a couple of scouts out to this city. There is plenty of material here, should "Robbie" care to have Mowrey's feat duplicated.

MAY POSTPONE GAME.

It is probable that the scheduled game betwen the Baptists and Hones will not be played this Saturday. The postponement will not be caused by any discussion regarding "professionalism," but will be the direct result of the fact that the Probasco Bible Class will hold its picnic at that time. The members of the class will not start on the picnic until late in the afternoon, but that time will be too "early" for the baseball players, most of whom are members of the class.

OPEN CHAMPIONSHIP TENNIS.

The annual Plainfield Open Championship lawn tennis tournament in men's singles will be held on the courts of the Plainfield Country Club on Saturdays, July 8 and 15, commencing at 2:30 p. m. each day. Entries close on Friday at 8:00, with A. D. Beers, 420 Stelle avenue, 'Phone 312-M. A small entrance fee is charged.

PLENTY OF PRAISE GIVEN RUNYON

New Brunswick Scribe Commends Local Vaulter for Great Showing.

Ralph Runyon, an account of whose triumph in the Safe and Sane Athletic Meet held in New Brunswick on the Fourth was given in these columns yesterday, is not only the recipient of a beautiful silver cup but also possesses a full share of commendation. Here is what Harold O'Neill, in his graphic description of things as they happened, has to say of Runyon:

"Jumping from scratch Ralph Runyon, of Plainfield, now a student at Penn State, leaped 12 feet 2 inches, the best height that has ever been attained at Neilson Field. In so doing the Plainfield boy broke his own best effort in competition of 12 feet. He had to go over 12 feet to win first place from O. F. Dowell, of the New York A. C., who with a handicap of 5 inches made the same height. Runyon gave one of the most thrilling performances of the afternoon, and the 2,000 people on the stand broke into great applause when he made his great leap, winning first place. Joseph Breckley, the Rutgers pole vaulter, made the event interesting. His actual leap was 11 feet 3 inches, which, with 6 inches handicap, gave him a performance of 11 feet 9 inches, winning third place honors.

SUNDAY ATTRACTION ALREADY BOOKED

Plainfield A. A. Will Perform in South Plainfield Next Sunday.

The South Plainfield baseball team will have a hard tussle on Sunday, having booked strong opposition in the Plainfield A. A. This team is not the one formerly managed by Dipper Jones, but is one composed of several independent and City League stars, among the more prominent being "Sandy" Porter, diminutive outfielder of the Hope Chapel team; Alex. Campbell, late of the Farmers, and Frank Mullin, also a Farmer. Porter will hang around the keystone sack, with Mullin to help him out in the vicinity of shortfield. Campbell will do the catching, having as battery mate, Sidney Butler, the Royal flinger. Other members of the team are Sammie Semer and San Davidson, both prominent players on this year's Red and Blue team.

The home team will not be wanting in talent. Velard and Anderson will compose the southern battery. Garrido, the Cuban, who plays with the Pans, will cover first; Eddie Hamilton will tackle second, "Vins" Mullin will covort around short with a competent outfield, composed of Reilly in left, Sofield in center, and Willie Mullin in right.

This game wil mark the opening of the Plainfield A. A. Sunday season, and will also give the fans a chance to find out just where a good Sunday attraction is staged. The grounds are in the vicinity of the Spicer plant in South Plainfield, and can be easily reached by auto bus.

A Secret Divulged.

"Papa," said the hopeful youth, "can you tell me what is natural philosophy?"

"Of course I can," said papa, proud and relieved to find that there was at last something he could tell his offspring. "Natural philosophy is the science of cause and reason. Now, for instance, you see the steam coming out of the spout of the kettle, but you don't know why or for what reason it does so, and"—

"Oh, but I do, papa," chirped the hope of the household. "The reason the steam comes out of the kettle is so that mamma may open your letters without you knowing it."—Exchange.

Nearly all of the above display the emblem of the organization, similar to the one at the head of this article, in some conspicuous place in the window of their places of business. It stands for square dealing. It stands for honest merchandise, full value for your money, and a faithful attention to every order. In the next talk we will tell you something about our system of observing holidays, so that there will be no confusion on the part of the public in the future as to when the stores will be found open and ready to receive customers.

RAISING REVENUE PUZZLES WILSON

$100,000,000 Additional Will Be Needed This Year.

MEXICAN CRISIS IS COSTLY.

Unexpected Drain on Treasury Will Cause Congress to Change Its Plans. Leaders Are Opposed to Issuing Bonds or Selling the Panama Canal Paper That the Government Holds.

While the military authorities of the country are struggling to mass additional troops on the Mexican border, congress is confronted with a serious question of where the money is to come from with which to finance the operations. The cost is to be staggering. This is the one clear fact that stands out of the whole situation.

Since congress convened in December it has been spending money at the rate of approximately $10,000,000 a day. Up to date the total appropriations aggregate in the neighborhood of $1,500,000,000. This enormous sum will be increased heavily before adjournment.

As is entirely natural, the greater part of this vast expenditure is directly and indirectly due to the upbuilding of the military establishments. Never in the history of the country have such heavy sums been appropriated for the army and navy. The sea forces especially will be strengthened to a degree never yet authorized by a previous congress. Not only is this true in the number of ships voted, but the expenditures will be made in three years instead of five, as had been contemplated.

The cost of reorganizing and strengthening the army also will be heavy, and in consequence congress was compelled to appropriate heavy sums for this work. Because of the reorganization greater supplies of field guns, aeroplanes, ammunition and other military impedimenta were necessary. In fact, increases over the original estimates ran the gamut of the entire army bill.

The house ways and means committee, which has been struggling with the revenue bill that is expected to turn into the treasury a golden stream to meet the congressional demand, is in a quandary. Chairman Kitchin and his subcommittee had drafted a measure calculated to produce in revenue $240,000,000. Now it is found that because of the unprecedented appropriations, much of them due to the Mexican crisis, an additional $100,000,000 must be saddled on the bill in order that the treasury may be on the safe side of the situation.

As a result the leaders in the capitol are busily engaged in scuttling to conference at the White House and treasury department. President Wilson is fully alive to the political necessity of solving the financial situation before the campaign gets under way. In seeking for this solution the chief executive and his advisers find themselves on the horns of a dilemma.

The revenue bill proposes to raise the necessary funds largely through direct taxation, a method that in the past had not been popular with the American people. On the other hand, the administration recognizes that a bond issue to meet the expenditures would be politically unwise. The suggestion that a block of Panama canal bonds held in the treasury be released and thrown upon the market does not meet with the president's favor. The administration is said to feel that the public effect would be the same as though "war bonds" were issued directly.

All in all, out of the turmoil and aggravation of present international and domestic problems arises the one question:

"Where is the money coming from to meet the cost?"

WILL TATTOOED ON HIS BACK.

Coroner Finds Man's Body Covered With Fantastic Designs.

While performing an autopsy over George Ballantyne Hood, who died at Pittsburgh, Deputy Coroner McKinley found the will of Hood tattooed on his back. Deeply imprinted in the skin the will read:

"All my earthly possessions I bequeath to my beloved mother."

Hood's entire body, with the exception of his face, hands and feet, was tattooed with pictures of women, dogs, horses and other designs. It had taken seven years, and Hood had told friends that he suffered agony during the needlework. He visited every circus that came to Pittsburgh and each time had a new picture cut into his skin.

PLENTY OF HORSES AVAILABLE

Thousand a Week if Not Too Particular, Says Expert.

There will be no lack of horses for the United States army, said a New York horse dealer. Although the cream of the country's horse supply has undoubtedly been gobbled up by the British, French and Italian governments, he says many thousands are available for army service.

The war department recently asked for bids on 46,000 horses and 20,200 mules, under rigid specifications which will make it impossible, some horse dealers think, to provide the animals in many months. But if these specifications are not adhered to rigidly it is believed horses can be supplied at the rate of about 1,000 a day.

TALKS ON POWER—No. 8

Using 2200 H. P.

Public Service Electric Co., Passaic, N. J.

Gentlemen:

We find upon looking over our records that we have used your current for the last two years, with very satisfactory results, and have from time to time increased our load until we now have a maximum capacity of about 2200 H. P.

Very truly yours,
THE MANHATTAN RUBBER MFG. COMPANY,
(Sgd) A. F. Townsend, President.

Our experience has shown that very few manufacturers know the actual cost per horse-power hour of the power used in their respective factories

—Because they do not know the average load of their plant.

Naturally, the smaller the average load the greater will be the investment and operating costs per horse-power hour.

Carefully collected data proved that the average load in 164 factories was 34.5 per cent. of the total load.

In 51 machine shops the average load was 34 per cent.

In 64 wood-working plants the average load was 33 per cent.

In 17 sheet metal working shops the average load was 27 per cent.

Of 53 different groups totaling 912 factories, each group representing a specific kind of manufacturing, 16 groups (132 factories) had an average load of 25 per cent. or less.

—And seven of the groups (totaling 74 factories) had an average load of less than 20 per cent.

Only two of the groups (8 factories out 912) had an average load of 50 per cent. or more.

The fact that most factories have a small average load is one of the reasons why more than 10,000 power users are buying power from our great system of 22 generating stations and 61 sub-stations.

Some of these customers are among the largest power users in the State; for instance:

Edison Storage Battery Co.	3953 H. P.
Lewis Nixon	3884 "
The Manhattan Rubber Mfg. Co.	2200 "
Armstrong Cork Co.	1000 "

All have an abundant supply of power day or night.

And many letters from satisfied customers proclaim the "satisfactory service" and "prompt attention" that these customers have received.

You may be able to increase your profits by purchasing our power. Why not know?

THERE IS NOTHING IN LEAGUE NAMES

Titles Are Misleading, Very Few Players Being Properly Placed.

Speaking of "misnomers" reminds us of the fact that the City League is full of them. Beginning with the Netherwood, League leaders, let us consider "who's who." As far as residing in Netherwood is concerned, very few of the members of the East End team really belong to the squad. Earl Moran, Lou Slocum, Brandt, Brezza, Hannon and Johnson are all non-residents of Netherwood.

The Tabs are next on the list. Benny Rosenson and "Shakey" Clarke are not Tabs and there is very little chance of their ever being members of that society. Jim Nash and "Tush" Jaeger never were members of Hope Chapel and Andy McDonough is not a Baptist. As far as the Farmers are concerned, only one of them is a "real" Farmer. He is Billy Ryan. There may be other "farmers" on the team, but if there are, we do not know them. Comment on the Dunellen team will have to be dispensed with. There are only one or two members of the Dunellen team that reside in Dunellen, but as that team was, until recently, the Clinton Avenue club, it is unjust to declare that a "misnomer" exists in its ranks.

—Until you have canvassed the readers of this newspaper on the matter, do not decide whether or not this may be a "poor time to sell" that property.

AUTHOR OF "ONCE TO EVERY MAN"

Copyright, 1915, by THE H. K. FLY COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.—Stephen O'Mara, a homeless and friendless boy, starting from the wilderness to see the city, is welcomed to the home of Caleb Hunter and his sister Sarah. Stephen meets Barbara Allison, young and rich, and Caleb gives him a home. Barbara ridicules Stephen, who runs away, declaring that he'll come back when worthy of her. Caleb learns that Stephen was well born. Ten years later Stephen returns, still loving Barbara, and learns she is to wed Archibald Wickersham. She tells Stephen his love is hopeless. Her father and Wickersham plan to block the railroad's completion and discredit O'Mara. Harrigan, a malcontent, is driven away by O'Mara and threatens revenge. Garry Devereau, an inebriate whom Stephen reforms, learns through Stephen that Miriam Burrell, Barbara's closest friend, is in love with him.

CHAPTER XV.

I'm Telling You Goodby.

IT was fully an hour after Fat Joe and Garry had rolled themselves up in their blankets when Steve, who had elected to sit up for one last pipe even though his body was aching with fatigue, heard behind him the approach of her footsteps. Outside at the top of the rise some fifty yards in front of the tents he had seated himself on a log, chin buried in one palm and eyes vacantly steady before him. But even before he turned, before he rose slowly to his feet, he knew who was coming, knew and realized that she should not have come. Wrapped in a long heavy coat, face half hidden by the upturned collar, bare of head, Barbara came quietly down to where he waited. And without word of greeting on the part of either of them they sat down together, facing the silvered bowl of the valley.

Time passed before Barbara opened her lips for a long, quivering intake of breath.

"I never dreamed it could be so big," she murmured in awe. "And then to think that some day—within a few months in reality—engines will go screeching their signals across the very place. It doesn't seem possible; it seems almost a shame to spoil it too."

"I've felt that way about it often," Steve answered almost dully. "I like it better myself as it is. It does appear to be a long way ahead, doesn't it—that day of completion which you cover in the screech of the whistles? Only today when we were scrambling about down there in the alders it took nearly all the imagination I possessed to see two streaks of steel where there is nothing but thicket now. But as for the bigness of it"—he laughed deprecatingly—"it isn't so very big, you know. It's just a—a mean sort of proposition."

"To me," Barbara said—"to me it is colossal! Why, I thought the work at Morrison seemed complicated and tangled enough, but there—there isn't even a beginning or an ending here. There's nothing but woods and water."

She pointed out across the valley toward a moundlike outline yellow under the moon; pointed into the north and asked another question.

"Is that part of the embankment?" she wanted to know. "Is that the direction in which Mr. Wickersham's timber lies?"

The man nodded.

"Just a few miles up through that notch," he told her. "That's the end of the rail bed which we have been building along the river edge."

Her next words made him start and then try to cover that moment with a readjustment of his long body.

"I'm going up there tomorrow. Mr. Wickersham has asked me to ride with him in the morning." She waited a moment or two. "That—that's why I came out here tonight. We'll be going back to town the next day or two, and I wanted to have a chance to bid you goodby before I left Morrison for the winter."

He had known that she would not be likely to remain in the hills much longer. He had realized that each day which he checked off, always hopeful that the next might open the way for him to see her again, was steadily bringing nearer the date of her departure. But he had not let himself think that it would come so soon. There was no doubt this time about the heaviness of his voice.

"I see," he said. "I see."

There came a long silence. Rising out of it, Barbara's voice sounded very, very little.

"I've never known a sky in which the stars were so clear. They're like a field of buttercups. And have you ever seen such an irrepressibly happy creature as Miriam was tonight? She was radiant, positively shameless. Did you know that Garry knows"—

"I told him myself," said Steve simply.

The girl faced around in her surprise.

"You?"

"Most certainly. Why not?" His voice was not quite so unenthusiastic now. "It's one of the few unmistakable opportunities I've ever had to make two people permanently as happy as Miriam was tonight. I'd feel guilty all my life if I didn't help all I could, knowing how happy I am going to be myself."

Thus did he work around, quite without abruptness, to a renewal of that discussion which she had thought to close weeks before.

"Are you trying to infer that I am to be a part of that happiness?" she asked none too promisingly.

"You ought to know. I said 'all my life.'"

And there suddenly Barbara laughed.

"I suppose now they'll marry and live happily ever after!" she exclaimed, with an attempt at airiness.

"Most certainly," asserted Steve, although her mirth puzzled him. "Why is it funny to you?"

"It isn't, but—yes, it is too, now that it's no longer a thing one need worry about. That's always the trouble with emotions which are too intense. They're either very sad to contemplate or very, very absurd. And they will persist in exchanging faces, to the confusion of the onlookers. Garry was so dangerously in love with Mary Graves, you see."

"He was in love with an idea," the man contradicted flatly. "He was in love with just that. And it is not safe for any man to live alone with an abstract conception of anything. He's bound sooner or later to lose his grip on tangible things if he does. He's likely to start destroying property to further the cause of labor or liable to turn to shooting men who were born to jobs. I'm certain some of them never wanted—kings and that sort, I mean—figuring on solving the social problems of men and women who must solve that problem themselves. Perfection is a fine thing to anticipate; expectations of it are dangerous. And women aren't made that way."

"No?" Her voice slid coolly upward.

"No," he told her and smiled with that serenity she had come to know so well. "Not even you, though I suppose I'd about annihilate any one else if he ever hinted at it." He chose to be didactic in tone. "No, you're not perfect. You've too much intelligence for that. Why, right now you're fighting with your brain against the dictates of your heart, and if you were above mortal error in judgment you'd know that you are wasting your time."

"Your opinion has the merit of sincerity," she said, "although, looking back upon a—a certain day, I can't help but wonder whether you haven't been guilty of mouthing pretty nothings for my poor ears."

"That proves my point right now." He was imperturbable. "You're begging the question to gain"—

"You said"—she flashed and then grew red.

"I said I'd let you ask no pardon of me. I said I'd let myself find no flaw in you. But how does that embarrass my present argument? Flawless perfection would be a mighty difficult thing to live with day in and day out. Living with a woman who never made a mistake could have no appeal for me. She'd always be emphasizing my own shortcomings. You become consistent and you'll catch me yawning some day; grow logical and you'll almost scare me off! Why, you're a girl!"

Her laughter was like a bell on the still air.

"And you—you still sit there and insist that perfection has no attraction for you? When you've just described without knowing it the—the sort of a girl you think is perfect."

His lips curled in a way to quicken any woman's pulse.

"You have me beaten," he laughed. His eyes, dark as was the shadow upon his face, made her breath unsteady. "I would like to watch you play poker with Fat Joe. Your game would puzzle him more than a little. Yes, you've surely left me without a leg on which to hobble off, because it would be small spirited in me, wouldn't it, if I were to tell you that you are the exception that makes my general rule hold sound? I wouldn't, however, prescribe such a degree of perfection for any other man's daily diet. It would prove his destruction."

"Your own superiority, of course, rendering you immune?"

"Maybe." At least, whether she knew it or not, she loved his serenity. "Maybe—and maybe I'm an exception too."

He sat very still. She had turned away once more.

"You'll be back again in the spring?" he asked with that gentleness he saved for her alone.

"I hope—I think so." The smallness of her voice angered her. She feigned a short, carefree laugh. "Unless I am too busy. Getting married seems to become a more and more complicated problem of proper costuming, doesn't it, with every passing season?"

She couldn't have told why she said it. She was trying to think of something else to say which would be kinder by far. And then, half lifting her, he had swung her around to him. For a moment he held her, face close to that small, frightened face buried in its deep collar, while she struggled uselessly against those hard arms, which tried not to hurt her. Her lips continued to rebel long after her eyes had closed—long after body and brain were quiescent.

"You mustn't!" she gasped. "Oh, I can't let you—the moon—we—we're sure to be seen!"

His lips on hers silenced that last incoherent resistance. She sat, wavy brown head bowed, when he had set her free.

"I was going to ask you not to forget!" There was no weariness now in his voice. "I had planned to ask you just that a little ago, and it would have been a weak and useless request, wouldn't it? Any man who has to beg to be remembered is not the sort to remain long in any woman's brain. So I have taught you to remember instead. You aren't going to forget ever now! You're coming back in the spring, and you're coming to stay! And now I'm telling you goodby. It's time you were asleep."

He helped her to her feet. Together they turned—and Archibald Wickersham, full to gauntness in the moonlight, was coming across toward them from the direction of the cabin. The girl's slim body stiffened, but Steve saw her chin come up. His own body grew lazier still it seemed in length and limb.

Wickersham's approaching steps were crisply precise. He stopped an arm's length in front of them, and his words were an echo of that last sentence of Steve's.

"It's time you retired," he said, ignoring the other man's presence entirely. "It's cold, and you have a long, hard ride ahead of you tomorrow."

For a barely perceptible moment, with the eyes of both men upon her, Barbara kept her place. Neither of them saw that her teeth were tightly closed over one full lip; neither knew that she had closed her eyes dizzily for an instant. And then without a word she put her hand upon the arm which Wickersham offered her. But Steve, on the other side, walked with her that night as far as the door of the storehouse shack. Miriam herself opened the door and snatched Barbara within and then laughed with her consummate impudence into both men's faces.

"G'lang, wid ye's now," she flung at them, "an' quit disturbin' dacint folks that likes to sleep o' nights!"

She slammed the door upon them.

They stood there a second or two, Wickersham an inch or more taller and inches narrower in shoulder and girth of chest. Perfunctorily they nodded each to the other and wheeled silently upon their heels.

It was the next evening when Barbara re-entered the house beyond the hedge. There was a streak of light running out across the floor of the dim hall from within, and the girl lingered on her hurried way to her own room to bid her father good night. But she found Wickersham alone when she pushed wider the door. The light was behind him, and she could not see how distorted was his face, yet as she paused on the threshold and a thin and pungent odor crinkled her nostrils she sensed somehow that he had not been long alone.

"Father gone to bed?" she called. "Well, that's wise. You'd better come, too; it's time you were asleep."

She did not remember just then that other night when he had addressed those same words to her. She only knew that his features became suffused with purple even before she had finished. And then she realized quickly that it was alcohol she smelled; knew, too, that it was not Wickersham who had been drinking, even though Wickersham had trouble with his tongue. And while she waited, puzzled and frowning, the man gave up an attempt at his usual nicety of phrase and blurted out all that which had been many days hidden behind his impassivity.

"We haven't yet set a certain date for our marriage, Barbara." His voice was strained. "Don't you think it is high time we did?"

The girl colored. It was, at least, very unexpected.

"Why, no, we haven't," she admitted. "But we can if you wish. Have you thought of a day you'd prefer?"

"I have," he stated. "Would the first day of May be too early for you?"

Often afterward she wondered at her humility of that night, for whatever quick thought might have been which made her reach out one hand to touch the door frame beside her her words were merely mild.

"It is rather. But I think I can manage it if it will please you."

Wickersham had come to his feet, but he would not turn so that she might see his face. He spoke with eyes averted.

"It would," he answered with an effort, "and—and in the interim I am going to be very sure now that no thoughtlessness of yours will be derogatory either to my profound respect for you or your own respect for yourself."

The small hand closed then until it was clutching whitely the woodwork beneath it. She understood at last how much Wickersham had seen; she was never to understand entirely her mood of that moment, for had she waited she would have left him with finger tingless. Instead, she wheeled without a word and climbed, white lipped, upstairs.

"YOU MUSTN'T!" SHE GASPED. "OH, I CAN'T LET YOU—THE MOON—WE'RE SURE TO BE SEEN!"

CHAPTER XVI.

Some Letters and a Reply.

HER letter came to him a week later, though she had posted it the morning she took the train from Morrison. It had lain for days in the postoffice box of the East Coast company, waiting the day when one of the teamsters should call and carry it in overland. Steve had never before seen her handwriting. It was his first letter from her, yet he recognized it the instant Big Louie put it in his hand. And he was glad that night that both Fat Joe and Garry were absent from the up river camp—glad that he was to have the next hour alone. But when he broke the flap of it Big Louie, who lingered uneasily in the open doorway—even Big Louie, whose wits were not particularly keen—knew from the expression which passed over his superior's face that this heavy envelope which he had brought had not contained good news. The quick contraction of muscles which tightened his jaw was too much like a spasm of pain. For her first letter, so the sentence ran, was to be her last. She wrote "less kindly than she would have wished to write" that she and Mr. Wickersham had decided upon the 1st of May, and after the silence had become a throbbing thing Big Louie decided instinctively that he would let go until later the demand which he had planned to make for a raise to meet that raise which, so he had heard it gossiped in town, was being paid the men in the northern lumber camps. He stumbled going out and lost his balance, so that the door crashed to behind him violently. But Steve stood as he had stood when his eyes sought the first line of her note, nor did the crash penetrate his ears.

Repeatedly in the interval which had elapsed since she had bidden him goodby the latter had told himself that she would not write, but the repetition had been unconvincing. He knew that now. With the note which smelled faintly of her there in his hand he realized that he had gone beyond mere expectation of a letter; he had dared to hope concerning its contents. How was he to know that she, too, after mailing it had suffered as keenly as he was suffering that moment, wishing that she had employed less abrupt phrases, rebelliously regretting that she had sent it at all?

That night his fingers closed until the monogrammed sheet was reduced to a crumpled ball. The edges of the paper took fire slowly; then it exploded softly into flame upon the bed of coals in the fireplace where he had tossed it. And at that he laughed aloud, a harsh taunt for his own high hopes, without thinking how much his mirth of that moment was like what Garry's once had been. He lowered himself into a chair, and he was still there, motionless before a dead fire, when morning dawned grayly. His face had become less hard; he even found it possible to smile a little when the cook boy, starting at the sight of him fully dressed at that hour, advised with alarmed volubility that breakfast would be ready immediately. But the few men who still remained at Thirty Mile, felling and hauling the piles which were to carry the track across the swamp, noticed a difference in their chief that morning which made them careful to hear him the first time he spoke an order.

Barbara did not write again, and in this at least the man who loved her anticipated her correctly. The letters, however, which Garrett Devereau received each day from Miriam—bulky, extra postage epistles—brought often news of her. And these fragments Garry, knowing without being told for whom they were meant, duly delivered to Steve, in weekly or fortnightly installments, whenever the latter's duties brought him to Morrison, for Garry and Fat Joe, who had been transferred to the lower end of the work, along with the bulk of the up river force, had noticed that difference too.

"Miriam says for me to keep my feet dry this cold weather," he'd tell the other man laughingly, "and Barbara sends her regards to all of us and hopes that we are making splendid headway." Or again: "Barbara's looking a little pale, Miriam writes. She says she's—er—trying to do altogether too much for her endurance."

Whatever the bit of news was Garry passed it on religiously, a little guiltily sometimes, because of his own great happiness. Once he had failed signally to read behind his friend's moody silences. His surmise concerning the reason for Steve's changed bearing was not so wide of the mark this time. Often within himself Garry's wrath seethed hot, but he was no longer as ready as he had once been with verbal, cynical criticism. Only to Fat Joe did he dare pour out his soul with that vivid incisiveness which always held Joe spellbound.

"He's eating his heart out over her," he'd explode, "over a girl who is proving every day that she isn't worth a minute's heartache of a man like him! I used to think she had brains if any of them did. I used to think that Barbara Allison was something besides a fluffy little fool! Why can't he see for himself that she's just as worthless as most of the rest of them?"

Before snow came that fall Steve had recovered his outward confidence at least. He had begun to hope again while he waited and labored prodigiously against the coming of spring. But in his heart he was no longer sure. He could not summon back that serene self surety which toward the end had shaken even the girl's certainty in herself. He could no longer argue convincingly with a vision of her as he had often argued with Barbara herself, that his way would be her way in the end, for he had begun to realize the width of that gulf which he knew must seem to exist between them, if not to her then to the eyes of others of her world.

It was his memories which gave him consolation those long nights, but they also gave him doubt. Remembered the daintiness of her as she had come to him the night of her party, recalling the things to which she had been accustomed since she had opened her eyes on the first light of day, he began to ask himself, as every man he had asked who ever loved a woman, how in any fairness he could expect her to accept the little which he could offer in return. To Steve and Fat Joe, to the men of his gang, his confidence was that of the old, old Steve who ten years before had cocked his head at one of Allison's switch engines and promised gravely, "I'll hev to be gittin' one of them for myself some day." But his heart ached, and when that ache became so leaden that he couldn't endure it any longer in silence he carried it to the one person in his life who was best calculated to understand. Diffidently he broached the subject with Miss Sarah, approaching it in a roundabout fashion least likely to deceive that bright eyed little lady.

The upset of it was that Miss Sarah dispatched a letter to Barbara.

"Barbara, dear child," she wrote, "this is the appeal of a lonesome spinster lady who finds that winter, still only a lusty infant here, is the season for younger, warmer pulses. I am very tired of Caleb's continued company—that is, with nothing to leaven it. The keenest of epigrammarians, my dear, becomes very commonplace, you know, to ears too long tuned to one voice. So I am writing you in dignified desperation to come to me this holiday season. Caleb is not always as epigrammatic as I could wish. I am going to be positive that you will come unless you have already made other plans. And, on second thought, if you have already done so I am going to fall back upon the privileged tyranny of one who once carried you in her arms. You must come to me this Christmas!"

There was another whole paragraph of rambling, repeated arguments and then a full page devoted to the beauties of the hills and season.

"The days are diamond brilliant," she wrote, "and the nights as dryly cold and crisp as Caleb's few last cherished bottles of champagne. We have a foot of snow, two feet in the ell of the house where the mint bed lies, and that has afforded Caleb much peace of mind too. The roots will live nicely under their warm blanket, you see—all of which must read frivolously to you, coming from stodgy Miss Sarah. I can only plead that already I must be less lonely for anticipation of your arrival. Are you well? You will find new roses for your cheeks in this climate. And you may telegraph your acceptance this once if you are too busy to write, although you know I deplore the lack of those punctilios which are made of all custom and etiquette a most charming thing."

It was signed "Yours, my dear, Sarah Hunter."

There was a quaint twist to the letter "S," sharp angles in the chirography which a newer decade of femininity might have found sadly lacking in a largeness of loops now indispensable as indication of "character." And there was a postscript, of course.

"Stephen O'Mara has been several times to dinner since your departure. He is working very hard, but most successfully, I am sure, for he appears to be very happy. He is thinner than he was, but who could have guessed that the boy he was would grow to be such a handsome man! Men with eyes like his and such voices used to break the hearts of susceptible maids when I was sixteen. Do come! S. H."

She read it aloud from beginning to end, nor did she falter much when Caleb greeted the postscript with a shout of joy. Caleb was most high spirited those days, for the line in regard to the progress of Steve's work was in truth an made statement if anything, even though the assurance of his happiness had been called a misconstruction of fact.

"What [illegible] of it?" his sister [illegible] she had finished [illegible]

"If you [illegible] rich her, I can [illegible] indeed, he [illegible] you feel posi[illegible] you are? [illegible] always in[illegible] rather easy to [illegible]

[illegible] Sarah. Het [illegible] remember [illegible] painting [illegible] sweep with it [illegible]

"I'm delighted at the prospect of getting away from town for a week," she closed as she had opened her reply—"delighted at Mr. O'Mara's splendid success. Last night I overheard father telling some business associates that he would one day be the biggest power in the north country unless something happened to check him soon. That was very flattering, wasn't it? It will make you very proud, I know. Tell Mr. O'Mara I wished to be recalled to him. As I have already warned you in this letter, father insists on coming with me. I think he must be a little tired of the city himself, for he is very restless. And remind Uncle Cal that I am to have the wishbone or I will not come at all!"

This reply Miss Sarah also read aloud to her brother in a voice that was not quite Christian, however, for it was gloating in tone.

"There!" she breathed. "And, Cal, aren't you ashamed sometimes to have your judgment so often refuted by a mere woman?"

Caleb had been reading in the Morrison Standard that the East Coast company had made unbelievable strides in its work in spite of many conspiring hard luck circumstances. He was frowning over that oddly veiled compliment of Allison's, which his daughter had so innocently repeated, but he was glad to hear that Dexter, too, planned to run up for the year end. He was a bit bored himself. Now he grinned over another thought.

"She fails to mention whether she ever noticed the color of his eyes"—he shoked a little—"or—or the heartbreaking quality of his voice. Maybe she hasn't noticed 'em yet herself, eh?"

Miss Sarah went upstairs to her desk, and she wrote two letters that night before she retired. One went to Barbara. The other had not so far to travel, but it was longer in reaching its destination.

Here's to a Safe and Sane Fourth

Insist on having a safe and sane Fourth for the children—no dangerous fire crackers, rockets or matches. Be equally particular that the youngsters eat only "safe and sane" ice cream.

This Fourth make it yourself in one of the famous Alaska Freezers. It is the open-spoon dasher in these freezers, whipping air into every particle of the cream, which makes ice cream frozen in Alaska Freezers so wonderfully delicate and smooth.

And, making it yourself, you will have the satisfaction of knowing that it is absolutely pure.

An Alaska Freezer will last a lifetime. But be sure it is an Alaska.

We also have on hand the White Mountain and North Star Freezers.

RUSSIANS AGAIN GAIN IN DRIVE WHILE THE FRENCH AND ENGLISH HOLD GROUND TAKEN DAYS AGO

RIGA FRONT SCENE OF A TREMENDOUS OFFENSIVE THAT IS SWEEPING AUSTRIANS BACK FOR MILES.

ALL QUIET DURING NIGHT ON SOMME RIVER

Germans Continue to Advance in Volhynia, Says Austrian Statement—England Seizes All Hides in Empire—Steamer Taken by Germany Held as a Prize of War.

London, July 7.—The Russians have begun a tremendous offensive on the Riga front, where their artillery is destroying the German trenches, says a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Vienna, via Copenhagen. The bombardment, the dispatch adds, lasted twenty-four hours, and the Germans were helpless before the Russian artillery, which can now fire fifty shells as against one in 1914.

Russian armies in southeastern Galicia are now within ten miles of both Stanislau and Nadvorna and are pressing their advance westward despite increasingly stubborn Austrian resistance. The Austrian force that evacuated Mikuliczyn, giving the Russians command of an important railway, are now retiring southward toward the Carpathian mountains.

Continued progress of the German offensive in Volhynia is recorded in the Austrian official statement of July 3, issued in Berlin today.

Quiet on Somme Front.

Paris, July 7.—Quiet prevailed last night on both sides of the Somme River, says today's War Office statement.

The artillery of both sides was active on the left and right banks of the Meuse, especially on the Thiaumont earthwork and in the Fleury and Chenois section.

A small German attack on the French trenches at the Le Pretre woods failed.

German aeroplanes yesterday dropped bombs on the open town of Lure, killing eleven persons, all of whom except one were women or children. Two German machines were brought down near Mezieres.

Germans Seize English Ship.

Berlin, July 7.—Official announcement was made today that the British steamship Lestris was held up by German warships near the English coast and seized as a prize.

England Takes All Hides.

London, July 7.—All stocks of sole leather, whether of English or imported hides, have been commandeered by the government. Private dealings without Army Council consent are prohibited.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MRS. HANNAH E. HAZEN

Unable to Overcome the Shock Caused by the Demise of Her Daughter.

Mrs. Hannah Elizabeth Hazen, widow of Charles P. Hazen, passed away at her home, 810 Franklin place, yesterday afternoon, her death being due to shock over the sudden demise of her daughter, Mrs. Albert R. Sampson, which occurred on June 13. Her illness began at that time and rapidly became critical.

Mrs. Hazen was born in Dutchess county, New York, being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hewlett Peters, of that place, whose families were among the early settlers on Long Island. Mrs. Hazen was graduated from what was then known as the Newburg Female Seminary and her early life was spent in New York and Brooklyn.

Removing to Plainfield in the early 70's, Mrs. Hazen continued to reside in Plainfield up to the time of her death. She was a member of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, and a devout Christian woman. There survives one son and three daughters.

The funeral will be held at the late home Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, and will be in charge of Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, and Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church. The burial will be private at the convenience of the family.

The annual campfire of the Probasco Bible class will be held at Washington Rock tomorrow night. The party will leave the Y. M. C. A. at 5:30 in auto trucks. A fine program has been prepared. It is expected that 150 will enjoy the affair.

VACATION BIBLE SCHOOLS.

Philadelphia, July 7.—Plans were completed today by the Philadelphia Daily Vacation Bible schools to accommodate nearly 25,000 children in the classes for the season of 1916, which will be started next Monday. According to those interested in the movement the daily Bible schools have reached their highest development in this city. Eighteen colleges contribute teachers, money and supplies to the work and fourteen denominations co-operate with it. Its wide range may be judged from the fact that among the schools there are five for Hungarian and Magyar children, twelve for Italian, ten for negroes and eighten for Jewish boys and girls.

Mrs. W. L. Wright, of Plainfield, is spending a few days in New York and is stopping at the Wolcott Hotel.

CHARLES HURTT, JR., DIES IN NEW YORK

Last Member of Deeply Afflicted Family Succumbs After Five Operations.

Charles Hurtt, Jr., the three-and-a-half-year-old son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hurtt, former well known residents of this city, died in the Willard Parker Hospital, on Sixteenth street, New York city, Wednesday night. Within the last eight weeks the young lad had been in three hospitals and had had five operations all of which were pronounced successful. After his operation in the Jersey City Hospital he developed pneumonia and was removed to the Bellevue Hospital, New York. At this hospital he recovered sufficiently to be allowed to go to the home of relatives, but on the day of his departure it was found that a case of whooping cought and measles had developed. He was hurriedly removed to the Willard Parker Hospital, and his death followed after a brief illness.

The death of the boy removes the last member of the Hurtt family, four deaths following one another within the last nine months. Last October, the father, Charles Hurtt, died suddenly in Asbury Park, where he was one of the most valued members of the Life Saving Corps, and known to thousands along the Jersey Coast. Closely following the death of the father, Evelyn Hurtt, the nine-months-old daughter died, and on June 3, Mrs. Hurtt passed away, the diagnosis being that she had died of a broken heart.

Owing to the many cases of infantile paralysis developed in New York within the last few days, much difficulty has been experienced in getting the body to this city. It is expected here this afternoon and interment will be made immediately in Hillside cemetery. Mrs. L. C. Hurtt, the grandmother of the child, is at present living with Miss Mary Brown, of Washington avenue.

THE REV. JONES IN CHARGE.

The Rev. W. Northey Jones, rector of St. Peter's church, Perth Amboy, will be in charge of the Sunday services at Grace Episcopal chuch, during this month and in case anyone desires the services of a clergyman during that time he can be reached at the rectory, at Perth Amboy, or any of the clergymen of this city have kindly consented to respond to calls from this parish. All these clergymen can be reached by 'phone.

RACING HORSE HERE.

"Light Brigade," the crack English racing stallion, bought from Lord Derby by J. N. Camden for a price said to be $50,000, arrived in New York on the Minnehaha today.

NEW YORK CHILDREN HAVE BEEN EXAMINED

Visitors at Fresh Air Home Are Healthy, Declare Local Authorities.

To allay any fear regarding the bringing of over 300 children from New York, where there is an epidemic of infantile paralysis, to the Netherwood Fresh Air Home, the Board of Health states that the children were not only thoroughly examined before leaving the city, but have again been examined here by Dr. Norman W. Currie, the city physician. The latter told a reporter for The Plainfield Daily Press today that all of the children were found to be healthy and free from any suspicion of the dread disease.

The children now at the home do not live in a district where infantile paralysis is now prevalent. Miss Sara Curry, the matron, personally knows each child and his home conditions and every precaution has been taken against any spread of the disease.

It is the belief of the health authorities that other children have been brought to Plainfield from infected districts and it is this condition that the authorities are watching closely. Thus far not a single suspicious case has been found. Dr. B. D. Evans, medical director of the State Hospital, at Morris Plains, is also taking steps to prevent the spread of the disease and today issued a notice that children will not be allowed to visit the hospital, and parents and relatives accompanied by children will be denied admission during the epidemic.

EXTENSION OF TROLLEY SYSTEM IS SOUGHT

Business Men's Ass'n Send Resolution to the Public Service Corporation.

The Plainfield Business Men's Association is again agitating the question of the extension of the trolley from this city to South Plainfield, claiming that as there are several hundred men transported between the two points every day, there is a great need for the improvement. This condition is due largely to the big force of men employed at the Spicer plant in South Plainfield.

The association at its meeting Wednesday night adopted a resolution urging the Public Service Corporation to extend its line. This was sent to the company's officials yesterday.

The question of the merchants keeping their shops open the night before a holiday was discussed at some length, and it is proposed to definitely settle the matter at the next meeting.

The annual "Dollar Day" sale will be held on August 30, Adolph Tepper, John Laing and Isaac Schwed being named as a committee to take charge of the details. Samuel Rothberg stated that more adequate fire protection is needed in the business section and three more fire plugs are required. Councilman Charles S. Sminck, who was present, offered to bring the matter before the councilmanic fire and building committee. He also explained that the question of establishing a public comfort station is being considered.

JUDGE NEWCORN'S AUTO STILL IN GARAGE

Judge William Newcorn, whose big six-cylinder Studebaker took a backward plunge into the waters of the Rahway river at Dover on the Fourth of July, has not yet received his car, which was reported as having been extricated from the water, none the worse for its wetting. Mr. Newcorn stated that morning that he considers it very fortunate that the occupants of the car were not taken with it into the river and that he is thankful that the slight damage done was to the car and not to anyone either nearby or in it.

The Judge and his party were on their way to Dover, where he was scheduled to make an oration. The road leading to the park, in which the day's celebration was to be held, led along the banks of the river. The roadway was not wide and terminated in a sharp incline. The engine of the Studebaker stalled while ascending this hill, owing to the fact that the incline caused the gasoline to flow back to a place where it was unavailable. After one or two unsuccessful attempts to ascend the hill, the car decided that it was much easier to go backwards. This it did, diving into the river as calmly as a life guard. A gang of workmen later extricated it. Meanwhile, the Judge, who had deserted the car as soon as it got beyond his control, together with his party went on to the celebration.

KILLED BY SHARK AT SPRING LAKE

Plainfielders Witness Thrilling Battle Far Out From Beach.

BELLBOY IS THE VICTIM

No Danger Except to Those Who Venture Far Out From Shore—Motorboat Patrol Will Keep the Waters Safe.

Spring Lake, N. J., July 7.—Many Plainfielders yesterday afternoon witnessed the killing of a swimmer by a shark in the surf here. The vicious man eater's victim was a bellboy at the Essex and Sussex Hotel, who ventured out more than 100 yards from shore. The beach was lined with men and women when he was heard to scream for help and they witnessed his battle for life. Most of those in the Plainfield colony were among the spectators.

A Philadelphia man was killed by a shark off Beach Haven, near Atlantic City, about a week ago. Those are the only appearances "man eating" sharks have made in those waters. There always have been plenty of "blue nose" sharks, but they have been considered harmless.

The killing of Charles Bruden yesterday afternoon has caused intense excitement along the coast, and the resort owners fear that much damage will result to their business unless speedy steps are taken to rid the waters of the danger. With that end in view patrols already been been established by launches which make a loud exhaust noise. Those small craft have been assigned to run up and down the coast from 100 to 500 yards off shore, it being believed their noise will frighten the sharks away.

Bruder, seventeen years old, was a bellboy in the new Essex and Sussex Hotel here. He was a very strong swimmer and always went far out beyond the life lines. As he entered the water yesterday he stopped and talked with Captain White and Christopher Anderson, of the life saving station, about the Philadelphia man who had been killed by a shark. He said he was not afraid of sharks; that off Catalina Island, California, he had seen many and they always fled from bathers.

The boy was about 100 yards off shore when Captain White heard him cry for aid. He saw him go under the water twice and then come up, and those two times under the water proved to be when the shark took off his legs one at a time.

Captain White and other men who have been along the coast here most of their lives said last night there was very little danger from such sharks, except to the strong swimmers who go far out from shore. No matter how hungry or vicious a shark may be he never has been known to venture nearer than a hundred yards to the shore.

Bruder's home was in Switzerland. He came here only a few weeks ago when the Essex and Sussex was opened and is not known to have any relatives in this country.

U. S. ACCEPTS THE CARRANZA PROPOSAL

Note Will Be Handed to Ambassador Sometime This Afternoon.

Washington, July 7.—Secretary Lansing's note in reply to Carranza wil be handed to Senor Arrendondo directly after the Cabinet meeting. The note is expected to be brief and to contain an acceptance of the Carrana proposal for direct negotiations for settlement of the existing difculty.

BUSINESS MEN'S ASS'N DISCUSS SUMMER PLANS

The question as to whether the merchants shall close their shops on Thursdays during August is again being discussed and a committee from the Business Men's Association will report the result of a canvass at a special meeting to be held Monday night. Every year this matter comes up for discussion, there being many varied opinions. Some of the merchants close all day Thursday in August, while others close half a day and still others follow a different rule.

It seems as though some of the merchants would be willing to close every Thursday provided all would agree to such plan, but thus far no such agreement appears to be possible. Nearly all of the clerks are anxious that some definite policy be adopted by the merchants.

Dr. Sidney Titsworth, of Hillside avenue, has not gone to Atlantic Highland, as reported, but Mrs Titsworth is sojourning there. The doctor will not go away until later in the summer.

GUARDSMEN INJURED BY HIS OWN RIFLE

Major Corbusier Attends Camden Man Hurt When Gun Accidentally Goes Off.

(By Telegraph to the Press)

Troop C Headquarters, Douglas, Ariz.—Several of the Plainfielders with Troop C, of Newark, as well as the Newark boys, saw their first gunshot victim yesterday afternoon. While cleaning one of the troop's rifles in the tent provided for that purpose, William Newton, an eighteen year old guardsman with Battery B, of Camden, located near to this camp, accidentally pulled the trigger and the bullet went through his left knee.

Major Harold D. Corbusier, of Plainfield, took the injured man in charge and he was removed to the Field Hospital. After an examination by the major it was found that the injury was not a serious one and he was later transferred to the hospital of the Eighteenth Infantry.

All of the Plainfielders at the camp here are well and working hard. We have had considerable drilling and the heat has been intense during the day. The sun's rays fairly go through a person, but the nights are cool and we take refuge during the hot hours in the shade of the cactus and under our tent canopies. Major Corbusier continues to be one of the most popular men in camp, principally because of his knowledge of this country. He knows the lay of the land and has been frequently in conference with superior officers.

SEALS AND MANLEY LEAVE FOR DOUGLAS

Plainfield Boys Once Rejected Are Summoned to Field Hospital Corps.

Alfred Seals and Raymond Manley, two of the Plainfield boys who failed to pass the Federal examinations for border service last week, left for the First Field Hospital Corps' camp at Douglas, Arizona, yesterday, being summoned to that point by Major Harold D. Corbusier, of this city. Both Seals and Manley have been affiliated with the corps for several years and Seals was appointed orderly to Major Corbusier when the corp was mobilizing at Sea Girt.

When the medical examiners began their work of weeding out men for border service they eliminated Manley because of defective hearing and Seals because of small chest girth. Both were ordered to remain at Sea Girt, however, pending further orders and they stayed in camp until yesterday, when they boarded a Pennsylvania train for the Douglas headquarters.

Seals graduated from Plainfield High School this year and Manley was graduated in the class of 1912. They have taken an active interest in Major Corbusier's work and were considered valuable assets to the corps. Their elimination was unlooked for and came as a sad blow to the corps and its officers.

FUNERAL SERVICE OF MRS. ELIZA BARRETT HELD

The funeral of Mrs. Elizabeth Bagot Doane Barrett, of Brooklyn, whose death occurred on Wednesday at the home of her son, John Y. Barrett, of 31 Regent street, was held at the latter residence this morning at 10:30. The service was in charge of Rev. H. St. G. Burrill, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, and was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends. The flowers sent by relatives and friends of the family were especially beautiful, several handsome set pieces being included. Among the latter was a large piece sent by the Plainfield Fire Department, of which a brother of the deceased, T. O. Doane, is chief.

The interment was in Hillside cemetery, the following acting as pall bearers: John Y. Barrett, Thomas T. Barrett, of Plainfield; Ernest D. Barrett, of New York, three sons, and Burnett Doane and Clyde Doane, of this city, nephews, and Samuel Wygant, of Marlborough, N. Y.

PUBLIC KITCHENS IN BERLIN.

Amsterdam, July 7.—A complete system for the communal feeding of the population of Berlin is to be put into operation today, according to late advices from the German capital. During the past winter public kitchens for the feeding of the poor have been maintained and the plan of issuing tickets for staple articles of food had been steadily widened in scope to meet the necessities arising from the shortage of supply and consequent high prices. The new system will be carried out on a much more comprehensive scale and will provide for the daily distribution of food to practically all classes of the population. The distribution is to be made from public kitchens conveniently located in all sections of the city. The whole scheme, when completed, wil lcost $500,000.

HAM AND EGGS POPULAR WITH GUARDSMEN FROM THIS CITY; ENJOY STOPOVER PRIVILEGE

TROOPERS MAKE RAIDS ON RESTAURANTS AND ICE CREAM STORES WHEN ALLOWED SHORT STAYS IN WESTERN TOWNS.

REALIZE THEY ARE ON THE WAY TO DOUGLAS

Up to This Time Plainfielders Believed They Were Heading for El Paso—Captain Borden Conducting Spirited Contests on the Way—All Well and Happy.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press)

Weatherford, Okla., July 7, 11 a. m.—The Watchung Troop spent last night at Elreno in their cars after two hours of freedom in which they explored every nook of the town. They made a raid on the two restaurants of the town and had bought up all the ham and eggs available in a short time. The guardsmen appeared to have cultivated appetites for "H. and E." and when they went to bed last night there was not a slice of ham or single egg to be found in Elreno.

They were the guests of the townspeople earlier in the day and the Elreno residents saw to it that the Plainfielders and their Red Bank friends got a glimpse of everything worth seeing in the western towns.

While in Oklahoma City yesterday afternoon they were allowed a two hours' leave of absence and stampeded to the nearest drug store and cleaned up on the stock of ice cream and soda wafer. A contest was entered into to see which of the Plainfielders coulr drink the most soda but the scorekeeper lost tally when the clerk gave him water instead of lemon soda and at least six of the guardsmen claim the coveted title.

Captain Albert G. Borden is directing an oral contest, the novelty of which has greatly appealed to the men. The tests include questions on the use of arms and the squads figure as team. Sergeant Brown Rolston's men are leading the percentage ladder this morning but two other squads are dangerously near and the windup promises to be spirited. Sergeant Austin Andrews' team is the nearest to the leader and may pass it at the next meeting.

Yesterday was a busy day for all, recruit drills and tests on the manual of arms figuring prominently. In respect to rations the troop is doing excellently in view of the fact that plenty of good food is being provided by patriotic westerners along the route.

Sergeant Mellick's good management in the mess department is largely responsible for the general satisfaction among the troopers regarding the meals. There is a growing belief among the men that the destination of the troop is Douglas, Ariz., and not El Paso. Up to this time the men believed they were heading for the latter place but the partial assurance that they will go to Douglas comes as welcome news as they are anxious to see the other Plainfield boys now in Arizona.

(Special Letter to Press)

Louisville, Kentucky, 3 p. m., July 4.—We have just pulled out of here and are on our way after a good time in Louisville. Our next stop to feed and water the horses will be Nashville, Tenn., where we will arrive about noon tomorrow (Wednesday), going through Memphis. Last night we rolled into Dennison, Ohio, at 7:30 and were royally treated. Four thousand people with baskets full of all kinds of good things to eat lined the depot platform and passed through the train with pots of hot coffee. We spent a half hour in Dennison and the time we did not spend in eating we used to cheer the people who were our hosts.

We are now on regular war rations, bacon, beans, hard tack and coffee. Not very fancy but it tastes pretty fine to a hungry bunch like us. At Newark, Ohio, another great crowd was waiting for us at the station but we whizzed through there at a sixty-mile an hour clip and could just get a glimpse of a lot of disappointed faces and hear the strains of a brass band which they had out in our honor.

Arrived at Columbus, Ohio, at 11:30 p. m., Cincinnati 5 a. m. this morning, and Louisville at 10:15. We took the horses out and fed and watered them. Then followed a two-hour march and gun drill on the Louisville streets. Captain Borden was in command and we certainly made some hit with the natives. They turned out in droves and made so much noise that we couldn't hear a thing our commanding officers said, but we are all good guessers and pulled through it with colors flying, at least that's what they told us. Then we went to the railroad Y. M. C. A. and enjoyed a fine bath in the pool. After that they let us buy our own dinner in the Y. M. C. A. As none of us have had the honor of feeding ourselves out of our own pocket money since we left Plainfield it was quite a novelty. After lunch we rested in the Y. M. C. A. building for an hour. The greatest reception yet was at Dennison, Ohio.

Johnny Logan still holds down the office of "Troop waver," returning the salutes of the throngs along the track for the whole train. "Rookie" Bird is the hungriest man on the train. He just can't seem to get enough to eat and he's got us other troopers wondering what he does when home, where he gets but "three squares." On our way to Texas (or some place else) he is being fed every five minutes and they can't stop him from yelling. Ed Cady has been dubbed the general disturber. He finds more ways of annoying people than any other sane man on the face of the globe. We've threatened to hand him over to Villa the first time we meet the latter, that is, providing Bird is still with us when we get to Mexico. We've tried our hardest to loose him at every stop but he manages to stick.

"Doug" Stewart and Ogden Rogers are the champion sleepers of the troup. If it were not for an occasional mess call and bath promise both would sleep all the way from Manasquan to Texas. Even that confounded bugle of Warren Ackerman's won't wake them up.

Sergeant Mellick is the busiest man on the train. Hartley is the most popular fellow in Troop D, partly because he has charge of the "eats" and partly because of personality. As a kitchen sergeant he's got 'em all beaten to a frazzle and it's not his fault that Dick Bird is hungry.

Trooper Goodenough is keeping his eyes open for better "hotterheat" coal. He says he's seen some pretty good looking fuel in the distance but he's never been able to get near enough to it to see how much it would be worth to the natives back home.

"Bill" Williams has worn out the phrase, "I'm very tired." That's all he says from morning 'till night. He's different from Rogers and Stewart. They sleep when they're tired (and that's all the time) but Williams doesn't know enough to go to sleep and give us a little peace.

"Stump" Burr is on the job as usual getting in the way trying to help somebody else. At first we were half inclined to believe that "Stump" was in earnest when he went out of his way trying to help others, but now we've found out that he was looking for something easy all the time. Every time he has anything hard to do he looks around for somebody with an easy job and pounces on it, pretending he's helping the other fellow out.

Sergeant Andrews is spending all his stray coin for cigars. He's sampled cigars in every town we've stopped and tried so many brands that he is about ready to give up and take to a pipe.

Corporal Tyler has shaved at last. He did it this morning. Ever since leaving Manasquan the corporal has borne a strong resemblance to Rip Van Winkle. Every time the train stopped someone handed him a safety razor, but they couldn't insult him and he's now in posession of enough razors to start a store when he gets back home.

Fred Stevenson, the big noise comedian, is sore because the train makes more noise than he does. "Steve" has been up against it since we entrained. He says he read a lot of joke books while at Sea Girt, but hasn't had a chance to spring one of his big supply because of the train rumble and he's afraid he'll forget them all if we don't land in Texas pretty soon.

Sergeant Brewster, of late appointment, has taken to his new job like a German takes to beer. No one would ever suspect that he was once a common every day trooper.

Private Schultz says the work on the trip is hard but that it beats working for a living in Plainfield.

Sergeant Righter is writing a book. We've all been trying to guess the title and some of the most likely handles are: "Why the Men Left Home," "They Think We're Going to War But We're Fooling Them All," and "Sherlock Holmes Tips On How to Run Down Villa." During his spare moments he's collecting jokes for the Daily Press.

We're all in good spirits and anxious to get to the border. We've been talking a good deal of late about meeting our pals in Troop C, Newark, when we get to Douglas and hope they'll be able to rejoin us there.

BIG INCREASE IN NATIONAL BANKS

Number of Depositors Jumps 86 Per Cent In Six Years.

PENNSYLVANIA IN THE LEAD.

Reports 2,021,878 Depositors — New York, With 1,199,471, Second—Total of 14,288,059 In Entire Country—Other Statistics Show Prosperous Condition of Natien.

Comptroller Williams has given out a statement showing that there are 14,288,059 national bank depositors in the country, the number having increased 86 per cent since 1910.

Pennsylvania leads all the states in the number of depositors, reporting 2,021,878 as against 762,738 in 1910. New York shows the next largest number, 1,199,471.

Illinois comes third with 847,637 national bank depositors, an increase since 1910 of 376,910. Ohio ranks fourth in the number of national bank depositors with 791,760, an increase of 321,076 since 1910. Texas comes next with 658,774, an increase of 291,161. California follows with 529,290, an increase of 294,799.

The largest actual increase by geographical divisions was shown in the middle western states, which give an increase of 1,773,370 depositors, although the southern states lead in the largest percentage of increases. The number of depositors in the southern states June 30, 1910, was 1,272,746. On May 1, 1916, this had been increased to 2,814,508, the increase being 1,541,762, or 121 per cent.

The Pacific states increased 592,689, or 117 per cent. The New England states show an increase of 388,923, or 84 per cent. The western states increased 668,517, or 82 per cent, and the eastern states show an increase of 1,629,051 depositors, or 68 per cent.

Other Interesting Features.

Here are excerpts from the comptroller's statement:

Of the 14,288,059 deposit accounts in the national banks of the United States 355,339 are carried in the national banks of the central reserve cities of New York, Chicago and St. Louis; 1,778,809 are with the national banks in the other reserve cities, while the country banks report 12,203,551 depositors, or over 85 per cent of the total number.

Of the 14,288,059 deposit accounts 9,494,289, or 66 per cent, are demand deposit accounts. Of the 9,494,289 demand deposit accounts 1,498,945 draw interest: the remaining 7,995,244 demand depositors collect no interest.

In the three central reserve cities 78.9 per cent of all depositors are demand depositors. In the other reserve cities 66.6 per cent are demand depositors. In the country banks 66 per cent of the total deposit accounts are demand, the balance being on time.

The total number of deposit accounts on June 23, 1915, as reported by all the state banks (exclusive of mutual and stock savings banks) and by all loan and trust companies throughout the United States was 15,814,446. It is therefore seen that the national banks now have nearly as many deposit accounts as all the state banks above mentioned and all the loan and trust companies in the United States combined in June, 1915, the time these figures were last compiled in regard to them.

GERMANS BUILD SHIPS.

754,000 Tons In New Vessels Are Now Under Construction.

Herr Ballin, general manager of the Hamburg-American line, says his company is building the turbine ship Bismarck, of 56,000 tons, the world's greatest steamer; the Tirpitz, 30,000 tons, and three other vessels of 22,000 tons each.

At Bremen there are building nine vessels, four of them with a carrying capacity of 18,000 tons, being the world's greatest freight steamers; at Flensburg two steamers of 13,000 tons each, three larger passenger freight steamers, and at Geestemunde two freight steamers of 17,000 tons each for traffic through the Panama canal.

The Hamburger-South America line is building the Cap Polonio, a sister ship to the auxiliary cruiser Cap Trafalgar.

The North German Lloyd is building two fast steamers, the Columbus and Hindenburg, of 30,000 tons each; the Munchen and Zeppelin, of 16,000 tons each; twelve vessels of 12,000 tons each. Twenty-four ships of from 9,000 to 13,000 tons are being built for other lines.

URGED TO PRAY FOR PEACE.

Neutrals of the World Asked to Unite In Prayer on Aug. 1.

The neutral conference for continuous mediation has decided to request all neutral nations in the world to hold peace demonstrations on Aug. 1, the anniversary of the beginning of the war.

The conference suggests public meetings, street parades, pageants and church services, but particularly urges a five minute pause throughout the neutral world. This would mean a complete cessation of all activities at 11 o'clock in the morning of Aug. 1.

Demonstrations are now being arranged in Scandinavia.

CORPORATION NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

J. T. MacMURRAY,
City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., June 19, 1916.

AN ORDINANCE

To Create a Research and Advisory Commission and to Prescribe Its Duties and Powers.

WHEREAS, it is expressly provided by the City Charter that the Common Council may enact such ordinances for the peace, good government, order, well being and convenience of the City as they may deem necessary, proper and expedient, not repugnant to such Charter or to the constitution of the State or of the United States; and shall have power to appoint from time to time such subordinate officers as they shall think necessary for the governing of the City; and

WHEREAS, questions arise from time to time affecting the good government, order, will being and convenience of the City, requiring study and investigation which may extend over a period longer than the term or terms of the Mayor and members of the Common Council for the time being, so that the City would be benefitted if there were available a permanent Commission of citizens to which such questions might be referred for such study and investigation, and for report thereon: NOW, THEREFORE,

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. There shall be a Commission vested with the powers and duties hereinafter specified, which shall consist of five members, citizens of the City of Plainfield, who shall be appointed by the Mayor, by and with the advice and consent of the Common Council, and who shall constitute and be designated and known as the Research and Advisory Commission.

The term of office of each member of said Commission shall be five years, except that the terms of office of the persons first appointed shall severally expire on the first day of January 1917, 1918, 1919, 1920, and 1921 respectively, and on the first day of each January after this ordinance becomes effective, or as soon after such first day of January as may be convenient, the vacancy caused by expiration of the term of any member of said Commission shall be filled by like appointment and confirmation. Vacancies caused by death, resignation or otherwise than by expiration of term shall also be filled by like appointment and confirmation, but for the unexpired term only. Notwithstanding expiration of term of office, members shall continue to serve until the appointment and confirmation of their successors.

Section 2. The members of the Research and Advisory Commission thus constituted shall serve without salary or other compensation of any kind and shall investigate and report to the Mayor and Common Council their recommendations with respect to such matters as may be referred to them by resolution of the Common Council. The Common Council shall have authority to appropriate from the general funds of the City such sum or sums not exceeding annually the amount of $2,000, or to appropriate and cause to be raised by taxation as other sums for other City purposes are raised, such amounts as said Common Council may deem necessary, to defray the necessary expenses of said Commission including the employment of a clerk and other help; and said Commission shall not be required to undertake the investigation of any matter or matters unless such an appropriation covering its expenses is made, and in that event only to the extent thereof.

Section 3. Said Commission may investigate and make recommendations to the Mayor and Common Council with respect to any matter of general interest to the community, whether or not such matter shall have been referred to it for investigation by the Common Council, but in such case no part of the moneys appropriated or set aside for the necessary expenses of the Commission shall be expended nor shall obligations be incurred, unless specifically authorized by the Common Council.

Section 4. Said Commission shall have authority to adopt such by-laws for the regulation of its activities, not inconsistent with the City Charter and ordinances, as it may from time to time deem expedient. It shall report to the Common Council by the thirty-first day of December of each year a detailed statement of its expenditures for said year, and it shall make such additional reports from time to time as required by resolution of the Common Council.

Section 5. When in the judgment of the Common Council it shall seem expedient to abolish said Commission, its authority shall immediately cease and every membership thereof shall terminate upon final adoption and due advertisement of an ordinance by the Common Council repealing this ordinance.

Plainfield, N. J., June 19, 1916.

AN ORDINANCE

For the Permanent Improvement of certain Streets and Portions of Streets of the City of Plainfield, With Permanent and Durable Macadam Pavement, and to Provide the Necessary Funds in Advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the following streets and parts of streets of the City of Plainfield shall be permanently improved with durable macadam pavement, with the necessary underdrains, said macadam pavement to be of the depth and width hereinafter specified. All work to be given out upon contract to the lowest responsible bidder, and only after bids therefor shall have been solicited and received according to law, all bids to specify prices for each of said streets or parts of streets separately.

Ravine Road, from the macadam at Dixie Lane to the southerly side line of Denmark Road;

Leland Avenue, from the macadam on East Front Street to the bridge over Green Brook;

Sumner Avenue, from the macadam on East Front Street to the macadam on George Street;

Lake Street, from the macadam on Hillside Avenue to the easterly curb line of Pine Street;

Kensington Avenue, from the macadam on Prospect Avenue to the macadam on Park Avenue;

Edgewood Avenue, from the macadam on Prospect Avenue to the macadam on Martine Avenue;

Stelle Avenue, from the macadam on Grant Avenue to the southwesterly curb line of Hobart Avenue;

Section 2. That Leland Avenue and Kensington Avenue shall be macadamized for a depth of seven inches, and that the other streets and portions of streets described in Section 1 shall be macadamized for the depth of six inches, and that all the streets described in Section 1 shall be macadamized for the entire width of the roadway, and the macadamizing preparation shall be laid down to the grades established by ordinance for said streets or portions of streets, respectively.

Section 3. That for the purpose of obtaining money by the sale of bonds hereinafter specified for the permanent improvement of said streets and parts of streets as aforesaid, in advance of the collection of assessments for benefits, to an amount not exceeding fifteen dollars per capita for each of the inhabitants of said city according to the last official census, but not for more than the amount limited by law, the Common Council of said City do hereby, pursuant to the Act of the Legislature of said State entitled "An Act to authorize the improvement of streets and highways in cities of this State, and to provide for the payment of the expense of the same, and for the assessment of the benefits of such improvements upon the land and real estate benefited thereby," and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, authorize the issuing of thirty-five coupon municipal bonds of the City of Plainfield of One Thousand Dollars each ($1,000) and amounting in all to Thirty-five Thousand Dollars ($35,000), which bonds shall be dated July 1st 1916, and shall bear interest at the rate of five per centum (5 per cent.) per annum, payable semi-annually and be payable six years from the date thereof, with the option to the City to redeem or pay off the said bonds, or any one or more of them, at any time after one year from the date thereof and before three years from the date thereof, on giving personal notice to said holders of said bonds or thirty (30) days' notice by advertisement in the official newspapers of the City of the intention to make such redemption or payment, which bonds shall be signed by the Mayor and bear the corporate seal of the City and be attested by the City Clerk, and may, severally or collectively, when ordered by resolution of the Common Council, be sold for an amount not less than par value; and there shall be raised by tax in each year hereafter such sum of money as may be necessary to pay the interest on all outstanding bonds and the principal of such bonds as may mature during the year, and the money derived from the assessments upon the property benefited shall, when collected, be held as a fund toward the payment of said bonds.

Section 4. That after said improvements shall have been completed, the Common Council shall, pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, apply to the Court of Common Pleas of the County of Union for the appointment of Commissioners to estimate and assess benefits upon the owners of the lots or parcels of land and real estate peculiarly benefited by such improvements, in proportion, as near as may be, to an amount equal to the amount of benefits actually acquired by the lands and real estate bordering on said streets or portions thereof respectively, by reason of such improvements respectively, and in case the costs and expenses aforesaid shall exceed the amount of said benefits, the excess thereof shall be paid by the City at large and raised by general tax, no property or owner thereof to be in any case assessed beyond the amount of benefit actually derived from said improvements.

Scotch Plains, Fanwood

SCARCITY OF LABOR HOLDS UP ROAD IMPROVEMENTS

An adjourned meeting of the Borough Council was held in the Fanwood firehouse last night. Because no one from the Board of Health was there, nothing could be done about the sewer question. A letter was read from Ronald Riblet, secretary of the board, relative to the matter and the matter will be taken up at the next meeting. The street committee reported that owing to labor conditions, nothing could be done at the present time toward repairing Westfield road, but when the time arrives the improvement will be jointly undertaken with the help of the township.

The election of William Y. Bellerjea and Harold S. Sheffield as members of the fire company was confirmed, and the proper committee was authorized to have a goose-neck light installed at the entrance to the borough hall. Two "billys" for the police department and several other small items for the police were ordered obtained. Collector Charles Sheelen was authorized to buy in land at the tax sale next month if necessary. The monthly bills, totaling $885.83, were audited.

A SHORT SCHOOL SESSION.

A short meeting of the Fanwood Township Board of Education was held in School No. 1 last night for the purpose of getting the result of the election Wednesday night in legal form. The plans for the new eight-room school addition that was voted for at the election were informally discussed, although nothing definite can be done until the plans are ratified by the State Board of Education.

BOROUGH LOSES A FINE.

Fanwood Borough lost a chance to collect a fine yesterday when Judge DeMeza, of Plainfield, sentenced Green to sixty days in the county jail and now Recorder Sheelen will have to wait two months before he can collect the amount of a fine he imposed on Green a few days ago.

FINED FIVE DOLLARS.

Arraigned before Recorder Sheelen last night, charged with disorderly conduct, Frank Farrell, of LaGrande avenue, was fined $5. Mrs. Howard Miller, of South avenue, was the complainant, alleging that he had acted in a disorderly manner around her home.

The members of the official board of the Methodist church held a meeting last night, at which time it was decided to make a number of repairs to the church.

The children in the Junior department of the Baptist church held a successful candy sale at the home of Mrs. Walter Brown, of Forest road, yesterday afternoon.

Miss Elsa Palmer, of Tilliston road, has returned from spending seval weeks at Lake Hopatcong.

POWDER CO. EMPLOYES CLOSE PLANT BY STRIKE

Emporium, Pa., July 7.—A portion of the smokeless powder plant of the Aetna Explosives Company was idle today as the result of a strike of about 200 employes, who are demanding an increase of 10 per cent. in wages, in addition to their usual bonus. Officials of the company declared that the total production would not be affected and indicated that they expected a speedy adjustment of the difficulty.

CO. K WILL SEE PICTURE OF TROOP D AT PROCTOR'S

Widespread interest has been manifested in the moving pictures of Troop D, which were taken by Henry Byniarski, of Proctor's Theatre, this city, while the troop was mobilized at Sea Girt prior to departure for the border. The pictures, which include panoramic views of the camp, scenes in camp and closeups of individuals, will be shown in Proctor's Theatre, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, afternoon and night.

Mayor Calkins and the members of the City Council have been invited to attend the performance Monday night, while Mayor Smalley and the Borough Council will attend in a body on Tuesday night. Captain Peterson and the members of Company K will attend the show on Wednesday night. The theatre will be appropriately decorated for the occasion with American flags and as much honor as can be shown will be given the local young men who have responded to the call of their country.

LOCAL OPTION MEETING.

A meeting of the Local Option League will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in the Watchung Avenue Presbyterian church. A discussion of several interesting matters is due to come up, and a large turnout is expected.

FERGUS CAR 20 YEARS AHEAD OF THE TIMES

Plainfielders Marvel at Novel Machine on Demonstration Here.

Considerable interest has been manifested in the Fergus car now on exhibition at the Laing garage since several members of the J. B. Fergus Company appeared before the Business Men's Association several nights ago and explained under what conditions the company would be able to locate here. One of the members of the concern has already subscribed to $14,000 worth of stock and several other business men in the city are interested. Mr. Fergus has had tempting offers from Paterson and other cities to locate in those places but he says that if he receives the necessary support he will stay here.

There are at present two cars that the representatives are using as demonstrators and there will be none sold until the factory is built. Mr. Fergus intends doubling the output each year and reducing the cost as much as possible, although it is expected at the start the machine will sell for $3,000.

The car has been made only after a great deal of experimenting by Mr. Fergus at his factory at Belfast, Ireland, and has many features that eliminate much of the complicated work on other cars. For instance, there is not a grease cup anywhere on the chassis, and a patent air system keeps the engine cool. By means of a device patented by Mr. Fergus it is impossible to strip the gears. To shift from one speed into another it is necessary to press down on a ball cap on the head of the lever and to shift to reverse it is necessary to pull up. Every spring is automatically lubricated, and the wheels, with demountable rims, are protected from dirt and dust by steel plates.

After twelve years of study and experimenting Mr. Fergus has so far perfected the engine that it is possible to regulate the high speed between a range of four and seventy miles an hour, while in ordinary running the engine makes 4,500 revolutions a minute and has been tested to 5,000. For several days the two cars will be on exhibit her and inspection of them is invited by Mr. Fergus.

BOY SCOUT CAMP.

The advance corps of Troop 12, Boy Scouts of Hope Chapel, started this morning for Weston, on the banks of the Raritan river, where they will spend two weeks or so under the supervision of Scoutmaster William Richard and Scout Commissioner Searing. The camp will be known as "Camp Condict."

SUCCESSFUL FESTIVAL AT BOROUGH CHURCH

Annual Affair Nets $250 for Watchung Avenue Congregation—Those in Charge.

An ice cream festival that was attended by between three and four hundred people was conducted on the lawn of the Watchung Avenue church yesterday afternoon and evening. The various booths were gayly decorated for the occasion and tables were scattered about under the trees. Japanese lanterns helped furnish the light during the evening, and music was furnished by the Dutch Arms Band. The proceeds of the affair will exceed $250.

The arrangements for the festival were in charge of a committee of three, including Thomas J Martin, chairman, George Hoagland and Irving Van Winkle. The refreshment committee was comprised of Mrs. Joseph McKelvey, chairman, Mrs. Sophia Stahl and Mrs. Besnard. Those in charge of the waitresses were Miss Marder, Mrs. Maurice Anson, Miss Bertha Hoagland and Miss Eva Ward. The waitresses were the Misses Gertrude Borman, Josephine Keiderling, Edith Megonegal, May Smalley, Beatrice Ackerman, Blanche Martin, Ruth Miller, Jennie Smalley, Ethel Smalley, Myriel Smalley, Lillian Wigman and Viola Wiggans. The cake table was in charge of Mrs Joseph Gavelt, Mrs. Benjamin Sticklettts, Mrs. Ben Moore, Mrs. E. C. Smith, Mrs. G. M. Hoagland, Mrs. L. Kirksall, Mrs. Hall, Mrs Hoffman and Mrs. L. J. Stites. The ice cream booth was in charge of C. D. Hall, Louis Stites, C. Holstein, Edward Windham and Charles Elphree, while the fruit punch was served by Misses Marie Koehler, Lillian Smith, Marie Van Winkle, Edith Wilson, Elsa Kirksall. The candy table was presided over by Miss Ida Wheeler, Miss Bertha Martin, Miss Blanche Martin, Miss Beatrice McGowen, Miss Hannah Stiglitz, Miss Bertha Hoagland and Miss Ida Kirby. Mrs. Ralph Martin was the cashier in the afternoon and Miss Aline Giddes in the evening.

TO ATTEND DEDICATION.

James E. Prindle and John H. Cose, of this city, will eave this evening for Bedford City, Va., where they will attend the dedication of the Elks' National Home. They will be met at Elizabeth by twenty-five other Elks, and the party will be entertained at Lynchburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Norfolk and Baltimore.

If you are a student of the "ads" you KNOW WHAT IT OUGHT TO COST.

The spot-light of full publicity, turned on a store, reveals and places in that full light a store's defects—if it have defects. For example: If high prices prevail, or lines of goods are not kept up to date, the reader of the store advertisements knows it. It follows that advertising "pays" the store that renders real service—and would not pay the other kind of a store.

The "buyer for the home" who does not read the ads is as unprogressive as the merchant who does not advertise.

Drug stores come and go with the years. They grow and decline, they progress and retrogress, they survive and they perish.

The kind that are progressive survive; the other kind fails. There is no standing still in the world of business activities—one must go forward or back.

We have endeavored to be progressive in our methods, to represent at all times the highest ideals in pharmacy.

CHILD ROBS KAISER OF ONE RESERVIST

Little Girl Convinces Him United States Is "Good Enough to Fight For."

Francis Hummel, professor of German at the Curtis high school, Staten Island, was observed the other day on a ferryboat that was conveying Troop F on its way to Van Cortlandt park. The observer was a girl, a former pupil—surprised to see the professor in a private's uniform of the United States service. She had known him as a champion of the kaiser's cause.

"Why, Herr Hummel," she said with smiling eyes, "you astonish me! I could only think of you in a German uniform, fighting, as you have frequently spoken of doing, for the fatherland."

The professor did not smile. He said with gravity:

"Yes, my dear young lady, I had thought that never would I fight for any country but the fatherland. Yet you see, I have two children born in America. And the other day I saw one of them as I sat on my porch, and she was happy and healthy—full of life—playing about the lawn.

"As she romped she held an American flag. She waved it in full happiness and triumph. I said to myself then: 'If that flag is good enough for my children to live under it is good enough for me to fight for.' I promptly enlisted."

HIS HONEYMOON HALTED.

Returns to New York From Far Northwest to Answer Call to Arms.

"Major, I'm ready to report for duty," said a tanned and almost breathless youth who dashed into the armory in New York. "I had some time getting here, but I'm on the job."

The young man was Felix Mandell, a private. He married three weeks previously and went to the Canadian northwest to spend his honeymoon. He learned from a guide that trouble with Mexico was expected, and he sent a messenger to the nearest point of civilization to ask his mother about it by wire.

Mrs. Mandell replied informing him of the mobilization order. It cost her $30 to get her dispatch to him by runners. The young chap immediately upon receipt of the news started for civilization and traveled day and night until he reached New York. He sped from the railroad station to the armory.

EXTRA PAY FOR REGULARS.

Will Be Allowed 20 Per Cent Increase For Foreign Service.

Extra pay for foreign service will be allowed the American troops serving across the Mexican border under a decision by Comptroller Warwick of the treasury. Enlisted men will receive 20 per cent addition and officers 10 per cent.

The comptroller also gave the opinion that government employees who enlist in the national guard are entitled to full pay from the civil position for the first thirty days of their service, except that the combined salaries of officers will be subject to the $2,000 limitation provided by law.

HOW TO ADDRESS LETTERS TO SOLDIERS TO INSURE DELIVERY.

Letters to the guardsmen on the Mexican border have begun to accumulate in the postoffices because of insufficient address.

It is essential in order to insure prompt delivery that the address should contain the addressee's name, together with his rank and the unit to which he is attached. As an example a proper address for all classes of mail should be in the following form:

"Private John Doe,
"Co. A, 7th Regiment, N. G. N. Y., Military Camp,
Brownsville, Tex."

Prune Little and Often.

Much of the beauty of roadside trees and shrubs depends upon how skillfully they have been trained. Pruning should be done on the principle of "a little and often." From the start give them that little direction from time to time that will keep them in perfect form and not allow forked main branches. All cuts should be made with a saw and all wounds covered with a coat of paint or some other preservative.—S. T. Maynard in Tree Talk.

"Municipal Removal of Garbage" was the subject of Harold Seal's composition for the Plainfield Daily Press prize at the Plainfield High School in June. The composition follows:

If any ignorant person should criticize our city of Plainfield in any manner—well, it is doubtful whether he would live. Yet, with all her natural advantages, Plainfield is not a perfect city. In some respects she is woefully behind the times. Perhaps some of these deficits are unavoidable, yet there is one that is not unavoidable, namely: "Municipal Garbage Removal." While seemingly of small importance in itself, yet garbage removal has everything to do with the health of the city.

It is the duty of Plainfield that she have the best possible means of garbage removal. Consider the present garbage system. There is a law—a very sensible law from a hygienic standpoint—prohibiting the burying of garbage. This means that all of the waste from the kitchen must be removed by scavengers who convey the garbage to a dumping ground. These collectors of refuse demand exorbitant prices from their customers, who are powerless to resist, and they are irregular in the collection of the garbage, as shown by the experience of one man.

Upon his arrival at his new home, Mr. H. looked for a garbage collector. When one happened along he quickly stopped him and asked him when he could remove the garbage.

"Tuesdays an' Fridays," was the answer.

On Tuesday the fellow emptied the garbage as directed. On Friday, no garbage man. On Saturday, the same. At last on Monday the prodigal returned, whistling blithely.

"Why didn't you come Friday?" Mr. H. demanded, but the guilty one only shifted his quid of tobacco to the other side of his mouth and—blamed it on the man from Egypt.

In cities having municipal removal of garbage, the scavengers, hired by the city, with wagons owned by the city, come to the houses at certain times, receive the refuse, and go on with their business. If any collector is impertinent to a customer or comes at irregular times, he can be reported and discharged. With the present system, the scavengers come when they feel like coming, charge as much as they dare, and are as independent as Villa himself. Which is the better system?

A greater problem is what to do with the garbage after it is collected. For many years it has been the custom of the scavengers to "tip" the refuse, that is to dump it on low ground or to fill in land. This primitive method of disposing of refuse is both unsanitary and dangerous. There is no place within a radius of ten miles of Plainfield that could hygienically be used as a tipping ground. Decayed vegetable matter is certainly not healthful. For example, it is a hot summer day, flies and insects by the thousands are crawling over the decayed matter. Then these flies and insects sail to residential parts of the city. What is the result? Dr. Byrne, of the Dublin (Ireland) Health Board, asserts that fully two-thirds of all epidemic diseases come from such causes as these. Not only insects, but human people invade this disease producing districts. They are the scum of the city, ill-clad and ill-nourished, in short, the very people to contract disease. Residing as they usually do in the poorer and crowded parts of the town, it is only reasonable to expect they are the very people to spread disease.

After these low place are filled up with rubbish, they are pronounced saleable building lots. Think of a house built on a pile of decayed vegetable matter. Certainly, in time, the vegetable matter will make excellent soil, but not for many years. In the meanwhile obnoxious gases are given off, which rapidly rise through the thin soil and pervade the atmosphere. Truly, that is a very unsanitary condition of affairs.

We expect that there will be a few people to complain of the cost of having municipal garbage removal; but these people do not realize that instead of making a smallamount from license, the city can actually make thousands from garbage removal. Among the inorganic substances, there are many articles such as newspapers, tin cans, and leather, which can be sorted out and resold at a profit. Among the organic substances, the grease obtained from green garbage is worth ninety dollars per ton. In Cleveland, the cost of reducing the green garbage is one dollar and ninety-seven cents per ton, the earnings from it is three dollars and forty-seven cents per ton, making a net profit of one dollar and forty-nine cents per ton. It is estimated that there are about ten tons of green garbage daily in Plainfield. This would make a profit of fourteen dollars and nine cents daily in green matter alone or about five thousand a year. Refuse that cannot be used should then be burned. In a few years the profits obtained from the rubbish would pay for the expense of building and maintaing destructors and incinerators. The money obtained from the taxes, which would be less than the citizen now pays for garbage removal, would pay for the help and expense of keeping horses and wagons, besides leaving a sum in the city treasury.

If there is any doubt in the minds of our citizens whether municipal garbage removal is satisfactory, let them ask the citizens of Somerville, with half the population of Plainfield. We cannot afford to let our neighbors beat us! If we have one spark of pride, let us show it. Come on, everybody! Let us make Plainfield a real health resort, a city to be justly proud of, by having municipal garbage removal.

CARRANZA'S CHANCE.

Villa is not dead, according to his former chief of staff, but is at the head of a formidable army of bandits and is preparing not only to attack Carranza troops but to again wage war on the United States and to murder its citizens. This announcement brings to a halt all proposals of mediation with Mexico. There can be no withdrawal of the American punitive expedition with Villa alive and in position to make more trouble. Carranza can no longer protest his good intentions to the American government unless he makes a determined effort to capture this bandit and break up his band. The First Chief claims to have an army strong enough to make trouble for Uncle Sam's soldiers. Certainly a force of men that could wage war on a nation of 100,000,000 people is able to cope with a lone robber band. This is Carranza's chance to "make good" with America and if he fails he should be forced out of power in Mexico City, even though intervention be necessary to do it.

• • • • • •

A few weeks ago most everyone thought that Mexico ought to "be licked," but since some of those we know have gone, since the call for soldiers has been heard in our homes, we begin to think of the countless thousands of sons who have become cannon fodder in Europe and to long for a peaceful settlement of the controversy between the two countries.

Among the newspapers that have reflected this thought is found the Washington Post, always a sane spokesman of the people. The Post is not an admirer of President Wilson but has been among his most severe critics. However it admires the noble work that he has done in keeping this country out of war with honor, and sums up the situation admirably in the following editorial:

"It is not the corporations, the land-owners or the captains of industry who have the vital interest in the question of war or peace. It is not the politicians or orators, the organizations of public preparationists or public pacifists that have the most at stake. It is the average citizen—the citizen who earns his bread by the sweat of his brow, the citizen who loves his family and wants to continue giving that family his support and protection who has the most at stake.

"Those orators who cry out for a given course of action in the name of the national honor without having before them all the facts that affect the national interest in a crisis merely demonstrate their lack of responsibility and their callous selfishness.

"It speaks well for the wisdom of the American people that they have never elected a President who has been stampeded in war by false advisers or critics.

"Great as has been the horror of the European war, strong as is the desire to preserve the strength of the United States for the more civilized purposes of humanity, the American people as a unit will be ready to fight and to die if it should be necessary to preserve the national honor.

"On the one side, in the nation today, as in all crises of the past, there are those who, without knowing all the facts on which the great decision must be made, argue for immediate action against Mexico, regardless of the consequences. On the other side are those who are praying that peaceful means of protecting the nation's honor shall be completely exhausted before there is recourse to arms and to the sacrifice of the blood of American soldiers.

"President Wilson, with all the facts before him, was able to win a diplomatic victory in the submarine controversy, satisfying this nation's honor without the frightful toll of war.

"The President of the United States alone knows the facts in the Mexican situation. He alone can make the decision that will conserve the national interests. While orators are making their arguments in public places, the people, by wire and letter, are telling the President that they, who must make the sacrifices and who will not ask that some other mother's son make it for them, want peace so long as it is compatible with the nation's honor."

• • • • • •

If a ragged, dirty, soldier boy, one of the thousands who are down on the border fighting for their flag, was to walk into any of the thousands of homes of Plainfield he would be a "guest of honor." Everything that the house afforded would be his without the asking, and yet while Plainfielders enjoy all the luxuries of home life those that they love are actually starving, mentally. The need for magazines or reading matter of any kind among the soldiers is vital, according to those that have written from Texas and Mexico. Read the letter that Secretary Estes has received begging for magazines. It is printed in another column of the Press today. Then go bundle up all the magazines in the house and take them to Mr. Estes, who will see that they get to the lonesome soldiers doing sentry duty "somewhere in Texas or in Mexico."

• • • • • •

It is well for Plainfield that the Pillar of Fire organization will make a test case of the refusal of municipal authorities to give its members a permit for street meetings. Those loyal to the organization have given the city some unenviable notoriety by circulating statements that they were being persecuted here because of religious beliefs. The question is one that touches the fundamental rights of American citizenship and should be decided by the highest court in the land.

Secretary McAdoo has again counted the cash in circulation in the United States and says every man, woman and child should have just $38.36. Somebody's holding out on us.

JOSEPH A. FRAZER DIES IN HIS 85TH YEAR

Joseph A. Frazer, aged eighty-five years, died Wednesday night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Charles Eller, Sr., of Forest road, Scotch Plains, where he had been making his home for some time past. He had resided in the vicinity of Stony Hill and Scotch Plains for the past fifty years and was well known to hundreds of residents of that section. He was a farmer by occupation but of recent years led a retired life.

Beside the daughter with whom he lived he leaves one other daughter, Miss Esther E. Frazer, and a son, George Frazer, of New York city. He is survived also by ten grandchildren and five great grandchildren. The funeral will be held from the home of Mrs. Eller tomorrow morning at 8:45 and in St. Mary's church, Stony Hill, at 9:30, where a solemn mass of requiem will be offered by the pastor, Rev. John McGrath. Interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery, Stony Hill.

ELIZABETH TOTS LEAVE FOR CAMP ENDEAVOR

The first group of children to be entertained at Camp Endeavor, at Scotch Plains, left the Settlement House, 138 Magnolia avenue, Elizabeth, in a special trolley. In the party were nearly fifty youngsters and several mothers. Mrs. E. E. Stanion and Mrs. Fred Shaw, of Lesile Park, were in charge.

Other children will be taken to the camp at intervals of two weeks. The station is conducted by the Trinity Christian Endeavor Union.

BULL DURHAM IS $1 A BAG ALONG THE BORDER; BEG FOR OLD ALMANACS AS READING MATTER

Soldier boys in Mexico and on the border are reading almanacs and begging for their turn at them, according to a Y. M. C. A. secretary, who is working among them, and he sends a pitiful plea "back home" for magazines. Secretary Estes, of the local Y. M. C. A., has received a copy of his letter, and Mr. Estes has started a campaign in Plainfield for old magazines. If they are delivered to the Y. M. C. A. he will see that they reach the soldiers in Mexico, Texas, New Mexico or Arizona through Y. M. C. A. channels and nothing would be more welcome there.

The following letter is peculiarly expressive of conditions among the soldiers:

"From Brownsville to El Paso, Texas, the Southern Pacific Railway extends like a thread of steel, the only line of communication along which the United States troops may travel in going from post to post along the border. At every bridge, culvert, tunnel or hill, as you journey along this line, you will find little outposts composed of anywhere from ten to twenty men guarding the highway. Day in and day out, through heat and dust-storm, these men stand their lonely vigil guarding the line that the mail and supplies may not be interrupted in their long journeys to and fro. There are no towns, there are no friendly faces. There is nothing but the desert, the mesquite, the heat, the solitude—and still these men must stay.

"As our train stopped at each point, they would rush to the end of the observation car and beg for magazines, pictures, post-cards or anything that we had to relieve the monotony of their daily round of duty. On every possible occasion, I got off the train and talked to the men, and the stories they told me in a few tense sentences were enough to break one's heart. I found one fellow reading an almanac and said, 'Is that all you have in this camp?' He said, 'Yes, and every man here got it before I did. I'm the last one on the list.'

"Down in the Big Bend country (that great area which lies south of the Southern Pacific line and north of the Rio Grande), there are nine or ten stations not less than sixty miles away from the railroad. The only communication is by motor-truck train, and at these points the men feel most keenly the solitude and monotony.

"Here it is that we ought to send our magazines or games—the things that will cheer the fellows up and make them feel that the world has not forgotten them. Some of them have not received mail for weeks, and some have not even been able to communicate with the folks at home. They ride the long patrols at night; they must rest during the day. There is a constant danger of their being fired upon by snipers. There are the raiders against whom they must watch—always something to keep them at a tension—always something to rack the nerves and strain the mind.

"We sent some supplies down the line of communication to General Pershing's base camp at Casas Grandes. The appreciation of the men was pathetic. They ran for the magazines like children who were receiving toys at a Christmas tree. Later, a truck driver, on a return trip from that country, reported to me that he knew that some of the magazines we had taken down there and distributed were being sold and resold at fifty cents each again and again; that many of them had not much left but the story part, the backs and advertising having all been worn off with so much handling. Bull Durham tobacco sells at a dollar a pack in that forsaken country, and I know of one instance where one cigarette was divided among six men, it being the last the squad possessed.

"I know of men who were obliged, because of the country they were in and because of the perils, to go without undressing for twelve days. They had no bath, they could not shave. There was only water enough for the barest necessities of cooking and drinking, and still they went on without complaining.

"These are the fellows we are trying to serve. These are the men we are trying to cheer and help."

- Proctor's Theatre -

Scene From "The Girl With the Green Eyes" at Proctor's Today.

Katherine Kaelred and Julian L'Estrange are featured today at Proctor's in a masterful dramatic production entitled, "The Girl with The Green Eyes." The play by Clyde Fitch, in which the late Clara Bloodgood made considerable of a hit several years ago, has been done over into a picture which all the lovers of Fitch will immediately recognize as smacking strongly of the master's touch. In fact, the play has been followed quite closely and the dramatic points which made it a stage success have been carefully retained and presented with their full effectiveness. Julian L'Estrange is an excellent type and he makes a strong appeal to the sympathies. Katherine Kaelred has a difficult part, but she handles it in a finished and appealing manner. Her role is that of Mrs. Travers, the wife of a popular actor; she is constantly jealous of the adoration he receives from hosts of women, and a "friend," who has long coveted her secretly, seizes upon this to work her jealousies and convinces her that her husband is unfaithful. The trouble caused her her unreasoning jealousy alienates Travers' love from his wife, and she, deserted, attempts to poison herself. She is saved, however, by a maid who accidentally spills the poison, and refills the glass with plain water. Through the pleadings of his sister, Travers goes back to his wife and all ends happily. Such is a brief synopsis of the story which is enhanced greatly by excellent acting, superior direction and appropriate and costly settings. In addition today, Warren Kerrigan is starred in a delightful dramatic offering entitled, "The Melody of Love," and there are also several comedy films.

Tomorrow Hamilton Revelle and Marguerite Snow are co-starred in "The Half Million Bribe," adapted from William Hamilton Osborne's novel and play. "The Red Mouse," George Bellamy and Fay Temple are featured in "The Scorpion's Sting," and a juvenile comedy entitled, "Betrayed By the Camera," is also shown.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, in addition to the regular show exclusive pictures of Troop D, of Plainfield, encamped at Sea Girt will be shown which is of interest to all in this city, many of whom have friends and relatives among these brave and hardy soldier boys.

LOSES A FINGER.

A COMMON PEST

FUNERAL SERVICE OF ARTHUR MOSHER HELD

Impressive Eulogies and Music Mark Obsequies of Popular Young Man.

The funeral service of Arthur S. Mosher, who died at Ocean Grove on Monday last, was held at his home, 302 Watchung avenue, yesterday afternoon, and was in charge of Rev. Dr. Birney S. Hudson, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, assisted by Assemblyman William N. Runyon, superintendent of the Sunday-school. Dr. Hudson spoke with marked earnestness and drew many lessons of helpfulness and spiritual uplift for the comfort of family and friends.

A beautiful feature of the service was the music rendered by several of Mr. Mosher's intimate friends: Elmer H. Wheeler, flute; Dyckman Winckler, violin; Bert Harold, piano. The numbers selected were favorites of Mr. Mosher and included: Instrumental trio, "All the Way My Saviour Leads Me," flute, violin and piano; solo, "Something For Thee," William N. Runyon; solo, "Pass Me Not Oh Gentle Saviour," William N. Runyon, with flute, violin and piano accompaniment.

Mr. Runyon, who was one of Mr. Mosher's closest friends, spoke on his life and character, and his remarks, given with intense feeling, moved the heart of everyone present. He dwelt with wonderful tenderness on the rare personal quality of him whom he called a true Christian; on his loyalty to duty, his extreme conscientiousness, his gift of making and holding close friendships, and his great love for his family and home. Mr. Runyon spoke with marked feeling of his great love of music and his talent as a gifted musicians; of the wonderful sermons he had preached by the divine inspiration of his violin.

The service was impressive and the large number present were deeply affected. The American Bank Note Company, with which Mr. Mosher had been connected for twelve years, was represented by several of its officers and clerks.

The beautiful flowers completely filled the room and represented the friendship and appreciation of innumerable friends and business associates.

Interment took place in Hillside cemetery, the following close friends of the deceased acting as pallbearers: William N. Runyon, Dr. J. H. Buchanan, D. W. Winckler, Elmer Wheeler, H. J. Harold and Whitney Frazee.

TWO MEN HURT WHEN MOTORCYCLES COLLIDE

John Kalinsky, of New Market, and John Nichack, of 224 Jackson avenue, Plainfield, ran their motorcycles together this morning at the corner of West Front and Albert streets, and both men were painfully injured. The accident occurred at 6:30 a. m. Dr. Cregar attended both men. Kalinsky was able to go to his home but Nichack was sent to Muhlenberg Hospital.

C. E. SOCIETY OUTING.

Members of the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church will hold an outing to Washington Rock, Tuesday evening next. The trip will commence from the church early in the evening.

Harold R. Williams, who spent the Fourth with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Julius W. Williams, of 603 West Front street, has returned to Stockbridge, Mass.

MISS HOGAN LEADS IN KNIGHTS' CONTEST

Lively Voting for "Queen of the Carnival"—Prizes Are Now on Exhibition.

The first collection from the ballot boxes for the Queen of the Knights of Columbus Carnival was made yesterday afternoon, but owing to the fact that no location of the boxes being given, the vote was very light, but from tomorrow on the voting promises to be very brisk, as each candidate says that the rest of the candidates will know they have been in a race to beat her. The prizes are on exhibition in J. J. Varley's store window on West Front street. Each candidate has been given 500 votes by the friend nominating her. There is still room for others to enter their friends. The following is the vote cast up to six o'clock last night: Florence Hogan, 720; Kitty Conshay, 611; Ethel Browne, 601; Lillian Coffee, 601; Peggy Benson, 605; Kathryn Regan, 562; Delhia Burke, 527; Nora Regan, 533.

Among the fifteen big shows comprising Krause's Greater Shows are Captain Ashborn's big animal circus and Miss Julia Allen's blue ribbon horse show combined. A six-day period of fun and frolic is the promise made by the Knights. They declare that the carnival will eclipse anything ever attempted locally before. It will enliven the town and take away the monotony of the humdrum of every day life. It is said to be a sure cure for the blues, and to make "dull care" take legs and "hike" for the tall timbers. A trip to the carnival will mean a night of celebration.

DARLINGS' HORSE FOUND ON LONG BRANCH FARM

Mrs. A. B. White, who lives on a farm near Long Branch, yesterday telephoned to Chief Kiely that a horse had been abandoned near her home. Capt. John Flynn went to the White farm and identified the horse as that stolen from the barn of John Darling here Monday night. Two men drove it to Long Branch and for some reason left it there Wednesday night. They stole another horse from a near-by farm, but were pursued by the owner and a posse and abandoned the second animal near Whitehouse, escaping across country.

JERSEY CENTRAL MAY CANCEL EXCURSIONS

Shortage of Coaches Likely to Interfere With Summer Outings to the Shore.

Owing to the great demand for coaches in the movement of soldiers to the Mexican border, there is a possibility that the New Jersey Central may find it necessary to cancel the dates for Sunday-school excursions from Plainfield to Asbury Park this summer. Word to that effect was received by The Plainfield Daily Press today from the officials of the railroad. The excursions will depend entirely on the ability of the company to provide coaches.

The first excursion from Plainfield to Asbury Park is that of the Crescent Avenue Sunday-school scheduled for Thursday, July 13, while the Methodists have picked July 19 as the date for their trip to the shore. The First Baptist Sunday-school is also scheduled to go this month. Those for August are Trinity Reformed Sunday-school, August 8, and the Knights of Columbus on August 10.

JULY 7 IN HISTORY.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

Eleven Princes Tell Elise Their Story.

We Hover Over the Big Forest.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

WHAT eleven princes told their sister, Elise, about being changed into swans was the bedtime story daddy told Jack and Evelyn:

"'As long as the sun is above the horizon,' said the eldest brother, 'we have to fly about as swans. When the sun sets we become princes. So we always have to look out that we are near land when the sun sets, because if we should happen to be flying up in the clouds then we should be dashed into the sea. We do not live here, sister. There is another land beyond the sea just as beautiful as this. But the way to it is very long, and we have to cross the mighty ocean to get to it.

"'There is not a single island on the way where we can spend the night if we get tired flying. Only one lone rock juts out above the water midway. It is only just big enough for all of us to stand upon close together when we take our human shapes. If the sea is heavy the water splashes over us all night, yet we thank God for that rock. We stay there overnight, eleven princes huddled together and soaking wet. But without the rock we could never visit our fatherland, for our flight here takes two of the longest days in the year.

"'Only once a year,' Elise's biggest brother went on, 'are we allowed to visit the home of our fathers, and we dare stay only eleven days. We hover over this big forest, where we catch a glimpse of the palace we were born in and where our father lives with his cruel queen and where our dear sister Elise waited for us. Beyond the palace we can see the high church towers where our own mother is buried. We imagine that the trees and bushes here by the seashore are related to us, and wild horses gallop over the moors just as we used to see them when we were children. The charcoal burners still sing the same songs we all used to listen to in our childhood. This is our fatherland. We were drawn back to it across the vast ocean, and here we find you again, dear little sister. We may stay here with you two days, and then we must fly away back across the ocean to a beautiful land. But it is not our own country! How shall we ever take you with us, Elise? For we have neither ship nor boat—only our swans' wings!'

"'How can I ever save you from the queen's wicked spell?' cried Elise. Then they all hugged each other again and began to talk and plan. Nearly all night they talked, sleeping only for a few minutes at a time."

"They were glad to see each other, weren't they, daddy?" cried Jack and Evelyn, kissing him good night.

"Just as glad as you children would be," said daddy.

Marrying a Butterfly

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

In Which It Is Shown That Ethel Really Can Cook When She Tries.

"How do you like the muffins?" asked Ethel as Ralph broke open and buttered the flaky golden brown beauties.

"Never ate better," was the laconic answer.

"I made them," Ethel swelled with conscious pride.

"What!"

"They are my first baking." Ethel was thoroughly enjoying his surprise.

"Why, darling, I am delighted. I always said you would make an excellent cook if you only would try." Ralph was determined to make the most of this good beginning. I was over at Mrs. Morton's this morning telling her about giving notice to the maid. I said I did not know where I could get another one and she proposed that I begin to learn to cook that very minute so I could be independent of the whole tribe. She told me what to do and I made a double recipe of muffins and both families are eating of my baking." Ralph rose and walking around to her chair took her face between his hands.

"You can't tell how pleased I am. All our difficulties will straighten out if you will only try to be a good housekeeper. He kissed the pleased little woman and returned to his seat. Every crumb of the muffins disappeared and Ethel felt that she had covered herself with glory.

"I am going over there every day to learn to do something," announced the young cook in the first flush of her enthusiasm.

"Good! It is mighty fine in Mrs. Morton to invite you to come. I surely appreciate it."

Ralph's unstinted praise served to keep Ethel interested in the new occupation for several days. She achieved a pudding and some escoloped tomatoes under Mrs. Morton's tutelage. Ralph was hopeful that she would really learn to cook, but interest flagged after the novelty wore off and before the week was over the new dishes failed to grace the dinner table. Her excuse was that it was a shame to bother Mrs. Morton continually and that she would try by herself when the girl went, if she failed to get another. She wrote to her mother to try to find her some one, and advertised in the town paper and the Kansas City journals, but was not successful in obtaining even a "nibble," as Ralph called the replies. The maid, too, angered at having been dismissed, was as disagreeable as possible. Altogether life was none too pleasant at the Gordon home, and no objection was raised when the maid announced that she would go at the end of the week instead of finishing out her month.

"I for one would be willing to do everything in my power to help, if we might be rid of the annoyance of watching a maid. Then the saving would be great. There is the waste and in this case probably thieving to add to the wages." Ralph was smoking his evening cigar in the morris chair. "With a good laundress two days a week and a little girl to wash dishes we could get along famously. All that is needed is a cook, and you bid fair to be a first-rater."

Ethel smiled, enjoying the praise, for, to tell the truth, she had not had much praise from her husband the last few months.

"Perhaps I can learn," she replied hopefully.

CORPORATION NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

J. T. MacMURRAY
City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., June 19, 1916.

AN ORDINANCE

Amending an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to establish, regulate and control the Fire Department of the City of Plainfield (Revision of 1914)," approved December 7th, 1914.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That section 3 of the ordinance, the title whereof is recited in the title of this ordinance, be and is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Section 3. Members of the force, other than officers, shall be divided into five classes according to their respective terms of service, as follows:

Class A—Sixth year of service and over.
Class B—Fifth year of service.
Class C—Fourth year of service.
Class D—Third year of service.
Class E—Second year of service.
Class F—First year of service.

Provided that the Common Council, upon the recommendation of the Mayor, may advance any regular member of the force from a lower to a higher class for especially good work or meritorious service whether he shall have served his full time, specified above, or not; and upon like recommendation may require a member in any class, except Class A, to serve for a longer period therein than above specified on account of unsatisfactory service during the preceding year.

Section 2. That section 4 of the ordinance, the title whereof is recited in the title of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Section 4. The salary of the present Chief of the Fire Department, Thaddeus O. Doane, who has served the City of Plainfield in that capacity and with signal faithfulness and ability for twenty-eight years continuously and is upon his own request to be retired on November first, 1916, is hereby fixed at the rate of Twenty-four Hundred Dollars per annum, so that his pension upon retirement shall be Twelve Hundred Dollars per year; but the pay attached to the office of Chief of the Fire Department from and after the retirement of Chief Doane shall be Eighteen Hundred Dollars per annum, and the pay of the rest of the force is hereby fixed as follows, all of said rates to take effect as of July 1st, 1916, that is to say:

Assistant Chief	$1,700	per annum
Captains	1,500	per annum
Class A	1,200	per annum
Class B	1,150	per annum
Class C	1,100	per annum
Class D	1,050	per annum
Class E	950	per annum
Class F	900	per annum

Each member of the force shall provide, at his own expense, all uniforms and other wearing apparel necessary for his use as from time to time required in compliance with the rules of the department; except that said uniforms and other wearing apparel for members who have not reached Class C, may be paid for by the City, which shall be reimbursed for the cost of any such purchase by deducting from such members' pay ten per cent. of the purchase price each month until the full amount thereof has been paid back to the City; and all such uniforms and wearing apparel for which the City has advanced the purchase price, shall be regarded as the property of the City until the City has been fully reimbursed therefor as above specified.

Raking 'Em Over

By "JINKS"

YANKEES AGAIN HIT BY JINX.

With a one-game lead, in first place in the American League, the Yankees have been given a terrible punch by the jinx. Frank Gilhooley, fleet-footed outfielder, who has pushed his way into second place in the league for base running, who has been making sensational catches and batting well, is in a hospital with a broken leg. Aside from Ty Cobb, Frank Gilhooley and Fred Maisel are the best base runners in the Johnson circuit, both are members of the Yankee team and both are now on the hospital list. Maisel has been out for a couple of months. It was predicted by physicians he would be back in action six weeks after his injury, but it has been much longer than that now, with little hope of him getting back on duty regularly for some time. It will probably be two months before Gilhooley is able to take his regular place. The New York Americans have been hit harder by the accident jinx than any other major league club, yet they have fought on and hold first place with the season half gone. Donovan has been forced to switch combinations, but the pitching has held up remarkably, while the hitting of Baker has been a big factor in victories of late. The public would like to see the Yanks come through and finish one-two, and if they do it will be all the more remarkable when it is considered the big losses they have sustained.

JACK MARTIN'S HITTING.

Ever since Jack Martin had that attack of tonsilitis his batting average has suffered a very noticeable decline. During the past few games, Jack has been doing little or nothing in the hitting line. He is still the master fielder of old, but his inability to hit discounts his splendid work in the field. Jack is due for a brace and that brace should come very soon. There is the chance that he may dim the eye of the St. Louis scout, who is said to be looking him over.

THE APPEARANCE OF PLAYERS.

There are some baseball players in this city who fail to realize that they must appear for every game in which the team plays. An instance showing the neglect of this precept was unearthed on the Fourth. In the morning game, the Baptists had plenty of talent on hand and every one was ambitious. In the afternoon, Manager Dune Patterson had to hustle around to borrow material. He does not intend to have such a thing happen again. Better be on hand, you baseball players.

PARKER FIELD OPENING.

The boys have started. The Parker Field baseball league is now well underway and the youngsters will get a chance to demonstrate their diamond ability. Many of the boys will get their first opportunity to play off the street. The fact that these boys are afforded a chance to play in the open and away from the vice and dirt of the roadway, proves conclusively that Parker Field is of some use. The work carried on at this playground is mainly of an athletic nature. Baseball, while it is the main attraction, is not the only sport that is taken care of. Track sports are given fully swing and, in general, the athletic prowess of the individual is brought to the fore. Much interest is taken in the standing of the various teams and the spirit of sportsmanship is developed to such a degree that the boys are always willing to do things—athletic and otherwise—"on the level."

• • • • • •

REPRESENTATIVES ONLY.

When the City League holds its session on Monday evening, managers or their representatives will be the only persons admitted. Newspapermen will be allowed to be present, but "ordinary" players will be barred. It is to be desired that every manager be on hand. If there is any manager who cannot be present, it is his duty to see that he sends a substitute who is capable and who is vested with full power. Things are going to be done at this meeting and in order that some definite action may be taken in short order and without the usual interruptions from players who have no right to voicing opinions, the league moguls have decided to admit only those who are in authority.

ROYALS ARE SLEEPING.

The Royals have been threatening to play ball for some months, but it was not until last Saturday that they really got started. At that time the colored fellows exhibited real ability and have hopes of continuing on the diamond. Peter Simmons is now at the head of the team and Pete is ready to lead his charges against any team that cares to get beaten. Simmons is a ball player himself and may perform with his boys, although he may find the going a little too fast for him. It is to be hoped that the Royals will meet teams that have some ability and not take on clubs that are made up of young lads and fellows who have plenty of ambition and nothing else. If Pete expects to make a hit with his new club, now's the time to start.

PRESS AMATEUR DEPARTMENT

"Hoppy" Walls again broke into the limelight as a pitcher. Walls is a diligent guardian of the third station and takes over the pitching assignment only when one of the regular members of the hurling corps is indisposed. The double holiday bill made it necessary for Manager Britt Martin to resort to the old standby. And Walls pulled through like a veteran. He was in a tight fix toward the close of the game, but extricated himself without much trouble.

Where was Warry McLaughlin on the Fourth of July? Warry was expected to pitch at least one of the two games played in Dunellen on Independence Day, but for some unknown reason the former Pittsburgh leaguer failed to put in an appearance. Can it be that Warry is opposed to "professionalism" in the ranks?

Far be it from us to "write-up" one man too often. But, nevertheless, there is one youthful aspirant to diamond glory around these parts who is continually pitching camp in the vicinity of our natural abode. This young man is angling for a chance to burst into the limelight, once more. Who he is will be considered a secret, but it will not remain a secret for any length of time.

That fight! One baseball player discussed the personal beauty of another, and then sought to disfigure the first player's face. The offended party reciprocated and the argument was on. Such a happening should not be allowed to be repeated. Tactics of this nature are not included in the approved list of baseball rules. But instances of its kind are recorded on police court blotters.

Leo Keating has been performing at shortfield for the Pans ever since the team was organized. Leo is a fast fielder and a good hitter. While he is a little flashy at times, his worst fault seems to be his unusual supply of "pep."

We have often wondered why "Ax" Brandt was not given a regular place on the Plainfield High School baseball team. Brandt is one of the best infielders in the business and has a good batting eye. He has always "tried out" for the team and is a much better player than some of the men who "made" the team. There seems to be something wrong somewhere, when fellows like Brandt are not even carried as "subs."

An attempt to foresee the lineup which Art Kyle, as manager of next year's Red and Blue baseball team, will present would not, we fear, amount to much. But, like Brodie, we are going to take a chance. Art is still willing to do the catching and will have a chance to take his pick of Wendell Hutchcroft, Joe Newell and Sid Butler as pitcher. There still remain "Polly" Snyder, "Shelly" Coudray, Phil Mills, Axel Brandt, Leo Keating, Eddie Dugan and a whole ballyard of "subs." It is very probable that quite a little material will be unearthed before it becomes time for Kyle to set to work.

Peterson, who is the Farmer third baseman, is a real baseball player. He covers plenty of ground and is right there with the willow. Joe is a pitcher, too, although we have reason to believe that his assortment of stuff consists of a wide outcurve and plenty of ambition. No matter what his ability as a twirler may be, Peterson has few equals when it comes to fielding the ball. Would that all the Farmers were like this boy.

MAY POSTPONE ONE CITY LEAGUE GAME

Baptists and Hopes May Not Play Tomorrow, Owing to Probasco Picnic.

The scheduled game between the Baptists and the Hopes may not be played tomorrow, owing to the fact that the members of the Baptist team intend to go on the annual picnic held by the Probasco Bible Class. Manager Dunc Patterson announced this morning that no game would be played, but stated at the same time that he had been unable to talk with Manager Britt Martin, of the Hopes, regarding the postponement. There is no doubt, but that Martin will consent to the layoff and it can be taken for granted that there will be only two City League games tomorrow.

Dunc Patterson, realizing that his team needs a little bolstering up, has decided to make a few changes in the lineup and may add a few new names to his roster, releasing those who have been lax in their duties. Banks has announced his retirement from the game and this fact leaves the team without a catcher. "Hub" Stine is listed as a Baptist catcher, but as he is employed at present, it is not known whether he can arrange to be on hand or not. The team is well stocked with pitchers and has a fine first baseman in Jack Garretson. But there has recently been some discussion as to Garretson's "standing" with the team and it is believed in some quarters that Jack will desert the Firsts very soon. The rest of the lads seem attentive enough, but still the team leaders want it understood that attendance at every game is imperative if a player is to continue as a member of the Baptists' squad.

ROYALS GIANTS ARE OUT FOR VICTORY

Will Meet Westfield Athletic Club on Parker Field Tomorrow.

The Royal Giants, who are now under the management of Peter Simmons, will play the Westfield Athletic Club on Parker Field tomorrow afternoon. The Royals are fresh from a victory over the Plainfield A. C. and expect to repeat at the expense of the Mt. Ararat organization, which, only last week, suffered defeat at the hands of the recently reorganized St. Joseph's.

According to advance information the Royals will have Sidney Butler on the mound with Condict behind the bat. Foster Kline, who made quite a hit with the fans last Saturday, will again be seen in the outfield, while "Tune" Kline, who once had a tryout with the "real" Royal Giants, will perform at the side of his younger brother. Paul Coleman and "Senor" Maiden will also be seen in the Royal lineup. The Westfield manager has not announced his lineup, but it is probable that the battery will consist of the Schroppe brothers.

JOE BURNS BUSY.

Players from the Delaware County League, made famous last season by J. Franklin Baker, of the New York Yankees, will oppose the T. A. B. team of Elizabethport at its park at the Elizabethport station, C. R. R., next Sunday afternoon. Known as the Philadelphia Professionals, they defeated the local nine its opening contest this season and have hopes of repeating. The game will get under way at 3:30 o'clock.

"OWYOMAC" ENTERS NEWARK MATINEE

Dr. H. E. Winter's Pacer Will Compete on Weequahic Track Tomorrow.

Dr. H. E. Winter has entered two of his race horses in the matinee events to be held at Weequahic Park, Newark, tomorrow afternoon. These races will be held under the auspices of the New Jersey Road Horse Association, of which both Dr. Winter and Adam C. Blair, of this city, are members.

In the races to be held tomorrow, professional drivers who handle their own horses will be allowed to drive. This ruling does not affect local drivers. The races will be for points. At the end of the season the horse scoring the greatest number of points will be given a special prize. Eight races are on tap for tomorrow, many new campaigners being among those entered.

The local horses will also be entered in the matinee event to be held next Saturday. In tomorrow's events, "Owyhomac" will compete, being entered in Class A Pace. In the Class B Trot, "The Baron" has been entered. Both of the local entries are well known to racing enthusiasts throughout the State.

Adam C. Blair has not entered any of his horses in this matinee, but it is probable that he will drive one owned by an outsider.

RALPH RUNYON ENTERS HUDSON COUNTY MEET

Local Athlete Will Compete in Police Games at Jersey City.

Ralph Runyon, the local vaulter and high jumper, will compete in the athletic carnival to be held by the Jersey City police in that city tomorrow afternoon. Ralph, who is a student at Penn State and who competes under the colors of that institution, will enter the Hudson county meet unattached.

There will be no pole vaulting event in the games at Jersey City, and it will be possible for Ralph to enter only one event. That is the high jump. In this competition, the local athlete is considered good, although it has been in the pole vault that he has won distinction. While at the Pennsylvania institution, Runyon was continually practicing both vaulting and high jumping with the result that he has improved wonderfully. Before going to Penn State the best Ralph could do in the pole vault was a little over eleven feet. At times, he fell a little short of twelve feet, but it was not until he went away that he mastered the ability to go over the twelve-foot mark.

It is not probable that Runyon will be entered in the A. A. U. meet to be held at Weequahic Park, Newark, on August 26. At that time the Plainfielder will be spending his vacation in New York State, and his present plans include no hurried trip homeward. However, he has received an invitation to compete in the Michelin meet, to be held in New Brunswick on Labor Day, and it is very likely that he will accept the invitation. However, should loyal promoters seek to hold a meet in this city on that date, Runyon will do what he can to help them.

BOY SCOUTS ENJOY SUMMER OUTING

Camp Ackerman Affords the Youngsters Chance to Get Plenty of Fresh Aair.

Every thing at the Boy Scout camp on Terril road is going along nicely. Camp Ackerman, as it is called, is the ideal camp for the boy who wants to get out in the open and many Newark and New York scouts are availing themselves of the opportunity to come out ond stay awhile. Those lads who have already had a stay at the camp are anxious to return and it is likely that many of them will be allowed to do so.

The camp life, as fostered at Camp Ackerman, is invigorating. Over one hundred acres of woodland are at the disposal of the scouts, while running water and shower baths have been provided. The cost is very little and it is to be hoped that many more local scouts will take advantage of the chance to get out into the open.

Applications should be made to the Camp Director at once by those who intend to spend a few weeks with the rest of the fellows. Boys, get ready to enjoy the bracing air of the country, sleep well, play well, eat well, and obtain the choicest benefits that nature can bestow.

NETHERWOOD AND CLINTON AVE. TEAMS WILL CLASH

At 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon the City League leaders, the crack Netherwood team, will again be the opponents of the local team on Maurer Oval. The Netherwoods will try to make amends for their drastic defeat of last Saturday at the hands of the locals. They will be strengthened for the occasion by Johnson and Frezza, two Bound Brook boys, who played regularly for the Bound Brook "Bees" last year, and a close contest is anticipated. Stewart, who twirled regularly for Ernie Dorflinger's old Plainfield team, will be on the mound for the Netherwoods, while "Warry" McLaughlin will do the twirling for the locals.

TAKES SUMMER POSITION.

Miss Emma H. Ryno, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Corra Ryno, of Coddington avenue, the borough, has accepted a position as physical culture instructor with the Federation of Churches of New York, and her duties will be with the West End Dutch Reformed church of that city. Miss Ryno has been taking a physical culture course in the Dr. Savage school of New York, and will resume her studies there in the fall.

RETURNS FROM TRIP.

Councilman Julius Stahl, of Grandview avenue, the borough, returned home Wednesday, following an automobile trip through Warren county. A large portion of his time was spent in Phillipsburg and vicinity.

GOING TO CONEY.

Charles Freligh will supervise an auto bus trip to Coney Island on Sunday. The bus will leave the Astor Theatre at 9 a. m., and will arrive at the resort about noon. Freligh has been in communication with the Madri Gras committee arranging for a place in the coming parade.

WILL SING IN NEW YORK.

William Holmes, for more than twenty years baritone soloist at the First Baptist church, this city, has taken a position as soloist at the 86th Street Temple, New York city. Mrs. Edith Frank, a former soprano soloist at the First Baptist church, is also soloist at the Temple.

Games Tomorrow.

Farmers vs. T. A. B. S.
Netherwood vs. Dunellen.
Hopes vs. Baptists.

When the results of tomorrow's City League games are announced, the fans will realize that the standing of the teams has undergone a decided change and that the race for the pennant is a little bit closer. At least, that's the way the Tabs feel about the matter. The Abstainers expect to repeat at the expense of the Farmers, and there is no reason why they should not do so. The Farmers have offered no strenuous reason why the Teetotalers are not going to "wallop" them, other than to hint that, perhaps, Eddie Conshay may be in form.

The Netherwood team goes to Dunellen full of confidence, while the home guard, under the care of Tommy Apgar, expects to worry the East Enders into their third defeat for the season. Should the Netherwood team be defeated and should the Tabs win, as is anticipated, the Abstainers would be dangerously near the top of the ladder. That is something the Coughlan lads hope to prevent. They can do so by handing Dunellen a trimming.

The scheduled game between the Baptists and the Hopes may not be played owing to the fact that the Probasco Bible class will hold a picnic tomorrow afternoon.

PRESENT NEEDS OF THE BALKANS

Rev. Lewis Bond Tells Interesting Story of Missionary Work in That Country.

WAR'S DESTRUCTION

Fine Industrial School is Destroyed by Fire—Efforts Now Being Made to Rebuild the Structure Through American Help.

Rev. Lewis Bond, of this city, who for a number of years was a missionary in Turkey, and is familiar with conditions in that part of the world, has prepared the following Balkan war notes:

"Outside of Salonica, at the present writing in Greece, there is a fine industrial school of 76 acres. It was started by Rev. Dr. I. H. House, a former missionary associate of mine in Thrace. Recently bombs from German or Belgian aircraft were sprinkled over the plant, but no building was struck. It remained for a careless human to do what the airmen failed to accomplish. He simply got on top of the main building with an open brasier of live coals when a strong wind was blowing in from the sea, and the roof quickly was ablaze.

"Quickly also the whole structure was ablaze and burned to the ground, with a large part of the contents. But sad as it was it was not an unmixed calamity. Even war is not all hell. Dr. House writes: 'The kindness shown us by French and English soldiers and officers has greatly touched us. An ambulance from a Canadian hospital unit was on the ground with provisions for over Sunday before the fire was out. An ambulance, the next day, brought more provisions. An American, sewing in the French Red Cross, gave us 100 francs. A British captain also gave 100 francs.

"'The Sisters of No. 5 Canadian General Hospital contributed 620 francs ($115.94); Mr. Cooper 5 Turkish pounds ($22). A poor woman in town gave $4.40. An English lady sent a most touching letter with 3 pounds sterling. The quartermaster-general of the British army has loaned us two large tents. The Sisters of the Scottish Women's Hospital, serving the French army, sent us a loan of blankets and three cot beds and a gift of clothing for the boys; also medicine and bandages. The French soldiers helped with a will to save the things that were saved.'

"Dr. House hopes to have the building replaced with a better one immediately. It will call for some $6,000, and he apeals to the trustees in America. I once listened to a very strong address by Oscar L. Straus in praise of this interdenominational 'The Salonica Agricultural and Industrial Institute,' which he and Mrs. Straus had carefully inspected. I count it an honor to be one of the board of directors.

"Rev. J. W. Baird, once my associate in Macedonia, is now in Lamokov, Bulgaria. In a recent letter of last March, he says the latest newspaper the station had received from the United States was the Indepn the United States was the Independent of December 6, 1915. No table butter for a long time; not a bit of sugar in the house; no white bread. Meat till lately comparatively good and cheap, but now government orders that no cattle are to be killed till they are ten months old. Thread is 40 cents a spool. No kerosene. All Americans well.

"My daughter and husband, Rev. P. B. Kennedy, want to return to the Balkans at once, but the Missionary Board prefers waiting until the expected drive of the allies at Salonica takes place.

"The Turkish government is closing up all missionary institutions, except the German, while carefully guarding the missionaries against personal injury. But this move is too late by a good many years to accomplish its main purpose.

Nearly all of the above display the emblem of the organization, similar to the one at the head of this article, in some conspicuous place in the window of their places of business. It stands for square dealing. It stands for honest merchandise, full value for your money, and a faithful attention to every order. In the next talk we will tell you something about our system of observing holidays, so that there will be no confusion on the part of the public in the future as to when the stores will be found open and ready to receive customers.

JERSEYMEN WILL GREET PRESIDENT

Wittpennites Plan for Demonstration at Notification Meeting.

Arrangements are being made for a big turnout of Hudson county Democrats to attend the meeting of representatives of the Democratic National Convention and President Woodrow Wilson at Shadow Lawn, the Wilson summer home near Long Branch, when the President is officially notified of his nomination as the candidate of the party for re-election this fall.

The date for the notification gathering has not been announced, but the plans of the Democratic enthusiasts are being pushed in order that everything may be ready for the big New Jersey showing. A committee of prominent Democrats from all parts of Hudson county will be in charge of the general arrangements and there will be an executive committee to handle the details. Several thousand men are expcted to go from Hudson.

Incidental to the demonstration in favor of the re-election of Mr. Wilson it is planned to give impetus to the boom of Naval Officer H. Otto Wittpenn, of Jersey City, as the candidate of the party for Governor of New Jersey, and several tramloads of cheering Hudson Democrats, all backing Wittpenn, are expected to make the trip to the seashore.

BUFFALO PREPARES TO ENTERTAIN SHRINERS

Buffalo, N. Y., July 7.—The red fez worn by the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine will be much in evidence in Buffalo next week, when the imperial council of the order will meet in annual conclave. The gathering will bring together at least 100,000 Shriners and probably an equal number of other visitors. Every section of the United States and Canada will be represented.

The local arrangements for the reception and entertainment of the visitors are of the most perfect and elaborate character. A wide variety of outdoor entertainment will be provided in the program. In addition to the street parade, the exhibition drills and other features that have attended similar gatherings in the past there will be a great outdoor pareant and daily sightseeing trips to points of interest in Buffalo and vicinity. Free excursions will be provided for the visitors to Niagara Falls, the mammoth hydro-electric plants in the vicinity, and to the great Canadian military training camp just across the border.

EDUCATION CONFERENCE.

Silver Bay, N. Y., July 7.—The fifteenth annaul session of the Silver Bay Conference of the Missionary Education Movement opened today with an attendance of clergymen, Sunday school superintendents, missionary workers, study-class leaders and Christian young people from all of the Eastern States and Canada. The conference program covers ten days and provides for thirty missionary courses of an hour each day, giving normal training in the history of missions as aadpted to different ages and also expert instruction about missionary fields, with particular attention to South America.

FUNERAL OF MISS WRIGHT.

The funeral of Miss Sarah McKissick Wright, whose death occurred Wednesday morning, was held this afternoon at three o'clock at the home of the Misses Emma and Anna Smalley, 33 Manning avenue, where she made her home. The service was in charge of the Rev. C. S. Gillespie, pastor of Grace Methodist Episcopal church, and was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends of the deceased. The floral offerings were numerous, handsome set pieces being included in the profusion. Interment took place in Hillside cemetery.

TO BE MARRIED IN CHINA.

San Francisco, July 7.—Among the passengers booked to sail for the Orient tomorrow is Miss Clara Linn, of Cambridge, Mass., who is going to China to become the bride of Roy L. Creighton. Mr. Creighton is a secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association, stationed at Hankow. The wedding ceremony will take place next month at Kuling, Central China, known as a summer resort for tourists. The couple will make their home at Hankow after Sept. 1.

Curiosities of Etymology.

It is extraordinary how words for the same thing differ in even so small a country as England. Take "left handed," for example. In Gloucestershire such a person is described as "scrammy," in Staffordshire he becomes "craggy." The phrase for a left handed Yorkshireman is "gawkrodger" or "callick handed," and in the next county, Derham, he is "cuddy paw."—London Telegraph.

Aids to Greatness.

Phrenologist (enthusiastically)—Why, sir, the bump of veneration is the largest I have ever seen. Such a bump should make you a bishop. Subject (delightedly)—Is that so? Well, I'll get Paddy Nolan to give me another whack in the same place, and I'll be an archbishop at once.—Exchange.

Mean Tempered.

"Your teeth are in pretty bad shape," remarked the dentist.

"It isn't their shape that bothers me," said his patient. "It's their disposition."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

NOISES OF THE NIGHT.

Weird Sounds That Startle Travelers in the Desert of Gobi.

In Ceylon the devil bird is a constant source of alarm. No one knows what species of bird it is, but throughout the whole night its cries are horrible and bloodcurdling. The natives regard the cry of this mysterious bird as a sure presage of death.

In the desert of Gobi, which divides the mountainous snow clad plateau of Tibet from the milder regions of Asia, travelers assert that at night they have heard sounds high up in the sky, as of the clashing of arms and sounds of martial music. If travelers fall to the rear or get separated from the caravan they hear themselves called by name. If they go after the voice they get lost in the desert. Sometimes they hear the tramping of horses, and, taking it for their caravans, are drawn away, and, wandering from the right course are hopelessly lost. The people believe that these sounds are produced by the spirits that haunt the desert.

The Irish banshee may be traced to the owls, as the description of the cry is so similar to that of the owl, which completes the identification. Most of the weird sounds that are heard in the air at night seem to have superstitious terrors and are often magnified and altered by those who hear them.—Pearson's Weekly.

WHIMS OF A BOXER.

Corbett's Nerves Jangled When He Was About to Meet Jeffries.

Jim Corbett was all nerves when preparing for a bout. Jimmy Coffroth, who promoted the bout between Corbett and Jeffries at San Francisco, told this one on Jim:

"Corbett was an easy man to get along with save that he was finicky about small matters. For instance, he came to me before the Jeffries fight and wanted to know who would be a likely referee. When I told him the man he sought him out and put him through a third degree on boxing.

"There never was a question of ring form that he didn't bring up. A few days before the fight he came to me and asked to be shown the door in Mechanics' pavilion through which he would enter on his arrival. I showed him the big front door, and he said, 'No, too much jostling there; show me another door.'

"I took him to every entrance in the building, but none would suit, and I wound up by having a carpenter cut a special door in the side of the building for him. That was the queerest whim I ever ran across dealing with boxers."—New York World.

A Drop of Water.

Figures are sometimes impressive simply by being so stupendous that the human mind grasps them with difficulty. An instance in point is afforded by the illustration once offered to his hearers by an eminent scientist, who, in order to bring to their comprehension the idea of ultimate particles of water, stated that if he were to empty a tumbler containing half a pint of water, letting out each second a number equal to 1,000 times the population of the earth, it would require somewhere between 7,000,000 and 47,000,000 years to empty the tumbler. Lord Kelvin has assured us that if a drop of water were magnified to the size of the earth the particles would be between the size of cricket balls and footballs. If that statement is correct the drops of water in all the oceans are not many times so numerous as the particles, or molecules, in a single drop.

Story of a Dog's Jaw.

The strength of a dog's jaws and teeth were never more exemplified than in the case of a Ross-shire gamekeeper, whose collie was unfortunate enough to be caught in a steel vermin trap. The gamekeeper, gun in hand, was soon on the scene, but in the short time the dog had become quite infuriated with pain. Having nothing suitable for muzzling the animal and fearing to place his foot upon the trap spring with the dog's jaws free, the gamekeeper placed the gun barrels in the dog's mouth and held them there while easing the spring. With a vicious snap the teeth closed on the cold steel ere he regained his freedom. The barrels were holed through—an almost incredible performance—and were examined shortly after.—London Graphic.

Britain's Oldest Colony.

Bermuda now ranks as the oldest of Britain's colonies, the English flag having been hoisted there in 1612 by a party of colonists from the Virginia company who stopped at the islands on the way to the mainland, went on to Virginia, found Jamestown in a state of starvation and returned. A previous explorer, Juan de Bermudez, gave the group its name.

Rubbering For a Kiss.

The young husband halted at the gate and retraced his steps.

"Did you come back for another kiss, dear?" inquired the bride.

"Well, I'll take another kiss, but what I came back for was my rubbers."—Brooklyn Citizen.

Three of Them.

Dearborn—Do you know the seven wonders of the world? Wabash—Well, I know three of them. Dearborn—Only three? Wabash—Yes. I've only got three sons, you know.—Exchange.

Revenge No. 1.

Adam partook of the first shad.

"You made such a fuss over losing a bone I thought I'd give you plenty," observed Eve.—New York Times.

Liberty exists in proportion to wholesome restraint.—Daniel Webster.

FUNERAL OF ELEANOR DUNN.

Relatives and friends in large numbers attended the funeral service of Mrs. Eleanor Dunn, held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of her son, William E. Dunn, of 22 Norwood avenue. The services was in charge of Rev. H. St. G. Burrill, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross. There were many floral wreaths and sprays, among the set pieces being one from the S. P. C. A., of which Mrs. Dunn was secretary and treasurer at the time of her death. The interment took place in the Plainfield avenue cemetery, four nephews acting as pall bearers.

Here's to a Safe and Sane Fourth

Insist on having a safe and sane Fourth for the children—no dangerous fire crackers, rockets or matches. Be equally particular that the youngsters eat only "safe and sane" ice cream.

This Fourth make it yourself in one of the famous Alaska Freezers. It is the open-spoon dasher in these freezers, whipping air into every particle of the cream, which makes ice cream frozen in Alaska Freezers so wonderfully delicate and smooth.

And, making it yourself, you will have the satisfaction of knowing that it is absolutely pure.

An Alaska Freezer will last a lifetime. But be sure it is an Alaska.

We also have on hand the White Mountain and North Star Freezers.

FUNSTON WARNED TO STRENGTHEN BORDER PATROL TO RESIST ANY STRIKE CONTEMPLATED BY VILLA

RUMOR THAT BANDITS ARE HURRYING OVER TWO HUNDRED MILE DESERT STRETCH TO AMERICAN LINE BRINGS ORDER TO PREPARE.

OUTLAW LEADER IS RECOVERING FROM WOUNDS

Washington Hears That Villa's Thigh Was Pierced by Bullet But That He is Now Able to Be About—Carranza Warns State Department of Possible Raid on United Statee Border.

San Antonio ,Tex., July 8.—Rumor had it here today that the Villista bandits were heading for the American border bent upon a raid with 1,000 men. If this is so they will have to cross a two hundred mile strip of desert and in the mean time General Funston is taking every precaution to strengthen his patrol everywhere but principally in the section between Boquillas and Ojinaga, which is believed to be the most likely place for Villa to strike in the present condition of affairs. War Departmen instructions recommend that Funston prepare for a raid in the Big Bend District of Texas and the Funston followers are arranging every detail for the capture of the bandit and his men.

Villista activities have been renewed in Southern Chihuahua and meager details have arrived concerning the fighting at Corralitos and Jiminez where Villa is said to have routed the government forces under General Ramos. The most authentic information says that General Manuel Ochoa, with a force of 1,500 men, struck the garrison at Jiminez at about the same time that a force of one thousand soldiers under General Calixto Contreras occupied Corralitos, ten miles to the southeast.

Washington, July 8.—The War Department today received further rumors of Pancho Villa's operations. He is now reported at Canutillo on Rio Florida, west of Parral. It is said that Villa's wounds were caused by a bullet that passed through the back muscles of both thighs without striking the bone. He has recovered sufficiently to walk with a limp and to ride with greater ease.

Carranza, through Ambassador-Designate Arredondo, notified the State Department today that a de faco Government force had been destroyed by a large band of Villa followers at Carralitos, Chihuahua, on Wednesday. Carranza expressed the fear that this band had proceeded northward through the desert and might concentrate near the border for a raid into United States territory.

He suggested that the American troops on the border exercise particular vigilance in the stretch of border line between Boquillas and Ojinaga, and promised that meanwhile every effort would be made by his own forces to pursue and capture the bandits.

The dispatch containing the warning was turned over at once to Secretary Baker by the State Department and telegraphed to General Funston. Means for dealing with the threatened raid will be decided upon at General Funston's headquarters, and officials here expressed the belief that the Villa band will meet with a warm reception.

The presumed line of march which the band has taken is not within striking distance of any of the troops of General Pershing's expeditionary force. It is over rough country and through desert regions where Carranza himself has practically no troops. The danger, it is explained, will come from a possible sudden concentration of the band near some selected point on the border for a sudden incursion over the line.

General Funston's most difficult problem will be to ascertain what point the raiders are making for and so be able to concenerate a sufficient force to meet them. Incidentally, it is regarded as not improbable that some of the militia troops may be close to the thick of actual fighting.

Army officers here say that General Funston may find the use of his aeroplanes of inestimable value in locating the band as it approaches. But the most valuable information, it is expected, should come from reports received by the Mexican Government, which is in a position to at least keep track of the movement of any considerable body of Villa followers and speedily forward such information to Washington. Carranza's willingness to do this, as evidenced by his report, is regarded here as an excellent omen for the effective co-operation of the two Governments to wipe out Villistas in northern Mexico.

San Antonio, Texas, July 8.—Villa also has created an embarrassing situation for his earlier associates who now hold commissions in the Carranza army. Those men have been promising that Villa and all his followers will be found lined up with the government in the event of intervention, yet the first act of the bandit after emerging from his long retirement is to strike at government troops.

There are unofficial reports in Juarez today that Villa captured a Carranza pay train at Jiminez and immediately distributed all of the money that it contained among his soldiers. It also is reported that Villa is again circulating his Chihuahua State money in Central Mexico and that in some places it is being accepted in preference to Carranza money.

Just what Villa expects to gain by his present movement is a question, but American Government officials here are of the opinion that he is still bent on forcing intervention, and that to bring this about he will even attack the American punitive expedition. It is regarded as more likely, however, that he will try another border raid, for the bandit is believed to be fully informed of the strength of the American army in the field.

Mexican Government officials are plainly worried about the situation. Not the least of their concern is over the attitude of their own troops. Villa is still the idol of the peons and even the best disciplined of the Government troops do not want to fight him. A report reached here that General Obregon has tendered his resignation as Minister of War in the Carranza Cabinet, and is coming north to personally take charge of the campaign in Chihuahua.

Obregon is the only man in Mexico who has ever beaten Villa in a stand-up fight, and it is believed his presence in the field would greatly help the situation. Neither General Gonzales nor Andres Garcia, the Mexican Consul, would admit that they had heard that Obregon had resigned his portfolio.

General Pershing was warned by wireless of the Villa rising, and it is believed that he is prepared to give the bandit a warm reception if he takes it into his head to again invade the Casas Grades district.

REPUBLICANS ENDORSE SEN. EDGES CANDIDACY

Enthusiastic G. O. P. Gathering in Elizabeth Marked by Inspiring Addresses.

The candidacy of State Senator Walter E. Edge, who is seeking the Republican nomination for Governor, was given a decided boost at the meeting of the Union County Republican Committee, held in Elizabeth last evening. At the meeting, which was held in the Republican headquarters, 64 Broad street, and which was well attended, Senator Edge made a speech as did many prominent supporters of his candidacy. It is very probable that the Senator will make a tour of the county this week, but it is not thought that he will make any formal addresses at present as the primaries are three months off. Despite the fact that it was intensely hot last evening, the gathering of representative Republicans was a most enthusiastic one and was very gratifying to Mr. Edge. Frank H. Smith introduced the speakers.

Those who spoke in favor of Senator Edge at last evening's meeting were Mayor Leighton Calkins and former Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city; Harry Evans, mayor of Westfield; John Hines, mayor of Cranford; Rufford Franklin, mayor of Summit; Harry Simmons, mayor of Rahway; Victor Mravlag, mayor of Elizabeth; Senator Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford; Assemblyman C. L. Morgan, of Elizabeth; John J. Carroll, city clerk of Plainfield; C. H. K. Halsey, president of the Union County Trust Company, and William Newcorn, of this city, who is chairman of the Union County Republican Committee. Each of these men spoke very highly of the Senator and promised him support during his coming campaign. Mr. Edge was in this city this morning and made visits to his many friends here.

SUMMER WORK AT Y. M. C. A.

Secretary Estes' Report Shows That Association Has Not "Let Down."

USING OUTSIDE GYM

Great Work Done Among Militiamen at Sea Girt Camp—Vacation Bureau Established to Furnish Literature for Members.

The report of the General Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. for the month of June shows that unusual interest in all lines of activity has characterized the work for the month. This report was submitted by Secretary Estes at the directors' meeting last night:

The regular class schedule in the physical department has been maintained, the only change being the substitution of the outside for the inside gymnasium. Several "hikes" and other outings for the boys have been held.

The Men's Bible Class led by W. D. Murray is still holding its weekly sessions on Monday evenings and will probably continue to do so through July.

The Religious Work Committee has outlined its program for the fall and winter of 1916-17. It includes a series of men's Sunday afternoon meetings, beginning in October, for which a number of strong speakers are being engaged. The Y. M. C. A. building will be open on Sunday afternoons from 3 until 6 o'clock. At 5:15 a Bible class will be held, followed by a light lunch and social hour from 6 until 7. Other Bible classes including one in teacher training and personal evangelism will be held during the week. The exact date on which this program will be begun will be announced later.

Considerable progress in the tearing down of the old buildings on the lot at the corner of Fifth and Sycamore streets, the site of the new structure, is being made and it is expected they will be entirely removed by the first of August.

Negotiations for a strong leader for the building campaign to be held in November next, are in progress, and his name will be announced in the near future.

The reference to the Sea Girt visit shows that great numbers of the New Jersey soldiers availed themselves of the privileges of the Y. M. C. A. tents at that place. In addition to the small stores department where candy, post cards, souvenirs, etc., could be procured, stationery and postage stamps were provided and outgoing mail handled. To demonstrate how much this latter feature alone was worth to the men, it is interesting to note that on one day alone nearly six thousand pieces of mail were taken from the Y. M C. A. to the post office. Bible classes were held each night at different tents in the several commands, while hundreds of testaments were distributed, the money for these being raised by churches in Newark and Jersey City. More testaments are being forwarded to the border. three churches in Plainfield, First M. E., First Baptist, and Temple Baptist, having made contributions to the fund, while two individual subscriptions have been received.

A vacation bureau has been established at the local association building, where literature and information regarding summer resorts on the eastern railroads may be obtained.

FORM LOCAL OPTION LEAGUE IN BOROUGH

Dr. H. K. Carroll Chosen President of Organization—Plan Lively Campaign.

An enthusiastic and largely attended meeting was held in the Watchung Avenue Presbyterian church, the borough, last night when a local option league was organized and officers were elected. Most of the evening was taken up with busines details and there was no time for addresses. Everyone present was deeply interested in the organization and promised to work hard for its success.

The meeting was called to order by Deuse N. VanVliet, and after he explained the objects, these officers were elected for the coming year: President, Dr. H. K. Carroll; vice president, Deuse N. Van Vliet; secretary-treasurer, F. O. Dunning. There will be an executive committee comprising five members from each of the five districts of the borough. These will be announced as soon as acceptances are received.

Attorney Monroe and Organizer Zelchenko, of the Anti-Saloon League, were present to assist in the organization of the league. The next meeting will be held subject to the call of the president. The league intends to take an active part in the fall campaign.

Frank Storr, of West Front street, is at his home convalescing from an operation at Muhlenberg Hospital, which he underwent recently.

BOROUGH HAS PAID FOR NEW QUARTERS

Change Complete, Reports Councilman Milne—Business of Council.

All bills against the borough of North Plainfield for work in remodeling the fire house and installing all city departments there have been paid. This fact was reported by Councilman Milne last night. The work is completed, and was well done, said Mr. Milne and all of it has been paid for. Bills ordered paid for the month of June totaled $7,932.08.

The report of the borough treasurer showed a healthy balance on hand and no money will be borrowed to meet last month's bills. Mayor Smalley complimented Tax Collector Arnold for efficient work in getting in moneys due the borough. Expenses of the street department during the month of June were $724.22, and of the fire department $544.46. The reports of the recorder showed that 44 arrests were made during the months of May and June and that $77.50 was collected in fines.

A communication from the Grace M. E. church congratulating and thanking the Council for its action on the Latzko case was received and filed.

An ordinance changing the borough lockup from the old police station to new quarters in the fire hall was introduced by Councilman McGee and passed on its first and second readings.

Upon motion of Councilman Stahl an amendment to the fire ordinance abolishing the office of chief engineer was passed on two readings. The purpose of this move is to enable the borough to pay regular men in the fire department more money.

A bill of $150 for the auditing of the borough books in 1915 was ordered paid.

MISS HOGAN STILL LEADS IN CONTEST

Krause's Carnival Will Arrive Here Tomorrow and Be Ready Monday.

The second day's vote for Queen of the Knights of Columbus Carnival shows an increasing interest and promises to develop into a most exciting contest. The relative standing of the various candidates has not changed much since yesterday. Miss Florence Hogan still leads, with Miss Kittie Conshay a close second, and Miss Peggy Benson third. The vote up to last night was as follows: Miss Florence Hogan, 1010; Miss Kittie Conshay, 916; Miss Peggy Benson, 889; Miss Ethel Brown, 821; Miss Lillian Coffee, 797; Miss Katherine Regan, 783, and Miss Delhia Burke, 774.

Monday will be bargain day for the candidates and any vote cast up to 11 p. m. will count double, for instance, five cents will count for ten votes and twenty-five cents will count for fifty votes. This is the only day during the entire contest when votes will count double.

The Krause Greater Shows, which will furnish the attractions for the carnival, will arrive in this city tomorrow afternoon and will be switched to the Pond Tool Works siding, unloaded and transferred to the show grounds at West Front street and Clinton avenue. The principal attractions carried by the Krause shows are as follows: Ashburn's Dog, Pony and Monkey Circus and Julia Allen's Horse Show combined, where all the educated four-footed actors will be found in a performance that seems almost human in its marvelous exhibition. "Thesia," the temple of mystery, will show you all the latest illusions conceived by master magicians.

"Obirta," the show beautiful, whose name is fully descriptive of the performance given by the attraction; the ten-in-one or circus side show will give ten attractions for one price of admission; "In the Trenches," where you are treated with surprise after surprise; the giant "Motor Drome," where daredevil motorcycle riders will run their machines at a speed of 70 to 80 miles an hour on a perpendicular track; "The Wonder City," a city of miniature people busily engaged in their various activities; the carousal and a Ferris wheel.

MAYOR SMALLEY WILL NOT RUN FOR ASSEMBLY

Mayor William L. Smalley, of the borough, who has repeatedly been mentioned as a possible candidate for the Assembly this fall on the Republican ticket, announced today that he would not enter the race for the office, giving as his reason that he cannot devote the necessary time to the campaign.

Mr. Smalley feels that his present office of Mayor takes about all of the time he can afford to spare from his business and therefore will not seek the nomination for the Assembly in the fall.

GERMAN FORCES BEGIN RETREAT

BRITISH RAIN BLOWS

Artillery in Action All Night—Machine Guns Rake the Battle Front—German Retirement Said to Be Due to Use of Youths.

London, July 8.—British artillery north of the Ancre river in France was active all night and there was a continuous rain of shells of all calibre upon the German trenches in the region of Commecort. The British war office in an announcement today stated that the German positions at Commecourt, which is due west of Bapaume, were heavily shelled.

It is believed the immense army, harried at every step by the onrushing Slavs, will attempt to make a stand at Stanislau, sixty miles south of Lemberg, the Galacian capital. Military critics doubt von Bothmer's ability to halt there, because Gen. Letchitzky is south of the Stanislau-Halicz line and is counted on to roll up the Teutonic flank.

Of the last batch of 11,000 prisoners taken, 4,000 were Germans. The first real German retirement in Russia is said by Petrograd to be due to their use of immature youths in the firing line.

The Germans are being given no rest. The great British offensive, renewed at dawn yesterday, continues with fury. Gen. Haig late last night reported that after an entire day of terrific fighting, the British have advanced 500 yards on a front of 2,600 yards, between the Ancre Brook and the Somme.

In addition, the British forced their way into the village of Ovillers and also into Contal Maison, although driven out of the latter place by a counter attack. The British bore almost the entire brunt of the fighting along the Somme front, where the struggle has turned into the reduction of field fortresses, like the now world-famous "Labyrinth" below Lens and the Hohenzollern Redoubt, south of La Basse.

Paris, July 8.—This afternoon's report issued by the war office said that French troops made a further gain Friday night on Somme front in the neighborhood of Belloy en Santerre and Estrees.

Amsterdam, July 8.—The German military critic, a Gen. von Blume, estimates that British and French used a million shells on a 40 kilometre front. He declares this is an extraordinary average for 250 kilometres.

HEATH ARRESTED IN DEPOT ROBBERY PLOT

Youth Alleged to Have Driven Culprits' Car Makes Confession to Chief Kiely.

Chief Kiely's dragnet this morning scooped in another youth charged with complicity in the Netherwood station robbery committed on the night of June 30. He is Eddie Heath, a taxi chauffeur, and while he had no real part in planning the crime it is alleged that he received a portion of the $600 loot and that he will prove a valuable witness when Southard, Grolletto and Walpole, the trio now under arrest charged with planning and executing the deed, are brought before the Grand Jury.

Heath, in his confession to Chief Kiely, following his apprehension by Lieut. Maurice Higgins, is said to have admitted his culpability in so far as knowing about the robbery is concerned. He made a statement to the police showing that he was called to Richmond street and South avenue about 5 o'clock the afternoon of June 30 to meet Walpole and Grolletto. They rode around for a couple of hours, according to Heath, and then ordered him to stop and wait for them at South and Leland avenues. In the meantime, the police say, the two "pulled off" the deal with Southard, the ticket agent, who was supposed to lie in the road and pretend that he had been attacked by highwaymen and robbed.

The youth arrested this morning told how Walpole and Grolletto returned to his car saying: "We got our way, drive on." This was about 8 o'clock and he left them shortly afterwards and returned to the Maples, a roadhouse at the spot where he met them after the robbery. Chief Kiely met him at the Maples and asked him if he had seen Walpole or Grolletto and he replied that he had seen neither for three days, according to the police.

Chief Kiely told a Daily Press reporter this morning that Heath had received $15 for driving the alleged robbers' car and that he had a previous knowledge of the crime that was to be committed. Walpole is now awaiting extradition in a Brooklyn jail and Grolletto is in Elizabeth under bonds. Heath will be arraigned before City Judge William G. De Meza tomorrow morning.

PLAINFIELD TROOPERS ENJOYING THEMSELVES ALONG THE BORDER AT THE EXPENSE OF WESTERNERS

SEVERAL WITNESSED MULE TAMING CONTEST YESTERDAY AFTERNOON AND HELPED GUARDSMEN COLLECT A $15 BET.

BILL DANIELS SCALDED ON WAY TO DOUGLAS

Local Boy in Mess Car Met With Painful Accident, But is Recovering Rapidly—Fourth Regiment Arrived at Douglas Yesterday Morning—Looking Forward to Reunion With Troop D.

Owing to the fact that the Plainfield Daily Press goes to press at 1 o'clock on Saturdays today's telegram from the Troop D correspondent has been omitted. It will probably not arrive here before 2 o'clock and will be posted immediately on the window of the Daily Press office. Those persons interested may obtain information by 'phoning 3,000 or calling personally.

(By Telegraph to the Daily Press)

Douglas, Ariz., July 7, 5 p. m. The Plainfielders in Arizona with the Essex troops are getting a real taste of hot weather. The mercury has been hanging over the century mark ever since we arrived. Our officers are very considerate, however, and they make us do little work during the hot hours of the day. We lie around in our tents and seek what shade there is available on the tent ground.

You will remember that man Fisher, the rough rider, we wrote you about meeting on the train on the way to the border. He got quite chummy with the Plainfield bunch, although we were inclined at first to take him as somewhat of a hot air merchant. Well, yesterday afternoon he got a chance to show us that he could really ride a horse. He had been vowing that he could tame any brute the officers gave him.

A bunch of western cowboys were having the time of their lives with a frisky mule near town yesterday morning as four of the Plainfield fellows and Fisher came along. We stopped to watch several of the cowboys take a ride over the head of the mule and were splitting our sides laughing when Fisher suddenly spoke up and declared the cowboys didn't know how to ride anyway. His remark was overheard and one of the native westerners offered to bet him $15 that he couldn't ride the animal. We made up a $15 pot and wagered it on Fisher just for the fun of the thing. We felt sure that he couldn't ride the animal but we reckoned that we would have $15 worth of fun out of it. He got on the mule's back all right and in fifteen minutes he had him as gentle as a kitten. Then the cowboys refused to come across with the $15 and Fisher decided he would keep the mule. They threatened to assassinate us but some of our other pals came up and with drawn pistols we asked the cowboys whether they would pony up the $15 or leave the mule. They managed to scrape the money together and redeemed the animal inside of an hour. We went to town and had some blowout on that money.

We hear that Troop D is nearing Douglas and that they are going to camp near us. That's just what we have been praying for and I believe there is every chance of us returning to the Plainfield troop when it arrives. We'll certainly have some reunion.

The advance guard of the Fourth Regiment, which I believe left Sea Girt last Saturday, arrived here this morning and we gave them a royal welcome. They are suffering with the heat. We who came here first have gotten pretty well used to it and it is amusing for us to sit around and watch the new-comers puff and fuss under the sun's hot rays.

We don't expect to be allowed to quit this until after November, at least that's what they say around here. They tell us that the Jersey guardsmen may be in for a stay of one and one-half years and possibly two years. But we should worry as long as we can survive the weather.

Forty-three bags of mail arrived yesterday. It was welcome all right. Included in the mail were many letters from Plainfielders we had never spoken to before and the most cherished missiles happened to be Plainfield Daily Presses. One of our men appears to be a regular subscriber to the Press and we all drew lots to take a turn at his paper after he finished. Keep up the good work in telling people to write letters. We don't get very much reading matter around here but we have lots of time to spare in this way.

(Special Letter to the Press)

Forest City, July 5.—We arrived at Forest City at 6:30 p. m., and were given another one of the welcomes that we have been getting all along the line. We are getting so used to being shouted at and cheered that we won't know how to get along without it when we get to the border. By the time you get this I expect we will be pulling into Arizona and we are all looking forward to a big reunion with our Plainfield friends in the Essex Troop. Wish we could get some papers from home and some mail, but I guess we'll have to wait until we get to the border.

Bill Daniels, who is sharing the work in the mess department under Sergeant J. Hartley Mellick, met with a painful, though not serious, accident yesterday. He was preparing the coffee for supper when it boiled over and severely scalded him. He was given first aid and is resting comfortably today. His hands were hurt the most but he expects to be back in good shape before landing at Douglas and says he has the joke on us for he doesn't have to do anything but eat and sleep now. But it's hot enough along here without taking a bath in boiling coffee and we don't envy him.

Outside of Bill Daniels everybody is feeling fit and trim. Some of the boys have become wonderfully proficient at "penny-ante" since leaving Manasquan and we also have discovered a number of half-way bearable singers.

A half dozen of the boys in this car spend most of their time writing letters to the Daily Press and I expect you are getting enough of them. There's lots to write about but we don't have a whole lot of time to write it. Most of us keep our heads out of the window during the day time and are tired enough to sleep at night.

A. Peyton Schenck, son of Mrs. A. Richmond Parkhurst, is attending the Plattsburg Training Camp for several weeks.

Fooled Them All.

The discussion about the fitness of horse meat to eat calls to mind the story of a young man in Paris, a good many years ago, who made a wager with some friends that at a dinner he would serve one course that would be horse meat and that none of them could tell which it was. After the dinner he asked them to name the horse meat course and found that they did not agree. One named one course, one another, and so on, but they all agreed that it was a mighty good dinner. "Gentlemen," he said, with his thumbs stuck in the armholes of his waistcoat, "it was all horse."

Not a Learner.

MUSIC FESTIVALS.

They Really Began With the Great Handel's Works in London.

The real "era of musical festivals" begins with the great Handel commemoration, with its festival performances, held in London first from 1784 to 1787 and then again in 1791. Before this there had been music festivals in England, but they were virtually unknown on the continent. It was the efficiency of the English choirs that induced Handel to take up the writing of works for large musical bodies in his oratorios.

The annual production of "The Messiah" in London at Christmas time, with a great chorus and orchestra, naturally aroused the national pride of the Germans, who felt that the great master belonged by birth to them. Berlin first and then other German cities began to give Handel festivals on the London plan, and soon the works of other composers were added to the festival lists.

So that at the beginning of the nineteenth century "several organizations devoting their energies to the production of any great work, whether choral or purely instrumental, sprang into existence in Germany." Among the oldest of these and among the most famous to this day are the Vienna Gesellschaft der Musikfreunde and the Niederrheinische Musikfeste, which take place each year in some city on the lower Rhine.

The United States has followed the example set first by the English and then by the Germans in their musical festivals, and in several of the larger cities there are yearly festivals of this kind.—New York Times.

WOMAN AND THE ARTS.

Why She Excels In Writing and Not In Music and Painting.

The average woman possesses a greater variety of character, as of wardrobe, than does the man. She can more readily lay aside or suppress some important part of her and bring some contrasting feature into view. She carries in herself a ready wealth that is more applicable to the story than to painting or to music. Thus it is, writes George M. Stratton in the Atlantic Monthly, that in painting and in music she is to be passed by man with ease, but in the story, if at all, with greatest effort.

In the minor art of dancing and in the nobler work of reproducing the music of the great composers, as in acting the characters of the great dramatists, there are women of high and even of highest rank. But, to leave these more interpretive or reproductive arts, only in fiction does she approach the mark of men, for here she must be counted with the great of the craft.

And, even should some crabbed soul insist that the rare company in which are George Eliot, Jane Austen, George Sand, Mme. de Stael and the Queen of Navarre does not include the one who is greatest in the guild, yet there is no discomfort felt in naming these women along with Scott and Dickens, Cervantes, Hugo and Boccaccio. But speak of the other creative arts and we feel at once the chill. Chaminade looks ill at ease in the presence of Beethoven, Joanna Baillie with Shakespeare, Angelika Kauffmann with Michelangelo.

The Result of a Drink.

Such a slight circumstance as a glass of wine changed the history of France for nearly twenty years. Louis Philippe, king of the French, had a son, the Duke of Orleans and heir to the throne, who always drank only a certain number of glasses of wine, because even one more made him tipsy. On a memorable morning he forgot to count the number of his glasses and took one more than usual. When entering his carriage he stumbled, frightening the horses and causing them to run. In attempting to leap from the carriage his head struck the pavement, and he soon died. That glass of wine overthrew the Orleans rule, confiscated their property of $100,000,000 and sent the whole family into exile.

Camels.

Unless camels have been especially trained to abstinence they cannot go as long as is commonly supposed without water. When marching near rivers they drink twice a day. They feed largely on the tough, scrubby verdure known locally as camel thorn, which grows throughout Mesopotamia, except on the extreme desert wastes. Their habits are peculiar. Unlike horses, they seem to feel no fondness for their human associates, though they will seldom wander far from the caravan tents even if left untied overnight.

Spoiled the Compliment.

"Yes," said the voluble crank, "I used to be as bad as you, but I made up my mind to quit smoking and drinking, and I did it."

"Indeed!" remarked Manley. "I guess a man who can quit smoking and drinking could quit almost anything"—

"Oh, yes."

"Except talking about it." — New York Globe.

A Boon.

"I know an actor who wants to rent the haunted house on your hands."

"What does he want with a haunted house?"

"Says he'll jump at any place where the ghost walks regularly."—Baltimore American.

A Want Ad Is Often the First Link in a Chain of Consequences

It initiates something of far-reaching importance to you. You meet someone with whom you will do business for years—or you buy or sell property that changes the currents of your daily affairs. Many a want ad is of but transient importance of course. But others influence your life for years and years.

Got a Perfectly Good Camera That You Don't Use Any More?

One of the ways in which want ads can be useful to you is in selling, for fair prices in cash, any "second hand" articles you own. They must be good, of course—and priced so that the buyers secure bargains. You can sell any article of furniture, any piece of machinery—anything that still has usefulness for the man who has use for it—through want advertising.

Important Dress Details

Dresses are a little bit longer; they just clear the ankles. The more elaborate they get the wider becomes the skirt hem. Hence, a dress for the morning or a tailored suit seldom measures more than three or four yards, while a silk dress for afternoon, or an evening dance frock, can have anywhere from five to fifteen yards in the skirt.

The waistline is about four inches above the natural body waistline. The corset, being short, is replaced by a brassiere top. This conserves the soft curves of the upper part of the figure so that it has a sort of quaint, old fashioned air which reminds one of basques of daguerrotype days.

Elbow sleeves are slowly making their appearance in the elaborate afternoon frocks. At a recent gathering of women the most fashionably attired wore dresses with elbow sleeves, from which fell deep ruffles of lace.

Nothing gives a look of elegance more than lace, and it is interesting to note that real lace, too, is making its reappearance. Lace collars about the new decollete neck of dresses, lace flounces of the afternoon and evening gowns and the revival of lace wedding veils all point toward this end.

Purple and Blue Favored

There has sprung up quite suddenly a decided fancy for dark purple as a trimming color for all manner of frocks, wraps, and hats.

The association of purple with dark blue, gray, black and with white is very pleasing in its suggestion of dignity and as a relief from the violent colors which have been thrust upon us for the last several months.

However, it must be understood that to be effective purple must be used discreetly. The Paris couturiers have employed the royal color to border dresses of blue serge, employing worsteds and soft satin as the particular mediums for the color transfusion.

To Continue Popular in the Fall.

It is very likely that the use of purple will be carried over to the early Fall season. It may seem a little early to even think of the Fall, but before another month has gone by the army of people who are concerned with the designing, importing, manufacturing and selling of women's apparel will be going abroad in search of new ideas and returning a few weeks later to give to the feminine contingent of America the benefit of their foreign trip.

One cannot be definitely sure about anything, but it is fairly safe to predict a continued use of dark blue, along with the very dark shades of wine; and with these the trimming employment of purple.

Unique Veil Patterns

If the summer girl does not mind being a bit startling in her face covering there are veils striped in colors that match every hue of the rainbow. Not that the colors are all assembled on one veil, but rather they are shown singly with the idea of corresponding with the color of the sweater, of the hat trimming, the belt or the hosiery.

These veils are cut in one circular piece and are finished with a picot edge. Not only may they be had in white with a lively colored stripe, but also in dull basic colors with monotone lines.

If one is tired of stripes she may elect to wear a veil of white, flesh tone, pale gray or beige, covered with coin spots in some highly contrasting color. These all add to the gaiety of the summer attire and frequently a veil of striped or dotted character is all that is needed to enliven the all-white, all-blue or other monotone costume.

Paris has recently taken up a flower-trimmed veil. It is said that the flower should represent one's favorite bloom and that it is so adjusted as to come on top of the nose when the veil is worn. The idea may be pretty, but one cannot picture the American woman going around with a stationary flower appearing to be taking root against her nose.

Sports Colors

Large collars of shantung silk, natural color, are made along sailor lines. Striped silks in sports colors are also used, the whole collar being made of the material or just an edge of it used around a plain colored silk. In the more elaborate styles hand embroidery is introduced.

Striped borders and trimmings are also used on white batiste and organdie collars which are to be worn with striped dresses. Ties to match are affected.

With the tailored navy blue suit you may have a fine linen collar in the natural creamy shade or else one of French gray. Either of these is becoming with the blue, the latter especially forming neutral background for color effects.

Variety in Ribbons

Because of the vogue for ribbon trimming on almost everything, ribbons are now a possibility. There is also a call for narrow plaid ribbons, blue and red, black and yellow, etc.

Silver ribbons are being used extensively for hat trimming, and the waxed ribbons still hold good for many purposes. Narrow ribbons showing a succession of horizontal stripes in the Roman stripe variety is used for lacing through the cane hats, also for trimming all sorts of sports hats.

To Fireproof Cottons

Muslins and cotton goods can be rendered almost fireproof if an ounce of alum or sal ammoniac is put in the last water in which they are rinsed or in the starch when they are stiffened.

This is a particularly wise precaution to take with children's clothes, for even if the clothes do manage to take fire, which is highly improbable, they will burn without flame.

Half a Year Before Another Such Sale of Standard Rugs

Ordinarily, the prices of rugs in this half-yearly sale are as staple as their quality, and that is staple enough. Some are never reduced except when their patterns are to be changed.

The change occurs twice a year. This time the reduction has a special significance because of the increased market value of the rugs, and tendency to go still higher. The choice is still helpfully large.

In the groups of Whittall rugs there are "Anglo-Persians," "Anglo-Indians" and Richmond Wilton rugs in excellent assortment at notable economies.

The English Wilton rugs go from $32.50 for size 6 x 9 feet up to $55 for 9 x 12.

The famous Hartford Saxony rugs go from $5.25 for size 27 x 54 in., to $50 for 9 x 12 feet.

GERMAN FORCES START A GENERAL RETIREMENT

Rome, July 8.—Reports here today indicate that the German forces have started a general retirement between Riga and Baranovicho and at Kolki as th result of the gruelling attacks on the armies of Field Marshal von Hindenburg, Prince of Leopold and General von Linsingen. Violent artillery duels are in progress in the region of Dvinski, along the Dvina front and heavy fighting is taking place west of Kolomea, where the Russians have cut off one of the principal railways to the Austrian front before Lemberg and along the Dniester and the Strypa.

Russians announce that they have captured 270 officers, 9,900 men and much supplies and ammunition.

HE MOVED HIS WELL.

It Wasn't Pulled Up Nor Sawed Up, but It Did Change Place.

There is an old story about the man who pulled up a well and took it to a more desirable location and another about the man who took up a well, sawed it in sections and used one of the sections for a land roller. They were exaggerations, but the experience of Ezra Tetlow proves that a well cannot always be classed as a permanent fixture. Ezra had a well in front of his house. It had never been a success as a well. Ezra wanted it filled up. One way would have been to haul stones or earth and use the material to fill it. But Ezra had no team.

So he went at it with a shovel. Working on the side of the well next to the road, he began to dig and to throw the dirt into the well. He kept this up until he had filled it, which was not a difficult job, as the well was rather shallow.

But when the task seemed finished Ezra found that he had made a new hole by the side of the one he had been filling. There was but one thing to do—he proceeded to fill it in the same manner. Of course this resulted in still another excavation, which in turn received similar treatment.

As all of Ezra's digging had been on the side of the well nearest the road, the result was that the hole in the ground was finally moved out into the highway.

Judson Tolliver was commenting on the exploit one day down at the corners. "Queer thing Ezra did," he remarked. "You know that old well that stood in his front yard? Well, sir, he's moved it thirty feet from where it was—moved it clear out into the road!"

"How'd he do it?" inquired another representative citizen.

"You'll have to ask Ezra," replied Judson. "But he did it, sure enough. I saw the well in the road yesterday, and I saw the track he made movin' it. The thing plowed a furrow four feet wide all the way."—Youth's Companion.

OUR GOLD CERTIFICATES.

Why These Notes Have Never Been Made Legal Tender.

Answering the question, "Why are gold certificates not legal tender?" the New York Times says:

The first gold certificate act was passed in 1863, and at that time the issuance of these certificates was confined to certificates drawn to order. It was not until later that bearer certificates were put out.

These certificates were issued at the request of New York banks which at that time were handling large amounts of gold and which sought the issuance of gold certificates by the government as a matter of convenience, thus obviating the constant handling and rehandling of gold coin. These certificates were regarded not so much as money as warehouse certificates for money, being exchangeable at all times upon demand for the actual coin.

The question of making the certificates legal tender was not, to the knowledge of the authority consulted, discussed when this suggestion of the New York banks was carried into effect by act of congress. The fact that it was decided, to begin with, to limit these certificates to certificates to order would have been a barrier in the way of making them legal tender had the suggestion been advanced.

So much for the authorization of gold certificates and their not being made legal tender then. Financial authorities point out that there has been in the years since no practical need for taking this step. Gold certificates are in practice accepted as in every way as good as the gold itself, and they are immediately convertible into legal tender by surrender and exchange into gold.

Thousands of people visit New York City daily. Some time this summer—perhaps this very week—you are going to be one of these visitors. Of course, you have many engagements—places to see, friends to meet—but somehow, some way, first or last, shopping always comes in.

The great Hearn store in West 14th Street is so filled with the-next-new-things that they allure, even these hot days, which suggests our "Wearaway" hats; have you seen them? Of felt, in all newest sweater colors and almost as silky as the sweaters, for they are of charmeuse felt, for sport wear chiefly, as everything seems to be now.

The dresses in every fabric have sport stripes—sport coat effects. Some by means of leather belts, others by judicious banding; all in some way or another achieve the sport dress air—dashing but not glaring.

Tub skirts in every material—linen—Palmbeach—with buttons down the front—gathered backs and sturdy pockets. The independent flare of the skirts only emphasize the feminine frilliness of blouses.

Would you believe there could be a new sort of tuck or frill in blouses? Yet something must be new to make these blouses so different looking—some in finest linen with embroidered collars and cuffs—Georgette crepe-voile or crepe de chine. Our specialized blouse at $1.85 saves many pennies for careful shoppers.

Then for the house—no matter whether country, seaside or just plain all the year round home—you will need a hammock. So improved and comfortable are these latest couch hammocks that it really seems as though they should have a new name. In many places it is quite cool enough for blankets, and we are famous for blankets, you know. We have unusual values in every variety in pure wool.

And the indispensable toilet necessities—toilet water—powder—soap—brushes and hosts of other things. Hot weather requires rather more of these—but then it's the attention to just these little distinctnesses that mark the woman who knows.

Just a glimpse in the store will help you—you are sure to find the things you need in our big assortment, and Hearn's is so cool these July days.

—Do the available household workers of this city, who read the classified columns of this newspaper, know that you need a good servant?

"The same object seen from three different points of view—the past, the present, the future—often exhibits three different faces to us." LONGFELLOW.

Drug stores come and go with the years. They grow and decline, they progress and retrogress, they survive and they perish.

The kind that are progressive survive; the other kind fails. There is no standing still in the world of business activities—one must go forward or back.

We have endeavored to be progressive in our methods, to represent at all times the highest ideals in pharmacy.

Whether you observed us yesterday, observe us today, or will observe us tomorrow, we hope in one respect we shall always appear the same.

AN ORDINANCE

To amend an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to amend an ordinance entitled 'An ordinance to further amend an ordinance entitled an ordinance to create and define the duties of the Board of Police and a Police Force, approved February 28, 1882, as amended, approved December 5, 1912," approved June 7, 1915.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. That section 1 of the ordinance, the title whereof is recited in the title of this ordinance, be and is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

SECTION 1. That section 3 of the ordinance entitled "An ordinance to create and define the duties of the Board of Police and a Police Force," approved February 28, 1882, as heretofore amended, be and is hereby further amended so as to read as follows:

SECTION 3. The Police Force shall consist of such number of regular policemen and special policemen, each of whom shall be a resident and legally qualified voter of this city, as the Common Council shall from time to time deem necessary, and by resolution order to be appointed. The regular policemen shall rank as follows: Chief of Police, Captain, Lieutenant, Sergeants and Patrolmen. Special Policemen shall not be ranked.

The duties of the several members and officers of the said Police Force shall be those prescribed by the laws of the State, the ordinances of the City and the rules and regulations that may from time to time be prescribed and established by resolution of the Common Council for the better government and discipline of the Police Department. The Patrolmen shall be divided into six (6) classes, viz.:

Class A—Sixth year of service and over.
Class B—Fifth year of service.
Class C—Fourth year of service.
Class D—Third year of service.
Class E—Second year of service.
Class F—First year of service.

Provided that the Common Council upon recommendation of the Police Board may advance a Patrolman from a lower to a higher class for especially good work or meritorious service, whether he shall have served his full time specified above or not; and upon like recommendation may require a Patrolman in any class except Class A to serve for a longer period than above specified on account of unsatisfactory service during the preceding year.

The salaries of the members of the force who are regular policemen are hereby fixed at the following rates, from and after July 1, 1916, that is to say:

Chief	$2,000	per annum
Captain	1,500	" "
Lieutenant	1,400	" "
Sergeants	1,300	" "
Patrolmen:
Class A	1,200	" "
Class B	1,150	" "
Class C	1,100	" "
Class D	1,050	" "
Class E	950	" "
Class F	900	" "

Personal equipment such as revolvers, ammunition, batons, shields, badges, etc., shall be supplied to each of such officers and policemen free of cost. Each of them, however, shall provide at his own expense all uniforms and other wearing apparel necessary for his use, as from time to time required by the Board of Police in compliance with the rules of the department; except that said uniforms and other wearing apparel for Patrolmen who have not reached Class C may be paid for by the City which shall be reimbursed for the cost of any such purchase by deducting from such patrolman's pay ten per cent. of the purchase price each month until the full amount thereof has been paid back to the city; and all such uniforms and wearing apparel for which the City has advanced the purchase price shall be regarded as the property of the City until the City has been fully reimbursed therefor as above specified.

No special policeman shall be entitled to any pay except for service rendered by virtue of an order of the Board of Police or Mayor specifying such service, and for such service shall be paid only such amount as may be fixed by resolution of the Common Council, or of the Board of Police and approved by the Common Council.

The times from which the several dates of service in the police department of the city are to be calculated are the dates at which the continuous service of said regular policemen, respectively, commenced. Said Lieutenant, Sergeants and Patrolmen shall be paid at said rates for the number of full days only of service actually performed by them respectively, and, for such vacation periods as from time to time the Board of Police may determine; except that they severally may, at the discretion of the Board of Police, be paid for any time not exceeding two weeks during which they severally shall be incapacitated from the performance of duty by reason of sickness or other physical disability; but if absent for any reason for more than two weeks, they shall be paid only if and as authorized by the Common Council.

Adopted by the Common Council, July 3, 1916; approved by the Mayor, July 7, 1916.

LEIGHTON CALKINS, Mayor.
Attest: J. T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.

PRISONERS OF WAR

In Former Times They Were Held as Virtual Slaves.

HAD TO EARN THEIR LIBERTY.

Then the System of Ransom Arose and With It Cruel Abuses and a Lawless Traffic In Captives—Rules That Govern Civilized Nations Today.

The prisoner of war in our day is the subject of an elaborate code of rules drawn up at meetings of The Hague peace conference. No property must be taken from him except arms and military equipment. He must not be kept in close confinement if that can be avoided, and if possible his parole must be accepted. He may be set to any work for which he is reasonably fitted—although officers are not bound to work—but he must be allowed a similar standard of life and credited with a similar scale of pay to that which obtains among the soldier-artificers of the conquering nation.

When set free the cost of his maintenance will be deducted and he will receive the balance in cash. He may be shot when trying to escape, but if caught alive he must not be punished except by curtailment of his liberty. These are a few of the many rules by which all civilized nations are now bound in regard to their prisoners of war.

Among savage men the destiny of a prisoner was to be eaten, massacred in cold blood or tortured for sport, until it dawned one day upon some primitive political economist that a live captive had labor value, and so arose the institution of slavery. Among free peoples like the Teutons, war prisoners were the only slaves allowed, and they might in time earn their freedom. This idea of commutation became the custom of medieval Europe, applied as "prize money" to ships and "ransom" to individuals. All officers could claim the right to offer a reasonable ransom, which went into the pocket of the captor. Sometimes officers would ransom a whole troop of their men.

Kings or great captains were ransomed by their nations. Richard the Lion Heart had a woeful time of it until England ransomed him from the Emperor Henry. King John of France, taken at Poitiers by the Black Prince, was held by England to ransom until the Duke of Anjou came as hostage while John went to raise the necessary cash. King David of Scotland, captured by Queen Eleanor, never persuaded the thrifty Scots to pay the whole of his ransom and became a dependent as a consequence.

In Froissart's engaging chronicles you may read how bands of mercenary troops quarreled with gallant and impetuous commanders, whose only object was the destruction of the enemy. The mercenaries were out to take prisoners and trade in the ransoms. This traffic gave rise to infinite abuses, including torture and all manner of dishonesty. Sir John Falstaff—Shakespeare's Falstaff—was notorious for an extensive and unscrupulous traffic in ransoms. Yet it was not until during the eighteenth century wars that an agreement to end the custom was come to between the European commanders. Even then it lingered on in practice until the eve of the Napoleonic wars, when it was swept away for the newer idea of exchange of prisoners, rank for rank.

One great change brought about by the new system was that the prisoners became a state care and responsibility. Whether this change made for greater humaneness of treatment depended in part upon the conquering nation, but even more upon the individual governor or jailer. This may be seen in the varying accounts we have of the conditions of prisoners of war in England during the long struggle with Napoleon.

Lincolnshire's fens make good centers for a military compound. George Borrow, in "Lavengro," has given a terrible picture of the conditions at Norman's Cross prison, in the fen district. "Rations of carrion meat," he writes, "and bread from which I have seen the very hounds occasionally turn away were unworthy entertainment even for the most ruthless enemy, when helpless and captive."

In these prisons the inmates made various articles of commercial utility, such as straw plait, which were bought of them by dealers for a miserable sum, the proceeds procuring them a few trifling comforts and the luxury of tobacco, or affording the bribes necessary for the smuggling out of letters.

More tolerable was the fate of those settled on parole in such towns as Chesterfield, where they endured actual confinement under guard only at night, being free within certain bounds during the day. In many cases, as time went by, prisoners who had won the confidence of their guards became virtually free in all respects, starting workshops as cabinetmakers, etc., or teaching drawing, music or French to the children of the well to do. Their geniality and politeness soon made them very popular with the blunt and serious Derbyshire folk, and quite a number of them married and settled down in the Chesterfield district, where the traces of this settlement may be seen both in local names and in olive skins and other features.—Philadelphia Ledger.

It is hard to fail, but it is worse never to have tried to succeed. In this life we get nothing save by effort.—Theodore Roosevelt.

FIRST OF SERIES OF MUSICALS IN CITY PARK TOMORROW

Under the auspices of the Public Recreation Committee and immediate direction of Clifford A. Braider, the first of a series of musicales will be held in the City Park, opposite the High School, tomorrow afternoon. The half hour of sacred song will begin promptly at 5:15 and close promptly at 5:45. It is expected that Josephine Boughan, contralto of the First Methodist church, will be the soloist.

Three hundred seats have been reserved for the Community Choir and orchestra, which will lead in the singing, and after they are seated the public will be at liberty to use the remaining 200 seats.

Everyone is asked to invite a friend to join in this half hour of music.

FIRST SERVICE AT FRESH AIR HOME TOMORROW

The opening service at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3:45 o'clock, when Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of the First M. E. church, will be the speaker. There will be special music. Services will be held at the Home on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday of each week as well as Sunday.

In view of the prevalence of infantile paralysis it has been thought best not to allow outside children to visit the Home or attend the services at present.

The Home is in need of donations of fruit, vegetables and clothing and contributions of this character will be gratefully received.

Napoleon.

Napoleon, who rose to be a general of brigade after only eight years' connection with the French army, was shortly after shorn of that honor when Robespierre fell. Yet so adroit a politician was he that by 1795 he was the head of the forces of the convention, though nominally an aid-de-camp to Barras as commander in chief and actually the most effectively powerful man in France.

AUTO ENTERPRISE MAY COME HERE

Fergus Motor Car Co. Considering Sites for Plant in This City.

OTHER CITIES BIDDING

Machine is Looked Upon as One of Foremost in the Market, the Result of Twelve Years' Experiment.

Plainfield, with an automobile concern trying to locate here, has an excellent chance to become a city noted as an automobile industrial centre, and so take its place among the large manufacturing cities of the country. The Fergus Motor Car Company, practically new in the fold of automobile competition, is considering the advantages of locating in this city, and as the concern produces a car that already stands high in the list, there is no telling what changes may be wrought in Plainfield as a manufacturing centre should they choose to build here.

Other cities are already realizing the advantage of having the concern, and are making great efforts to induce the officials of the company to consider various propositions. One large city has offered the Fergus Company a factory site and promised to subscribe at least $75,000 toward the common stock of the concern. Now that Plainfield people know this, it is up to them to keep the concern here. The officers of the firm freely admit that it is up to local people, the conditions they can offer, if they expect to secure the enterprise. To locate away from the usual manufacturing centres means the necessary importation from outside of skilled labor, not considering the other advantages that are lost, and if Plainfield can do something to make up these losses the concern say they would rather stay here than go elsewhere.

The Fergus company is not so certain that it will stay here. It is considering the offers of other places as well and the one that seems the best will be taken. Mr. Fergus, himself, has taken a liking to this city and only a little support is all that is needed to have him decide rightly.

The Fergus car is the result of Scotch brain and brawn. The general idea of the machine is intended to revolutionize the American car. Twelve years of study and experimenting in Belfast, Scotland, produced a car without a grease cup, with non-strip gears and other features that the builder claims will entirely change the nature of American automobile manufacturing. And if that is the case there is no telling to what extent Plainfield will be affected.

Clearly it is up to Plainfield people with civic pride in their city and as it is several organizations have realized this and are now trying their best to help the company in its decision.

IN THE SUBURBS

The Dickens house in Dunellen, recently owned and occupied by Bob Fitzsimmons, the prize fighter, located just over the borough line in Middlesex, has been acquired by Dr. Hendrick, of New York, who it is reported will open a chiropractic and Christian Science healing farm as soon as baths are installed. It will be remembered by older residents that when the late Mr. Dickens owned this property many years ago, he went to an enormous expense in fitting up the many springs in the rear of the place and was enthusiastic in his belief that the waters contained many medicinal properties and carried on quite a business in bottled waters for the New York market.

Another contract for a house has been secured by the Apgar Construction Co., of Dunellen. It will be built for the Watchung Investment Co. on First street between Jackson avenue and Park place.

ONLY FOUR PERMITS GRANTED THIS WEEK

Hillside Realty Co., Will Erect $5,000 Residence at Putnam and Hillside Avenues.

Building Inspector T. O. Doane had a quiet time this week, but four permits being granted since the first of July. Of this number three were for dwellings and the fourth for an addition. The total expenditure for the week amounts to $11,950, and this sum added to the previous cost of construction since January 1, makes the grand total thus far expended in building operations in this city over half a million dollars, the exact figures being $508,615.

A permit was granted to the Hillside Realty Co. for the building of a two and a-half story frame dwelling at the corner of Putnam and Hillside avenues at a cost of $5,000. The building will be 38x33x28, and have a cement foundation. William D. Bird, of Greenbrook road, is named as the contractor. Alfonso Gioci filed plans for the building of a terra cotta hollow tile dwelling to cost $4,000 on West Fourth street, near Monroe avenue. The foundation will be of concrete and the heating system will be hot air. The structure will be 24x24x26. George H. Fisher, of Manson place, is the architect, and Gioci will do the building.

A dwelling two stories in height to cost $2,700 is to be built on West Sixth street, between Lexington avenue and Stanley place. The foundations will be of concrete and the walls of brick and shingle. It will measure 23-6x22x32-6, and the carpentering work will be done by Theodore Zeller. The plans were filed by Patrick Boylan.

Daniel H. Kiederling presented correct plans for an additon to be built on a structure one hundred and fifty feet off West Second street and on Exchange alley. It will be of two stories and cost $250. The measurements are 18x18x22. The extension will be on the front of the building and of concrete block and tile.

RUSHING WORK ON MOTOR CO. PLANT

Administration Building Well Underway and Main Structure Started.

Work on the American Motor Corporation plant at West Front street and Grant avenue is progressing favorably and if the present weather conditions keep up there is no doubt but that the contract time for the buildings to be finished will be carried out.

The administration building, measuring 44 by 30 feet, is well up, while the large plant which is being built close to the railroad already has the foundations in and the south wall already up. The latter building will be the assembling room and will measure 60 by 200 feet.

All the buildings will be well in from the street and the usual eyesores surrounding a factory will be eliminated, the grounds around the place being made attractive as possible to conform with the residential section which surrounds the plant.

COMPLETE PLANS FOR CHURCH ADDITION

Heavenly Rest Congregation Will Also Have New Organ to Aid in Parish Work.

The congregation of the Church of the Heavenly Rest will have reason to be proud of their edifice when the addition to the present church is completed. Work on the structure, which will be an extension measuring fourteen feet, will commence probably within the next week or two. The contract for the work is in the hands of Michael Rimmer and the addition will be finished by the middle of September.

The extension will be built of brick and will conform in style with the rest of the building. By the enlargement, the choir loft will have a resting room and more space in the chancel. A new organ will also be installed and this addition calls for an enlarged chamber, the present organ space being entirely too small for the new instrument. The approximate cost of the additions, including the organ, is placed at $4,500.

A SWISS COTTAGE

DESIGNED BY CHAS S. SEDGWICK, ARCHITECT.

HERE is a pretty little cottage suited to a corner lot with a southeast exposure. The size is 20 ft. by a total depth of 35 ft. Built with a high-pitched roof and overhanging gables with balconies and other characteristic features seen in Swiss cottages. It is being built at the present time at a cost of $2,000 to $2,500, exclusive of heating and plumbing. The exterior is covered with wide shingles with alternating courses wide and narrow and the roofs are shingled. There are four rooms on the first floor and three chambers and bathroom on the second floor, also good clothes closets and attic storage space over the library. There is a good basement for heating plant, laundry, etc.

The first story is finished in oak with oak floor and the second floor is finished in pine and enamel white. The exterior shingles on the walls are stained moss green and the roof shingles stained silver gray, all outside trimmings, casings, cornices, etc., are painted white, making a very artistic and pleasing appearance.

Profit by the experience of three centuries of building in America—use for all exposed surfaces

WHITE PINE

King of structural woods. It does not shrink, swell, crack, twist, warp or rot. Once in place, it "stays put" after years of exposure, even in closest-fitting mitres and in delicate mouldings and carvings.

And it takes paint perfectly.

We carry at all times a complete and carefully selected stock of White Pine and all other desirable lumber.

The safest way to buy building material is to visit our yards—see the stock before you pay for it—benefit by our personal service on the ground—and know you are getting full value for your money. Our reputation guarantees the quality of the goods.

LOAN ASS'N LEADERS TO MEET IN ST. LOUIS

New Jersey Will Be Represented at Big Convention by J. A. McNamee.

Several hundred of the leaders in the greatest activity of the building and loan association movement of the country will gather at the annual convention of the United States League of Co-operative Building and Loan Associations in St. Louis on Wednesday and Thursday, July 26 and 27.

New Jersey, which stands third in the number of associations and in the volume of business in the list of states, will be represented by Joseph A. McNamee, of Atlantic City, director of the New Jersey State League, which has its headquarters in Jersey City.

It is likely that other New Jersey building and loan men will also attend the St. Louis gathering, which will be replete with interesting addresses and discussions that will be of value to the individuals and to the associations and leagues they represent.

WHY PROGRESSIVES SHOULD NOT JOIN THE SOCIALIST PARTY.

In answer to a letter of a former Progressive who has since decided to join the Socialists, the following letter was sent and may be of general interest. The gist of the letter referred to was in the closing paragraph as follows: "If you attach yourself to either of the old parties now, you are making it extremely difficulty to take the proper step later. To go from the Progressive into the Socialist party is but the natural and almost inevitable thing for a sincere Progressive to do. To go backward should be contrary to every idea and ideal of a true Progressive." My answer follows:

"I thank you for your letter of the 21st and appreciate the motive in sending same; I will endeavor to answer same in friendly spirit although I admit that I am strongly opposed to Socialism.

"Yes, I was shocked by my experience at Chicago and have not yet recovered nor have I yet decided what to do except so far as I know what NOT to do.

"I cannot do as you have done and join the Socialists for I do not agree with their fundamental theories—and I have taken pains to read their literature and to hear some of their ablest advocates. Nor can I feel as you do in regard to Preparedness, that it is making bloodshedding the highest American ambition; witness our difficulties right now in getting together a few forces for the protection of our border against bloodthirsty bandits. What say you should we do right now, in the present status quo? No theory of what might have been done or what was left undone, can enter into that question now. It is not a theory but a condition that confronts us and calls for a prompt and masterful preparation for any contingency and the doing of all things necessary to bring about a complete and final settlement once for all of all the questions at issue. It is to be understood that the United States is not doing this for territorial aggrandisement but (as in Cuba) to secure to Mexico peace and order and to ourselves a safe neighbor.

"I did leave the G. O. P., even as you, for the purpose of joining a political party that would give expression to my opposition to bossism, invisible government by the Interests and afford a forum for the advocacy of more liberal views and efforts in behalf of reasonable social reforms.

"I hailed the new party as a Liberal Party as opposed to ultra conservative and purely traditional policies and also as a WHOLESOME CHECK on Socialism and all similar extreme and radical class movements.

"I do not want to revolutionize society but rather to see it develop normally and healthfully along democratic lines, curing the ills of said democracy with more democracy, liberalizing and humanizing it not by the creation of class feeing and prejudice and hatreds but by real uplift work bringing in an ever larger and larger part of the whole people into participation and interest in government.

"I do not want to join in a movement that to my mind means the destruction of the foundations of all orderly government and the casting away of all the dearly bought lessons of experience; I do not want to trust myself or mine upon a flood of untried theory.

"Personally I want to join with those who in spite of self interest and personal profit in the status quo, are yet broad minded enough and kind hearted enough to see wherein that same status quo works ill or hardship to any considerable number of my fellow citizens and ergo brave enough to seek a remdy for the greater good of the greater number, even at personal loss and cost.

"I am not of those who think that everything is rotten in the State of Denmark and that the cause of all our ills is 'Capitalism.'

"Nor do I believe that all virtue and wisdom emanates from the masses that call themselves 'the workers;' nor do I expect the millenium to come when the horny handed sons of toil take over into their tender keeping all the powers of government, all the complicated machinery of industry and credit and all the accumulated results of human effort called wealth.

"Desire is not the only necessary ingredient of progress in government—knowledge of the past and wisdom to apply its lessons—and a decent respect for the ascertained facts of human nature and human experience are all equally essential. I esteem Socialism as an overweening DESIRE to get results without regard to the inherent laws of anything—a challenge to all history, all experience, all probabilities. A regular Don Quixote expedition into politics.

"I am very much confirmed in my belief that there's just as much human nature concealed in hodden grey as in silken hose, just as much love of power and greed for gain below stairs as in the upper chamber and that no 'class' of men can safely be entrusted with supreme power without showing teeth and claws, cloven hoof, spiked tail and horns.

"I am a democrat in the classic sense, in the Abraham Lincoln way, in the way that trusts ALL the people all the times, but shies at some of the people most of the time. I want no class in mine—no upper crust, no under crust—just folks and all Americans; I want no war of the OUTS against the INS, the HAVES against the HAVE NOTS or vice versa but each for all and all for each not in CLASS CONSCIOUSNESS but in NATIONAL CONSCIOUSNESS—one people.

"In looking over the literature you send me I find much to take exception to but confing myself to just a few points and those all listed under the heading 'Political Demands,' permit me to note briefly the following:

"'The absolute freedom of press, speech and assemblage.' I could not subscribe for that. There is such a thing as unwholesome license. I would rather trust the good sense of a free people to find the wholesome limits than to 'rock the boat' of good government with a carte blanche to a Herr Most, an Emma Goldman, an irresponsible I. W. W. or any blasphemous or immoral or lascivious crew.

"'The adoption of a graduated income tax, the increase of the rates of the present corporation tax and the extension of inheritance taxes, graduated, etc., the proceeds of these taxes to be employed in the socialization of industry.' The socialization of industry through ever increasing income taxes does not appeal to me because I am an individualist and not a communist. I can understand why drones in the hive are stung to death by bees—because they make no honey and only consume the common store; but why men should be less wise than bees and sting the honeymakers, that I cannot see. Restraint and regulation of the strong and selfish and unscrupulous I can understand. Collective control and even drastic destruction of evil organizations I can and do applaud.

"But who would want to fish—for a committee, milk a community cow, ride a community horse, court a community girl or do any of the thousand things of routine life under a socialistic program that means growing up to be a man only to be a chore boy all one's life. You'll say, that is crude and unfair to socialism. Doubtless—for no figure of speech ever runs on more than three feet. But in the last analysis community owned industries would tickle me to death if, as Taft said at Cooper Union, I was on the Committee running things, and stifle me to death if I was not. So would say every man of independent spirit. This is entirely apart from the utter and absolute impracticality of the whole scheme. What a peach of a scheme that would be for the grafters. You don't think Socialism would free us from grafters, do you? I don't think so.

"'The adoption of the initiative, referendum and recall, etc., nationally as well as locally.'"

"Man alive have you no imagination? What a bedlam let loose from hell such measures would produce. What person built on average lines and tainted with just an ordinary streak of human nature with its likes and dislikes, emotions, passions, resentments and varieties of opinion would dare propose such doctrines for our city, county, State, national and international legislation. Ye Gods defend us—where would peace be found? In the heart of the whirling cyclone or the cauldron of the seething sea, but not in the abodes of Socialism.

"'The abolition of the Senate and the veto power of the President.'"

"Has no one read the history of this country? Were the struggles of the colonists, our forefathers, from 1620 to 1789, all in vain? Were the lessons learned by the early settlers, lessons in self-government, all lost when this plank was written? And what about the toil and turmoil on English soil from Magna Charta and the first Parliament in 1265 A. D. and all the weary years between. Must we live them all over again in order to learn the value and necessity of checks and balances in government? The Fathers of the Republic, from whose brains and hearts and consciences we received the Constitution, knew the history of the world and the upward struggle of the race under various forms of government; they gathered the best from democracy, aristocracy and monarchy, purged them of caste and heredity and dedicated them to the people in such blended form as to checkmate the faults of too much 'populism' or too little. Why rock the boat on such a fundamental proposition as this?

"'The extension of democratic government to all United States territory.' How we suffer for the vox populi of the Moros and Tagalogs of the Philippine Islands.

"How the chariot of government falters for the gentle urge of the Fijii and Hawaiian. Something more than the ballot needed there. 'We the people' is a phrase that requires an intelligent, independent and self-governing company of people to interpret it—otherwise it is a farce, a tragedy, a chaos, Look at Mexico.

"'Abolition of all Federal district courts and the U. S. Circuit Courts of Appeals. State Courts to have jurisdiction in all cases arising between citizens of the several States and foreign corporations. The elections of all judges for short terms.'

"Simple, is it not? Yes, very SIMPLE, in fact simplismus. Forty-eight States—and more to come. Forty-eight varieites of unblended justice will be so very simple—and satisfactory—and harmonious.

"No common meeting ground for all citizens where there is no East or West, no North nor South. In other words National Courts, not sectional. Has no one ever seen a Law Library and the thousands upon thousands of volumes that it takes to record the cases tried in these very courts and has no one ever discovered the difference between the decisions of judges elected on 'short terms' in the State Courts and those handed down in the courts where judges sit for long terms or during life and good behavior in the Federal Courts? There's a reason—and it lies so deep in human nature that not even a Socialist surgeon can change or cauterize or eliminate it.

"'The calling of a convention for the revision of the Constitution of the U. S.'

"Of course. If all these and many other measures like them are to be enacted for the sole benefit of one class in the community (who modestly admit that they are the only ones worth while) and in order that one economic group may set up a Co-operative Commonwealth for that ONE CLASS only, then a revision of the Constitution would be necessary without a doubt.

"Now we have a government for all classes and soon we can say in absolute truth, a government of all the people, for all the people and by all the people—all parties having endorsed Woman's Suffrage.

"What we have is an evolution with a resin de etre for every section, every phrase. We have not broken with history nor defied experience but we have mounted upward as rapidly as was possible to build upon reason and education, and we are still reaching upward with steady purpose.

"So I and thousands like me are Progressives and Independents whether temporarily within the Republican or Democratic party but will never become Socialists because like the darky preacher who admitted that he was strong on 'de rousements but jest onery on de argifying'—so we feel that while Socialists may call our attention to the aches and pains in the body politic, they cannot diagnose the disease nor suggest the safe remedy, their philosophy of government is not broad enough or deep enough or universal enough. They know too many things, as Josh Billings said, 'what aint so.'

"Now friend, as I did you the courtesy to read your letter and all the literature you sent me and appreciated the motive, I trust you will do me the equal courtesy to read the above and believe me to be equally sincere but strenuously contrary minded."

H. W. HERRMAN.

PUTTING ON THE PRESSURE

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Beware of Typhoid!

At this time a special warning should be issued to all scouts who are going on camping and hiking trips to take every precaution to avoid the contraction of typhoid fever. Last year 372 New York city people contracted typhoid fever outside of the city, most of them while on vacation trips. Thirty-five of them died with the disease. If you are going on an outing, you will do well to observe the following "DON'TS" prepared by the Department of Health, New York city.

Don't be one of those who will come back with typhoid fever.

Don't go where there has been much typhoid fever lately.

Don't drink strange water or raw milk unless you are sure they are safe.

Don't eat food prepared in unclean places or by unclean persons.

Don't go where the premises are not kept clean and sanitary.

Dan Beard His Inspiration.

When the dispatches announced the other day the safety of Sir Ernest Shackleton, that doughty explorer and author of the classic of Antarctic exploration, "The Heart of the Antarctic," they received a heartfelt welcome form the world. It is of interest to know that the brilliant scientist and explorer attributes his love for nature and outdoor life, and eventually his fame, to the influence of Dan Beard's books. They taught him to desire the knowledge and career that have brought him lasting fame.

So many troops have taken advantage of the increased value of paper in adding funds to the troop treasuries that Headquarters desires to call special attention to this method of earning funds.

The increased cost of paper has resulted in an increase in value of the material from which paper is made, and a ton of old paper is now worth from seven to fifteen dollars, according to the quality.

A great many troops have established regular paper routes. They have asked their friends to save old paper for them and they call for it regularly.

The value of the paper can be greatly increased by careful sorting according to quality, and it can be sold in any city. It is better to market it at the nearest point and thus save the cost of long freight hauls.

Many troops have earned money enough from the collection and sale of old paper to pay their troop and camping expenses and have provided in addition a comfortable balance for emergencies.

Three Boys Missing.

Scout Franklin Jones, a member of Troop 1, of Plains, Pa., asks all scouts to be on the lookout for his brother, Theodore R. Jones. Theodore left his home on April 5. He is seventeen years old, is five feet four inches tall and weighs about 125 pounds. He is of fair complexion, has light hair and brown eyes, good teeth but very crooked. Was dressed in a suit of blue mixed material, long trousers, blue hat, black shoes and a greenish blue overcoat. Was last seen in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., April 5. Wire any information to A. R. Freeman, Boys' Secretary, Y. M. C. A., Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Scout officials are asked to be on the lookout for Russell L. Crapo, of Dunkirk, N. Y., who has been missing from his home since May 15. The boy is 17 years old, five feet five inches in height, weighs about 125 pounds, is of light complexion, having light hair and blue eyes. When last seen he wore a dark blue serge suit, with knee pants, blue cap, black shoes and socks. Any information concerning the missing boy should be sent to the father, David Crapo, 235 Lincoln avenue, Dunkirk, N. Y.

Scout John Terrell, of Troop 75, Chicago, Ill., has been missing from his home for some time. He failed at promotion in school this year and is thought to have been discouraged and to have left home on that account. It is believed that he has gone to Wisconsin and scouts in that State are particularly urged to be on the lookout for him. He is fifteen years old, rather tall for his age and of light complexion. He took his scout uniform with him when he left home. Any information concerning the missing boy should be sent to the Chicago Scout Headquarters, 39 South La Salle street.

STORES PLANNING FOR DOLLAR DAY AND THURSDAY CLOSING

A meeting of the Business Men's Association will be held Monday night at 8 o'clock on the second floor of the Frost building, when several matters of importance will be discussed. It will be decided definitely whether or not the merchants are to close their stores on Thursdays during the month of August, and a schedule will also be adopted as to the hours the stores will remain open on the nights prior to holidays.

It has been decided to hold the next Dollar Day on Wednesday, August 30, and a committee composed of Adolph Tepper, Gustave Laing and Isaac Schwed has been appointed to receive suggestions that will tend to make the affair a greater success.

DON'T EXPERIMENT

You Will Make No Mistake If You Follow This Plainfield Citizen's Advice.

Never neglect your kidneys.

If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it's time to act and no time to experiment. These are frequently symptoms of kidney trouble, and a remedy which is recommended for the kidneys should be taken in time.

Doan's Kidney Pills is a good remedy to use. No need to experiment. It has acted effectively in many cases in Plainfield. Follow the advice of a Plainfield citizen.

A. K. Mattis, 127 West Fourth street, Plainfield, says: "I confirm all that one of my family said in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Randolph's Drug Store, some years ago. The cure they gave me has lasted."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Mattis had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Advt.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How Eleven Princes Became Swans.

They Flew Out of the Palace Screaming.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

JACK and Evelyn clapped for a story, so daddy told them this: "Far, far away, where the swallows take refuge in winter, lived a king who had eleven sons and one daughter whose name was Elise. The eleven boys were all princes and used to go to school with stars on their breasts and swords at their sides. They wrote upon gold slates and could read just as well without a book as with one. There was no doubt about their being real princes.

"Elise used to sit upon a little footstool of looking glass, and she had a wonderful picture book that cost half the price of a kingdom. This dozen children were very happy. But, alas, it was not to last! Their father married a wicked queen who was not kind to them. They found this out the first day. At the wedding, when all the court was having festival, instead of having cakes and all the baked apples they wished the children got only some sand in a teacup. The queen said they must make believe.

"The next week she sent Elise to board with some peasants in the country. Then the queen began to make the king believe bad ideas about his eleven boys. She told him so many horrid things that he no longer loved his young princes. 'Fly out into the world and look after yourselves,' said the wicked queen to the boys. 'You shall fly about like birds without voices.'

"But the queen could not make things as bad as she liked. The young princes turned into eleven beautiful swans. With a weird scream they flew out of the palace window right across the park into the woods. Early the next morning they came to the place where their sister Elise was sleeping in the peasant's home. They hovered over the roof of the house, turning and twisting their long necks and flapping their wings. But nobody heard or saw them. They had to fly away again without seeing their sister. They soared up toward the clouds, far out into the wide world, where they settled in a big dark woods which stretched way off down to the seashore.

"When little Elise woke up she played with a green leaf, for she no longer had a wonderful picture book worth half the price of a kingdom. She had no toys at all to play with. So she poked a hole in the leaf with her finger and squinted through it up at the sun, and it seemed to her that she saw her brothers' bright eyes. Every time the warm sunbeams shone upon her neck it seemed to her that her brothers were kissing her."

"Oh, daddy," cried Evelyn; "if she had been awake when the swans passed she would have seen her brothers!"

Marrying a Butterfly

by MRS. EVA LEONARD

Some Petty Thieving Is Unearthed and Ethel Decides to Become Her Own Cook.

"What have you in those packages?" Ralph Gordon stopped the maid's young brother who was coming down the walk from the rear entrance. The little fellow hesitated, stood on one foot and then the other, and finally said:

"I have been to the grocery store."

"As you live on the other side of town it is a peculiar thing that you should bring your groceries 'way out her to take them home. Come in here; I want to see what you have." Ralph took the child by the shoulder and pushed him into the house.

"I met this youngster as I was coming home and as he could give no account of himself I thought I would see what he was carrying away from the house," he explained to Ethel as they entered.

"Now then, young man, display your goods." They opened the packages one after the other. There was a sack of sugar, some flour, coffee, rice and half of a cake. The child insisted that the groceries were his recent purchases at the grocery store, but the paper bags that contained the articles were rumpled and he could make no explanation of the cake. Clara was called and questioned.

"I did give him the cake to take home. I thought it was all drying up and would be wasted. No one seemed to be eating it."

"It is the first evidence of economy I have seen you display. It is a pity to discourage it," replied Ralph sarcastically. "Now, young man, you sit right down here, and you need not leave till I call for an officer to search your room," he said, turning to the maid. He went over to the telephone. "It is a mighty lucky thing I met this young man tonight."

The boy fell to weeping, but the maid sat in sullen silence till the officer arrived. All went to the maid's room while the search was made. In the bottom of her trunk they found a number of articles of winter clothing that had not been unpacked from the boxes in the attic. There was an assortment of spoons and a napkin ring that had been missing for weeks.

"I can't find my pale blue slippers. They have been gone nearly a month. I want you to find them," said Ethel, turning to the girl.

"Perhaps you will find them in your writing desk. I saw them in there once when I was dusting and it was unlocked." The maid tossed her head angrily.

Ralph flushed as he noticed the officer checking a smile. They went below and Ethel unlocked the desk. The maid triumphantly produced the slippers from among the litter of paper.

"It takes those that hide to find," commented Ralph, trying to lay the blame of the disappearance of the slippers onto the maid, although he knew Ethel's sense of order would not be shocked even at keeping slippers in a writing desk.

It was decided not to prosecute the maid, but she was told to leave the next morning. When Ralph kissed Ethel good-bye, he said:

"I expect some of those delicious muffins for dinner, dear," and Ethel smilingly promised to make some.

The spot-light of full publicity, turned on a store, reveals and places in that full light a store's defects—if it have defects. For example: If high prices prevail, or lines of goods are not kept up to date, the reader of the store advertisements knows it. It follows that advertising "pays" the store that renders real service—and would not pay the other kind of a store.

LATZKO HAD A FINE SIGN FOR HIS WHISKEY SALE, BUT MAYOR "BILL" GOT MAD WHEN HE READ IT

There are a lot of swelled up people in North Plainfield, thinks at least one citizen of the borough, although he didn't think it out loud. Most people would be proud to have a special brand of whisky named in their honor, but not Mayor "Bill" Smalley, the Rev. J. O. McKelvey, Judge W. A. Coddington and Alex Thorn.

Morris Latzko is going to quit the whisky business he has been running at 21 Somerset street in the borough. If the editor hadn't been in a hurry he would have blue penciled that statement because it is a matter of common knowledge and therefore superflous. The Mayor and Common Council have decided that Mr. Latzko must quit. True he need be in no hurry because his license does not expire for a month or two, but the Council will oppose a renewal of his license or a transfer to another party, and as some recent advertising didn't do him any good he is going to hold a final sacrifice sale and go back to the farm. The sale will really be a sacrifice. To Latzko it means the giving up of his ambition to become a business man, the loss of a valuable store building on Somerset street and probably the loss of the home of his invalid wife, but to the borough it means the giving up of a wholesale whisky house that caused more trouble than all other establishments of the kind in the municipality.

Anyway Latzko is going to have a sale. It is advertised for today. Like all progressive business men he sought special bargains for his leaders to draw a trade, but Latzko has got into the habit of progressing backwards in his dealings with Mayor Smalley and some other citizens of the borough. He decided it would be a fine thing to put on some new brands of whisky at greatly reduced prices and in order to draw a crowd he named the concoctions after influential citizens. At least the names were similar. Latzko had a fine sign prepared and hung it in his window.

Ten minutes after the sign was hung up along came "Mayor Bill." He read:

BIG SALE SATURDAY.

Smaleybrook	35c
Codingtonhole	27c
MacKelvey Peach	40c
Thorn's Friend	42c

The Mayor should have thrown out his chest and walked, or rode, on down Somerset street amid the plaudits of admiring constituents, but he didn't. He stuck out his chin and went looking for Walter Hetfield. Soon the two were in front of the whisky house. Latzko was standing in the front door. He realized that his sign had attracted attention, but there was nothing akin to admiration in the eyes of the two men who read it again and again, and they didn't look like prospective customers.

"If it offends you I'll take it down," it was Latzko talking to Mayor "Bill," but he might as well have asked a question of Watchung Mountain. The Mayor insists that his usually reliable Corporation Counsel came near laughing here and spoiling the fun, but Hetfield played it out.

"I'll give you just thirty seconds to take that sign down," he told the whisky man sharply. "If it isn't down in that time I go to Somerville and have your license revoked before tomorrow morning."

Mr. Hetfield owes Latzko twenty-seven seconds on the sign performance.

Mayor Smalley says that if his devoted admirers want to name anything after him, make it a boy.

MARGERY WILSON AND WILLIAM S. HART, IN THE NEW TRIANGLE FEATURE, "THE PRIMAL LURE."

At Proctor's Monday.

The photoplay entertainment at Proctor's today consists of a Metro production entitled, "The Half Million Bribe," starring Hamilton Revelle and Marguerite Snow, which was picturized from William Hamilton Orsborne's novel and play, "The Red Mouse." Rapid action is the keynote of this picture, which begins with a murder mystery, and then gradually shades into the reformation of the leading character, after he has been cleared of the false charge by a district attorney who wishes to see him on the straight and narrow path. A splendid cast was selected to enact this picture and the result is a production that is bound to arouse the intense interests and sympathies of the spectators. Other pictures today include George Bellamy and Fay Temple in "The Scorpion's Sting," and a comedy in which children play a prominent part, entitled "Betrayed by the Camera."

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday a special attraction in addition to the regular show is the presenting of exclusive pictures of Troop D, the crack National Guard organization of Plainfield, in camp at Sea Girt, just prior to their leaving for the Mexican border. In this film, taken by Proctor's own cameraman, are shown a panoramic view of the camp, the troopers doing stable duty, such as cleaning horses and adjusting saddles, a close-up view of ex-Mayor C. J. Fisk, the troopers cleaning their guns, an excellent picture of Captain Borden and several views of all the members of the company. This is a big treat indeed for local citizens and should prove of interest to all residents of this city and vicinity. The officials of the city have been tendered a special invitation by the management to witness this picture and wholesome entertainment is promised for all.

The regular program Monday includes William S. Hart in one of his most powerful Triangle productions entitled "The Primal Lure," a laugh-provoking Keystone comedy entitled "The Love Comet," and the 10th episode of "The Mysteries of Myra." On Tuesday the feature photoplay is Douglas Fairbanks in "Reggie Mixes In," while on Wednesday, Jose Collins appears in "A Woman's Honor."

INSPECTORS TO ACT AS FIRE WARDENS

Mosquito Commission Offers Its Services as Protection From Forest Fires.

Protection from forest fires will be included henceforth in the work of the inspectors for the Union County Mosquito Commission. Chief Inspector Russell W. Gies, learning of the annual loss in the State by forest fires, and the difficulty of securing enough fire wardens to detect fires promptly, wrote to the State Conservation Commission, offering the service of the Mosquito Commission inspectors, who are constantly on duty about the county.

The commission has accepted this offer and added the inspectors to its staff as voluntary fire wardens, whose duties shall be to report promptly all forest fires and violations of the fire protection laws. By this means it may be possible to reduce considerably the annual loss from forest fires. Last year 118 acres were burned in Union county.

As a result of this offer from Union county the commission has also communicated with the mosquito commissions in other counties, and they have volunteered to have their men act as fire wardens, too. The conservation commission has endorsed the work of the county mosquito commissions, and is preparing a pamphlet, with colored illustrations, on the breeding and extermination of mosquitoes. It is the plan to distribute about 500,000 copies of this pamphlet during the next school year.

SUNDAY EVENING BAND CONCERT IN CITY PARK

Plainfield music lovers will be given a rare opportunity tomorrow night at 7:30 in the City Park in front of the Plainfield High School when the Krause Greater Shows Band will render a concert of sacred and classical pieces. The concert is absolutely free to the public and all are urged to attend. The band will consist of fifteen pieces and will render their numbers from the stand which has been erected in the City Park by the Recreation Committee.

PEDDLER FINED $20.

Patsy Longego, an Assyrian, was arraigned before Judge William De Meza in the city court for peddling without a license and defrauding the public. The fellow had been going about the city for several weeks selling bedspreads and other white wear for linen, and after giving him a lecture the Judge fined him $20. He paid.

CAMP CONDICT OPENS FOR TROOP SEASON

Boys of Troop 12, Hope Chapel, Begin Two Weeks' Stay.

Everything is in readiness for the visit of the Boy Scouts of Troop 12, Hope Chapel, to Camp Condict, at Weston, N. J. The advance corps has already arrived at the camp and has been busily engaged preparing for the arrival of the rest of the troops. Sunday services will be held tomorrow, and on Monday camp life, together with athletic sports of all sorts, will begin in earnest. The election of a mayor, pigtail and goat will take place on Monday, while a clothes scramble and a "snow ball fight" will take place on Tuesday. Daily features at the camp will include baseball games, track sports and other athletic activites. Hikes will be taken over night. Two of the evenings have been designated as Patriotic Night and Musical Night, respectively. Mother's Day will also be observed.

The camp rules are rigid, no firearms being allowed. No swearing or use of tobacco is permitted. Swimming is allowed only at specified times. Scouts cannot leave the camp grounds without obtaining permission. It is not likely that any disregard of these rules will be tolerated, as the scout council reserves the right to send any boy home.

All mail should be addressed to the scout, care of Camp Condict, Weston, N. J. Mail will be distributed once a day by the captain.

MISS FLORENCE DISBROW SUCCUMBS TO TYPHOID

Following an illness of three weeks' duration with typhoid fever, Miss Florence G. Disbrow, daughter of Mrs. Henry G. Disbrow, of 1300 Columbia avenue, died yesterday afternoon at her late home. Beside her mother the young woman is survived by a sister, Miss Maude Disbrow, and her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Brokaw, 1300 Columbia avenue.

The funeral will be held at the late home on Columbia avenue Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock and the service will be in charge of Rev. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, of which Miss Disbrow was a member. Interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

DONATIONS WANTED.

Donations of flowers, fruit, vegetables, delicacies for the Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild may be sent Monday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock or Tuesday morning from 9 to 10:30 to the rooms of the W. C. T. U., 10 Madison avenue, Babcock building. Those having no way of sending may notify J. M. Harper, 237 East Sixth street, 'phone 758-W, today and a messenger will call Monday afternoon.

Raking 'Em Over

By "JINKS"

THE TIME TO START.

If there are any local athletic promoters who intend to foster a meet in this city on Labor Day, it is time that they were getting busy. The New Brunswick papers have announced that the Michelin A. A. of that city will hold a meet on that date and that those back of the undertaking have already sent "informal" invitations to the athletes who competed in the Safe and Sane Athletic Meet. It cannot be denied that the Middlesex county seat is right on top when it comes to staging track meets and it is to be hoped that the persons interested in the starting of a carnival of games in this city will get busy at once. Also, there is no imperative need of holding such an event on Labor Day. There are plenty of Saturdays during August, when athletes would be willing to come to this city to compete for valuable prizes. And when Plainfield announces "valuable" prizes, the awards are worth striving for. Whether we do have this meet or whether we do not have it—that is the question.

• • • • • •

ANOTHER TIME TO START.

Unfortunately for the poor fan who pays to see the City League baseball games, these attractions are never started on time. That's official. We have seen two or three City League games at which hostilities were commenced fully a half hour later than was announced in the papers of the day previous. The players of both teams were on hand, ready to play ball. The umpire was there, too. The fans were yelling "play ball," but it appeared as though the umpire's vocabulary included everything but those two extremely essential words. The practice indulged in by the players of each team amounted to little and consisted of throwing the ball to "admiring" friends, who had nerve enough to serve on to the diamond. When games, that boast of "prelim" attractions of this sort, do start, they generally are of the uninteresting type. We said that we saw one or two games of this kind. We were wrong. We've seen dozens of them this year and in previous years.

• • • • • •

PRAISE FOR LOCAL LADS.

It is very hard for a local boy to compete in anything—athletic or otherwise—knowing that the papers of his home town are merely going to "comment" on his efforts. It is very probable that the "comment" is not complimentary and that it comes from someone who knows little or nothing about the capabilities of the athlete or the conditions under which he is working. Home talent is generally looked upon as good enough if it costs too much to get outsiders. And when a local lad is taken on by a minor league team—if he is a baseball player—or by a track organization—if he is an athlete of that sort—the critics deem it their duty to discuss the lad's failings rather than his good points. As long as we last at this position—not "job"—we are going to try to avoid doing the things we have just "roasted" in the above "sermon."

• • • • • •

RUBE OLDRING FOR YANKS.

New York sport writers are of the opinion that Rube Oldring would be of great service to the Yanks in their eleventh hour dash for the pennant. Local fans are of the same conviction. When Rube played in this city he was very popular and always lived up to his reputation. The Athletics found him a valuable asset and it is to be supposed that Bill Donovan expects him to be of great assistance to the Yankees.

• • • • • •

GIANTS IN PITTSBURGH.

John McGraw is thanking his stars he held on to Bill McKechnie. When the Wilkinsburg boy first joined the Giants he got away to a bad start, not being able to hit and throwing away several games by easy chances lost. Then Bill began to improve in his fielding, while his hitting took an upward trend. Hans Lobert got back into the game the other day, but it is very probable that McGraw will keep McKechnie at the third base berth for a while, at least, and Bill seems accustomed to his job and has been cutting a big figure in defense of late, while his offense is not to be considered lightly. In the series with the Giants which opened at Forbes Field yesterday, Pittsburghers were pulling for the Pirates to win, but were sharing their cheers with McKechnie. If four games are played it would not be surprising to see Pittsburgh cop three and an even break is making a conservative prediction. Mamaux will get a whack at McGraw's troop before they leave.

• • • • • •

WHITE SOX SPURT.

The recent spurt of the Chicago White Sox makes them a pennant contender in the American League. Rowland's pitchers seem to have awakened to the fact that the exhibition season passed into history nearly three months ago, and are delivering in real up-to-date fashion now, while the hitting is more consistent and run-producing. Chicago should have been up in the running long ago. The material is there, but it seems Rowland is falling down on the job of being able to handle it. Too many stars often hurt a ball club, and it is no secret that several of the White Sox players have ideas different from their manager, and when this condition exists it is hard to get a winning combination. But the fellows are plugging along good now, and headed by the terrific hitting of Jackson, are climbing right into the race. Detroit is getting some tough breaks right now that may have a big effect in keeping them out of the final dash, leaving New York, Cleveland and Chicago to fight the final battle.

The above picture portrays Fred Merkle, Jack Fletcher and Bill McKechnie, three members of the Giants sterling infield, who are doing their share in the attempt to keep the team in front. McKechnie is a Federal League recruit, while Merkle and Fletcher are both veterans.

men in the league. As a pitcher, Benny is quite a star, while at short he is as good as a concrete wall.

Teeling has been catching in great style for the Tabs. The Dunellen lad has a habit of going under the name of "Smith." We wonder why?

Barney Sacher rises to inform the public that he is considering accepting an offer to pitch for the Lenox club. It may be that the manager of the Lenox team holds a different view of the situation.

"Ipp" Witteman is one of that vast army of juveniles who have from time to time announced to the public that they are twirlers. "Ipp" is a member of the Lenox team, which boasts of five pitchers.

Leo Wilson has become a member of the Dunellen baseball team. Leo aspires to be as valuable a man as his big brother, Jack. Leo has the build of a football player, and they say that he is a good one. As to his ability to grace the diamond, those who have witnessed his work say that he is there.

Lou Slocum must be a firm believer in the slogan, "It Pays to Advertise." Lou has a new baseball team and he has made known this fact through the valuable columns of the Newark Evening News.

ROSELLE ENCOUNTERS TABS ON AVON OVAL

Jack Denny May Draw Pitching Assignment on the Morrow.

The Tabs will play the Roselle baseball team on Avon Oval tomorrow afternoon. The Roselle team comes here with a "rep." It is up to them to uphold that reputation and they realize that they have their work cut out for them. The Tabs had some difficulty in arranging this match, owing to the fact that the Roselle team had several other offers.

It is not known who will do the hurling for the locals, but it is highly probable that Benny Rosenson will get a chance to work out, provided, of course, that Jim Scott does not use him against the Farmers this afternoon. In the event that Benny twirls today, Jack Denny or his brother, Tone, will draw the pitching assignment. Teeling will be behind the bat, with the regular infield and outfield to assist him if need be.

If the weather permits, there will be a "prelim" attraction. Alec McDonald will lead his West Ends against the ambitious "Down Easters," owned, operated, and managed by Michael Montferrant. The first game will begin about 1 o'clock, while the regular encounter is carded for 3:30.

ANOTHER POPULAR SPORT.

Four thousand skat players, who look upon all other card games as childish pastimes fit only for the kindergarten, trooped into Milwaukee today to take part in the nineteenth annual congress and tournament of the North American Skat League, which has its formal opening at the Auditorium tonight. Large delegations are there from Chicago, New York, Indianapolis, Detroit, Cleveland, St. Louis, Buffalo, Peoria and a number of other cities. The playing sessions will continue over tomorrow. The first prize will be $1,000 in gold, and upon the basis of an attendance of 4,000 players, the sum of $12,500 will be distributed among 500 of the participants. This afternoon the congress held a session for the transaction of the business of the league. Numerous features of entertainment have been providd for the visiting skat players and the ladies accompanying them.

COSMOPOLITANS, MANAGED BY LOU SLOCUM, COMPOSED OF NETHERWOOD LEAGUERS

Netherwood Sunday Team Travels Under New Name—Advertise for Games—Players all Local City Leaguers.

It appears as though the Netherwood Sunday baseball team has given place to another combination, under the name of the Cosmopolitans. This team is under the management of Lou Slocum, who has seen fit to insert the following in the columns of the Newark Evening News. The "note" reads like a historical record of events. Here it is:

"A new traveling club has entered the Newark semi-professional field, the team being composed of stars picked from the now defunct Central New Jersey League. Louis Slocum, of 40 Clinton street, is managing the outfit, and he has already issued a sweeping challenge to all the strongest combinations in this city and vicinity.

"Slocum will do the pitching for the team, which will be known as the Cosmopolitans. He was formerly with Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics. Eddie Bergen, erstwhile catcher on the New York Yankees, will receive his manager's plants, both men, in addition to being former big leaguers, have been in the minors, Slocum as a member of the Winston-Salem club of the Carolina Association and Bergen with the Binghamton club of the New York State League.

The other members of the new aggregation are: Eddie Hanlon, former Scranton New York State Leaguer, first base; Leo Brandt, second base; Eddie Coughlin, third base; Lou Brown, shortstop; George Miller, former Danbury hatter, left field; Henry Albert, center field; George Trust, ex-Durham Carolina League star, right field. Other members of the pitching corps are Matty Coughlin, a scholastic phenom of three years ago, and Russ Stewart, a southpaw.

"Manager Slocum, who can be reached any day in the week by telephoning Market 8270, has expressed a desire to tackle the Ironsides, Meadowbrooks, Irvington Parks, Edisons, Newark Arrows, Newark Colored Giants and such teams having home grounds."

BRITT MARTIN WANTS NO POSTPONEMENT

Has Not Been Consulted by Baptist Manager in Regard to Matter.

Britt Martin announced this morning that he had received no notification that the game between his team and the Baptists had been postponed, adding that he intended to have a full team on the field. He also requested that an umpire be dispatched to the scene. All of which indicates that Martin is going to claim the game, should the Baptists fail to appear.

Dunc Patterson, manager of the First Baptist squad, is anxious to call off the contest, although one of his players stated that he had received no word of a postponement. The Baptists are aware of the fact that Martin and his Hopes are going to be on hand and Patterson must surely realize that non-appearance means the loss of another game. At this stage of the race, the forfeiture means much. Should the game be played, it is highly probable that Oscar Dilts will twirl for the Baptists, opposing Dick Schott, of the Hopes. It will be some time before Dunc Patterson, the Baptist pitcher and manager who was injured in the afternoon section of the holiday bill on the Fourth, will be able to get back into the game.

BASEBALL IN SUBURBS.

The baseball season at South Plainfield will be opened tomorrow when the Plainfield A. A. will make a trip to that village and endeavor to show the boys there how to play the game of baseball. The local lads expect to put it all over the villagers and the South Plainfield fellows are just as confident of defeating the locals.

It is probable that Butler and Velard will be the opposing pitchers. The lineups of both teams contain some valuable material and an interesting encounter is looked for.

PRESS AMATEUR DEPARTMENT

PRESS AMATEUR DEPARTMENT

It certainly does look as though the Shamrocks and the Hebrews would have a neck and neck race for the Parker Field League flag. Both of these teams boast of formidable pitching staffs, the Shamrocks having John O'Keefe and John Newell, and the Hebrews claiming Benny Rosenthal and Joe Friedman. Things are sure going to be exciting.

Cyril Poling is quite a good little catcher. Cyril manages the Parks and while he modestly admits that managing is some business, still he finds time to do a little receiving. In his list of players are some good fast lads. Garrido, a Cuban, is holding his own, while Joe Clark is still walloping the hide off the pill. They do say that the Tab scouts are watching the members of this team. And the boys deserve attention.

Benny Rosenson is still quite a pitcher. Benny has been of great assistance to the Abstainers, and in him they have one of the best all-around

"DO YOU FOLLOW ME?"

You See the Point, of Course, If You Get the Idea.

No person who values his self respect and who doesn't want to be lied to will ever say "Do you follow me?" when expounding a subject to a friend or acquaintance. There are so many reasons against the use of this interrogatory that only two or three of the best ones need be mentioned.

If you are enunciating words of wisdom the chances are nine hundred and ninety-eight out of nine hundred and ninety-nine that you are not being followed. On the other hand, if you are enunciating foolish words it makes no difference whether you are being followed or not. A still more important reason, however, is embodied in the simple but inescapable fact that no man can ever be quite sure that he understands what the other fellow is trying to express.

Therefore the proper answer to the question "Do you follow me?" is always, "I don't know." That, of course, makes the question itself absurd, and it is made still more absurd by the fact that few are honest enough to answer, "I don't know," but insist upon lying and saying, "Oh, yes; I follow you all right enough."

It is clear, therefore, that the effort is quite hopeless. If you have something to express all you can do is to pick out the most intelligent person or persons you can find, express your idea as well as you can and let it go at that. Do you get the idea? Life.

First Footpaths In 1762.

The student of old London, noticing the whitened curbs in the streets today, is inevitably reminded that the institution of the footway is really of quite recent date. It was not indeed until after the Westminster paving act of 1762 that footways became at all general. Before that time man and beast took the same road. Many of the old iron posts, which are still to be seen in Regent street and elsewhere, showing the crown and the monogram of the Georges indicate the corners of these first footways.—Christian Science Monitor.

Here's to a Safe and Sane Fourth

Insist on having a safe and sane Fourth for the children—no dangerous fire crackers, rockets or matches. Be equally particular that the youngsters eat only "safe and sane" ice cream.

This Fourth make it yourself in one of the famous Alaska Freezers. It is the open-spoon dasher in these freezers, whipping air into every particle of the cream, which makes ice cream frozen in Alaska Freezers so wonderfully delicate and smooth.

And, making it yourself, you will have the satisfaction of knowing that it is absolutely pure.

An Alaska Freezer will last a lifetime. But be sure it is an Alaska.

We also have on hand the White Mountain and North Star Freezers.

U. S. INSPECTORS INVESTIGATE AND FIND SUBMARINE'S CARGO OF A NATURE TO PERMIT ENTRY

FURTHER EXAMINATION WILL BE MADE, HOWEVER, BEFORE STATE DEPARTMENT ANNOUNCES DECISION ON SITUATION

DEUTSCHLAND SETS NEW EPOCH IN SEA TRAVEL

1,000 Tons of Mail and Dyestuffs Believed to Be on Board—Capable of Carrying 100 Passengers—Took Sixteen Days to Come From Bremen—Traveled Under Water 1,800 Miles—Commander Praised.

(By Telegraph to the Daily Press)

Baltimore, Md., July 10.—Collector of Customs Ryan today sent customs inspectors aboard the U-boat Deutschland to examine her cargo and reported that all aboard, principally dyestuffs, was of a nature permitted to be imported to this country. They declared they found no armament aboard and papers filed at the customs office here by Captain Kairig stated that the vessel was engaged in freight service between Bremen, Germany, and United States ports. According to information coming from Washington this afternoon the investigation made by Collector Ryan was merely cursory and will be supplemented later by a thorough overhauling by government agents. This information was at once submitted to the State Department.

The big submersible made the 4,000 trip from Bremen in sixteen days, cruising 1,800 miles under water and eluding warships on both sides of the Atlantic. It left Quarantine today and will pass the customs and dock at Spring Gardens.

The Deutschland is 200 feet long and approached the Virginia capes at 1:45 yesterday morning, calling through her air whistle for a pilot. Later in the day she steamed up Chesapeake Bay at a twelve-knot speed and was enthusiastically greeted by ships of every description en route.

The Deutschland flies the German merchant marine flag, carried two 3-inch guns for defensive purposes olny, and is said to have no torpedo tubes. Ten passengers are alleged to be on board.

She bought a cargo of between 500 and 1,000 tons of chemicals and dyestuffs, and a messenger who, according to Captain Kairig, of the Deutschland, has "a message of friendship and good will from the Emperor of Germany to the President of the United States."

The commander of the Deutschland said that despite his long voyage, his oil supply was still good and he had other supplies in plenty. Then he made the significant declaration that his was not the best submarine in Germany; that there were bigger and better ones, and that several may come this way.

"It may be possible, he added, "to send one with 100 passengers."

From another source came the information that there is already another undersea boat on the way, and that she will be followed by others until a regular schedule of sailings is established. But the policy during the war, it was said, would be to have these boats "bob up in some port where least expected," because of the danger from allied cruisers.

The Deutschland halted between Old Point and Cape Henry yesterday until the tug Thomas F. Timmins, which had been on watch for eleven days, came up. Captain Hans F. Hinsch, one of the North German Lloyd commanders, who had been on the Timmins since she began her vigil, took several envelopes aboard the Deutschland and handed them to Captain Karig, after which the two Germans embraced.

Captain Hinsch praised the daring of Captain Kairig in the presence of all on board the submarine. He said:

"You have accomplished a wonderful, a remarkable feat in bringing this boat over the sea and under it for 4,000 miles. You have done something that will startle the world.

"There will be others to come, some bigger and better than this craft, but you were the first, and to you will go the honor and credit of accomplishing something that was never attempted before."

It is believed that the submarine has 1,000 tons of cargo on board and it is said that she carries mail and dyestuffs and will carry home a similar amount of nickle and crude rubber sorely needed by Germany. The boat is consigned to A. Schumacher & Brother, agents of the North German Lloyd Line, and her cargo to the Eastern Forwarding Company, a concern said to have been formed within the past few weeks.

In evading warships of Great Britain and France in the North Sea the Deutschland passed under a veritable forest of mines and other obstructions. She also passed under practically 200 war craft of German's foes. She passed through the North Sea, around the Frisian Islands, on a course that was almost similar to that followed by the German raider Moewe, which succeeded in escaping from watching warships by disguising as a Danish merchant vessel.

The Deutschland was not disguised. She sailed past the enemy under water until she reached the Atlantic Then she followed almost a straight course to America.

The Deutschland did not encounter any warships until she was half way across. She met a number of merchant vessels, and to escape detection submerged whenever they came too close, until she got within a few hundred miles of the American coast.

A few miles off the Virginia coast the Deutschland encountered foreign warships, a French cruiser and a British cruiser together and a Britisher alone. The latter was about 150 miles south of the Virginia coast and the two former about fifty miles east. In eluding these ships the submarine lost thirty hours.

It was Friday afternoon when the captain met the two warships, and he remained under water so long that it was dark when he came to the surface. He made good time Friday night. Saturday he remained almost stationary all day, but came to the surface in time to receive signals from the tug Timmins which was standing watch off Cape Henry.

He got his bearings and when night fell, made a straight course for the capes on the surface and passed in.

When the Deutschland arrived off the pilot boat Relief, there were ten men on her deck, including Capt. Kairig. The craft carries a crew of twenty-nine men and has accommodations for forty people.

Washington, July 10.—The State Department was today requested by the British and French embassies to inquire carefully into the status of the German merchant submarine. The embassies did not express, however, any opinion that the U boat is military in character. The State Department today asked the Navy Department to send an officer to Baltimore to make an inquiry into the status of the ship. Captain C. F. Hughes, of the Naval Board, has been designated by Secretary of the Navy Daniels to make an inspection of the sumbarine ,and to make a report as soon as possible.

CAPTAIN PETERSON RECRUITING TROOP D

Company K Commander Gets Orders to Raise Cavalry Troop to War Strength.

Captain Charles Peterson, commanding officer of Company K, received a telephone message this morning from Adjutant General Wilbur F. Sadler at Sea Girt, ordering him to start a recruiting campaign for Troop D, the Plainfield cavalary troop now on the border, with the intention of raising it to full war strength. Company K armory on West Front street will be open tonight and officers will be present to examine prospective Troop D men. Captain Peterson is planning to inaugerate a three days' recruiting campaign that he hopes will end in getting the required number of men.

The main body of Troop D is now stationed at Douglas, Arizona, but it is probable that the recruits would be sent to Sea Girt first to get preliminary training and then be dispatched to the border.

FIERCE BRITISH DRIVE LAUNCHED

Germans Lose Enormous Number of Men and Tronteswood Goes to Foe.

FALL OF KOVEL IS NEAR

German Leaders Astonished by Recuperative Powers of the British—Men and Munition Supply Seems to Be Abundant.

(Telegraph to the Press.)

London, July 10.—A desperate battle of hours duration has raged around Troneswood, with German and British troops engaged, it was announced by the War Officed today. The British captured the wood, which is about seven miles southwest of Bapaume on the Somme River front, and had to withstand furious counter-attacks, but held on. At one time the Germans succeeded in penetrating the English trenches, but were driven out. The Germans lost an enormous number of men.

The Russians have forced the Austro-German army across the Stokhod at one vital point and two more villages have been enveloped south of the Sarny-Kovel Railroad. The Teutons are in a disorderly flight along the entire front in this section and the Russians are moving forward from a point only 24 miles from Kovel.

The crossing of the Russian froces over the Stokhod River, near Uuli Janovka, which are reported to be in flames, seriously threatens the Austro-German army on two sides. Ugli is about half way between the two railways running into Kovel from Rovno and Sarny. The Teutonic forces are believed to be massed along these two lines.

General von Linsingen's retirement from the Lutsk salient, which for months has been the sharpest thorn in the side of the Russian army, is foreshadowed in the swift advance of the Russians on Kovel. Military critics here are unanimous of the opinion that nothing can check the onrush of the attacking forces, and that another week, at the most, will see the fall of Kovel. The Germans, it is apparent, must relax their hold on the invaded parts of Poland and Lithuania once Kovel falls into Russian hands.

The ability of General Brussiloff to strike quickly at almost any point along the whole Volhynian front, combined with the neglect which the Teutons have shown so frequently, make adequate preparations against assault at unsuspected positions, will, it is believed, soon win for the Russians both Kovel and Baranovichi.

The last thrust of General Brussiloff has won for his forces a fifteen-mile advance between the Styr and Stokhod rivers. Another movement of like proportions will sweep over and beyond the great railway junction, which the Russians have been aiming at ever since the fighting about Lutsk was resumed in the new offensive.

Meanwhile the success of the Russians in Galicia are preparing the way for a great victory in that sector. Saturday General Letchitzky captured the important railroad junction of Delatyn, west of Kolomea, and in th same stroke cut off General von Bothmer from his principal base of supplies. A vast amount of booty fell into the Russians' hands with the capture of the city.

Berlin, July 10.—It is the eastern front and the Russians that are holding the eyes of the Germans today. The weight of the first onslaught in the west is believed to have been fully estimated, and in spite of whatever surprises British strategy may still have in store, opinion here is confident of the outcome. It is believed that the Sixth army and reserves have the situation well in hand on the Somme front and that nothing can interfere with the progress of the Verdun campaign.

The German leaders have been astonished at the recuperative powers of the Russians and their freely flowing reservoirs of both men and munitions. Time after time it seemed as if the Russians must be nearing their last resources in shells and reserves. Time and again correspondents at Austrian headquarters reported that the Russian troops were losing their vim and striking power, only to chronicle a day or two later a new onslaught with fresh troops, freely supported by artillery.

Despite the various Russian gains, however, which when marked on the map of the eastern front make a comparatively small showing for such a colossal expenditure of blood and iron, no uneasiness is manifested here.

Berlin, July 10 (via Sayville Wireless).—Eight British trawlers were sunk in the North Sea between July 4 and 6, according to a report made to the admirality today.

TROOP D CHUCK FULL OF COIN, SAYS PAPER

Memphis News-Chronicle Looks Upon Plainfielders as Millionaire Corps.

Following is an item published in the "Commercial Appeal," a Memphis, Tenn., daily newspaper, on July 6, the day the Plainfield troop visited that city en route to the border:

"D troop is chuck full of wealth. Captain Albert G. Borden in civil life is superintendent of the agencies bureau of the Equitable Life Assurance Society. First Lieutenant Daniel Runkle is in the iron business, Second Lieutenant J. N. Charles is with the International Motor Company, First Sergeant Brown Rolston is interested in the Sanger Picture Play Corporation, Mess Sergeant J. Hartley Mellick is a member of the New York Stock Exchange and Sergeant Sherman J. Joost is a banker and a member of the New York Stock Exchange.

"First Lieutenant H. H. Bertram, adjutant of the squadron, is a senior member of the firm of A. P. Babcock & Co., of New York, manufacturers of toilet articles.

"Before the cavalrymen left for the border a group of fathers of D troopers told Major Bryan they would place in his hands an unlimited fund for the needs of the men individually or collectively. The fathers also presented the troop with a motor truck, which was aboard a gondola car, in which also was Major Bryan's private automobile."

CONCEALED ROBBERY, TAXIMAN ARRAIGNED

Edward Heath is Held in $500 For Hearing in City Court Tomorrow.

Edward Heath, a taxicab driver at the North Avenue station was before City Judge De Meza this morning, charged with the concealment of a crime in being a party to the alleged "fake holdup," said to have been planned by Albert Walpole, John Southard and Gabriel Groletto, three Scotch Plains youths, at the Netherwood station on June 30. Heath entered a plea of not guilty and was remanded under $500 bail to appear in court tomorrow morning.

Peter Koehler, local freight agent for the C. R. R. of N. J., entered the complaint against Heath, which charged him with concealing his knowledge of the holdup. Heath, it is said, was hired by the three youths the night of the robbery and is the last of the quartet to be rounded up. He is said to have driven Walpole and Groletto about the city for several hours before it was time to do the "job" when they were supposed to waylay Southard, who was station agent at Netherwood, on his way home and take a large sum of the railroad's money he had on him. Afterward, it is alleged, he drove the two to Rahway and other places, but later when questioned by Chief Kiely he denied all knowledge of the affair.

NO CASES OF DISEASE ARE REPORTED HERE

Authorities State That Infantile Paralysis Has Not Developed in Plainfield.

There are no cases of infantile paralysis in Plainfield. The Mayor, as chief executive of the city, and the Health Department have been alive to the situation and all reasonable measures to protect the inhabitants have been used.

The children at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home came here from non-infected areas in New York. They were examined by physicians before leaving and again by a local physician upon their arrival, and found free of disease. The officials of the Home are co-operating with the Health Department by maintaining a voluntary quarantine and no apprehension is felt from this source. Inasmuch as the disease is still prevalent in New York no more children will be brought to the Home during the continuance of the epidemic.

The Health Department recommends that children be kept at home and advises against any public or private gatherings of children at this time.

FIND DYNAMITE IN NEW MEXICO

Enough to Blow Columbus Off the Map Discovered by Army Chief.

VILLA DIRECTING MOVE

Bandit Leader Believed to Hold Upper Hand on Carranza Forces—Fear That Guardsmen Will Cross Border for Snipers.

Columbus, N. M., July 10.—Enough dynamite to blow Columbus off the map was found buried today in the Mexican quarter by Captain Louis Van Schaick, chief of the local intelligence department of the army. Three Mexicans were immediately arrested and are being held as suspects. Five hundred feet of fuse was found in one of the arrested Mexican's homes.

El Paso, July 10.—Fear that Villa forces will rout Carranza generals in northern Chihuahua and that General Pershing is menaced on many sides, but that his hands are tied by Washington, is evidenced here today. Villa is present in the flesh and all talk of his retirement or death are without foundation. It is feared that 2,000 Constitutionalist troops under General Domingo Arietta have been defeated. That Villa himself is directing the movements of General Contreras is no longer in doubt, though he is not believed to be with the forces in battle.

Those who have interviewed Villa say that he no longer thinks of intervention but that he believes that Carranza's following has been so greatly weakened that mutiny is near. Sniping has become a nightly occurrance near Juarez, and the National Guardsmen have been singled out as victims. It is believed that the guardsmen have neared a point where they will take it upon themselves and go out after the Mexicans. A regular army officer would report such occurrences to his superior but the guardsmen have been wrought up to a degree where they will take their own course.

Proof alleged to be authentic that Villa is alive and has practically recovered from his wounds reached here today in the form of a letter written by Hipolito Villa, brother and financial agent of the bandit, from Havana, in which he stated that he had received a communication from Francisco telling of his wound and stating that it had practically healed and he soon would be ready to take the field again against the "grin-goes." A photographic copy of this letter was made. The signature, compared to that of Hipolito Villa, in the local banks, was found to be identical. No location for Villa was given, but it is believed that he is in the vicinity of Las Nievas or Canutillo, Durango, on the Chihuahua-Durango State line.

In the meantime reports from McAllen, Texas, say that Mexican troops are being withdrawn by the thousands from the northern edge of the State of Tamaulipas, which lies along the sector of the international boundary, to which the New York division has been assigned. Food supplies are becoming exhausted to such a degree that not only are the soldiers of Mexico unable to exist, but the civilian population is being reduced to straits that soon may approach actual starvation.

A newspaper man travelled by automobile for fifty miles westward from McAllen to Fort Ringgold at Rio Grande City, the most important telegraph road, close to the Rio Grande, the correspondent made particular inquiry among the authorities at all stations, whether of garrisons or patrols, regarding conditions as they might directly affect the New York organizations encamped or en route here.

The situation presents these features: Two weeks ago the United States put up the bars against the carrying of foodstuffs across the border in larger quantities than one day's supply per person. Since this order went into effect nearly 4,000 Carranzista soldiers have been moved from the boundary either to Monterey or Matamoras. More than 3,000 of these troops were moved from Camargo alone.

As a further result of the order smuggling has been renewed in greater proportions than at any time within the last three years. The smuggling is done in both directions, bringing hides into the United States and taking food out.

GIRLS' FACE BURNED BY DISCHARGE OF REVOLVER

Angelo Mestri, of 813 North avenue, while fooling with a blank cartridge pistol at his home yesterday, accidentally pulled the trigger while standing near Johanna Parello, of the same address, and the powder from the charge burned the lower part of the girl's face. Mestri appeared before City Judge W. G. De-Meza in the city court this morning, when he was given a plain talk on the reckless handling of firearms. Miss Parello explained that the shooting was an accident and no charge against Mestri was made.

PLAINFIELD CAVALRY CAMPING ALONGSIDE OF ESSEX TROOPERS ON DRENCHED SITE AT DOUGLAS

TROOP D MEN HAVE A ROYAL REUNION WITH FORMER COMRADES WHO VOLUNTEERED FOR SERVICE WITH NEWARKERS.

ARRIVED LAST NIGHT AND SLEPT IN THE TRAIN

Up at 4:30 O'clock This Morning to Start Work of Detraining—Rain Welcomed by Militiamen—Only Light Duty This Morning—Looking Forward to a Sight-Seeing Trip This Afternoon or Evening.

(Telegraph to the Daily Press)

Douglas, Ariz., July 10, 11:40 a. m.—Troop D, of Plainfield, and Troop C, of Red Bank, arrived here late last night and spent the night in their trains. The first heavy rain in a year visited Douglas over the week-end and the Plainfield and Red Bank troopers were glad of the opportunity to sleep in their cars inasmuch as the whole camp had been drenched, in some places flooded. During the night the storm cleared away. Although considerable rain fell the units already in camp did not suffer as they had prepared for it and the storm cleared the air considerably, this latter feature proving a welcome relief.

At 4:30 o'clock this morning Trumpeter Warren Ackerman sounded his bugle and we were ordered to start the work of detraining. Our horses were placed along the new picket line together with the Essex Troop's animals and while engaged in tying up the steeds we were met for the first time by the nine Plainfielders who have been at Douglas for a week with the Essex boys. They reported that they had all been well and were tickled to death to see their fellow Plainfielders. It is likely that our camp will be pitched next to the Essex camp. This unit is nearest the town and the site is probably the best in the big tented village.

There are about 10,000 men here now and they tell us that the number will soon be increased to 20,000. All of the militia now in camp seem to be settled down and are seriously mindful of their duties. The Plainfielders who volunteered to go with the Newarkers are as tanned as Mexicans and present a rugged and healthy appearance. They are all acclimated and although they expressed a desire this morning to return to Troop D they appear to be "in right" with their Newark companions and may be ordered to stick with Troop C, the unit with which they are now affiliated.

When we arrived last night sacks of mail that had been forwarded from El Paso were distributed among our men and the notes from home certainly were welcome. The Daily Press was the most popular piece of mail received and we gained much enjoyment reading about our trip from Manasquan to Douglas as chronicled daily in the Press.

The rain has laid the dust and those who were at camp before we arrived impressed on us that we were among the fortunate. We escaped the torrid heat by detraining early in the morning and only light work was allotted to us before noon. It is likely that this routine will be kept up for sometime at least. The Plainfielders with Troop C inform us that their horses are suffering from distemper and that they have had no mounted drills up to date. Our animals appear to be in better condition than those that have been here for a week and although we experienced some trouble in getting them quieted after detraining we expect they will come around all right in a day or so.

During the time we had to spare this morning we wrote letters home and conversed with those already in camp, all of whom were anxious to hear the latest news from Jersey. We had to postpone some of the hard work until this evening when it cools off. The flooded streets made the setting up of tents a hard job, but we got everything into temporary readiness and are settling down to real camp life.

We arrived at El Paso Saturday afternoon but as soon as we stepped off the train we were told to move directly to Douglas and commenced the 217 mile trip at 11 o'clock Saturday night. All of the boys are anxious to get a good look at Mexico and Plainfielders in Troop C have volunteered their services as guides as soon as we can get leave to visit the town section.

(Telegraph to the Press.)

El Paso, Tex., July 8.—The Watchung Troop and the Red Bank Troop arrived at El Paso at 4 o'clock this afternoon and were all ready to unpack and pitch camp when orders came to proceed on to Douglas. To some this was welcome, for we have heard considerable about Douglas being the better of the two places, but we were all tired and trainsick and a majority of us balked at further travel. However, another announcement brought the promise of a stay here until 11 o'clock tonight, and Captain Borden immediately granted the men permission to go to town and get supper. The Plainfielders set out for the business section of El Paso and greatly enjoyed themselves. They got their first peek at Mexico across the river. They were reconciled to another day in the train by the evening's enjoyment and when they entrained shortly before midnight all were refreshed and anxious to proceed.

Last night the Plainfield men who were on guard on the train carried ball cartridges in their belts and the "noncoms" slept with loaded rifles beside them. This was because late in the afternoon at Amarallo word had come to guard against an attempt to wreck the train. Several attempts to destroy bridges had been made by discharged Mexican laborers and dynamite had been stolen.

The Plainfield boys are in fine health. All have withstood the hard trip excellently and many are in better physical condition than when they left Sea Girt.

(Special Letter to the Press.)

Duglas, Ariz., July 4, 2:30 p. M.—We arrived here this morning about 4 a. m. The Plainfield boys with the Essex Troop are all well and anxiously looking forward to the arrival of Troop D some time the patter part of the week, as we heard they left Sea Girt last Sunday. We started the work of detraining at 5 o'clock, being anxious to get it over with before it got too hot. This is the dickens of a way to spend the Fourth of July, instead of being at Atlantic City with some nice little girl. Well, we have arrived anyway and it looks as though we would be here until we have the holidays, at least, that is, if we don't have any trouble.

If there is trouble this will be one of the best spots for excitement along the border. We can get into Mexico by land from here, and what I have been told since arriving this is the principal invasion camp. The regulars who were here when we arrived gave me the information, so there seems to be a good chance of us Plainfielders getting some greaser's whiskers to bring back as souvenirs.

I was on guard on the train all yesterday afternoon and last night. While patrolling my beat I located a half-breed Mexican who had caught on one of the cars and I ordered him off. He would not go until I pulled my gun. I don't believe the poor fellow meant any harm and he probably only wanted a ride, but my sergeant's orders were to put him off and I had to do it. This is the dickens of a life and I certainly hope we get action pretty soon.

Our horses seem to be pretty much under the weather and it would be the next thing to suicide to try to ride any of them. We will probably not get any hard work right away, because it's too hot.

(Special Correspondence)

Douglas, Arizona, July 9.—Despite the heat the guardsmen in camp here are talking about organizing a baseball league to be composed of teams from the various units. All of the New Jersey militia is now in camp, approximately 5,000 men. A number of the troopers are good ball players and the Plainfield delegation is counting upon putting a crack nine out. The men have been tossing a baseball around during the cooler hours of the day and get much enjoyment from it.

Major Harold D. Corbusier, ranking officer of the command of the New Jersey medical department in the field, has ordered the construction of a large number of incinerators for garbage disposal, a number of latrines, shower bath houses and houses for inoculation for typhoid fever and smallpox. He is personally supervising the work.

A street is being laid out through the camp by the various units. It is thirty feet wide and will be about one mile long. Each unit is constructing the roadbed in front of its own quarters. The New Jersey troops are scattered about an area of about one mile.

Scotch Plains, Fanwood

PRECAUTIONS AGAINST INFANTILE PARALYSIS

Although health conditions here should give the residents of Scotch Plains and Fanwood little cause for fear of infantile paralysis, the local health authorities are taking every precaution to prevent the disease from getting any hold here at all.

The Board of Health attended a joint meeting held in Westfield Saturday night of the health bodies of that place, Cranford and Garwood. At the meeting a plan was decided upon to watch all incoming trains at the railroad stations and everyone with a child coming from New York will have to satisfactorily fill out a card printed for the purpose of telling where they are from and other data or they will not be allowed to stay here. William Lidgate, of North avenue, has been appointed special officer for the Board of Health and will keep a rigid watch on all trains.

Since the epidemic first started in New York there has been a large number of women with their children that have flocked to this vicinity, but so far not even a possible sign of the plague has been found. Hereafter a doctor will examine all uncertain cases.

Charles Norton, of Midway avenue, has purchased an automobile.

Mrs. Luke Pandock, of North avenue, who underwent an operation in a New York hospital a number of days ago, is improving rapidly and will return home in a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Teeple entertained their cousin, George Mullison, of Perth Amboy, yesterday.

Mrs. Joseph Miller and son, Francis, of Newark, are spending a few days with Mrs. Miller's father, Harry Sofield, Sr.

Miss May Bohls, of Newark, has returned from a week-end visit with her sister, Mrs. Albert Randolph.

Clifford Brown and William Ball have been visiting friends in Perth Amboy.

Watchung.

A musical program was rendered last evening in the Wilson Union church. The program consisted of selections by the choir entitled, "Jesus Son of God," by Gounod, and "Protect Us Thro' the Coming Night," by Cunshman; cornet solos by Alfred M. Korff, of Plainfield; violin solo by George H. Spier; vocal solos by William Holmes, of Plainfield, formerly tenor soloist in the First Baptist church, entitled, "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," and "Come Unto Me." Rev. Ramsey preached a short sermon on "The Music In the Bible." At the morning service Lawrence J. Vail rendered a baritone solo, entitled, "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," a violin solo was given by George Spier, and Rev. Ramsay preached a most forcible sermon on "Economy and Thrift As Christian Virtues."

The monthly meeting of the Improvement Society will be held this evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Robinson and family, of Elizabeth, have been the week-end guests of Mrs. J. Myers.

Miss Emma Marfinz, of Bernardsville, is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Marfinz.

MANY ENJOY SACRED CONCERT IN CITY PARK

The first of a series of sacred concerts was given in the City Park yesterday afternoon under the direction of Clifford A. Braider and the auspieces of the Public Recreation Committee, and proved to be a success. There were 200 members of the Community Chorus Choir present and between 200 and 300 people gathered to enjoy the singing by the chorus, despite the threatening weather.

Mr. Braider proposes to hold similar concerts at the park Sunday afternoons during the warm weather and next Sunday afternoon Miss Josephine Boughan, soloist of the First M. E. church, will sing a solo. Other features will be introduced from time to time.

WILL DETERMINE IF MAN IS LEGALLY DEAD

Newark, July 10.—To determine whether William H. Conner, formerly of this city, should be declared legally dead is the purpose of a public hearing before Surrogate Fred C. Stickel today. The petition for the hearing, brought on behalf of George H. Conner, a son of the missing man, relates that on August 1, 1903, when the son was ten years old, the elder Conner went to Peabody, Miss to take a position. His wife, now dead, hearing from him a few months later, but since then had had neither direct word nor slightest clue. While the petitioner claims he has made diligent search, with the aid of the police, and has discovered nothing, at insurance policy issued to his father remains unpaid, as the insurance company states it has reason to believe Conner is in the West.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Gallagher and Mrs. Morris Bateman, of East Orange, were guest of Plainfield friends yesterday.

Mrs. Robert Baillie and family, of West Third street, and Mrs. William Hayes, of Halsey street, left Saturday for "Cedar Cottage," Watchung Mountains, where they will spend July and August.

PLAINFIELDERS TAKE "SOUTHERN" VICTORY

Butler, Although Hit Hard, Manages to Withstand Suburban Onslaught.

The Plainfield A. A. registered a one-sided victory over the South Plainfield team in an uninteresting game yesterday afternoon. "Young" Reilly started the game for the suburban nine, but was hit freely and had to be taken from the box. Jack Gleason was then sent to the box but he had an off day. Butler pitched a steady game for the Plainfield nine and although he was hit freely he managed to pull through in the pinches, owing to good support. It is expected that Joe Morley will be in the box for the South Plainfield team next Sunday. The score:

TROOP D ARRIVES AT DOUGLAS

urday night with a hard downpour. During the rainy season in Arizona, however, there are no steady rains. With few exceptions each day between July 1 and September 1 is featured by a hard downpour which cools off the atmosphere and lays the dust. The storms are usually of the electric variety and the approach of the storms over the mountain ranges that encircle Douglas is a sight well worth seeing.

The Jersey troops are experiencing considerable difficulty in getting completely outfitted. It is necessary to send to El Paso, a distance of 217 miles, for a large quantity of stuff frequently and the storehouses have been pretty well cleaned out during the past few days.

Troop C, of Newark, which includes a number of Plainfielders; Troop D, of Plainfield, and the hospital corps, which has a number of Plainfielders enrolled, are close together on the camp ground. These units are located next to the headquarters of General Hine nearest the city of Douglas. The Newark troops have started an innovation in the way of flooring for tents. Each tent has pooled together a sum of $10 to pay for the wood necessary and it is expected that Troop D will follow just as soon as they settle here.

En route to Douglas Troop D had considerable trouble in its mess car. The field range set fire to the roof of the car in Louisville Tuesday and Wednesday the stove nearly dropped through the floor of the car before it was discovered the floor was afire. Moreover Trooper Bill Daniels, one of the cooks, was burned severely when he essayed to make coffee in a large milk can—with the lid clamped on and nowhere for the steam to escape. The cook discovered the danger after the coffee began to boil. Then he attempted to remove the lid with a hammer, but the accumulated steam beat him to it. He is better now and is able to get around with his companions as usual. The burns were painful but not serious.

HARVARD MEN TO FLY.

Boston, Mass., July 10.—Ten Harvard undergraduates are to be sent to the Curtis Flying School at Buffalo today for a course of six or eight weeks training by the Undergraduate Aero Training Fund, which was organized in this city some weeks ago. These men will be the first of a squad of twenty-four undergraduates, who, it is hoped, will receive such training as will enable them to become available for military service in the event of war. The moevment was originally started by Frazer Curtis, who has served with the American Flying Corps in France for some time. Harvard men throughout the country have contributed to the training fund.

HOW THE NEW CITY HALL FOR PLAINFIELD WILL LOOK WHEN IT IS READY FOR USE

The following description of the new city hall was furnished the Press by Laurence F. Rech, architect, who was selected to plan the building by a special board of award. The design of the new Municipal Building for Plainfield has been dictated largely by conditions of the site, at the corner of Watchung avenue and Sixth street, and by the requirements of the two principal floors.

The entrance on Watchung avenue will lead into a vestibule and a large lobby, facing which will be a sweeping circular staircase from top to bottom of the building, and the rear entrance, giving a circulation of air and light and a view of the grounds as one enters from either side. From the lobby one will enter at the southwest corner of the building, the office of city clerk, a room 22x35 feet, with space for the public, and a winding stair communicating with the office of the street commissioner below. At the southeast corner will be the tax collector's office, 21x36 feet, with public space, a private room for the collector, and a stair leading to the tax assessor's office below. Each of these offices will in addition have large vaults, that in the collector's office being reinforced for protection with chrome steel rods; and between them will be found a small office about 11 feet square for the treasurer.

The north end of the first floor will be given over to the Mayor's office, of 19x35 feet on the rear, with a large fireplace, coat closet and lavatory; a council committee room and library of 20x45 feet will occupy the front, and will be fitted with book cases built into the wall and so arranged as to accommodate a growing library. There will also be on this floor a committee room 12x24 feet, and a public lavatory.

The second floor will contain the council chamber and the court room, each 26x36 feet, with their dependencies, the chamber being at the southwest corner of the court room at the northwest, with a public committee room of 24x36 feet directly between them, in the front of the building, which can be used as an overflow in case of large attendance at court or at meetings of the council. The council committee room and the clerk's room, each of 19x27 feet, will occupy the southwest and northeast corners respectively, each having coat rooms, file rooms, etc., with the public lavatories adjoining.

The basement, which is directly accessible by an exterior stair at the rear of the building, as well as by the main staircase, will be as well lighted and ventilated as any part of the building, with windows from the ceiling to three feet above the floor. Here, across the south end and part of the front, will be located the street commissioner's office, draughting room, permit room, and his large vault space, and adjoining on the rear will be the assessor's office and vault, of 21x27 feet. A general vault and a store room will be built under the front entrance, and to the north of these will be the public and private offices and store rooms of the overseer of the poor, in space of about 18x24 feet. The janitor's room, 12x24 feet, and the boiler room, 20x35 feet, at the northeast corner, the lavatories, shower for employees, etc., take up the remainder of this floor.

Across the south end and half the front of the third floor the board of health will be housed, in a space approximately 20x68 feet, apportioned to a general office, private office, registrar's office and laboratory. In the rear, on each side of the stairs will be placed rooms for city planning and for the Grand Army of the Republic, of 19x21 feet and 19x15 feet respectively. Besides the lavatory and closet space and the area given to the stairs to the roof of the building, there will remain on this floor some 1,750 square feet of unassigned space which will be subdivided for use as offices as the need arises.

WASHINGTON CAMP INSTALLS OFFICERS

Past President's Jewel is Presented to Mrs. Andrew McDowell.

At the monthly meeting of Washington Camp, No. 1, P. O. S. of A., held in the organization's rooms in the Babcock building Saturday night, the following officers were installed: Mrs. Willard Cook, president; Mrs. Mary Johnson, assistant president; Mrs. Mary Clauson, vice president; Mrs. Janetta VanPelt, conductor; Mrs. Ora Eckart, chaplain; Mrs. Willard Cook, pianist, and Mrs. Mary Clauson, trustee for eighteen months. The installation ceremonies were in charge of John S. Titus, district president.

A number of members of Camp No. 60, of Elizabeth, were present. During the evening, Mrs. Willard Cook presented, on behalf of the lodge to Mrs. Andrew McDowell, a past president's jewell, in recognition of her faithful service as president for two years and as district president for the same time. Mrs. McDowell responded with appropriate remarks. Recitations were given by Miss Elizabeth Doig and piano selections were given by Miss Doig and Mrs. Cook.

At the conclusion of the business session all adjourned to the banquet room, where refreshments were served under the direction of Mrs. Mary Cable and Mrs. Mellenbeck. The entertainment committee consisted of Mrs. J. VanPelt, Mrs. Helen Freeman and Mrs. Andrew McDowell. The annual picnic of the lodge will be held Saturday, July 29, at the home of Mrs. Harry Brown in Garwood, where both Camp No. 1 and Camp No. 60 will unite to make the day a pleasant one.

PICTURE OF GERMAN U BOAT TO BE SHOWN HERE

Moving pictures taken of the German U-boat upon its arrival in Baltimore this morning will be shown in Proctor's Theatre tonight. Much interest has been shown in the undersea vessel inasmuch as it is the first in the history of the world to attempt such a feat. The trip from Germany to this country took sixteen days and the distance was 4,000 miles. Beside the thirty men on board she carried a cargo of dyes and mail and also a messenger, who had a special letter from the Kaiser to President Wilson.

The pictures are unusually clear and have been finished in record time to order to allow local persons an opportunity to see the U-boat at close range. Beside this picture, Troop D pictures, taken at the State mobilization camp at Sea Girt, will be shown in connection with the regular photoplays.

FRELINGHUYSEN AND HUGHES IN CONFERENCE

Senatorial Candidate Believes United G. O. P. Party Will Defeat Wilson.

Somerville, July 10.—That the opinion of J. S. Frelinghuysen, candidate for the nomination for United States Senator at the Republican primaries to be held September 26, is valued highly by Charles E. Hughes, the Republican nominee for President, is evidenced by the fact that he was in conference with the former Justice for more than an hour in New York the other day—one of the busiest that the candidate for the Presidency has had since his nomination.

Senator Frelinghuysen has a high esteem for Justice Hughes and his policies. He believes that the Chicago convention made a wise choice, and since the Progressives, under Theodore Roosevelt, have so wisely decided to support Hughes, that the united Republican party will defeat President Wilson at the polls. It is probable that the Senator will give expression to his views regarding Mr. Hughes at some time in the near future, and tell the Republican voters of the State what his estimation is of the standard bearer of his party.

Friends of the man from Somerset have been greatly surprised by the splendid headway Senator Frelinghuysen is making in his personal canvass of the Republican voters in the State. Everywhere he goes and comes in contact with the individual voters he makes friends by the score. As a result in every county in which he has conducted a campaign the Republicans are rallying to his support in gratifying numbers.

That Frelinghuysen is a good campaigner is shown from the fact that he is covering ground with such rapidity that he is going through the State in regular whirlwind fashion. He may be down in the southern part of the State when something develops that needs his attention in the northern part, and he is there and back again, getting in touch with the voters before some of his friends realize that he has made the trip. Through it all he works systematically, and in that way he is not putting forth any waste effort in carrying out his plans.

Senator Frelinghuysen called at one of the factories in Gloucester county as the men were washing up to depart for their homes. His thorough democracy was demonstrated as he walked up the line of grimy workmen washing their hands. He gave the first man on the line one of his characteristic hand-shakes, and went right down the line shaking hands with all of the men. That their hands were grimy or soapy did not make any difference to him. After he reached the end of the line Senator Frelinghuysen rolled up his sleeves and washed his hands with the men. That he made a hit with the men in that factory was the verdict of the foreman in charge.

Farmers throughout the State are deeply interested in the campaign of Senator Frelinghuysen, and those who are Republicans stand solidly for his nomination for United States Senator. They are gratified that he has again been chosen to head the State Board of Agriculture, because they believe he is entitled to the honor for the splendid work he did in aiding in the egislation that made the reorganization of the Board possible. There is every indication that Frelinghuysen will get the solid vote of the Republican farmers of the State, and they believe that he is in every way qualified to represent them in the upper house of Congress.

REV. DR. WHITAKER IS FOUND DEAD IN BED

The Rev. Dr. William Force Whitaker, pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Elizabeth, who is well known here, was found dead from heart disease yesterday morning at his home there. He was born in Southhold, L. I., and was in his fifty-fifth year. Dr. Whitaker was a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and of the Union Theological Seminary, of which he was a director at the time of his death.

He was an authority on the history of New York and New Jersey and had made a number of addresses on that subject. In addition, he was a former chaplain general of the Sons of the American Revolution. Dr. Whitaker was unmarried and is survived by his parents, his father being the Rev. Dr. Epher Whitaker, pastor of the Presbyterian church in Southhold.

EDWARD BENJAMIN'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of Edward Benjamin, the fourteen year old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Benjamin, of West Front street, was held at his late home, Washington's headquarters, yesterday afternoon at two o'clock. The service was in charge of Rev. W. Northey Jones, acting rector of Grace Episcopal church. Interment took place in Hillside cemetery, members of the family acting as pall bearers.

John D. Schofield, of Carlton avenue, is spending a two weeks' vacation in Atlantic City.

JAPAN HONORS AN AMERICAN BIRDMAN

Art Smith Given Presents and Money by Oriental Noblemen.

A young American aviator named Art Smith, who has been exhibiting successfully in Japan and was brought into the cable despatches through an attack by a gang of young toughs of Osaka an him and his machine, because a public flight was delayed by his manager, has reached a high degree of honor. He has not only been presented with a diamond medal and money gifts from the Imperial princes, but was also entertained at a banquet at the Imperial Hotel, Tokio. The banquet was given under the auspices of the Imperial Aviation Association, the National Aviation Association, the Japan Society, which has its headquarters in New York, and the Japan-American Society. The speakers were Baron Shibusawa, Dr. Okuda, the Mayor of Tokio; General Nagaoka, president of the National Aviation Association; Prof. Tanakadate of the Imperial University, and the smiling little Art Smith himself.

Baron Shibusawa told of his acquaintance with Mr. Smith at San Francisco. He talked in a fatherly manner of the consideration of the aviator for his parents, and praised him for his modesty. Most geniuses, he said, have the failing of too much pride. Mr. Smith has shown himself modest and unassuming in spite of the honors that have been heaped upon him. So young Art Smith gave Tokio a free exhibition flight and one long smile.

INTERESTING NOTES OF BOYS IN KHAKI

2,000 Seattle Girls Threaten to Enlist if the Boys do Not Go to the Front.

To speed up recruiting in Seattle, 2,000 girls and women of that city wore tags with the following inscription, "If you don't enlist, we will."

Covering their cars with mottoes written in chalk was one of the pastimes indulged in by New England soldiers on their way to the border. A favorite motto was: "We are going to Mexico, Where are you going?"

While New York's 71st Regiment was marching from the armory to the entraining point, a leather-lunged spectator bellowed out: "Give 'em the old corkscrew haymaker, Kid." He was addressing Private Norman Selby (Kid McCoy), the one-time boxing star.

The "Dandy Fifth" of Massachusetts has a song hit, composed by one of its members, as follows:

Oh, the infantry, the infantry, with the dirt behind their ears,
Oh, the infantry, the infantry, who can lick up all the beers.
The artillery, the cavalry and the bloomin' engineers
Couldn't lick the bloomin' infantry in a hundred thousand years.

Dogs are the favorite mascots of the soldiers, but in some instances cats and even birds were carried along by the boys. A Connecticut machine gun company was presented by a Cleveland packing house with four rams to serve as jinx destroyers.

When the order came from headquarters that no booze was to be permitted in the camps, the boys at Fort Riley, Kans., performed the last sad rite over John Barleycorn. At a hastily dug grave the last quart was lowered while the mourners sang "How Dry I Am."

The boys in khaki have a language all their own, much of it unintelligible to the outsider. Some of the slang words and phrases heard most frequently in camp and on the troop train, with their meanings, are as follows:

Recruit—Rookey or John; First Sergeant—Top cutter; Second lieutenant—Shavetail; Musicians—Wind jammers; Corporal—Corp; Rifle—Shooting stick; Pistol—Gat; Beefstew—Slum; Hash—Sixty-second article of war; Hardtack—Armor plate; Mess kit—Turtle backs; Cavalry—Troopers; Engineers—Posthole diggers; Quartermaster corps—Scavengers; Orderly—Dog or robber; Enlisted man—Old head; Captain—Skipper or old man; Mess sergeant—Belly robber; Sergeant—Sarge; Cook—Ration spoiler or tight-wad; Bayonet—Steel or stabber; Coffee—Bootleg; Beans—Artillery or Boston bullets; Bacon—Sowbelly; Bread—Punk; Infantry—Doughboys; Signal corps—Lightning rods; Hospital corps—Pill rollers; Pie—Applebergy.

SOCIETIES AT SOMERVILLE FEDERATION OF CATHOLIC

A federation of the Catholic societies of Somerset county was effected at a meeting held in the Knights of Columbus Hall, Somerville, yesterday afternoon. Rev. P. J. Hart, rector of St. Joseph's church in the borough, presided during the session until the officers were elected. Delegates from Catholic churches in Bernardsville, Stony Hill, Raritan, Somerville and North Plainfield were in attendance. Robert McCormack, who has been president of the Holy Name Society of the borough parish for fifteen years, was elected president of the County Federation. About twenty members of the Holy Name Society accompanied Father Hart and Mr. McCormack to the gathering.

The federation of the different societies in Somerset was requested by Bishop McFaul and as soon as the various parishes are combined, the County Federation will be taken into the Diocesan Federation, which is connected with the Trenton Diocese.

Power of Words.

"For me," writes Lafcadio Hearn in the "Japanese Letters of Lafcadio Hearn," "words have color, form, character. They have faces, ports, manners, gesticulations; they have moods, humors, eccentricities; they have tints, tones, personalities."

A good instance of this power appears in a description of Patti's singing: "There was a great dim pressure, a stifling heat, a whispering of silks, a weight of toilet perfumes. Then came an awful hush. All the silks stopped whispering. And then suddenly sweetened out through that dead, hot air a clear, cool, tense thread gust of melody unlike any sound I ever heard before save—in tropical nights—from the throat of a mocking bird. It was 'Auld Lang Syne' only, but with never a tremolo or artifice, a marvelous, audacious simplicity of utterance."

When Baronets Were Bold.

It was in the reign of good King James that baronets first came into existence. Today you could hardly tell a baronet from a banker. But in the year 1611, when James I. needed ready money and created 200 "little barons" to supply him with cash, they swaggered about in their baldrics and sashes and behaved in the courtliest of fashion. Each baronet in order to justify his title had to maintain a small army of thirty soldiers for three years. In this way the crafty king not only increased his revenue, but actually lightened his expenses.—London Telegraph.

CORPORATION NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

J. T. Mac MURRAY,
City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., June 19, 1916.

AN ORDINANCE

A Supplement to An Ordinance Entitled, "An Ordinance For the Assessment of Taxes for the Year 1916," Approved June 7th, 1916.

WHEREAS, The Board of School Estimate of this school district, that is to say, the school district comprising the City of Plainfield, has fixed upon and determined the amount of money necessary to be appropriated for the use of the public schools in such district for the ensuing school year, beginning July 1st, 1916, and ending June 30th, 1917, exclusive of the amount apportioned to it by the County Superintendent of Schools, to wit: The sum of One Hundred and Twenty-five Thousand Two Hundred and Fifteen ($125,215.00) Dollars, and has made two certificates of said amount signed by all the members of said Board, one of which certificates has been delivered to the Board of Education of said school district and the other to the Common Council of said City.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council do enact as follows:

Section 1. That pursuant to the Act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey, entitled "An Act to establish a thorough and efficient system of free public schools, and to provide for the maintenance, support and management thereof," approved October 19th, 1903, and Acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, the sum of One Hundred and Twenty-five Thousand Two Hundred and Fifteen ($125,215.00) Dollars be and the same is hereby appropriated for the purpose aforesaid as other appropriations are made by the Common Council and that said amount shall be assessed, levied and collected for the year Nineteen Hundred and Sixteen in the same manner as money appropriated for other purposes in this City is required to be assessed, levied and collected.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS CANCEL EXCURSION

Action is Taken at the Request of the State Board of Health.

Owing to the epidemic of infantile paralysis prevalent in many of the cities of the State, the Crescent Avenue Church Sunday school annual excursion to Asbury Park, which was to have been run Thursday, has been cancelled. The request for the cancellation came from the State Board of Health as a preliminary measure in safeguarding local children from infection. Beside the Crescent Avenue church, nine other Sunday schools were to be represented on this outing, including the Grace P. E. church, Bethel chapel, Seventh Day Baptist church, Holy Cross, St. Stephen's church, Church of the Heavenly Rest, Dunellen Presbyterian and the two Baptist churches of New Market.

Although these congregation will be unable to re-form again, the committee representing the Crescent Avenue church, announce that they will distribute tickets to the children of the Crescent Avenue Sunday school and Bethel chapel, to go on any other excursion which may be run later in the season. It is probable that a number of other excursions scheduled to run this month will be called off.

UNION SERVICE HELD AT TRINITY REFORMED CHURCH

The union service held at Trinity Reformed church last night, with the congregations of the First Baptist, First Methodist and First Presbyterian churches uniting. Rev. J. Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity church, was in charge of the service. Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson read the Scripture lesson and Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong offered prayer.

Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring preached the sermon, his topic being "The Progress of Christ," a strong discourse. Dr. Paul W. Harrison, missionary to Arabia, attended the service but took no part.

THE FORUM

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

I thank you for the publication of my "Special Saturday Sale," and write to inform you that it was correct except for stating that my place which has been condemned by the Mayor and Council gave more trouble to the municipality than all other stores of that kind. I have conducted the place for the last seven years and up to the present time I have never been brought up either before the police or county court for any violation in our county, nor for any misconduct on my part, which plainly shows that it is only the influence the Mayor has with his Council and his church organization to fulfill his promise to "kill me," which he personally said to me he desired to do. He plainly states that he does not care whether or not I shall lose my store property on Somerset street or even the homestead of my invalid wife, as satisfaction and revenge is more to him than a plain citizen and family. This plainly shows the ability and character of a Mayor that this municipality thought best to elect for their welfare. I am sure that most of the citizens that signed the remonstrance against the transfer of my license even do not know me, and this plainly illustrates again what power that Mayor has over his flock. Rev. Mr. McKelvey, on the other hand, only acts on the principal as a minister and therefore should not exactly be condemned for his action. The whole matter is nothing else than an act to give partiality to Plainfield which is illustrated by closing up the hotels in the borough to correspond with that city, so the borough should not gain anything from them, excepting the "Shop of Quality." Certainly it must be understood that this is not exactly coming from the head of the Mayor as he is only led by Plainfield as a bull is by the nose ring. Time will show whether or not I can get justice which every American citizen is entitled to.

JOHN W. HARRISON REACHES 80TH YEAR

"Still Young, Though an Old Man and Spry as a Chicken," He Says.

J. W. Harrison, of this city, who, during his career, made a gospel trip of over 5,000 miles with a horse and wagon, is today celebrating his eightieth birthday anniversary in a quiet way. In commenting on the fact, Mr. Harrison said: "I am still young though an old man, as spry as a spring chicken, strong and healthy. I don't know the taste of tobacco or intoxicating drinks, for which I am thankful. 'Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap,' Galatians 6-7. The world is my home; all mankind are my brethren and God is Our Father."

Mr. Harrison, accompanied by his wife, who is now dead, made his first gospel trip from New York city, September 19, 1903, and after traversing about thirteen States, returned home on October 12, 1904. His second trip, which was started from New York, April 26, 1905, took him to California, going through New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, and Kansas and was terminated because of the illness of Mrs. Harrison. This was on April 21, 1906, and shortly afterward he returned to Plainfield, where he has continued to live.

KNIGHTS' CARNIVAL WILL OPEN TONIGHT

Krause Shows Arrive and Set up Attractions—Band Concert to Be a Feature.

Everything is now in readiness for the opening of the Knights of Columbus Carnival tonight and promptly at 7 o'clock the lights will be thrown on and the week of fun and amusement will be started. The Krause Greater Shows, which furnish all attractions, arrived in the city yesterday afternoon about 2 o'clock from New Brunswick, where they were last week, and immediately began the task of unloading. The grounds at Clinton avenue and Front street presented the appearance of a gigantic bee hive with the setting up of the various shows and attractions, the small boy being very much in evidence.

Last night the Krause Show band was to give a sacred concert in the City Park and owing to there being no lights in the park the musicians could give only four selections. These four were excellently rendered and was greeted with hearty applause by the large crowd assembled.

The band will give another concert tonight at 6 o'clock at the corner of Park avenue and Second street, when the balance of the program selected for last night will be given together with several other selections.

The standing of all candidates in the Queen of the Carnival contest is as follows: Miss Lillian Coffee, 1,043; Miss Flo Hogan, 1,039; Miss Peggie Benson, 997; Miss Kittie Conshay, 916; Miss Ethel Brown, 953; Miss Katherine Regan, 795; Miss Delhia Burke, 791. Today is bargain day, all votes polled counting double.

GUSTAV MENDEL DIES IN NEW YORK

Well Known Resident of This City Passes Away Following Operation.

Following a lingering illness of ten weeks' duration, Gustav Mendel, of Holly Park, this city, died Saturday in Miss Alston's private hospital on West Sixty-first street, New York city, where he underwent an operation last Thursday. Mr. Mendel was born in Wendelsheim, in the province of Hesse-Darms-Stadt, Germany, on December 13, 1839, but came to this country when but a boy fourteen years old and located in Cincinnati, Ohio. He lived in the latter city the greater part of his life and came to New York eighteen years ago. For the past ten years he had resided in Plainfield. In 1865 he married Miss Nettie Hyman, of Cincinnati, who still survives him.

Mr. Mendel was connected with the Strauss Pritz Company, wholesale liquor merchants, of Cincinnati, and continued in the business actively up to the time of his illness. He was a member of several fraternal organizations of that city also.

Beside his widow, he is survived by a son and daughter. These are Milton Medel, of Holly Park, this city, and Mrs. Samuel van Praag, of New York city. Two brothers, Moses and Simon Mendel, of Hot Springs, Arkansas, also survive him. Mr. Mendel was a member of Temple Sholem, of this city.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the chapel of the Campbell Burial Company, at 67th street and Broadway, New York. Following the service the body will be cremated in compliance with a request of the deceased.

COLORED YOUTHS CHARGED WITH ROBBING STORE

William Johnston and Frank Winston, two colored youths, were arraigned before City Judge W. G. De Meza this morning, charged with breaking and entering the shoe blacking store of Nicholas Panettelli, at 123 Park avenue, late Saturday night. The two were employed there. About $17 in money and a quantity of cigars and cigarettes were taken. After Patrolman Flatley told his story the judge remanded the pair until tomorrow morning.

HARRY KLEIN TENDERED FAREWELL PARTY SATURDAY

A farewell party was tendered to Harry Klein, boss painter at Laing's garage, Saturday night at Nelson's Hotel, New Market, by fifteen fellow-workmen in the garage. Mr. Klein is about to enter business for himself. He was made the toastmaster for the occasion, and between courses there were several speeches.

Among those present were Harry Klein, Leo Moore, William B. Westcoff, Joseph Whelan, George Doran, Otto Neher, Tony DeNitizo, Ray Cooly, Robert Voorhees, John Conely, Edward Odell, Charles Kaine, Earl Barker, Frank Briggs and Paul Pope.

NOBLES OF MYSTIC SHRINE THRONG BUFFALO TODAY

Buffalo, N. Y., June 10.—Buffalo today is in the hands of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, who have gathered her from points near and far for the annual session of the imperial council of the order. During the remainder of the week Buffalo will be given over to the visitors, who with their families and friends are expected to number 100,000.

The ingress of the Shriners began early yesterday. From that time on special trains arrived at short intervals, and with scarcely a break the air was filled with the blare of trumpets and the roll of drums as visiting patrols paraded through the streets to headquarters.

Today was devoted to the reception of the visitors and the formal opening of the conclave. Spectacular parades are on the program for tomorrow. Wednesday will come the election of officers and the divisional review and exhibition drills of the Shrine patrols. The selection of the next meeting place, for which honor several cities are engaged in a lively contest, will take place either tomorrow or Wednesday.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF MRS. H. E. HAZEN HELD

The funeral service of Mrs. Hannah Elizabeth Hazen, widow of Charles P. Hazen, was held at the late home at 310 Franklin place, yesterday afternoon at 3:30. The service was in charge of Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbytrian church, assisted by Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. The body will be taken to New York State for interment in the family plot. A committment service will be held there which will be in charge of Rev. W. H. Peters.

HOPE CHAPEL SCOUT TROOP REACHES CAMP CONDICT

The Boy Scouts of Troop 12, Hope Chapel, have been enjoying themselves at Camp Condict as they have never done before. The advance corps, with a wagon load of equipment, reached the camp on Friday and the main body of scouts arrived on Saturday, going to the camping grounds at Weston in a taxi.

Swimming first attracted the attention of the lads, although when William Egel, the bugler, announced that "mess" was ready, there was a wild stampede for the first "big eats." Taps was sounded at 9:30 o'clock. The troop hiked to church at East Millstone yesterday morning and in the afternoon held services on their own grounds.

RESISTED ARREST.

Charged with resisting arrest after Patrolman Kelly had taken him in custody Saturday night, for making a disturbance on Front street, Aaron Larson, a Swede, was fined $8 or forty days in the county jail when arraigned before City Judge DeMeza this morning. Larson had been drinking this morning. Larson had been drinking, the officer said, and approached him and demanded that a man passing by shoul be arrested for driving a thin horse, and when the policeman told him to move on he became noisy. The fine was paid.

ON BLACKLIST, GOT BOOZE.

Determined to stop local saloon keepers from selling liquor to men on the blacklist, City Judge W. G. DeMeza remanded Joseph Stevens until tomorrow morning to give him time to investigate the matter, when he was arraigned before him this morning in the city court on a charge of drunkenness. Stevens has been up many times before, and this morning he told where he had obtained the whiskey. Patrolman Martin Welsh made the arrest Saturday.

Black Velvet Sashes Lend the Season's Special Note of Smartness—The Middy Rompers Meet the Wee Boy's Ideas of Manliness—Play Frocks and Party Frocks for Summer Days.

MORE elaboration than has been seen for several seasons is being put on children's frocks this summer. Ruffles are responsible for this. It is a ruffle-year, if ever there was one, and when ruffles attack grown-up frocks, they break out in a very fever on small attire. Ruffles, ruffles and ruffles has the party frock for a little girl, these days, many tiny ruffles on the skirt—clear to the sash-line; and more ruffles on the waist, around neck and sleeve and sometimes running across back and front above the sash-line. When developed in organdie or in flowered lawn, these little frocks are especially dainty and feminine. Ruffles, a parasol, and a big sashbow—what more could a pretty little maid demand to be irresistible?

In striking contrast to the frilled organdie frocks are straight-up-and-down frocks of pique and linen with belt far below the natural waistline and little skirts flaring out below, so short that they reveal the knee. Wee girls of five to seven wear their petticoats almost grotesquely short, and the same very abbreviated skirts are often noted on lanky little girls of seven to ten—when mammas wish to keep them as juvenile as possible. At seven, the small girl's frocks should touch her knee; at eleven they should drop just over it; at thirteen or fourteen they should be half-way between knee and top of buttoned boot; at sixteen—or even at fifteen if the girl is tall and well-grown, skirts should reach the boot-top. This is, of course, at present, the adult length.

But to go back to five years, where we started:

A New Middyfied Romper.

The romper has still no rival in maternal opinion, as a play garment for tiny people. It is so easy to launder and gives such freedom to little limbs. Girls and boys alike live in rompers through most of the day in the privacy of the home garden, and one sees the romper even at the beach or on the grounds of summer hotels of a less fashionable sort. The middy romper pictured, though intended for boy or girl, specially pleases the small boy with its sailor-like suggestion in the collar and knotted tie. The model pictured is of white galatea with bands of rose pink at collar and belt and a pink ribbon tie. The hat to match has a smart buttoned band of the pink galatea.

For very little girls the smock and bloomer combination is cunning, and practical also, for play hours. The smock simply cut on kimona lines, with fullness smocked in across front and back, falls about four inches short of the knee, full bloomers to match showing below. These smocks are made of linen or of colored chambray, with the smocking done in silk in self tone. A very pretty little smock of this sort if of pin-checked green and white gingham with smocking in green silk. A broad-brimmed play hat of burnt straw has a band and streamers of green ribbon.

For the older girl, of seven to ten, or thereabout, there are play dresses, also made over bloomers, though the latter are not as obvious as in more juvenile models. A beach dress for a girl of eight is of natural colored linen crash, with loose blouse and short, circular skirt, the skirt buttoning all the way down at the front, like the blouse and attaching itself to the blouse by a single stitched seam instead of a belt. Elbow sleeves with cuffs, and a wide, black silk necktie knotted under the turned-back collar, finish this comfortable play dress which because of its simplicity and the combination of tan linen and black silk tie, has much smartness. The stout little girl looks best in a long-waisted frock with box pleats at front and back to give length of line, and she should wear her belt as loose as possible and carefully adjusted. [illegible] tured, is an excellent model for a stout child, though it will be most becoming also to the slim little maid. The scalloped tabs, depending from a shallow yoke overlap the top of the belt very slightly and are tacked in place, falling loosely between yoke and belt. The skirt has four very wide box pleats and the belt, with its points accentuated by rows of buttons also helps to suggest length of line and slenderness. Tabs, collar and cuffs are scalloped by hand and on the tabs are simple designs in eyelet embroidery. The waist buttons down the front and the little frock is easy to launder. White stockings and high topped buttoned boots of white washable kid emphasize the smartness of the costume.

Linen for Small Boy.

There is nothing so crisp and fresh and attractive for a little boy in summertime, as white linen, ironed to a satiny luster. It is a mistake to put too much color on a small boy; if he is a real boy he objects, quite properly to babyish pink and pale blue, sweet as his mamma may consider him in these delectable tints. Navy or Copenhagen blue, green or tan are his particular shades, with a dash of red now and then for variety. The sailor suit of white linen with blue trimming is correct according to this year's standards and is a most attractive little suit for a boy of from three to seven years. The loose middy tunic falls over well-pressed knee-breeches (more fashionable now than baggy bloomers) and the short sleeves should be cool and comfortable for play hours. The suit is built of white linen, with Copenhagen blue linen and white braid trimming. Socks with blue and white plaid tops show above buttoned shoes of white washable kid.

Natural crash is a splendid material for the small boy's everyday wear, since this material does not show soil traces as readily as pure white linen. Blue linen play suits with wide black ties are also good style. With these serviceable suits the little lad may wear tan shoes, preferably of the buttoned type, since buttoned footwear is not only smarter for little feet, but safer also. Untied shoe laces have caused more than one bad tumble with bruised knees or bumped noses and in these days when even the kiddies have to dodge the ubiquitous automobile during play hours, anything that may trip small feet at a dangerous moment is wisely avoided. White shoes "for occasions" of course, and mothers have taken a new lease o' life, with the arrival of washable kid which is so easy to keep spotless. A moment's use of a sponge and the little shoes are spic and span—no messing of the fingers or splashes of shoe cleaning mixture to be wiped from sole and heel. Very little people, of course, look cunningest in strap slippers, sturdy barefoot sandals for the morning, and smart patent leather buttoned strap slippers with white socks in the afternoon. The wider-toed these strap slippers are for the small boy, the smarter they will look. One model has almost square toes with extension welted soles and small pump bows across the toe.

Frocks for the Afternoon and for Parties.

Sweet enough for even seven years old on a summer day is the pictured garden party frock of ribbon-trimmed net, over a second frock of net to give an airy effect and with—if you please—a little hooped petticoat underneath to give flare. This petticoat is of lace and the hoop of featherbone tubing is run through a casing five inches from the lower edge. The gathered net bodice, edged with white ribbon like the skirt flounce, has a ruffle and the short sleeves have two net ruffles. In the picture this low-necked and short-sleeved bodice is worn over a gathered net guimpe with sleeves to the elbow, since the little maid is on her way to an out-of-door party. Do not overlook the tiny "button" roses in pale pink, which are set at even distances around the neck-frill, the sash and the heading of the skirt-flounce. Pink silk stockings and slippers of pink glazed kid, a pink hairbow and a rose flowered sunshade complete this party costume.

A smocked model of sage green pongee is shown in another picture. The sash with its long bows is of black velvet ribbon and the hand-tucked chemisette, collar and cuffs are of white batiste. The smocking is done in a lighter shade of green and in green of self-tone. Note the very deep hem on this French frock, the hemming done with silk exactly matching the material and all by hand. Though only part of the embroidered batiste frock, shown with a net-frilled bonnet, is visible, the dainty frock deserves special mention. The material is machine embroidered batiste and the frock is hand-made, with tiny tucks running down from the rounded neck. Very fine machine embroidery trims the elbow sleeves and there are three ruffles edged with this embroidery on the full skirt; very full and very short, showing bare legs above the knee, though pink silk socks and buttoned boots of white kid accompany this formal afternoon costume. The pink note appears also in the sash which is of wide flowered ribbon, and the charming hat, with pleated net frills tumbling over the face, has a crown of rose printed silk, and a shirred crown-band and pink rose, also of silk.

Motor Togs for Little Folk.

Even the babies nowadays have special motor apparel, and the modern youngster takes his rides in an automobile in as matter of fact a manner as he accepts all the other luxuries, unknown to his parents at a like tender age. Smart motor coats and dust coats, bonnets and even goggles are ready for the wee motorist; some of the coats knowing affairs of checked or plain worsted material with the new trimming of rows of silk stitching on collar, cuff and edge; others rainy-day garments of waterproof fabric. Among these are coats of a new fabric, silk on one side and with a waxed surface on the outer side that is entirely weatherproof. Coats of this material are made up with the silk side turned in, to take the place of an ordinary lining, and the outer side is pleated, strap-seamed, stitched and otherwise tailored in approved manner.

It is a happy youngster who possesses a slicker, sou'wester and rub*ber boots to be worn on rainy days in* the country. This outfit costs so little in comparison with the joy it affords—and the peace for mothers in getting restless children out-of-doors on a long rainy day—that it is well worth its price. Children should never be allowed to run about in canvas sneakers on wet days. For some reason or other the average child will take sneakers recklessly into puddles or soaking grass, where regulation buttoned shoes of leather would be more cherished. The shoes will also be covered with rubbers by a well-trained child, while the thin rubber sole of a sneaker seems to be regarded as protection against any amount of wet.

Another precaution advisable in summertime is the all-wool bathing suit which dries almost as soon as it comes out of the water and prevents chill. A very attractive model is pictured.

At Last, An Uplift Fetish

AFTER successive seasons in which grinning Billikens, superstitious swastikas, bow-legged Brownies and pudgy Kewpies have followed each other as fad fetish for every mantelpiece and den the land over, one welcomes with real delight the beautiful little statuette called the "Good Fairy" whose outstretched arms with open palms are supposed to be scattering joy. Joy, itself, speaks in the lightly poised figure and in the smile on the winning little face of the good fairy. The statuette, which retails for a dollar, is expressive of happiness and love and represents an artist's conception of the child, "Jewel," in Clara Louise Burnham's delightful book.

PORCH SETS OF STRIPED LINEN.

VERY smart for the porch are table and pillow covers of black and white striped linen, embroidered with red and green apples in bright color. A porch of unusual attractiveness floored with red tiles and furnished with black wicker has a black and white cretonne set of this sort, including a scarf-shaped table cover, three pillows for the wicker settee and a deep bag for needlework which hangs on a chair-arm and adds its note of color and harmony. The black and white covers and bag are bordered with plain black linen and in the center of each piece is a circular design of apples and leaves, done with bright red and green cotton.

CROCHET CANDLE SHADES.

FILET crochet candle shades are very dainty for the summer dinner-table, over pale green or pink silk linings. The crocheted shades are easy to make and the work goes quickly. A fringe of long tassels made of the crochet cotton, adds to the effect.

Fans and Finishing Touches

A FAN can be made the supreme note of interest in an evening costume; if its possessor knows the art of using it to express her personality. There are women born with this art of the fan—and one may add, the parasol—and these need no lessons from coquetry. But even if one knows not how to express allure, excitement, despondency, indignation, amazement, deprecation and other little emotions of flirtation by the flicker of a fan, the fan itself may add a vast elegance and distinction to one's costume.

At an important June commencement the members of the faculty and the trustees, with their womenfolk, occupied seats on the platform, behind the speakers of the evening. Rows and rows of well-dressed folk there were, the women in more or less brilliant evening toilettes; but the conspicuous thing on that platform was no special gown, no particular jewel; it was a huge, beautiful ostrich feather fan shading from sapphire blue at the tip to deep gold at the base, and as it swayed gently to and fro one could overhear whispers in the audience:

"What a wonderful fan!"

"I wonder who the woman is with the fan."

"He sits on the right—five from the lady with the fan."

It takes a woman of dignity and presence, however, to carry off successfully the amount of dignity lent by such a fan. No debutante could manage it; for her are gay little twinkling fans of spangled gauze or of demure white net and amber, or ostrich—if she must have a feather a long handle of imitation ivory, with a bracelet-ring at the end so that the fan may swing from her arm during the dance.

The fan of uncurled ostrich is smartest now, and still smarter when shaded from tip to base.

These non-closing ostrich fans are comparatively a new idea. Some of them are very beautiful. Nine fronds of pale pink ostrich mounted on a long, mother-of-pearl stick, the whole measuring almost three-quarters of a yard high—and you pay about twenty dollars for the dainty trifle to match a pink evening frock. An all-white fan with five feathers and a stick of imitation ivory with bracelet end; this may be had for about ten dollars. A black and white hackle feather fan with handle of crystal inset with rhinestones; a long, slim fan of three uncurled ostrich feathers with a tortoise-shell stick set with turquoises—either of these for about twenty dollars.

feathers mounted on tortoise shell or mother-of-pearl stick. These come in many sizes, at prices from twenty to a hundred dollars. Small feather fans with bone sticks may be had as low as five dollars but there is no distinction in these cheap affairs—much better to choose a spangled gauze model which is distinctive at the price. Very beautiful is a folding fan of pale tan feathers, curled over at the tips, with sticks of imitation amber; equally beautiful a fan of pale lavender plumage with sticks of gray crystal set with rhinestones. For the dowager is a dignified fan of black ostrich with amber sticks; for a youthful widow a rather small, folding fan of spiky, uncurled black ostrich with jet sticks. Long wing fans of eagle feathers are stiff rather than graceful, but are considered extremely smart. The hackle fans which have elongated "whips" waving from the center are smart also, but the waving antennae will be very apt to drive an escort into frenzy (or a husband into fury) by tickling his ears and nose.

Duchesse and rose point fans with mother-of-pearl sticks are very popular as bridal gifts, but there is not a great deal of artistic value in such a fan, as far as the costume is concerned. The dainty trifle bespeaks its costliness but that is about all—and it is easily broken and expensive to mend. A pretty little fan for summer dances is of white net, with two frills of black ribbon around the top sprinkled with tiny rhinestones. The sticks are of amber. For the black costume there is a dainty black fan on amber sticks and around the upper edge a long curve of tiny pink roses. One handsome feather fan is of split, curled ostrich, the fronds overlapping closely on the amber sticks. This fan is in shades of yellow, from palest corn color to quite a deep orange. Another of uncurled ostrich is shaded in a different manner, each separate plume shading from pale pink at the tip to deep rose at the base. The sticks are of amber.

A very satisfactory theatre bag was carried with the yellow fan mentioned above and the bag is of deep yellow silk, a heavy faille silk, with lining of pale corn-colored moire silk. In compartments inside the bag are opera glasses, fan, smelling-salts flask and memo. book, as well as a good sized mirror. Deep in the bottom of the silk bag may be tucked away vanity belongings and gloves. The huge silk tassel which swings from the bottom adds much to the elegance and grace of this handsome theatre and restaurant belonging.

For the theatre also is a bird of paradise bag, made of yellow faffeta printed with birds of paradise in gorgeous hues. This gay bag is gold-mounted and has the usual fittings within. Theatre bags of Chinese brocade are very popular and one of these bags may be made at home without much difficulty. The important thing is to secure a really good bit of hand-embroidery, and for this one may browse around for days among Oriental shops. Such a bag should be lined with silk of an odd color, like apricot or coral, or some pale shade of yellow; and should be drawn up on massive gold cords.

Costly trifles which make the evening costume perfect; a feather fan, pins

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, JULY 10, 1916.

PREVENT THIS MALADY AND YOU WON'T HAVE TO CURE IT.

Although Plainfielders to date have been given no occasion for alarm the old maxim, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," still holds good and every effort should be made to prevent the appearance of even a single case of infantile paralysis in this city or its adjacent suburbs. Because of the insidious nature of the malady the health boards of New York and other big cities have seen fit to appropriate thousands of dollars to stamp it out but are meeting with only mediocre success. Every precaution should be taken by individuals and municipalities to check its spread and the slightest suspicion of its appearance should be reported immediately to the health authorities. Parents should maintain a strict watch on children and a physician should be summoned as soon as any unusual symptoms of illness show themselves. The disease may develop with a slight fever, with a bowel affection, with stiffness of the neck or with a seemingly slight cold. The ailment has been known to health authorities since 1840, but up to now research workers have been unable to locate the germ. Bear in mind that a single case may spread the malady over the whole city area and if you note startling symptoms in neighbors' children or your own do not delay in reporting it to the proper source.

PLAINFIELD MAY YET BE "DETROIT OF THE EAST"

That Plainfield may yet become the "Detroit of the East" is the opinion cherished by many prominent civic workers who are today interested in bringing an automobile manufacturing concern to this city. The fact that this firm of manufacturers has received flattering offers from cities in other parts of New Jersey, America and abroad to locate within their limits is sufficient proof that it has a proposition of more than ordinary merit to put on the market. Plainfield today has one concern which is supplying most of the trucks being used by the Allies in foreign warfare and several other local firms are producing important assets to automobile making. Another big factory is in the course of construction and with the addition of the new candidate for local settling this city would at least rival the great Detroit. Certainly the automobile world could not get along without us and it would not be many years before other concerns would wake up to the advantages offered by establishing businesses of this nature in a city twenty-four miles from New York and with assets that go to make up the ideal automobile center.

TAXI LINE AT THE DEPOT GROWS EACH DAY.

How many taxi cab licenses will be issued before our City Fathers adopt a limit mark? This is a question that is interesting those concerned in regulating traffic conditions at the North Avenue depot stand. Already there is a sufficient number of cabbies possessed of the necessary credentials to occupy every inch of space allotted for a hack line and the licensing continues on. Is the city going to keep on issuing licenses until there are enough cars to form a line on both sides of North avenue between Park and Watchung avenues? Unless some limit is established in the very near future this will inevitably result. At this particular time of the year when hundreds of Plainfielders prefer taxi riding to pedestrianism, chauffeurs hopeful of some day becoming auto service magnates make their appearance in big numbers and while the licensing process is rigid in Plainfield it is not strict enough to hold the number down to a minimum for convenience and traffic betterment at the depot.

SHOWER BATHS FOR FACTORY EMPLOYES.

Several Plainfield factories have installed an innovation this spring in the way of shower baths for the use of their mechanics. These are welcome in winter or summer and the concerns are in all probability getting more general advertising through the shower bath idea than any one thing that has ever been attempted here. What is more invigorating to the tired, grease-covered shop hand than hot or cold water made convenient for their use in this manner? It would be well for every local shop to adopt the scheme for the results will soon be forthcoming in the way of better service from the employed force and a better relationship between capital and labor. Little things like this are appreciated by the class of men who work in factories and many of them do not have the proper facilities at home for ridding themselves of the grime and dirt acquired during a day's work in a machine shop.

SOLDIERS IN FOR MONTHS OF SERVICE AT THE BORDER.

Those interested in "husband-father" soldiers or other relatives now doing service for Uncle Sam at the Mexican border should not pin faith in the belief that the men will return to Plainfield before November. Present conditions indicate that the guardsmen from New Jersey will be kept in Arizona, Texas or other frontier points until after election, at least, and the government may see fit to employ the forces for a straight stretch of eighteen months. Just how many Plainfielders will take advantage of the piece of legislation allowing soldiers with families dependent upon them to return home if given the opportunity remains to be seen, but it is safe to conclude that this city will maintain its full quota in the West as long as Uncle Sam deems it necessary to keep a patrol.

Mayor "Bill" Smalley has declined to enter the Assembly race because his "mayoring" in North Plainfield requires all the time he can find to devote to it. His fellow citizens probably know better than anyone else the amount of work with which he has been confronted since election and his constituents should accept with good grace his refusal to jeopardize municipal matters by dabbling in State politics.

Credit is due Police Chief Kiely and his assistants for the efficient manner in which the nest of scheming scoundrels who planned and executed the Netherwood depot robbery have been rounded up. The net of evidence has been drawn tight and Chief Kiely is firm in the belief that he has the right parties together with plenty of iron-clad evidence to insure their conviction.

A metropolitan newspaper has offered a $100 reward for the capture of the man-eating shark that snipped off a bather's legs at Spring Lake one day last week. Nothing is said about identification but it's practically certain that this finned murderer will not betray itself by finger prints left on the victim's body.

On the Spur of the Moment

by Roy K. Moulton

The Fat Man's Soliloquoy.

That's right, laugh,
Laugh loud and long,
You long, lean, lank, attenuated specimen of humanity,
Who cannot cast a shadow
And who shiver to death in the winter
And regard us fat folks then with keenest envy.
Laugh, doggone you, laugh!
Have a good time;
Crack your ribs.
It's your turn now—
Go ahead.
Give us the equine ha-ha!
Laugh, doggone you,
Laugh!

Laugh, while you can;
Chuckle, grin, giggle.
Point your long bony finger at the upholstered frame
And smile at this all too solid flesh.
Your period of merriment is brief.
Then will come the north wind.
Crackling around your sylph-like frame,
Beating a tattoo upon your spare-ribs;
And your knees will rattle,
Even as the end man's bones,
And you will shiver
Like unto the aspen.
Then, doggone you,
We'll laugh.

Uncle Abner

When I see a feller with a feather in his hat I realize that nature makes a mistake once in a while and gets the sexes mixed.

There ain't much use in spending good money traveling after a feller has seen all of the moving picter shows.

I never heard of a pig that would chew tobacker or drink whiskey.

It ain't no place for an innocent bystander when a woman gets to swattin' flies with a broom.

Reginald Hickey is away to college, gettin' a liberal education and his father is stayin' around home gettin' an education in liberality.

It doesn't make much difference how much money a feller has got, just so he has got plenty of it, and a man doesn't have to live to be 150 years old to find that out, either.

Oh, Joy.

I'm glad I ain't no millionaire,
Fer I kin trot 'round anywhere
And do just what I bloomin' please;
And when I'm takin' of my ease,
No interviewers bother me
And write more than they really see.
They don't hang 'round and stare and gape
And twist my doings out of shape.
When I go out and buy some pills
They do not diagnose my ills,
And say that I have lived too fast
And fake up doin's of my past.
They do not come with leap and bound
Each time I turn around,
And pry into my private life,
And tell about my early strife
To win Dame Fortune's gladsome smile,
In headlines you can read a mile.
I'm quite content just as I am
As happy as the storied clam.
The wrestling match I have with Fate
Appeals to me. It's simply great.
I've heard that idleness is crime,
So I keep workin' all the time,
And so you see I do not care
Because I'm not a millionaire.
For all philosophies forbid,
It wouldn't matter if I did.

- Proctor's Theatre -

William S. Hart, the favorite Triangle portrayer of powerful emotional roles, appears today at Proctors' in one of his strongest pictures entitled "The Primal Lure," which was adapted by J. G. Hawks, of the Ince staff of photodramatists, from Vingie E. Roe's novel of the same name. The problem in this Triangle play asks the question, "Can a woman find that she still loves a man who has wrongly accused and publicly humiliated her, when she discovers that the man really believed her not guilty?" In far off Alaska someone had W. S. Hart's account book, when the girl who loved him tried to slip in and present him with a gift he mistook her for the thief and threw her into prison. It nearly ruined their happiness and made them lose their lives, but in the end love won. "The Primal Lure" has many thrilling scenes as you watch the terrible fight under the water for life, the attempted burning at the stake and the assault of the Indians. Other features today include an uproariously funny Keystone comedy entitled "The Love Comet," and the 10th epicode of "The Mysteries of Myra." Tomorrow Douglas Fairbanks is starred in his latest picture, "Reggie Mixes In," which more than sustains this popular favorite's previous reputation. It is a comedy-drama with an interesting story, very unusual and exciting episodes, and a love interest that is clean and appealing. This Fairbanks feature will gladden the hearts of the film fans who like red-blooded, vigorous drama and clean amusing comedy of the Fairbanks-Triangle brand. A Keystone comedy is also on the program tomorrow as well as the 5th episode of "The Secret of the Submarine."

An extraordinary attraction today, Tuesday and Wednesday is the presentation of exclusive pictures obtained during the encampment of Troop D, of Plainfield, at the mobilization camp at Sea Girt. Numerous intersting pictures were obtained by a special camera man hired by the Proctor management, and a big treat is in store for all local residents when these pictures are flashed upon the screen.

"FARMER JIM" MARTINE TO RESCUE WHEN SENATE TRIES TO STOP FREE SEED PRIVILEGE

Stop the free distribution of seeds by Congressmen and Senators? Never! At least not while the Hon. James E. Martine, Plainfield's Farmer Orator, has a voice in the affairs of the United States Senate.

Last week some of those in the Senate who have wandered from the soil and have lost the common touch attempted to save the nation $500,000 by stopping seed distribution. "Farmer Jim" came to the rescue and the following interesting dialogue resulted on the floor of the Senate:

Mr. Martine.—"Mr. President, I have always believed that the make-up of the people of the United States was much the same in honesty of purpose the country over; and I can not understand how there can be such a wide difference between the farmers of Iowa and New Jersey. The Senator says the farmers of Iowa, if I may judge from the articles which he has read from Iowa and Kansas papers, do not want free seed; that it is the same old seed.

"I will say that from the State of New Jersey I have received no protest from any farmer or from any individual, whatever his occupation may be, against receiving free seeds; but, on the contrary, I have received very many earnest solicitations for seeds, and I have received very many letters speaking most approvingly of the results obtained from planting the seeds which were sent in other years. For one, I believe that they are of infinite advantage. They are not all the same old seeds, as one of the articles read has intimated. The Agricultural Department has tested the seeds in almost every, if not in every instance; they know the character of them, and they know the reasonable probability of their germination. Of course, everything depends upon climatic conditions and soil. A man could not sow them into the middle of a macadamized road and expect them to germinate and be fruitful; but, under ordinary care, I assert that the intimation made by the Senator, and contained in these articles is far from the truth.

"The Senator says the free seed distribution costs a quarter of a million dollars or more every year, and doubtless it does. There is no question about that; but at the same time the Senator has no way of computing the benefits that come from it. I do not believe the Senator will stand in his place and say that this is an absolute loss, that no benefit has come to the country from the distribution of seeds. I stated last year, and I stay again, that in very many instances in my own lifetime and in my own experience seeds that were sent from the Agricultural Department have been of real and positive benefit; and the ridiculous little articles that some newspaper man may write in the little narrow corner of his back office in Kansas or in Nebraska, ridiculous stories about selling one's birthright for a mess of pottage, and things of that kind, do not apeal to the people of the State in which I live.

"Now, in response to the idea that nobody wants seeds——"

Mr. Kenyon.—"Is the Senator through with his question?"

Mr. Martine (continuing.)—"I have said that everybody wants seeds, and I regret very much to see the Senator take the position that he does.

"I find here on page 46——"

Mr. Kenyon.—Will the Senator let me know when he is through the question?"

Mr. Martine.—"Well, it is a long propositon (laughter), this matter of agriculture; and the Senator has been a good while promulgating his theory and his ideas against these appropriations on the ground that the farmers laugh at us and think we are but fools and that we are trying to capture their votes with a few seeds, and they would scout the proposition that they are in any way influenced by their distribution.

"If I may be permitted, I find here on page 46——"

Mr. Kenyon.—"What part of the question is this, now?"

Mr. Martin.—"I beg pardon."

Mr. Kenyon.—"The Senator rose to ask me a question I should just like to keep the run of it. What part of the question is the Senator now propounding?"

Mr. Martine.—"The question is the general proposition of expending public moneys for the benefit of the farmer, if we choose, and I am speaking apropos of that.

"I find here on page 46, beginning at line 16, an item in regard to which I hear no protest from the Senator, for investigating the preparation for market, handling, grading, packing, and so forth, of poultry and eggs. The Senator might say that that was simply spending the public money for no particular avail; but all this information is of infinite value to the farmer.

"I do not understand why the Senator early in the session inveighed against the appropriations for all the little water channels of our country, our harbors, and little rivulets for the purpose of improving them, and now he has gotten off on the other tack, to attack everything that shall affect the farmer in the matter of seeds. I think he is most unfortunate in his course. With the Senator's ordinarily generous, genial, and lovable type of mind, he has utterly gone astray, it seems to me, this morning."

Scissors Stuff

THE FREE SEED LOTTERY.

With Senator Martine of New Jersey voting a resounding "No," the United States Senate on Monday struck out of the agricultural appropriation bill the item providing for the free distribution of seeds by Congressmen. Several times in recent years the virtuous Senate has taken similar action, only to have its good intentions thwarted by a stubborn and rebellious House when representatives of the two bodies met in conference committee.

In the game of give-and-take between the conferees the Senate has always found it necessary to smother its convictions on this subject, and there is a wellfounded suspicion that its seeming opposition to the free seed graft has been adopted largely for trading purposes. It is not beyond the bounds of the imagination that if the House had gone on record against free seeds the Senate would have stood like a rock in upholding the duty of a paternal government to provide its citizens with squash and marigold seeds without money and without price.

At any rate, it was too much to expect that Senator Martine, a farmer himself and devoted to the interests of the soil-tillers, should vote to take away this priceless boon. Much of the spice of life would be lost to city backyard farmers if they were deprived of the excitement of watching the sprouting of their government-provided seeds and speculating on whether the packet labeled "radishes" would turn out cauliflowers or hollyhocks. Free seeds may not add much to the agricultural wealth of the country, but they add a lot to the joy of those who plant them. It is the nearest thing to legalized gambling since the laws abolished lotteries and betting on horse races.—Newark Evening News.

GLASS OF WATER BEFORE YOU EAT ANY BREAKFAST

Wash poison from system each morning and feel fresh as a daisy.

Every day you clean the house you live in to get rid of the dust and dirt which collected through the previous day. Your body, the house your soul live in, also becomes filled up each twenty-four hours with all manner of filth and poison. If only every man and woman could realize the wonders of drinking phosphated hot water, what a gratifying change would take place.

Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

Everyone, whether sick or well, should drink each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do. —Adv.

Three Scarlet Poppies Floated on the Water.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—How a Wicked Queen Cast a Spell.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

AFTER Jack and Evelyn finished supper daddy told them this bedtime story: "Once a wicked queen turned a king against his eleven sons and his daughter Elise. The young princes she turned into eleven swans and Elise she boarded with some peasants in the country. The understanding was that when Elise became fifteen she could go home to live in the castle. But when the queen saw how beautiful she was her heart was filled with hatred.

"The queen would gladly, then and there, have turned Elise into a swan like her brothers, but she did not dare, for the king was very eager to see his daughter.

"Now, early every morning the queen always went to her bath, which was built of marble and adorned with soft cushions and beautiful carpets. Soon as she got there the day her stepdaughter came home she took three toads and kissed them, saying to the first, 'Sit upon Elise's head when she comes to the bath, so that she may become sluggish like yourself.' To the second she said, 'That Elise may become ugly like you, so her father won't know her, sit upon her heart.' 'Let an evil spirit become a burden to her,' said the queen to the third toad.

"Then the queen put the three toads in the bath water, and immediately a green tinge came over it. She called Elise, undressed her and made her step into the bath. When the child ducked under the water one of the toads got among her hair, another got on her forehead and the third on her chest. But when she stood up three scarlet poppies floated upon the water. If the toads had not been poisonous and kissed by the sorceress queen they would have been changed into crimson roses. But they had changed into flowers because for one moment they had rested upon Elise's head and heart. She was far too good and sweet a child for sorcery to have any power over her.

"When the wicked queen saw this she rubbed Elise all over with walnut juice and smeared her pretty face with some horrid smelling salve. She also matted Elise's beautiful hair, so that it was impossible to know her. When her father, the king, saw her he was disappointed and horrified. He said he did not want such an ugly daughter.

"In fact, nobody had anything kind to say to poor Elise on her first day home—nobody except the yard dog and the swallows. They were delighted to see her back, but they were only poor dumb animals, and their joy and opinion of Elise did not count for much with the king," daddy finished.

Marrying a Butterfly

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

Ethel's First Meal Is Not an Unqualified Success.

"Where is my new cook?" called Ralph Gordon as he entered the house at noon. The maid had gone that morning. There was no answer. The table was set for dinner, but everything was perfectly still. He passed through all the rooms, and in the kitchen sitting by the table with her head on her arm he found Ethel sobbing.

"Why, what is it, dear?" Ralph asked in great concern.

"Oh, my muffins are all spoiled. They are as heavy as lead, and did not rise at all," wailed the little cook, "and I burned my arm in three places getting the things out of the oven."

"Never mind, dear; better luck next time." Ralph was resolved not to let her be discouraged if he could help it.

"And the baked potatoes got done too soon, and are all shriveled up," continud the disconsolate young housekeeper.

"Then we had better eat them at once," was the cheerful response.

"But the meat is not cooked," sobbed the girl.

"Here, stop crying and we will cook it together." Ralph kissed the wet face and assisted her to her feet. "I'll cook the meat while you get the rest of the dinner on the table. Where is an apron?"

"I used to be the meat cook when the boys camped out," continued Ralph confidently.

Ethel tried to smile as she tied the apron around his waist, but the burns on her arm smarted and she gloomily thought how long the scars would show.

"This is a good steak Did you pick it out?" Ralph was trimming it deftly as he talked.

"No; I ordered it over the phone. I told the butcher to send me a good piece." Ethel peered into the oven and frowned at the escalloped tomatoes. "You take the dish out, Ralph. I am afraid I will burn myself again," she pleaded.

"All right. Let it stay till this meat is done." There was some flurried running about and finally the dinner was safely on the table. When Ethel poured the coffe Ralph was loud in its praise.

"Anybody can make good coffee with a percolator," she replied modestly.

"Indeed, that is not so. I have swallowed much abominable stuff called coffee made in a percolator. This is not a half bad dinner," he continued valiantly fighting her tendency to become discouraged.

"The meat is good, but you did that," was the hopeless answer. "I shall never be a cook."

"Oh, come Ethel." Ralph was losing patience. "You can do nothing if you feel that way. All you have to do is to say with determination, 'I will be a cook,' and half the battle is won, and the other half will be won with patience."

"It is such disagreeable work; I should be covered with burns all the time," was the peevish answer.

"Try forgetting yourself for once, and see if you cannot get some pleasure in the thought that you are helping your husband by being a real wife." Ethel stared as if listening to a foreign language. She said nothing as he kissed her good-bye and hurried away.

WILL DECIDE ON FUTURE OF CAMP

Boy Scout Council Will Hold An Important Meeting Tonight.

FUND OF $700 NEEDED

Recreation Center is An Ideal One and is Thoroughly Equipped for Promoting Interest of Scout Work.

Every Plainfielder who is interested in seeing the Boy Scout movement in this city continued in effective operation should be present at the July Boy Scout council meetting at the Public Library tonight, at which time plans will be perfected for maintaining the enterprise. The Council is face to face with the problem of continuing the new camp in Terrill Road without adequate funds.

Contributions to date include the following:

Special Biederwolf Collec's	$134.41
"A Friend"	70.00
C. W. McCutcheon	50.00
J. W. Gavett	5.00
Henry R. Hubbard Coll's	11.00
Frederick M. Genung Coll's	10.00
R. F. R. Huntsman	10.00
Champlain L. Riley	5.00
Dr. George T. Moore Coll's	10.50
	$305.41

A total of $700 is needed with which to carry on the work at the camp. An Eagle Scout has been brought on here from Richmond, Va., to be the campmaster for the year. There are two permanent wooden buildings at Camp Ackerman and a white camp street almost a city block in length. Besides the salaried campmaster there is a paid cook, so as to permit the boys to have as full a day as possible for the pursuit of scout activities. The camp has every modern convenience, including shower baths, library, telephone within fifty yards of the camp director's tent, mail, and daily delivery of supplies from this city. Perfectly sanitary arrangements are maintained and have been passed upon officially by Adjutant A. J. Littell of the State militia, who has made a study of camp sanitation for years. The swimming place is free from danger, clean and safe.

The purpose of this camp is to provide Plainfield boys with a suitable place within a five-cent trolley fare of their homes. The epidemic of infantile paralysis that is sweeping various States is making the Plainfield Boy Scout camp have an important role this summer because it is a camp designed for Plainfield Boy Scouts under the strict supervision of the local Boy Scout Council, of which Rev. N. W. Currie is a member.

This camp, at a cost of $3 a week, gives the boys of Plainfield all the advantages of tent life and scout training without the danger of contamination from the epidemic. Applications may be made direct to Commissioner A. V. Searing, Jr., telephone 758-J, or through any scoutmaster. The work of the camp this week includes pioneering under the direction of Eagle Scout Parater.

ACTIVITIES RESUMED AT THE Y. M. C. A.

Hikes, Outings, Socials and Bible Study Included in Summer Program.

Mr. Lynn, boys' work secretary, has returned from his vacation and will be in town all summer. Although scores of Plainfield boys are spending from two weeks to two months at the seashore or in the mountains, there are many more who will be right in Plainfield all through the hot weather.

Beginning this week, hikes and outings, socials and summer Bible study will be conducted every week for boys of all ages. All boys over 12 years old, who are members of local Sunday schools, and especially those boys who signed cards during the Biederwolf meetings, even though they may not belong to the Y. M. C. A., are invited to go on the hikes.

The first one, on Wednesday, will be a "Sermon-on-the-Mount Hike" for all boys between 12 and 14, leaving the "Y" at 9 o'clock, carrying lunch, and returning in time for a swim before supper.

Boys over 14 are invited to meet the same time on Friday, bringing lunch, bathing suit and ten cents, to go on a "Happy Hike" to Echo Lake.

The boy who works will not be overlooked while the good times are being passed around. An "Owl Social" is announced for Thursday night. Nobody knows just what it will be, but the owl is a wise old bird, and if the employed boys are as wise as they look, they will all be on hand.

For association members the swimming pool is a great attraction, particularly when the temperature tries to compete with Mexico. Several have learned to swim in the last two weeks and the water is entirely safe, with positively no sharks. Get in the swim.

PEROZZOLI-LONGO.

Miss Josephine Longo and Louis Perozzoli, both of the borough, were married in St. Joseph's church yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock, by the pastor, Rev. Father P. J. Hart. The couple were attended by Frank Longo and Miss Philomena Iannucci.

PROBASCO BIBLE CLASS CAMP FIRE

Members, Wives and Sweethearts Enjoy Outing at Washington Rock.

Members of the Probasco Bible class of the First Baptist church, their wives, sweethearts and other friends to the number of 140 enjoyed their first annual camp-fire Saturday night at Washington Rock. The affair was a great success due to the complete arrangements made by the committee in charge. The large auto trucks owned by J. D. Loizeaux and the Walter Scott Printing Press Company and one of the Suburban Transit Company's autos were used to convey the picnickers to and from the Rock.

When the guests arrived they found the grove brilliantly lighted with one hundred Japanese lanterns and long tables all set with an abundance of good things to eat, the menu including salad, sandwiches, olives, pickles, cake, ice cream and lemonade.

After the inner-man had been well filled, Earl Pierson, as president of the class, introduced the speakers which included Dr. Norman H. Probasco, Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, J. Henry Crane and James E. Church. Their remarks were timely and each one commented on the great good to be accomplished by the banding together of so many young men. At the conclusion of the speeches, several rounds of cheers were given. Everyone then gathered about a big campfire where they joined in singing popular songs under the leadership of Howard Parry. It was late when the party returned home, all agreeing that it was the best outing of the season. The affair was in charge of Earl Pierson, president of the class, and the following committee which worked hard to make it the success it was: Charles Loizeaux, Duncan Patterson, Fred Dixon, Daniel Randolph and Hamlet Luck.

TO GIVE "QUEEN ESTHER."

"Queen Esther," under the direction of Mrs. Charls S. Day, of New Market, will be given in the Park Avenue Baptist church tomorrow evening. This is the third time that this Biblical story has been given by practically the same cast, including Miss Etta Raybert as "Queen Esther." The entire presentation promises to be of a high calibre and an invitation is extended to all to attend.

PUBLIC LIBRARY STATION.

For use of the young people in the southern section of our city the Public Library will maintain a station at the Irving School during the months of July, August and September. The station opens tomorrow, Tuesday, morning at 9 o'clock, and will close at 10:30 a. m. Little childen as well as the young people have been provided for in the collection of books.

—Until you have canvassed the readers of this newspaper on the matter, do not decide whether or not this may be a "poor time to sell" that property.

DUNELLEN COULDN'T HOLD BIG ADVANTAGE

Netherwoods Came Through in Weird Session and Pounded Out a Win.

The league leading Netherwoods defeated Dunellen in a game marked by loose fielding and heavy hitting on Maurer Oval, Dunellen, Saturday afternoon by the score of 15-13. At the end of the third inning the Dunellens, who had forced two Netherwood twirlers to retire, were ahead by the count of 7 to 1. The unexpected happened, however, as in the next inning with two down the entire Dunellen team blew up and gave as wierd an exhibition of fielding as has been seen in these parts for sometime. The blowup started when Gunzelman, Dunellen's center fielder, dropped Johnson's fly after a short run, and the necessary out was not made until Johnson stepped to the plate for the second time and fanned. The score at the end of the merry-go-round was Netherwood 10, Dunellen 7, Manager Coughlin's boys having scored nine runs during the frame.

DUNELLEN KEEPS ON WINNING JUNIOR GAMES

The Dunellen A. C. defeated the Inner-Triangles of Plainfield on Leland Oval Saturday afternoon by the score of 7 to 1. To date this team has won nine games and lost only one. Maskell twirled a masterly game for Dunellen. He was only in trouble once. That was in the third inning when he had three men on bases and only one gone. He pulled himself out of this hole in great style striking out the next two batsmen.

CITY LEAGUE CONTESTS PRODUCE NO CHANGE

Race for Pennant Unaltered by Games Played on Saturday.

CITY LEAGUE STANDING.

	W.	L.	PC.
Netherwood	10	2	.833
T. A. B. S.	9	5	.642
Hopes	8	5	.615
Dunellen	5	6	.454
Baptists	4	8	.333
Farmers	3	10	.230

Saturday's Results.

T. A. B. S., 8; Farmers, 2.
Dunellen, 15; Netherwood, 13.
Hopes, 9; Baptists, 0.

In the league battles on Saturday the Netherwoods, coming up from the rear, slaughtered the Dunellen defense and had little trouble winning. The Tabs "toyed" with the Farmers and defeated them for the fourth straight time. Jack Denny was a puzzle to the Farmer hurlers and had them at his mercy at all stages of the game.

The Hopes and Baptists failed to stage their scheduled engagement and, inasmuch as Britt Martin has not officially announced his consent to a postponement, it is to be taken for granted that the Hopes got a 9 to 0 verdict.

LIVELY DISCUSSION RELATIVE TO AMATEUR AND PROFESSIONAL STANDING OF LEAGUE

Gathering of League Moguls Tonight—Players Claim to Have Inside "Dope"—Discuss Baptist Postponement.

There will be a City League session this evening and at that time some lively discussion relative to the amateur standing of several of the league players will occupy much of the time. At the last league gathering one of the managers announced the release of a certain player who had, previously, declared that he was through playing "for love." A representative of Hope Chapel then requested the released player to allow him to place his (the player's) name on the roster of the Hope Chapel club. Then, the trouble began. Baptists followers believed that there was some reason for the change in view of the fact that the player had remarked that he was through playing for nothing. Hope Chapel enthusiasts and authorities insist that they had no intention of paying the player and say that they can and will prove that contention at the meeting this evening.

Since this talk of "amateur" and "professional" playing has arisen, several baseball players and dozens of fans have remarked that two or three of the teams are paying their stellar talent. At least one player went so far as to remark that he would cite specific instances if need be. That's just what the league moguls want. They are looking for a chance to clear the decks and all that they ask is a "tip" in regards to where it is best to begin. One of the league heads has made it known that "if the 'amateur' standing of the City League has to give way to 'professionalism,'" he will desert the ship.

Every little thing will be decided this evening in the Daily Press office, where the managers of the various teams meet. Only managers or their personal representatives will be allowed at this meeting. Of course, those individual players who believe that they can enlighten others on the subject will be given a chance to talk a little.

JACK DENNY TEASES ALL BUT RANDOLPH

Abstainers Experience Little Trouble in Winning Over Farmers in Listless Game.

With Jack Denny hurling the kind of ball that made such twirlers as Walter Johnson and Harry Covaleski famous, the Tab flinger had an easy time with the Farmers on West End field Saturday, winning his game 8 to 2. Jack was a complete puzzle to every man with the exception of Randolph, who obtained the only three hits made by his team.

The game was listless, although it was not as uninteresting as the previous encounters the Farmers have had with the Tabs. Joe Morley, in the absence of Eddie Conshay, who seems to have deserted the ship, hurled the game. Joe did well enough and at times was able to fool the Teetbaler batters, but on the whole, he was unable to annex a victory.

Claude Hand had an off day in the field, while Frankie Lee, Benny Rosenson and Wall were right on top in the batting line.

NOTED TENNIS PLAYERS GIVE AN EXHIBITION

Willard E. Davis Defeats Lindsay Murray at Plainfield Country Club.

Willard E. Davis, who is the United States clay court champion, a title he won in Cleveland a short time ago, played Lindsay Murray, who like Davis is a Californian player of note, on the courts of the Plainfield Country Club Saturday. Davis defeated his opponent, 2-6, 1-6, 6-4, 7-5 and 6-3.

It has been only lately that these two Californians have played in the East, although Murray is now residing in Bayonne. Mr. Murray was accompanied to this city by his wife, a California girl, whom he married in May. Mr. and Mrs. Murray and Mr. Davis remained for dinner at the Country Club Saturday night. While there they were the guests of S. W. Merrihew, of this city.

OWYAMAC AND BARON ENTER JUNIOR MATINEE

Dr. Winter's Horses Registered Saturday But Did Not Enter Race.

Eight races, practically all of which brought about spirited competition and close finishes, marked the special matinee meeting of the Road Horse Association of New Jersey at the Weequahic Park track Saturday afternoon. It was the first time this season that professional and amateur drivers competed in the same events. The torrid weather and the vacation season had its effect on the attendance. There were about 2,000 on hand to see the races.

A dead heat between Bobby Moreland, driven by Bert Boylan, and Jessie Watts, who was guided by Ted Miller, Jr., was one of the features of the afternoon. It occurred in the second heat of the Class B trot after Bobby Moreland had won the first one.

"Owyamac" and "The Baron," owned by Dr. H. E. Winters of this city, were registered in Saturday's matinee, but did not enter. Dr. Winter stated this morning that while his horses were registered for all the matinees, they would probably not compete until the Junior Matinee, the latter part of this month.

MANY GOLFERS COMPETE IN SWEEPSTAKES EVENT

The only event at the Plainfield Country Club on Saturday was the weekly sweepstakes in which there were a number of entries. The leading scores follow:

E. A. Lyon, 83, 23—70; F. W. Wallace, 99, 27—72; L. S. Ayer, 107, 27—80; G. H. Hodges, 111, 27—84.

The customary weekly dinner-dance was enjoyed in the evening by a large number of members of the club. The house committee has decided to continue to hold these functions throughout July, owing to their popularity.

OPEN CHAMPIONSHIPS AT COUNTRY CLUB NARROW DOWN TO SEMI-FINAL ROUND

VanDeventer Brothers Among Semi-finals—Many "Love" Sets Feature Play—Californians Give Exhibition.

There was plenty of activity at the Plainfield Country Club on Saturday, when the annual open tennis championships were held. In addition to these, there was an interesting match play between Willard E. Davis and Lindsay Murray, the Californians, the former winning.

In the first round of the championship play, Robert De Graff defeated T. M. Day, 4-6, 6-0, 6-3; T. M. Day, 3d, defeated William Garrigues, 6-1, 6-1; A. D. Beers defeated C. A. King, 6-1, 6-0; William Barlow, Jr., defeated S. W. Merrihew, 6-4, 6-3; M. H. Long defeated C. M. Barber, 6-0, 3-6, 6-0; R. L. Carter defeated T. A. Gavett, Jr., 6-1, 6-2; John Uhler defeated H. Fosterley by default; L. Van Deventer defeated Clarence Garrigues, 6-1, 6-0.

Second round—Phillip Van Deventer defeated James R. Blake by default; E. M. Daniel, 2d, defeated Arthur Hassell, 6-3, 6-3; T. M. Day, 3d, defeated Robert De Graff by default; R. L. Carter defeated M. H. Long, 6-2, 6-3; L. Van Deventer defeated John Uhler, 6-1, 7-5; Rodman Parvin defeated Harold Brown by default; Weston Williams defeated Horace Earle, 6-4, 6-3.

Third round—Phillip Van Deventer defeated E. M. Daniel, 2d, 6-1, 6-2; L. Van Deventer defeated R. L. Carter, 7-5, 7-5; Weston Williams defeated Rodman Parvin, 6-4, 0-6, 6-2.

The Van De Venter brothers will oppose each other in the semi finals. In this round A. D. Beers, William Barlow, T. M. Day, 3d, and Weston Williams will also compete.

GROUND TOO TOUGH FOR RALPH RUNYON

Running High Jump Held But Results Far Below Average Mark.

Little blond-haired Lesley Weinhold, three and a half years old and scarcely bigger than a pint of peanuts, and big Pat McDonald, that mountain of a man, 340 pounds of beef and bone, who guards the traffic at Broadway and Forty-third street when he isn't wrecking world's weight hurling records, shared the honors in the annual athletic carnival of the Jersey City Police Department yesterday. The games, the proceeds of which were set aside for the widows and orphans of the Jersey coppers killed in performance of duty, were staged at West Side Park.

Ralph Runyon, of this city, was entered in the running high jump but did not compete owing to the hardened condition of the ground. Ralph watched the proceedings from the side-lines. The result of the running high jump was as follows:

Won by Frank Lauterborn, Bronx Church House, 5 inches, actual jump 5 feet 6 inches; A. R. Rodriguez, Bronx Church House, 3 inches, 5 feet 10 inches, second; G. Simon, Mohawk A. C., 5 inches, 5 feet 5 inches, third.

WOMEN'S HANDICAP EVENT FEATURE AT HYDEWOOD

In the weekly competition for the President's cup at the Hydewood Golf Club on Saturday, H. E. Blazier scored three points, Harry H. Woodland two points, while C. J. Hand, R. V. Carpenter and W. H. Nischwitz, who tied for third place, each received one-third of a point.

Another interesting event of the day was a women's handicap competition, 9 holes. This was won by Miss May S. Shreve with a net score of 42. The three leading scores were as follows:

Miss May S. Shreve, 59, 17-42; Mrs. Walter Whitehead, 66, 17-49; Miss Tea Eyck, 68, 17-51.

An approaching and putting contest was won by Miss A. Wright on the play-off of a tie with Miss Shreve.

Here's to a Safe and Sane Fourth

Insist on having a safe and sane Fourth for the children—no dangerous fire crackers, rockets or matches. Be equally particular that the youngsters eat only "safe and sane" ice cream.

This Fourth make it yourself in one of the famous Alaska Freezers. It is the open-spoon dasher in these freezers, whipping air into every particle of the cream, which makes ice cream frozen in Alaska Freezers so wonderfully delicate and smooth.

And, making it yourself, you will have the satisfaction of knowing that it is absolutely pure.

An Alaska Freezer will last a lifetime. But be sure it is an Alaska.

We also have on hand the White Mountain and North Star Freezers.

DISGRUNTLED CARRANZA FORCES JOIN VILLA; REPORTED TO BE PROCEEDING NORTH TO BORDER

GENERAL PERSHING WARNED TO MAKE READY FOR ATTACK AND AMERICAN TROOPS WILL GET DOWN TO RIGOROUS WORK.

BANDIT LEADER IN SADDLE REASSURES PEOPLE

Heads Force of 2,000—Carranza Men Mutiny and Hasten to Outlaw Lines—Official Report Published in Government Paper Says That Villa Appeared During Looting of Jimenez—Tells of the Atrocities of Villista Followers.

(By Telegraph to the Daily Press)

El Paso, July 11.—Reports here today indicate that 2,000 of Carranza's men have revolted and are believed to be fleeing southward to join Villa. Information from reliable sources foretells a clash between Villa forces and Pershing's men. The bandits are said to be hurrying north to the international boundary, augmented by the disgruntled Carranza deserters. If this is true the conditions are serious and trouble between this country and Mexico cannot be averted.

Villa has issued a proclamation calling upon all former Villistas to join his army as he is gathering forces to go against the Gringoes (Americans) in connection with his plan to regain a foothold in Mexico and reclaim the border country of Texas, New Mexico and Arizona.

The bandit general believes that "all true Mexicans want to see the Americans routed" and in his opinion the Carranza forces will aid his campaign rather than oppose it.

Precautionary measures are being taken by General Pershing and the troops guarding the border have been warned to keep a careful vigil. Villa is receiving heavy reinforcements in the Parral country, advices say, and that section is strongly Villista. The whole population is said to be rejoicing over the return of the bandits and say that Villa will strike direct for the American line.

Villa has told the people that he has gathered sufficient troops to drive Pershing out and that he will attack the American general at his weakest point. Just where this is probably will be determined only by Villa.

Villa, as full of fight as ever, has 2,000 troops with him in Durango. This information is contained in an official message to Gen. Francisco Gonzales, Carranza's commander in Juarez. However, it does not mention Villa by name, reporting that Contreras led the Jiminez fight. The report said Contreras had not given battle Saturday to Gen. Domingo Arrieta at Las Nievas, but was retreating along the Rio Florido, pursued by 3,500 troops under Gen. Matias Ramos, nephew of the general killed by Villa at Corral ranch a week ago.

The first direct assertion that Villa himself had left the mud baths on the Rio Florido and taken the field in person was contained in copies of the Government organ, La Democrata, at Chihuahua City which arrived here today. The statement was allowed to be printed in the paper, though officially the Carranza officials, from the First Chief down, have contended Villa was dead.

The paper says Villa appeared with the rebels during the looting of Jimneze, that he walked on crutches and seemed badly crippled in the legs. The paper added that all the Carranza civil officials in Jimenez were executed following the seizure of the town.

ALLIES BELITTLE FEAT OF U-BOAT

But British and French Prepare to Block Deutschland's Return Voyage.

UNLOADING IS PLANNED

No Objection Likely From United States Government to Stripping Submersible of Its Cargo—Official Inspection Today Matter of Form.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press)

Washington, July 11.—Five hundred motorboats armed with three-inch guns and a stupendous cordon of warships are preparing to block the return voyage of the German submarine Deutschland in the English Channel, this despite the despatches belittling the feat by the British, which the Germans performed in sending the sea monster to this country. All available British water craft will be pressed into service, it was learned today, to prevent the submarine's return to German waters. More English and French submarine catchers have been dispatched to the Virgina capes, many of these having come originally from the United States.

It is not known whether England is sending these boats under their own power or dispatching them on other ships, but it is certain that long before the Deutschland is ready to start back there will be a long line of hostile vessels off Chesepeake Bay.

The official status of the German submarine in our waters will be determined following the investigation being made today by Captain Charles F. Hughes, of the General Board of the United States Navy. British and French officials have called the attention of the United States government to the arrival of the Deutschland at Baltimore, but their statement did

EMPLOYES WHO ENLIST TO GET FULL SALARY

Plainfield-Union Water Co. Will Also Hold Positions for Those in Service.

The directors of the Plainfield-Union Water Company, at a meeting this morning voted to pay full salary to any of its employes who have or will enlist in the military service for duty on the Mexican border, and to hold their positions open for them upon their discharge from such service.

Only recently the company voted to allow any of its employes to go to Plattsburg this summer for military training, paying their salaries while away and also allowing them sufficient funds with which to purchase entire equipment. This action on the part of the company is in line with that taken by hundreds of concerns throughout the Metropolitan district.

COST JOSEPH MORLEY $15 TO BREAK A MAN'S NOSE

Joseph Morley, a machinist of South Plainfield, was fined $15 by Justice P. F. Kaine, of that place, when he was arraigned before the latter last night on a charge of assault, preferred by Charles Berisford, also a resident of South Plainfield. The assault took place Fourth of July afternoon, when Mr. Berisford met his assailant while he was on his way to Plainfield. According to the testimony of the complainant the defendant struck him with sufficient force to break his nose. He claimed that the attack was unwarranted.

It was brought out at the hearing that there had been some differences between the two men, and Morley is said to hav accused Berisford of unhitching his horse on one occasion. The former was represented by J. Henry Crane, of the firm of DeMeza & Crane, while John P. Owens was counsel for the defendant. After hearing all the evidence, Justice Kaine imposed a fine of $15 on Morley.

ANTI-SUFFRAGISTS PLAN FOR AN ACTIVE SEASON

Among the many members of the New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage who met at the summer headquarters at Spring Lake, yesterday, the home of Mrs. E. Yard Breese, the State president, were the following from this city: Mrs. Sherman B. Joost and Mrs. J. C. Moore.

The gathering was an all day conference and was held for the purpose of launching an entertainment in Spring Lake in the near future to open up the summer campaign. Mrs. Breese said that anti-suffragists would show the usual activity this summer and that the indications were for quite as lively a movement as attended some of the skirmishes last season.

CITY OFFICIALS IN CONFERENCE

Discuss Ways and Means to Prevent Development of Infantile Paralysis Here.

NO CASES REPORTED

All Unnecessary Gatherings of Children Will Be Discouraged, as Well as Their Admission to Public Places of Amusement.

A special meeting of the Board of Health was held in the office of the board last evening, to which the Mayor and other city officials were invited. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss the epidemic of infantile paralysis and its possible bearing on Plainfield, in order that further steps might be taken to prevent, if possible the introduction of the disease into the community.

Dr. C. F. Lufburrow, as acting president, outlined the procedure of the board, and all agreed that every known precaution should be taken. So little is known of the origin, method of transmission and treatment of the disease which often manifests itself without premonitory symptoms, that the precautionary means usual in cases of communicable diseases, may prove of little avail. However, all felt the responsibility of doing everything possible.

Inasmuch as the disease affects children in a very large majority of cases, it was thought wise to discourage all unnecessary gatherings of children, and to this end, the superintendents of Sunday schools have been asked to close their schools to children under sixteen years, and to abandon their plans for excursions; the managers of the moving picture theatres and the carnival have been requested to refuse admission to children; and the ones in charge of Camp Endeavor will also be asked to cooperate, for although this lies outside of the city's jurisdiction, children coming from Elizabeth and other points in Union county, pass through Plainfield en route, and Plainfield children are entertained at the camp.

The advisability of requesting that the playgrounds be closed was discussed, but as they afford a means of exercise in the open air, it seemed unnecessary unless a case of infantile paralysis should appear in the community.

Whenever information is received at the Board of Health office that children from New York or Brooklyn have come to Plainfield, investigation is made and the household kept under observation. Not only is information of this kind welcomed, but it was the sense of the meeting last evening that the public be requested to report the names, residence and place of destination of all children coming from out-of-town. Hotel and boarding house proprietors, landlords and all citizens are asked to assist.

The sanitary regulations are to be vigorously enforced and in this work the health department will have the assistance of the police. Violators will be hailed into court and dealt with according to law.

All other city departments, the Charity Organization and Visiting Nurse Association will co-operate and Scout Master Beals has offered the services of the Boy Scouts. In a time like the present, the truth of the oft-repeated statement that "there is no department of the city's government so dependent on the co-operation of the people as the department of health" is more than ever in evi- to see that their premises are kept clean and that their children are not permitted to mingle with other children.

MRS. CARL PFENDER DIES IN 79TH YEAR

Mrs. Eliza Depew Pfender, widow of Carl Pfender, of 140 East Ninth street, died yesterday in the White Plains, N. Y. Sanatorium, where she had been a patient for the past three weeks. Mrs. Pfender underwent an operation in New York city last November and had been in failing health since that time. She was a native of New York city, where she was born seventy-nine years ago, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Depew, of that city. She came to this city over thirty-five years ago and had made her home here all that time. During her residence here she was a communicant of the Grace Episcopal church and when her health permitted took an active interest in all the parish work.

Mrs. Pfender is survived by one daughter and two sons. These are Miss Helen Pfender, of East Ninth street; Louis Pfender, of Cranford, and Carl Pfender, of Glen Ridge. Miss Louise Depew, of this city, is a sister, and Mrs. Stuart H. Patterson and Mrs. A. W. Kleinecke, of this city, are nieces. R. H. Depew is a nephew. The funeral will be held in the Church of the Tranfisguration, 29th street, near Fifth avenue, tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. Mrs. Pfender was a communicant of this church during her residence in New York. Interment will be in Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn.

REPORT BIG AIR RAID

Fliers Bombarded the British Coast Fortifications at Dover and Harwich Yesterday and Sunday—Five Patrol Boats Sunk.

(By Telegraph to the Daily Press)

London, July 11.—French troops are steadily battling their way over the narrow strip to Peronne and Hill 97, dominating the Somme southeast of Blaches, has been snatched from the Germans. The Teutons are offering a furious resistance and meanwhile the Allie forces on both side of the Somme are making strenuous efforts to force an advance on both sides of the wedge driven toward Peronne.

The British, who are meeting opposition as heavy as, if not heavier, than that which slowed down their first assault, are striving to pry loose entirely the German salient centering on Contalmaison. Here London today records further progress east of Cvillers and La Boisselle and the winning of a footing in the Mametz Wood, where all British efforts until now have failed.

MERCHANTS DECIDE TO TAKE NO ACTION

Each One Will Follow Own Plan as to Summer Closing in August.

The members of the Business Men's Association at a special meeting last night were unable to reach any agreement as to the proposed plan to close their stores on Thursdays during August, and after a long discussion of the matter, it was finally voted that the association should take no action, that the merchants should be free to do so as they think best. There were too many opinion on the subject and the merchants thought the best interests of all concerned would be conserved if each one was permitted to follow his own plan.

Some of the merchants close all day on Thursdays in August, while others close a half day and still prefer to take their time off on Saturday, closing for a half day. This permits clerks to get away early for week-end visits.

The association also discussed the annual "Dollar Day" observance on August 30, and all the members are working hard to make the day a great success by the way of stimulating local trade just before the fall season arrives. A special committee has been named to arrange all details for "Dollar Day."

FUNERAL SERVICE OF MISS DISBROW

Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson in Charge of Obsequies at the Late Home.

The funeral of Miss Florence G. Disbrow, whose death occurred after a short illness, was held this afternoon at two o'clock from the residence of her grandfather, S. W. Disbrow, 1300 Columbia avenue. The service was in charge of Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First Methodist church. During the service "The Home of the Soul" was sung by Mrs. Guy Bender, Mrs. H. R. Meyer and Mrs. S. H. Tugwell. The last named also sang Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar." The floral wreaths and sprays were especially beautiful, many coming from relatives and friends of the young woman.

The interment took place in Hillside cemetery, the following acting as pall bearers: L. O. Disbrow, of South River; B. H. Disbrow, of South Amboy; J. P. Bolsterle, of North Plainfield, uncles; Harvey and Lawrence Disbrow, of South Amboy, cousins, and Orrie Dodge, of this city.

PLAINFIELDERS IN THREE UNITS FIND THEY ARE NEAR TOGETHER ON BIG DOUGLAS CAMPING SITE

TROOP D GUARDSMEN VISIT ARIZONA TOWN AND VOTE IT "NOT A HALF BAD PLACE"—MOTION PICTURES PLENTIFUL.

MAJOR CORBUSIER POPULAR WITH MILITIAMEN

Hospital Corps Has Specialists and Everything Necessary in Equipment for Treating Diseases and Performing Major Operations—Local Boys Interested in Wireless Station—Mexicans Try to Dispose of Horses to Americans.

(By Telegraph to the Daily Press)

Headquarters, Troop D Camp, Douglas, Ariz., July 11.—Although it has rained considerably here since Saturday night the troopers in the Plainfield detachment are all well and cheerful. We spent part of yesterday and last evening in inspecting the town of Douglas and voted it "not half bad." There are several motion picture theatres, plenty of ice cream stores and numerous places to buy literature, postals, writing material, etc. We received all of our mail here yesterday and the Plainfield boys certainly got their share. There is no indication that they have been forgotten by friends. All are busy during the leisure moments this morning writing answers to letters and using up the material we purchased in town yesterday.

Our camp is located next to the Essex Troop, near General Hine's headquarters, and the cavalry organizations are at the end of the camp site near the town. Our horses are all in good condition and everyone in the troop is well. We have finished the work of laying out our camp and are building a street in front of it to connect with the main roadway through the entire camp, which is one mile long. The street is thirty feet wide and each unit is building its own portion.

The Plainfielders have been together with the men of Troop C and Major Corbusier's hospital corps considerably since arrival. Major Corbusier is one of the best known officers in camp. He has assistants and equipment to handle anything from diseases to major operations and most of the physicians in camp are specialists in one line or another.

There are a number of horse dealers hanging around here trying to dispose of animals to our commanders. They claim that the steeds once belonged to Mexican generals, but little credence is being placed in these claims. By the looks of things, though, some of the units will have to import some more horses. Many of the animals are slow in getting acclimated and are not yet fit to ride.

It is hot here during the daytime but cools off at night. Our men seem to have gotten pretty well used to the heat en route to Douglas and are not suffering very much. The conditions under which we travelled were much better than those enjoyed by any other unit and as a consequence our men were in better shape upon arrival. We miss the excitement of the last week for everything is quiet her and we have plenty of time to think about Plainfield. We find that several Plainfield boys with the hospital corps are aiding in the erection of a wireless signal station. This work comes under the direction of the signal corps but two of the Plainfielders are experts in this art and they have been allowed to assist during spare moments.

(Special Letter to Press)

Headquarters, Essex Troop, Douglas, Ariz., July 8.—The nine Plainfielders now in camp are keenly anticipating the arrival of Troop D. We hear that they are due at El Paso, Texas, this afternoon and will be ordered to Doug-

CITIZENS' COMMITTEE ANNOUNCED BY MAYOR

Organization Meeting to Form Volunteers' Auxiliary to Be Held Thursday Night.

Mayor Leighton Calkins has named a committee to arrange the details for the permanent organization of the Volunteers' Auxiliary of Plainfield and North Plainfield which is to make provision for men who have gone to the front and for their families in case of need. This action of the Mayor is in accordance with the request of the meeting of citizens held at the Council chambers on June 27 to arrange for such an organization.

The committee is composed of the following: Mayor William L. Smalley and Alexander Milne, of North Plainfield; Ernest R. Ackerman, Father Bernard M. Bogan, George P. Mellick, Percy H. Stewart, William Newcorn, Charles H. Frost, Leslie R. Fort, William G. Besler, Rev. W. L. Imes, Mrs. F. W. Wallace, Mrs. Sherman Joost, Mrs. F. W. Goddard, Mrs. Henry C. Irons and R. S. Rowland, secretary.

A meeting of the above committee will be held at the Mayor's office, 149 North avenue, Thursday evening at 8:15 o'clock, when a constitution will be adopted and a large general executive committee will be named to manage the campaign. In the opinion of Mr. Calkins it will not be necessary to hold more than one meeting to perfect the details of the organization.

It is the purpose of the committee to look out for needy families in cases where the husbands or brothers or others upon whom they may be dependent have gone to the Mexican border.

HELD IN $500 BAIL.

LATIN INSCRIPTION ON DIVING TANK

"Sane Mind in a Sound Body" Translation of Inscription on Tank.

The Knights of Columbus Carnival had an auspicious opening last night, the Kraus Greater Shows furnishing the attractions. The vote in the Queen of the Carnival Contest was heavy, every contestant making noticeably large gains. Each one of the young women who seek to be the "Queen" spent the evening hard at work gathering in the votes.

The contest will close on Saturday night at 10 o'clock, and there will be an hour of secret balloting previous to this time. When the votes were counted last night it was found that Miss Katherine Regan was leading with 10,305 votes. The other contestants registered as follows: Miss Flo Hogan, 8,759; Miss Lillian Coffee, 8,593; Miss Kittie Conshay, 7,884; Miss Ethel Brown, 7,755; Miss Delhia Burke, 6,579.

Miss Elma Meier, premier woman high diver, gave an exhibition yesterday afternoon and again last night. On the tank into which Miss Meier plunges are these words: "Mens sana in corpore sano." Figure it out for yourself.

COLORED YOUTHS HELD FOR THE GRAND JURY

William Johnson and Frank Winston, two colored youths, were held this morning in the city court by Judge William G. DeMeza on a charge of breaking and entering, to await the action of the grand jury. Both boys admitted that they had broken into the bootblack shop of Panetello Costello, at 123 Park avenue, Saturday night and stealing about $17 in money.

CHANGE MEETING NIGHT.

At the regular session of the Plainfield Business Women's League held in the Y. W. C. A. rooms last night the time for meetings was changed and the league adjourned until September 15. Hereafter the young women will meet on Friday nights instead of Mondays. In the absence of the president, Miss Harriet Squier, the vice-president presided at the meeting.

ANOTHER CLASS IN FIRST AID FORMED

National Special Aid Society Plans for Greater Activity Among Members.

Under the auspices of the Plainfield and North Plainfield Chapter of the National Special Aid Society, another class in first aid and hygiene has been started. The classes are being held at the Muhlenberg Hospital, and are under the instruction of Miss Marsh, who is the head surgical nurse at the New York Presbyterian Hospital, and who for the past year has been working under Dr. Blake in the American Ambulance Corps in Paris.

The purpose of the classes is to fit the pupils for home care of the sick or convalescants, and to train them so that in emergency they may render aid to ill or injured persons.

Membership in the National Special Aid Society is necessary to joining any of the classes organized under its direction. Anyone wishing to become a member of the organization, whose purpose is to promote patriotism and preparedness, will please notify Miss Margaret Buttfield, 302 West Eighth street, chairman of the membership committee.

IMPROVEMENT SOCIETY IN MONTHLY SESSION

Co-operation of Health Board Sought to Prevent Infantile Paralysis.

The monthly meeting of the Improvement Society of North Plainfield Township was held in the society's hall at Watchung last night, President William de LaR. Anderson presiding. He announced the following committees to serve during the ensuing year: House committee, John Mobus, George A. Schmidt and Edward T. Canning; entertainment committee, S. L. Snowden, Mr. and Mrs. George Mobus, Z. C. Wheeler and Miss Cass; special entertainment committee, Mrs. G. W. Schmidt and Mrs. Henry Texier; w[illegible]re committee, William E. Platte, Dr. Richard Moldenke and Henry Texier; taxation committee, John Herman, Francis E. Bodin and Champlain Riley.

In a short address to the members of the society Mr. Anderson asked them to take all precautions possible to prevent any cases of infantile paralysis from developing, and it was agreed to send a petition to the Board of Health asking that all necessary steps be taken.

It was reported that the recent production of the Indian Legend of Watchung was successful, financially and otherwise. Other routine business was transacted, and after the meeting had been adjourned a social time was enjoyed and refreshments served.

BANNER DID NOT ARRIVE.

The Republican Presidential campaign was to have been officially opened in the borough last evening, when a banner bearing paintings of the national candidates, Charles E. Hughes and Charles W. Fairbanks, was to have been stretched from the Republican headquarters across to a building on the opposite side of Somerset street. However, owing to the fact that the banner did not arrive, the opening did no take place and the evening was spent in discussing the coming presidential campaign and the chances of the candidates endorsed by the local club. Among those present was Mayor William L. Smalley. He entered into the discussion, but did not make an address.

LOCAL BOARDS OF HEALTH CO-OPERATE

Efforts Are Being Made to Prevent an Epedemic of Infantile Paralysis Here.

The Boards of Health of Fanwood Borough and Fanwood Township will hold their second joint meeting tonight at Westfield with the Boards of other towns in this section of the county to discuss means to prevent the epidemic of infantile paralysis from reaching here. Representing both the township and borough Boards, to which he belongs, Dr. F. W. Wescott, of Martine avenue, is one of the committee having control of measures taken to prevent the plague.

At the first meeting held on Sunday it was decided to postpone the "Big 8" Sunday-school excursion from this place and Westfield that was to have been held on July 18 until fear of the epidemic has passed. The joint Boards have had cards printed to be filled out by people coming from New York, and if there are any signs of the disease the children are to be isolated at once. All day yesterday Special Officer William Lidgate was at the local railroad station.

It is probable that at the meeting tonight other drastic steps will be taken. Camp Endeavor, a resort for poor children of the county on the mountain in back of Scotch Plains, where there is now sixty children, will be under supervision, and it is likely that the Sunday-school meetings and other affairs at which children gather will be cancelled until the scare blows over.

The prayer meeting in the Baptist church tomorrow night will be in charge of A. D. Beeken.

Clifford Ball, of North avenue, is spending several days at Asbury Park.

James Paxson, of North avenue, is reported at Muhlenberg Hospital, where he was taken a week ago for treatment, as being slightly improved.

TRINIDAD'S PUZZLE

Mystery of the Island's Curious Lake of Pitch.

HOLES FILL UP OVERNIGHT.

And Great Trenches More Than Three Feet Deep Will Be Obliterated In a Week—The Great Mass Is Solid, Yet In Constant but Slow Motion.

Though disappointing at first sight to people who have the crater of an active volcano in mind, yet the famous "pitch lake" of Trinidad is remarkable enough to satisfy most thoroughly long ere the visit has come to an end.

The lake is a level plain about a hundred acres or so in extent, surrounded by low hills and dotted here and there with bushes and trees. The surface is not a shimmering black, as might be supposed, but a dull, grayish blue color, intersected with pools of shining water. Altogether it is a very prosaic looking place, giving no hint of its real interest.

One can walk where one pleases on the surface of the asphalt without any fear of sinking in, for it is quite solid enough to bear one's weight. If you stand in one place for a little while it feels hot to the feet, just like an asphalted street on a very hot day.

Much of the time a fresh breeze blows, and one remembers with amusement the stories of the imaginative writers who talked about stifling heat and oppressive atmosphere.

The digging of the asphalt is a simple operation. A mattock is the only tool required, and under its blows the pitch breaks readily. The negroes employed are very skilled in the work and break out lumps a couple of feet across, far too heavy for an ordinary man to carry.

Only a very small amount of the material gets broken into little pieces, so that scarcely any baskets are needed to carry the asphalt to the cars. A laborer simply lifts one or two lumps, puts them on his head, walks a few yards and drops them into the car.

The crude asphalt, as broken out, is somewhat brownish or earthy in color. It is usually quite wet and filled with many holes, like bubbles, measuring up to an inch or more in diameter.

The gang of barefooted workmen in one place may number thirty men, of whom half a dozen do the digging. They work on a space perhaps sixty feet long and forty feet wide, and in the course of a day they will dig down to a depth of three feet, or more in some places.

Go to that same spot next morning, and you will find it a little rough, but approximately level with the rest of the lake. The hole has been mysteriously filled up during the night, and in the course of a week all traces of the digging will be obliterated.

This does not mean necessarily that fresh asphalt has come into the lake from underground sources. On the contrary, the excavations are filled by a very slow settling or leveling of the surface asphalt. There is no such thing as "new" asphalt, by the way, for the transition from liquid petroleum to solid asphalt by nature's process involves a period of time that must be calculated in centuries.

The digging done in past years has caused the general level of the lake to sink several feet, so that it is not absolutely inexhaustible, as some people imagine. It is believed that fresh asphalt very slowly pushes itself upward into the lake from the subterranean depths, but how large a quantity is thus added annually has not been calculated.

Near the middle of the lake the material is less hard than elsewhere, and in a few places soft asphalt may be seen in small, irregular patches oozing up from below. This fresh asphalt is of about the consistency of putty and can be kneaded and pulled in the hands without soiling them greatly. In the main, however, the lake is solid asphalt.

No one knows the depths of this mysterious lake, the only information on the subject being the fact that long ago a boring was made to a depth of 135 feet without reaching the bottom. The "cores" of this and other borings show that in consistency the asphalt remains the same to a very considerable depth.

Curious as it may seem, there are many evidences that the entire mass comprising the lake is in constant but very slow motion. The surface is a series of great folds, and in the creases between these the rain water gathers. One writer has aptly compared the surface of the asphalt to the skin of a great elephant, the creases being the folds in his hide. Along the edges of the pools of water grass, bushes and small trees take root, forming green "islands" of greater or less extent.—Victor Pitt-Kethley in Wide World Magazine.

An Aid to Canned Music.

In the Woman's Home Companion a writer makes the following suggestions: "Into a blank book I copy the words of songs and operas that I buy for my phonograph and hand this book to my friends as I play the records. Understanding the words perfectly adds much to their pleasure."

His Interest.

Mrs. Quizzer—Didn't I hear that you were interested in the steel construction business? Mr. Doolittle—Oh, yes; I'm deeply interested in it. Whenever I run across a gang of structural workers I stand around and watch them by the hour.—Toledo Blade.

Do not be too credulous, yet if a sign says "Wet Paint" believe it.—Youth's Companion.

PICNIC POSTPONED.

The picnic of the Y. P. S. of Trinity Reformed church, which was to have been held tonight, has been postponed until Friday night. At that time the young people will leave the church at 7 o'clock in the evening and the trip to Washington Rock will be made in old fashioned hay wagons.

MRS. SARAH P. BLISS DIES IN WASHINGTON

Former Well Known Plainfielder Succumbs to Heart Trouble at Son's Home.

The funeral of Mrs. Sarah Pauline Bliss, widow of the late Rev. E. W. Bliss, formerly of this city, will be held at the home of her son, Louis Denton Bliss, Tacoma Park, Washington, D. C., this afternoon and the burial will be in that city. Mrs. Bliss died on Sunday night from heart trouble. She was born in this city about seventy years ago, being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Denton. While she had lived in Washington for a number of years, she frequently visited relatives and friends here. Her husband was for a number of years a prominent Baptist clergyman and he had an important charge in Washington.

Louis Denton Bliss, with whom his mother made her home, is the founder and present head of the Bliss Electrical School in Washington. She also leaves two other sons, Howard Roberts Bliss, of Long Island, and Frank C. Bliss, of Los Angeles, and several relatives here including, Mrs. L. J. Denton, a sister-in-law. The latter's daughter, Miss Pauline Denton, left last night for Washington to attend the funeral.

One of the ways in which want ads can be useful to you is in selling, for fair prices in cash, any "second hand" articles you own. CZAR SURROUNDED BY GENERALS AND THE GRAND DUKE

Sitting left to right—Gen. Alexeief, Gen. Evert, Gen. Poustovoitenko, Gen. Korniziński, Gen. Sivers, Gen. Kuropatkin, the Czar, Gen. Brusiloff, Gen. Klembosky, Gen. Ivanoff.

Gen. Brusiloff, the commander of the southern section of the Russian front, who is seated on the left of the Czar, is one of the most successful of the Czar's generals and is highly esteemed by Nicholas II. The speed with which Gen. Brusiloff struck in the present Russian offensive in Galicia and Volhynia is one of the principal reasons for the success of the drive. His plans were all carefully prepared, ammunition was stored at points where it would be most urgently needed, the position of the big guns which were to sweep a path for the infantry was carefully calculated by the General and his staff before the word was given for the beginning of the offensive. The result was what Brusiloff expected. The Austrians were thrown back at almost every point. Their unprepared condition is shown by the fact that they failed to rally after the first shock of the Russian onslaught. More than 170,000 Austrian soldiers, including many officers, were captured by the Russians. The fortresses of Lutzk and Dubno were captured, and in the Bukowina the city of Czernowitz fell into Russian hands. Gen. Kuropatkin, who was disgraced on account of the failure of the Russian arms in the Russo-Japanese War, who sits at the right of the Czar, was restored to the confidence of the Czar and placed in command of the northern section of the Russian line, where he opposes Field Marshal von Hindenburg. Since the age of 16 he has been connected with the profession of arms. The sweeping progress of the Russian armies in Armenia and Mesopotamia has been due in large part to the courage and ability of the Grand Duke Nicholas, who has been in personal command of the operations on the Caucasian front. The capture of the almost impregnable fortress of Erzerum on February 17 last caused intense surprise throughout the world, for at that time of the year it was not thought possible to conduct any extensive operations in the field on account of the intense cold and heavy snows which blanketed the mountains about Erzerum. The capture of the fortress turned the eyes of the world on the Caucasus front. The amazing progress of the five Russian armies advancing toward far distant points, ranging from Trebizond on the north to Kermanshah on the south—yet always preserving an unbroken front to the Turks—is regarded as one of the most remarkable operations of the war.

FRENCH ENTER PERONNE

our scout cruiser Novara, off the Otranto Roads met a group of four, or, according to the declaration of prisoners, five, armed British patrol boats. All the patrol boats were destroyed by artillery fire. All the steamers sank burning, three after the boilers exploded. Of the crews the Novara could rescue nine British sailors."

Paris, July 11.—Despite the pressure against their lines in Picardy the Germans continued their attack on the Verdun front. East of the Meuse River the Germans, during strong night assaults, penetrated the French positions in Fumin Wood and Chenois Wood, but were driven out by counter attacks, the War Office announced today. On the Somme front there were no infantry actions last night along the section of the line held by the French. There were severe artillery duels, however, on both sides of the Somme and Verdun fronts.

London, July 11.—After a bloody battle which was marked no less by violence of the direct attacks than by the fury of the counter assaults of the Germans, the English are again in the shell ruined village of Contalmaison on the Somme front. Announcement of the recapture of Contalmasion was made by the British War Office today. The British had previously taken the town after it had been shattered by artillery fire but had to give it up. A second drive was launched and after a series of night attacks the Germans were again driven out. Contalmaison lies between the Ancre and Somme Rivers, about eight miles south of Bapaume, the immediately objective of the British offensive.

Sofia, July 11.—News reaching here of the Russian successes is received with disquietude. Official circles view with alarm the apparent inability of the combined Austro-German forces to stem the advance of the Russians.

Ymuiden, Holland, July 11.—The Dutch steamer Geertruida has been sunk by a submarine, it became known today. Nine members of the crew were saved.

Amsterdam, July 11.—A report has reached here that the Germans are shelling with their heaviest guns the Lens-La Basse front and several raids have been successfully carried out.

not take the form of a protest.

It is not the belief of officials here that the commander of the submarine will interpose any objection to the physical examination of the Deutschland. As a new vessel in the merchant trade entering an American port for the first time the Deutschland would be subject to the laws of the United States for the inspection of steam vessels. The United States government is entitled to know whether the craft is everything that it professees to be, especially in view of the fact that it is a new type of vessel in the merchant service, and flies the flag of a belligerent nation.

According to informal information reaching officials here, it is the purpose of the commander of the submarine to return to Germany as soon as he can load a return cargo. The understanding here is that this cargo will consist mainly of nickel, rubber and tungsten. Germany is understood to be greatly in need of tungsten and is known to be anxious for rubber and nickel. The goods for the return cargo are at Baltimore, ready to be stored in the hold of the submarine.

Baltimore, July 11.—Collector of the Port Ryan, Surveyor of Port Steele, Inspectors Farrell and Rouse and Special Agent Narris, of the Department of Justice, have alreeady inspected the boat from one end to the other and reported they found nothing to justify calling her anything but an innocent merchantman. The officers displayed a willingness to show them everything they wanted to see, and it was the most thorough inspection ever made at this port.

The inspection today by a naval officer is mainly to verify the findings of those who went before. After it has been telegraphed to Washington the Administration will be in a position to announce the final decision, which will be through the State Department.

If the weather permits the unloading of the Deutschland's $1,000,000 cargo will begin. In the meantime the vessel is closely guarded from the thousands who try to get a glimpse of her. In her berth on the Patapsco River she defies entrance from land or water. About all the casual observer can see is her conning tower.

Captain Paul Koenig, who brought the Deutschland over, declared today he would start back within teen days, and would return soon to some other American port with another cargo.

Haniel von Haimhausen, counsellor of the German Embassy, came here yesterday from New York and conveyed to Captain Koenig of the submarine the congratulations of the German ambassador.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

Interesting reports come from Mexico regarding the efforts of the women pacifists in that country, toward avoiding a conflict between it and the United States. Under the leadership of Senorita Hermila Galindo, editor of the newspaper "La Mujer Moderna" (Modern Women), they are supporting the work of the Women's Peace Party in New York and are in constant communication with it in the hope of bringing about a peeaceful solution of the difficulties now existing between the two nations.

The Winsted Girls' Club of Winsted, Conn., has "adopted" the National Guard of that State to a man. The names of all the guardsmen, were placed in a box and drawn out by each of the several hundred girl members, and the lucky "boys" at the front whose names were thus drawn out will receive letters, gifts and all sort of comforting attentions from Winsted protectresses.

Miss Marie Thnighito Peary, daughter of Admiral and Mrs. Robert E. Peary, has inherited a love of adventure from her parents, and cherished the ambition of becoming an aviatress. She is devoting her vacation on the Maine coast this summer to the study of aviation, and upon her return to Washington in the autumn will continue her work in earnest under the supervision of her father, who is greatly interested in aircraft. Miss Peary's peculiar middle name is the Eskimo for "Snowbird," and was given because she has the distinction of being the first white child born within the Arctic Circle. Mrs. Peary accompanied her husband on his second quest of the North Pole in 1894, and it was then that the daughter was born in the Land of the Midnight Sun.

The National Woman's Suffrage Association will hold its convention this year three months earlier than usual, meeting at Atlantic City, September 6 to 11. Announcement has been made by the congressional committee of the association that the question as to what part will be taken by the organization in the coming national campaigns will be the chief subject of discussion at the gathering. That this part will be active is shown by the significant setting of the convention date so far ahead of its usual time, amply to provide for the alignment of forces for the November fray. Nearly 4,000,000 American citizens of the feminine sex will vote for President this year.

Little Miss Gloria Gould, 10-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould, revealed herself as a child prodigy recently at a fete given at her parents' estate, Georgian Court, Lakewood, N. J., for the benefit of the Red Cross. She wrote a play, entitled "The Lost Child," for the occasion, and coached other children in it, besides filling the chief part in it herself most creditably. Every detail, including the costuming, was in charge of the youthful playwright. After the play little Miss Gloria further electrified the guests by reciting poems of her own compositions in English, French, German and Italian. The gifted child, who is also exceptionally beautiful, like all other Gould girls, comes rightly by her talent, her mother having been in her girlhood, as Edith Kingdon, a clever actress.

That the choice of the beautiful Princes Yolanda of Italy as the bride of youthful Prince of Wales would be a popular one in England has been shown by the enormous demand for photographs of the little Italian princess, who is only 15 years old. The demand for her picture in shops and newspaper offices in London breaks all records for photographs of young women of royal blood, and even runs some stage beauties hard. A well-known British photographer has been commissioned by the Court to go to Rome and take a series of photographs of the charming girl, who may some day be Queen of England.

Detroit, July 10.—President Wilson will today address the World's Salesmanship Congress, opening in this city with thousands of salesmen in attendance from all points of the globe. An endless chain of invitations, started by 2,500 Detroit business men, was used in the campaign to bring the President to this city for the occasion. Other speakers include Sir Thomas Lipton and Gordon Selfridge, the English department store magnate.

FERGUS CAR WILL BE DEMONSTRATED THIS WEEK

The committee of Plainfielders who are interested in the proposition to have the Fergus Motor Company locate its plant in this city, met last night with Mr. Bowen, the general sales manager, and Sydney Perrin, treasurer of the company, and discussed the situation. It was decided that a representative of the company should call on all of those who have signified a willingness to subscribe to stock and thus make possible another desirable industry for the city.

The Fergus car, which has been used for demonstration purposes only, will be in Plainfield today, tomorrow and Thursday, and all persons interested are cordially invited to inspect it and learn more about the plan of the company.

RAN AWAY FROM HOME.

A police officer from Freeland, Pa., came to this city today to get Stanley Zidalis, a seventeen-year-old youth of that town, who had run away with the Krause Carnival that is now showing at West Front street and Grant avenue when it was in that place. Zidalis had been traveling with the show for several weeks and was found at the grounds this morning.

WILL PROSECUTE FOR HEALTH VIOLATIONS

Board of Health Takes Steps to Bring About a General "Clean-up" of City.

The Plainfield Board of Health has decided to prosecute all violators of the sanitary code. The patrolmen of the city have been provided with copies of the violations of the code to be noted and they have been instructed to make arrests for any violation. Through this method the board hopes to institute a general "clean-up," which is believed to be the surest means of avoiding an epidemic of any communicable disease. The list of violations to be noted are as follows:

Violations for which immediate arrests are to be made—Garbage: Conveyed through the streets in uncovered cans or uncovered wagons. Wagons: Insanitary or leaky. Permit signs on following: Milk, ice, offal, garbage, dead animal and scavenger. General: Permitting nuisances in alleys, spitting in public places, chickens at large. Communicable disease: Breaking quarantine.

Violations to be reported to the Health Department: Garbage: Kept in uncovered cans. Manure: Kept in uncovered receptacles; uncovered while being conveyed through streets. General: Accumulations of filth, fly-breeding, exposure of food stuffs, any unsanitary condition.

WILL RECEIVE BOYS OF STATE AT CAMP

Scout Council Decides to Restrict Patrons of Local Recreation Center.

Reports from the various officials and the election of additional members comprised the principal business at the monthly meeting of the Boy Scout Council at the Plainfield Public Library last night. There was some discussion about the scout camp on Terril road, and it was decided that if there are any vacancies, the boys of the State only are to be received. A troop from Roselle has applied for accommodations and the boys will be entertained in August.

The following were added as members of the Scout Council: Arthur B. Jones, Walter M. McGee, J. Herbert Case, R. H. Depew, E. B. Cox, Percy H. Stewart, Duncan W. Taylor, Henry C. White and Maurice E. McGrath.

It was the opinion of the councilmen that a headquarters should be established near the center of the city in the business section, and efforts will be made to secure suitable quarters. A. E. Beals reported $255.91 in cash and that he paid $250 to the finance committee. There was also reported additional contributions of $40.50 to the camp fund.

F. J. Parator, scout camp master, told of the work being done at the camp and there was a report on the recent organization of the Scoutmasters' Association. Correspondence between Mr. Beals and Ernest R. Ackerman in reference to the offer of the scouts to help in the movement of caring for soldiers' families was read. Brockholst K. Miller again filled his position as secretary after an absence of several months caused by illness.

HE WAS A MAN OF HABIT.

And He Couldn't Break His Routine Even to Be Agreeable.

A couple in a Broadway restaurant were engaged in a conversation which to all appearances was tender as well as confidential when an elderly man walked stolidly past thirty or more vacant tables and sat down at theirs. The couple stopped talking and looked at the man with an icy stare. But the man's mind was not in a receptive state. He calmly studied the bill of fare and ordered his meal.

The woman in the case looked desperate. "Is there no remedy?" she said to her companion.

"None apparently short of actual murder," he replied.

"We might move," she suggested.

"No; let's stick," he said. "I am going to find out why this ill mannered pelican is butting in when there are so many vacant tables."

In slightly modified terms the question was put to the aged interloper.

"I don't mean to freeze folks out," he replied. "This is my table. I have eaten luncheon at this table every day for the last fifteen years. You don't suppose, do you, that I am going to be thrown out of gear at this late day just because you people want to be sentimental? I am a man of habit."

"From people who have habits," said the young man, "good Lord deliver me." And then he ordered the waiter to serve them at another table.—New York Letter in Pittsburgh Dispatch.

RETURN FROM CONVENTION.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Scott of this city, have returned from Baltimore, where Mr. Scott acted as a delegate to the Machinists' Convention on July 4. All the visitors were guests of Washington Lodge, No. 174, I. A. of M. All the delegates took part in the Federation of Labor parade which was viewed by President Wilson.

MISS MARIA L. DUNLEVY.

Miss Maria L. Dunlevy, aged 80 years, died last night at the residence of her sister, Mrs. W. H. Dunkinson, 808 Park avenue, where she had resided. The funeral and interment will be in Baltimore, Md.

CARRANZA'S "COLONEL HOUSE" TELLS HOW MEXICANS SEEK TO REGAIN LAND

"Three-quarters of the privately owned land of Mexico is owned by persons outside of Mexico. Absentee landlordism, as with Ireland, has been the great cause of Mexican unrest."

This is the statement of Luis Bossero, a Mexican citizen now in the United States, who is sometimes called the mouthpiece of Carranza, but who denies that he has any official connection with the de facto government of his country.

"The great source of Carranza's strength is his program for restoring Mexican land to the Mexicans," says Bossero. "Ask any revolutionary soldier what he is fighting for and he will answer, 'For my land.'

"While large tracts of Mexican land have always been held in feudal ownership by political favorites, it was only under Diaz that alien ownership became a source of oppression and it was then that the so-called community lands, held by each village for the use of all, were broken up and expropriated.

"These lands were generally seized by judicial chicanery, aided by Diaz soldiers. Left without land of his own to cultivate, the Mexican was forced to work for the foreign corporation for a few cents a day or to starve or turn bandit.

"Carranza's land program, announced a year ago, is as follows: There will be no confiscation, but an equitable distribution of the lands which the government still possesses, a restoration of tracts of which communities have been illegally dispossessed. As the constitution permits no special privileges, all lands whether in use or not and whoever may be the owner, will be subject to a proportional tax upon a just revaluation.

"Mexicans have learned their best lessons from the United States. We have closely copied your constitution and we revere Lincoln, who completed the freedom of your country and who saved Mexico from the threat of Austrian intervention. Your slogan is 'America for the Americans.' Ours is 'Mexico for the Mexicans.'"

PLAYERS RECEIVE NO PAY, IS CLAIM

City League Managers Declare Members of Teams Are Not Paid for Services.

NEW PLAYERS SIGNED

Garretson to Remain With Baptists—Hope Chapel Awarded Game by Forfeit—Action Taken on Fights at Games on July 4.

The question as to whether any of the players in the City Baseball League are receiving compensation for playing was thoroughly discussed at the weekly meeting of the league in the office of the Plainfield Daily Press last night, constant rumors to that effect necessitating that some action be taken. The matter was put up squarely to the manager of each club, all the teams being represented, and each one upon his word of honor as a man declared emphatically that not a single player engaged in the City League games was receiving any compensation directly or indirectly for his services.

The league accepted the statements of the different managers, believing them to be true. This ought to set at rest these rumors so far as professionalism is concerned. It was the opinion that no club could afford to pay its players as each organization is run with the idea of keeping the expenses down to a minimum, while the weekly receipts would not permit the expenditure of money for such purposes.

Manager Duncan Patterson, of the First Baptist team, replaced Garretson's name on his roster last night with the consent of the player, he having told the manager that he would continue with his team.

At last week's meeting Garretson's name was dropped from the Baptist roster and in view of certain statements he made prior to the meeting to the effect that he would not play unless he received pay, led the league to take such action which prevented his playing with the Hope team which put his name on their list. The matter was finally adjusted to the satisfaction of all the managers.

Regarding the game of last Saturday, which was to have been played between the Baptist and Hope Chapel teams, by vote of the league it was forfeited to Hope chapel. Manager Brit. Martin reported that he had had nine men on the field, including the umpire, in position, and that after waiting a reasonable time for the Baptists to appear, the latter gave the game to Hope.

It was brought out that one of the players in the field for Hope, J. Heron, was not eligible to play, his name not even being on the list, and the question of all the players being in uniform was raised, it being contended that some were not.

The league also received a report from the managers of the T. A. B. S., Farmer A. C., Hope Chapel and Clinton Avenue A. C., concerning fights between players at their games on Fourth of July afternoon, and the secretary was instructed to write each player implicated, informing him that a repetition of the occurrence would mean dismissal from the league for the rest of the season.

In the changes reported last night Netherwood dropped Smith and added Thorn and Campbell; Hope Chapel dropped Stahl and that player was signed by the Farmers, and the Baptists added Garretson.

DUNELLEN DEFEATS VILLAGE BALLISTS

Maskell's Home Run With Man on Beginning of End For Visitors.

The Dunellen A. C. defeated the New Market A. C. in decisive fashion Sunday afternoon. The score was 15 to 9. For the first five innings the game was nip and tuck, but in the sixth the tide turned in favor of the Dunellens who scored four runs on hitting and loose playing by their opponents. The game was put securely on ice in the seventh when Meerkell drove a home run to left field, sending Huff, who had doubled, home ahead of him.

Dealaman made a beautiful diving catch of Zarinbe's vicious liner in New Market's half of the seventh and arising hastily to his feet made a beautiful throw to first, easily doubling W. Elliott.

KENNEL CLUB MEETING FIXES SHOW DATE

Wilbur Purcell, of New York, to have Charge of Event Here.

A meeting of the Plainfield Kennel Club was held in the Queen City Hotel last evening. At this meeting preliminary arrangements for the holding of an open dog show at the Horse Show Grounds on September 23 were discussed. From present indications and from the enthusiastic manner in which the plan was received at the meeting last evening, it appears as though this show would surpass any ever held in this vicinity.

The affair will be supervised by Wilbur Purcell, of New York city, who will have complete charge of arrangements, including entries and the awarding of prizes. Mr. Purcell has conducted shows at Madison Square Garden and has been unusually successful in his efforts. It is expected that from five hundred to a thousand entries will be received from all parts of the country, as the show is open to all. Valuable prizes, including cups, ribbons and club medals will be awarded to the winners in the various classes. Many of the entrants in the show to be held by the Hudson Kennel Club at Union Hill will register here. Entries may be filed with John J. O'Donohue, Tompkins avenue.

Edmund L. Mackenzie, of 927 Central avenue, is president of the Kennel Club, and is deeply interested in the welfare of the organization. He will have charge of the show to be held here. William B. Nash is also a member of the Bench Show Committee.

GAMES WANTED.

The St. Joseph's are looking for games with local or out of town teams. Address Francis McDonough, 6 Fairview avenue.

How Big Was the Baby?

I had heard great stories about the pyramids, but after seeing the stones at Baalbek those of the great pyramid looked like children's building blocks. In the quarry is a stone on whose upper surface a troop of cavalry could stand (if it were a small enough troop). It is squared on four sides, but is not yet detached from mother earth.

The crude Arab story has it that a female giant was carrying it when she heard her baby cry. She dropped it there, and no one has moved it since. If that baby hadn't drawn its mother's attention from her work there would be today in the walls of the temple a stone seventy feet long and fifteen feet square. It is a large stone and will no doubt some time justify the amount of work that has been done on it. At present it helps six hotels, a dozen curio shops, a score of muleteers and a station master.—Christian Herald.

Dickens and Women's Clubs.

There is a certain connection between Dickens and the origin of the "women's club" movement in the United States which will interest his admirers. The New York Press club in 1868 ventured to give a dinner to him and to exclude all women workers on the newspapers of the city. The affront was felt keenly. It led straightway to the organization of a women's club called Sorosis, of which the chief members were press women, among them Jenny June Croly, Kate Field and Alice and Phoebe Cary. The success of Sorosis was such and its influence in expanding the range of women's interest and influence was so marked that it at once had imitators.—Christian Science Monitor.

Marriage and Mathematics.

"Yes," said the old mathematician, with a gleam in his eyes, "I've always looked at it that way. Marriage is addition, when the little ones come it's multiplication, when dissension comes up to cloud the horizon of their happiness it's division, and when the final parting comes it's subtraction."

"And how about divorce?" asked the listener.

"Oh, that would come under the denomination of fractions."

Nervous Apprehension.

"They are not going to cut me up if I go to the hospital, are they?"

"Of course not when you're going just for a rest. What makes you think they are?"

"Because when I called up the hospital a voice said, 'Operator.'"—Baltimore American.

A Soft Answer.

The wife of a man who came home late insisted upon a reason.

"When I go out without you," he said, "I do not enjoy myself half as much, and it takes me twice as long."

(F) Is a connecting track between the track above described as (D) and the single track in East Fourth street, southwest of Watchung avenue, the center line of which BEGINS at a point in the center line of the track above described as (D) distant fifty-one feet and fifty-five hundredths of a foot (51.55') northwestwardly from the point of intersection of said center line produced, with the center line of East Fourth street, extending thence as follows: (1) southeastwardly curving toward the right with a radius of one hundred two feet and thirty-five hundredths of a foot (102.35'), a distance of eleven feet and ninety-one hundredths of a foot (11.91') to a point of compound curve; thence (2) still curving toward the right with a radius of thirty-seven feet and thirty-five hundredths of a foot (37.35'), a distance of fifty feet and seventy-three hundredths of a foot (50.73') to a point of compound curve; thence (3) still curving toward the right with a radius of one hundred two feet and thirty-five hundredths of a foot (102.35'), a distance of eleven feet and ninety-one one-hundredths of a foot (11.91') to a point of tangent in East Fourth street; thence (4) south thirty-six degrees, fifty-one minutes (36°51') west, a distance of ninety-one feet and sixty-eight hundredths of a foot (91.68') to a point of curve; thence (5) southwestwardly, curving toward the left with a radius of four hundred two feet and thirty-five hundredths of a foot (402.35'), a distance of thirty-three feet and forty-seven hundredths of a foot (33.47') to a point of tangent; thence (6) south thirty-two degrees, five minutes (32°05') west, a distance of thirty-three feet and two-tenths of a foot (33.2') to a point of curve; thence (7) southwestwardly curving toward the right with a radius of two hundred two feet and thirty-five hundredths of a foot (202.35'), a distance of sixteen feet and eighty-three hundredths of a foot (16.83) to a point in the center line of the single track in East Fourth street, southwest of Watchung avenue, and there connecting therewith.

The tracks hereinabove described are shown on map numbered 14,840-L filed with the Clerk of the City of Plainfield on the third day of July, Nineteen Hundred and Sixteen.

Section 2. That Public Service Railway Company, its successors and assigns, be and they are hereby granted permission to erect and maintain the necessary wires to operate cars over said tracks by electricity supplied to electric motors on the cars from overhead wires by what is known as the overhead trolley system and for the purpose of supporting said wires to erect and maintain seven (7) poles in the locations indicated by the numbered yellow dots on map numbered 14,840-L above referred to.

Section 4. The streets disturbed in the construction of said tracks shall be restored to condition satisfactory to the Common Council of the City of Plainfield with the same material as that with which the same are now constructed.

Section 5. The rails composing the above described tracks are to be laid on each side of and equally distant from the center lines above described and are to be of a gauge of four feet, eight and one-half inches (4'8½").

Section 6. The tracks hereby relocated and the connecting tracks, permission for the construction of which is hereby granted, shall be operated and maintained subject to the same conditions, provisions and limitations as the existing track or tracks in Watchung avenue, East Fourth street and East Fifth street, respectively, are subject.

Nearly all of the above display the emblem of the organization, similar to the one at the head of this article, in some conspicuous place in the window of their places of business. It stands for square dealing. It stands for honest merchandise, full value for your money, and a faithful attention to every order. In the next talk we will tell you something about our system of observing holidays, so that there will be no confusion on the part of the public in the future as to when the stores will be found open and ready to receive customers.

NATIONAL GUARD MEDICAL CORPS DID VAST AMOUNT OF WORK AT SEA GIRT

Anti-Typhoid Serum Administered to 4,322 Men—During Mobilization Week Two Officers in Corps Were Elevated in Rank—Comparative Small Number of Rejections Surprises and Pleases Those in Charge.

Sea Girt, July 11.—Some idea of the task which confronted the men of the Medical Corps of the State National Guard, during the ten days that the First brigade was mobilizing here preparatory to the going to the border may be gained from the fact that Colonel W. G. Schauffler and his assistants innoculated 4,322 men with anti-typhoid serum, and approximately the same number for smallpox.

Vaccination were not the only task that the medical corps undertook, as it had complete supervision over the health of the camp, and had to make all the physical examinations. The principal lesson learned by the State authorities is said to have been that hereafter more thorough physical examinations for enlistment in time of peace must be required, as well as occasional re-examinations from time to time. Major Gapen, U. S. A., and the State officers are said, however, to have been surprised at the comparatively small number of rejections found necessary, most of them being for faulty eyesight, defective teeth, hernia, flat foot, and a number of cases of unsuspected heart disease. All persons suspected of being alcoholics were rejected. Most of the rejects came from the recruits.

During the mobilization period two officers in the Medical Corps were elevated in rank and five physicians were examined for commissions and made first lieutenants. Captain Valentine Ruch, jr., of Englewood, was made a major, and was sanitary inspector of the camp, and Lieutenant Anthony W. Lamy, of Elizabeth, was made a captain. The new officers coming from private life were Lieutenants William J. Whelan, assigned to the Fifth infantry, Harry B. Chalfant and William P. Chalfant, assigned to Ambulance Company No. 1, and William P. Stapleton and Frederick H. Thorne, assigned to the First Field Hospital. Two physicians attached to the Third regiment, which was not called out, were temporarily drawn into the service to accompany troops to the border, in cases where no regular surgeon was provided for detached units. They were Captain Robert E. Sievers, of Bordentown, who accompanied Battery B and Lieutenant Thomas K. Lewis, of Merchantville, who went with Troops B and D of cavalry. Both men were ordered to return to their home stations as soon as these commands joined the organizations of which they were units.

One of the noteworthy features of the camp was the almost entire absence of flies, due to the system of incinerators for the company kitchens, which the medical department had installed. The success of these is said to have been due entirely to the constant and untiring efforts of Major Ruch. Another noteworthy thing is that in spite of the fact that the camp was overrun with thousands of visitors every day, there were practically no cases of serious illness. Only three needed more attention than could be given in camp, owing to the early departure of the First Field Hospital for the border, and these were transferred to the Monmouth Hospital at Long Branch, where the directors placed all their facilities at the disposal of the State. All these cases recovered.

Major Gapen, the regular army surgeon, became very popular with the New Jersey guardsmen-physicians, because of his untiring efforts to complete the work assigned to him, and his willingness to overlook any lack of military technical knowledge on the part of the guard officers working with him, and to give them all the assistance in his power.

FRANKLIN MURPHY WOULD BE SENATOR

Former Governor Announces His Candidacy and Says He Desires the Office.

Former Governor Franklin Murphy has issued a statement today formally declaring his candidacy for the United States Senatorship. He gives notice that he will make an active canvass for the nomination from now until the primaries in September. The statement, in full, follows:

"My friends agree that the time has arrived when I should announce to the people of New Jersey, in a formal and public manner, that I am a candidate for the office of United States Senator, and this I now do. I say frankly that I desire the office, and between now and the day for the primary election I expect to be actively engaged in an effort to secure the nomination.

"I should like to say very earnestly, that I approve the Chicago platform and especially the inspiring letter of acceptance of Justice Hughes. I believe in ample preparedness with all that is therein involved. I believe in a protective tariff, not only for the manufacturers but for the workmen, in order that the American standard of living may be maintained with a surplus for old age. I believe in the things we value as Americans, some of which of late have been stained a little, and I believe very strongly that a larger representation of business men in Congress would be of great benefit to the country.

"It is hardly necessary to say more. My general habit of thought is so well known that the people of New Jersey understand pretty well what my attitude is likely to be on the important questions of the day without specific statement at this time.

"In former days the people of the State honored me with the highest office in their gift. I again ask for their confidence. If elected, I shall devote the fullness of my powers, such as they are, and my ripened experience, to the service of the State and the nation in the years immediately to follow, which promise to be only less momentous than the Civil War period."

TO DANCE IN OVERALLS.

Cedar Point, O., July 11.—The grand ballroom of the swellest hotel of which this resort boasts will be the scene on Thursday night of this week of a haymakers' ball, in which men of wealth will dance in blue overalls and the women will appear in old-fashioned gingham gowns and sunbonnets. The ball will be the chief social feature of the annual convention of the National Hay Association, which met here today for a three days' session. The convention is attended by leading representatives of the hay trade and kindred industries from every section of the country.

REV. A. D. JONES ACCEPTS CALL TO MT. OLIVE CHURCH

The Mt. Olive Baptist church has extended a call to the Rev. A. D. Jones, of Elizabeth, which has been accepted. He will succeed Rev. W. A. Vaughn, who died several months ago at Atlantic City, after a long pastorate. Mr. Jones will preach at the Mt. Olive church Sunday morning and due announcement will be made when he takes charge of the work at that church.

NEAR TOGETHER IN CAMP

las immediately. A place on the camp ground here directly next to our camp awaits them and their horses will be stationed along our picket line which we have been setting up today.

We are glad that we joined the Essex Troop and got here when we did, for we have had a chance to get pretty well acclimated by this time, but we would all like to go back with Troop D when it shows up and are going to take steps to induce our commanders to comply with our request. We have gotten well acquainted with the Newarkers, who, by the way, are some of the finest men in the Celebration City, and they have treated us all right. Captain Kyle is a prince, but he has nothing on the Plainfield officers.

In camp here we have enough safety razors, writing materials and souvenirs from various places between here and Manasquan to stock a store. We also have the names of dozens of pretty girls who we met en route and who made us promise to send them letters. We have lived up to the promise and the postals have been going out of here by the hundred since our arrival.

Tell the folks back home that the mail service is pretty good in Douglas and that we have plenty of time to read. We have been issued our ammunition and each fellow has a stock of it. When we go on sentry duty we carry loaded guns and have to keep our eyes open for there's always a possibility that some stray Mexican will put in appearance around the camp.

We have been warned not to drink ice water and we cannot go without our hats. Officers have also warned us not to walk or work fast and hard. Several of the fellows have tried to show how strong they were by disobeying these orders and we have seen a number keel over. Nose bleeds are frequent, this is an affliction that is common up here to men getting acclimated. No one can imagine how much we have learned about soldiering. Life here is far different than at Sea Girt. Even the officers can't teach us, we have to learn by experience most of our lessons. One peculiar feature of the earth here has attracted our attention. When we spade up the ground inside our tents we sprinkled it with water to keep down the dust and then trample on it. In a short time it becomes a solid clay and makes a dandy flooring.

MEETINGS DISCONTINUED.

The men's noonday Gospel meetings usually held in the Rescue Mission hall on Wednesday, have been discontinued until the first Wednesday in September. At that time the meetings will be resumed with features of special interest.

Mrs. Frank C. Harder, accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Chickering, of Madison avenue, are having an outing in Buck Hill, Pa.

MUST PAY HIGH FOR GOODS

New York, July 11.—Today marked the formal opening in the woolen trade for the lightweight lines for next Spring. Many of the principal buyers, foreseeing the advance in prices on account of the war, laid in their stocks some time ago, so that the mill agents do not expect to see a very great rush of orders at the present time. There is still a large part of the clothing trade to hear from, however, and it is certain that they will have to pay record prices for their needs. In some cases, it is said, the mills have placed high quotations on their product for the express purpose of staying sales until such time as they are able to get what they ask.

"Stirring news" today—war news, local news, store news.

The spot-light of full publicity, turned on a store, reveals and places in that full light a store's defects—if it have defects. For example: If high prices prevail, or lines of goods are not kept up to date, the reader of the store advertisements knows it. It follows that advertising "pays" the store that renders real service—and would not pay the other kind of a store.

WHAT SHALL IT BE NEXT?

Father Neptune has given up to the world two marvelous stories of a history-making nature during the past week. From the depths of the ocean one day recently was sent a man-eater delegated to crush out the life of a human and make the universe shutter. Forty-eight hours afterward this finned murderer, or maybe another of the same specie, came up to breathe the ozone along the peaceful shores of the Atlantic and took back with him the legs of a Spring Lake bellboy. The nation was shocked, wise men scratched their heads for a solution to the problem of impressing on these sea monsters their unwelcomeness, and just about the time normal peace of mind was being restored another giant of the seas poked its nose around the capes and steamed into Chesapeake Bay. Not a twenty foot wriggler with skin like sandpaper and jaws big enough to swallow a man, but a steel coated serpent ten times as big with a mouth leading to a capacity of sufficient size to comfortably accommodate 100 men and 1,000 tons of cargo. The world marveled, science frowned and history chroniclers set to work recording the greatest of all remarkable feats. But another story was told. It was the defeat of the aeroplane by the submarine in the race to see which would first span the ocean. The submersible has accomplished that which was deemed next to impossible and the world now awaits the appearance of a monster mechanically propelled humming bird darting earthward from the heavens with a message from the belligerent nations.

CAVALRYMEN WILL REMAIN AS SUCH.

Plainfield's last contribution to the Mexican border guard has arrived at its destination. We are now represented by more than one hundred of our best male citizens in far off Arizona and although the possibility of their engaging in warfare is slim it is likely that they will not be with us again before November. At any rate us "stay-at-homes" have been assured that our fond ones will not be used as infantrymen if war really comes. General Sadler declared one day two weeks ago that not another squad of New Jersey cavalrymen would be sent to the border unless the government saw that they were first equipped with horses. Governor Fielder backed him and signified a determination not to allow Jerseymen to go West with the possibility of getting mauled around on hostile shores. The Governor and general won out. Before Troops B and D left Sea Girt every man had his full equipment and friends in Plainfield need have no fear lest the cavalrymen be forced to play the part of infantrymen.

CHANCE FOR GOOD IN OUR OWN STATE.

Mrs. James F. Fielder, wife of the Governor of New Jersey, has assumed the initiative in the promotion of a Soldiers' Welfare League in this State and the new organization has already been made to feel its importance in the early demands being made upon it. Every mailbag brings hundreds of heart-rendering appeals, according to the prime mover, and the co-operation of every woman's club and social body in the State is needed for success. Plainfield has earned a prominent place in ventures of this nature, particularly in behalf of the belligerent nations abroad, and now is presented an opportunity in which this city can do a vast good for men of its own State. Those at the head of such local associations should get in touch with Mrs. Fielder and learn the channel through which they can best be of service.

PLAYGROUNDS ONCE MORE SUPPLYING A NEED.

Playground work in this city is once more in full swing. Hundreds of children are being cared for each day by the five play centers located in as many different parts of Plainfield. Competent instructors who have made a specialty of child welfare work are in charge of the various yards and the programs are made both recreational and educational. The work is interesting as well as instructive and the grounds are fulfilling their purpose in keeping the youngsters off the streets and out of mischief. Parents need have no fear for the safety of their children in these centers for everything possible is being done to provide strict supervision over the various activities so that the greatest benefits may be derived.

Negligence on the part of bicycle riders and auto drivers has come within an ace of causing serious accidents in the business section recently. There has been a growing disregard of the rules regulating traffic and as a Daily Press representative stood at the junction of Park avenue and Second street this morning he counted eleven flagrant or careless violations of the law, riders or chauffeurs persisting in passing the traffic post on the wrong side. One law breaker was brought violently to his senses by a driver perched on top of a coal wagon who shouted: "Hey, young feller, go around the right side next time." The offender was not a "young feller," but he came dangerously near getting run over by a ton of coal. If a few of these men were made examples of others would probably be more thoughtful in the future.

Aside from the fact that they are clear and instructive the motion pictures being shown in Proctor's Theatre the first three days this week of scenes at the Troop D mobilization camp should attract more than passing note inasmuch as they were taken by an amateur photographer who is a Plainfield native. The film came in for highly favorable commendation last night.

Although they can't enjoy their favorite pastime, that of chasing mosquitoes, the Jersey boys have determined to do the next best thing and organize a baseball league at the Douglas National Guard camp. Officers have found it too hot to force heavy work upon the militiamen and the leaders are encouraging sports as muscle builders and hardeners.

Inquiries galore have come into the Daily Press office recently relative to the mark registered by the mercury in the shade at Arizona. Inasmuch as our representatives at Douglas have not been able to locate any shade it is of course impossible to accurately estimate the temperature.

Shark fishing promises to become a popular sport along Jersey shores. Whether or not the "strings" are big the lucky anglers will receive a better financial return than they ever did for bass, flounders or other sea prizes.

On the Spur of the Moment

Reincarnation.

When I am dodging touring cars to get across the street,
And bounding, leaping here and there upon elastic feet,
It often has occurred to me, perhaps it has to you,
That in the other life I was a jumping kangeroo.

When traveling around the state in prohibition towns,
Where e'en the soda fountain wink
is met with frigid frowns,
When for a whole week at a stretch
a thirst I must endure,
I feel that in the other life I was a camel sure.

I sometimes think I used to swing
from trees and wear a tail,
And chatter language simian, if present signs don't fail.
There are some indications that cling fast, 'tis plain to see,
It's still quite passible to make a monkey out of me.

Inventions.

We have long been the clearing house for inventions. Many of them are submitted to us by the inventors in our locality before anybody else has a chance to see them. Some of the new and needed things shown us since May 1 this year are the following:

A luminous keyhole which can be plainly seen late at night. It is impossible to miss the keyhole, no matter what may be your condition. The key is magnetically attracted to the keyhole and it matters not where you jab the door the first time the keyhole is right there. The man who showed us this invention hoped to make a million dollars out of it. We think he is too modest. Ten millions sounds more like it.

Hat lifting device which will enable a man to lift his hat when he has a baby on one arm and fifteen packages of groceries on the other. He merely stops and rubs his right foot along the calf of his left leg and the friction generates the electricity which operates the hat-lifting device. Thus a man can always be polite though very busy.

A punctureless automobile tire. This tire is made of a solid foll of chilled steel insead of rubber and is guaranteed to be free from blowouts.

Picnics.

I never saw a picnic spread
That did not have among the eats
Some peanut butter on the bread
And many plates of pickled beets.
—Youngstown Telegram.

And as for the picnic spreads I know
Of many jaunty little trips;
Where all they had was just a row
Of boxes of potato chips.
—Birmingham Age-Herald.

I never to a picnic went—
And that is true—I hope to die—
At which some summer-panted gent
Sat down in a soft custard pie.
—Houston Daily Post.

The picnics don't appeal to me,
With wasps and other bugs that sting,
And garter snakes and flies and skeets
And ants all over everything.

Get Busy.

Boost, and the world boosts with you,
Knock, and you're on the shelf;
For the world gets sick of one who'll kick
And wishes he'd kick himself.
Boost when the sun is shining,
Boost when it starts to rain.
If you happen to fall, don't lie there and bawl,
But get up and boost again.
Boost for your own advancement,
Boost for the things sublime;
For the chap who's found on the topmost round
Is a booster every time.

Just Like Dad.

A school teacher over at Edmore has received the following note from the mother of one of her pupils:

"Dear Mis. You writ me about whippin Sammy. I give you permiasion to beet him up eny time he won't learn his lesson. He is just like his father an you have to beet him up with a club to lern him any thing. Pound noledge into him. Don't pay no attention to what his father says, I will handle him."

THE SWELLING'S GOING DOWN WITHOUT EVEN AN OPERATION

"MUNICIPAL DISPOSAL OF GARBAGE AND REFUSE IN PLAINFIELD," HIS SUBJECT

Joseph A. Gallagher, Class '16 of Plainfield High School, was among those who competed for The Plainfield Daily Press prize for the best essay on a municipal topic. His composition on "Municipal Disposal of Garbage and Refuse in Plainfield" follows:

Recently, there was completed in this city, a survey conducted by experts in the employ of the New York State Research Bureau. The work of the various city departments was examined and certain suggestions for the betterment of Plainfield, the Queen City, were made. Among other ideas suggested by the gentlemen who carried on the survey was one which was of no little importance. The words of the very report itself emphasize the need of a "municipal means of disposing of garbage and rubbish." The collection and disposal of ashes, garbage and rubbish is a function which should be carried on by the city. The responsibility so necessary to the proper control of this work can only be obtained through the medium of city officials, who are not only familiar with the plant but who also can be depended upon to see that the system has the reaching effect for which it was instituted.

It is true that a detailed study of local conditions is necessary before any intelligent action can be taken in the matter. But, it is a fact that the citizens of Plainfield are willing to study the matter and are not willing to deprive themselves of that to which, as citizens, they are justly entitled. If Plainfield can profit by the plan, Plainfield shall have it. That's "Plainfield Pride." If it can be done, let it be done! The cost does come in but not just yet.

Can it be done?

Garbage is properly termed "refuse from the kitchen." Rubbish is an unpleasant mixture of everything. Both are obnoxious, are dangerous to health and must, of necessity, be removed from places to which the fly—the demon spreader of contagion—has easy access. Refuse disseminates disease and establishes nuisances. Sanitation experts, the world over, have pronounced the absolute necessity of getting rid of refuse matter. In cities of the size of our own, there are various systems in operation. Much of the work is under municipal control and in those places where it is under such control it is most successful. In other cities—and the fact is freely admitted—the cost is the only preventative of its being speedily adopted. Can it be the cost that holds Plainfield aloof? Human nature is the same everywhere. The pocketbook has been pointed out as the fortified spot, the stumbling block. It is, therefore, wise to go at the issue from the angle of the purse.

In residential cities of from 20,000 to 30,000 population, it is customary for nine or ten scavengers to collect garbage and rubbish, perhaps, twice a week. Those who can afford to pay have their refuse removed. The other thousands either bury their rubbish or allow it to rot in shady spots—even out of the reach of the sun's bacteria. It is conservatively estimated that the present system of removing refuse does not benefit one-third of the people. And, then, those who patronize individual scavengers are always complaining of the filthy condition of the wagons used and of the foul odors that come from these disease-soaked tubs! The rich man pays to remove the cause of disease, while the poor man innocently allows his yard to become the breeding place of the foulest contagion. The fly comes! He cares not "Who's Who." He feeds on the garbage and sticks his slimy fangs into the foul refuse. Then he wanders off—to the rich man's table, where he rests on the victuals. Sickness follows. Plainfield gets the blame. Whose fault? Our fault? We are "too parsimonious." We fail to realize that it costs the community more to have its garbage collected than it would if the city did its own collecting. To have a scavenger remove rubbish from Plainfield homes, it costs—per household yearly $10. Plainfield has an approximate population of 25,000. Hence the money annually paid to individual scavengers would be $250,000, provided, of course, each family—each citizen—each persons—disposes of refuse in this way. They don't do so, of course, but let us assume that they do.

On the other hand were the municipal system installed every person—no assumption—would get his refuse removed free to him and at a less cost to the city. The general taxes include such additional taxation. If one 100-ton incinerating plant were built in a centrally located spot, three collections of refuse could be made weekly. It is officially stated that one ton per day per 1,000 inhabitants is the family rate production of garbage, etc. In this city that would mean less than 25 tons daily to be incinerated by a plant capable of doing four days of such work in one day. Teams and drivers would cost and that fact has been given place in the estimate, which for Plainfield would amount to about $150,000, a saving of $90,000 (?) over the old system, which has never reached ALL. The erection of an incinerating plant would cost about $85,000 with electrical appliances valued at $5,000. Steam is produced by the incinerating plant while in action. Heat, generated, is utilized in many ways. It is almost impossible to do without the plant as the daily garbage consumption of 75 pigs is only one ton. Under such conditions ashes and other rubbish must be dumped in vacant lots. There is nothing wrong with this practice but the other method is more economical in every way. The wrong impression that incinerating plants, like "dumps," are eye-sores to the public has gained some ground. It is true that in some places neglect of the plants has caused their ruin while in other places the plant is pointed out as a city building. Plainfield takes pride in civic buildings and would take pride in an incinerating plant. The operating expense of such a plant is $40 a week. Very little coal is used as the refuse constitutes the fuel.

Perhaps, the most encouraging benefit to be derived from this system of municipal disposal of garbage and rubbish is the spirit of "cleanliness." "Clean Up" Week in Irvington, N. J., means something to Irvington. "Clean Up" Week in Newark is a time when general dirt is routed. Both Irvington and Newark have the municipal means of disposing of the garbage and ashes. Collections are made twice a week—sometimes more often. During "Clean Up" Week, everything—even old trees—is taken away, free of charge. One of the officials of the city of Irvington told me that the fact that Irvington has this municipal system has brought hundreds of new, worth-while citizens within its confines. Plainfield has no such system. The man who "might" live here is the one, who, often hearing of our lack of control along these lines, couldn't be paid to live here. Most men want, at least, a little for nothing. If they can get it elsewhere, they must get it here, if Plainfield is to thrive.

The cycle of Time carries with its every revolution a new theory. If the new theory be a good one and one that has proved its worth elsewhere, it deserves a trial here in Plainfield. Those cities whose realization of the value of the plan is dimmed by an utter lack of inertia, soon fall by the wayside. Because they have held up their own end until now, does not speak well for the future.

If it's not the money that holds us back, what is it? Let us rise with a will and carry out the suggestion offered by the capable representatives of the Research Bureau, which, by the way, can substantiate the figures quoted above. But—thoroughly investigate local conditions first. Then, act! Work with a will for a bigger, better and more prosperous Plainfield.

- Proctor's Theatre -

Not content with presenting such a decided sensation as the interesting pictures of the encampment of Troop D, of Plainfield, at Sea Girt, just prior to their departure for the border, the management of Proctor's local theatre will spring another surprise this evening when they present the first moving pictures showing the arrival of the big German submersible "Deutschland," at Baltimore.

The pictures of the submarine were scheduled to be shown at the theatre last night, but the special messenger who was sent to the local theatre arrived in Westfield by mistake and not finding a Proctor house in that city went back to New York. The picture was secured this morning, however, and will be shown today.

This remarkable picture together with the Troop D encampment film will be shown at each performance today and tomorrow in addition to the regular program.

Today the regular attractions consist of Douglas Fairbanks, one of the most popular of stage and screen stars in his latest Triangle offering, coming direct from the New Rialto Theatre, New York, entitled "Reggie Mixes In," one of those typical Fairbanks comedy dramas, which abound in wholesome comedy and pleasing dramatic qualities, dominated by the wonderful personality of the star. A funny Triangle comedy is also shown today in addition to the fifth episode of "The Secret of the Submarine."

The regular program today consists of Jose Collins, in her initial appearance on the screen in a William Fox production, entitled "A Woman's Honor." This feature has the happy knack of combining pathos and comedy in such a manner as to fairly enthuse the patrons with intense interest, and Miss Collins will be welcomed by local film fans as a popular recruit to the large list of prominent Fox stars. In addition tomorrow the last episode of "The Iron Claw" will be shown, in which the true identity of "The Laughing Mask," that man of mystery, is revealed to the spectators.

On Friday and Saturday, in addition to the regular program, Charlie Chaplin will appear in his latest comedy creation, entitled "The Vagabond."

THE FORUM

The Deutschland.

Editor of Plainfield Daily Press:—The fact that under the auspices of the German government a "wonderful feat" has been performed in the advent of a submarine to our shores, will indeed warrant the reason why the public must be exposed to the misleading effects of the literally ungrounded and delusive conclusions at which many of our thoughtless theorists are hastily jumping

I cannot see, however, why American men and women should allow themselves to be so blindly led when the many doctrines and prophecies, promulgated by the so-called military and naval experts, have been since August, 1914, proved void and empty.

When compared with the march of science and civilization, the submarine is no more wonderful than is the telephone. Of course, it must be obviously admitted that the wanton uses to which the submarine has been flagrantly put, makes it the eyesore of the eyes of the world. Many people in the Western world who have never paid much attention to the submarine and its operations, even since the days of the ante bellum period, will quite easily be misled by the absurd opinions and indiscreet remarks of the "men who know;" and which they are arrogantly setting forth. Captain Hans Hinch, for instance, tells us that the trip of the Deutschland is "the most remarkable thing that has happened in marine circles in the history of the world." The Captain has evidently either been ignorant of the fact or else has forgotten that last summer submarines appeared in the Dardanelles. There were and are no points from which those submarines could have journey but from German ports, but the shortest distance between any German point and the straits of the Dardanelles is over 3,400 miles; hence it is clear that the Deutschland's trip to America is not the "most remarkable thing." Besides, much longer trips have already been made by British submarines.

Apart, however, from the vain dicta, the utterance of which may be due to geographical and historical misconception, as far as the question of submarines is concerned, there are many German sympathizers who, unlike the German government and officials, entertain the delusion that th safe journeying of the Deutschland means a weakening of the British blockade, or a "crippling" of the British sway over the seas. No sensible mind can conceive the situation as such, for there can be no "victory" for the "victor" whose offensive organs are under the defensive instruments of the "victim." In the case of the Deutschland the idea "Deutschland unter allies" is suggested.

It is therefore futile and disappointing to believe or hope that the British will not fail every future attempt to frustrate its blockade system by the aggressive German submarine. The withdrawal of the Orders in Council by England, though in the hands of international law, is the paving of the way to a much more real blockade which will still sustain British dominion over the deep and against whose barriers they "shall not pass."

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

Elise Sees A Palace In the Sky

The Fairy Very Kindly Spoke to Her.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

JACK and Evelyn curled up beside daddy for the bedtime story about Elise, a little princess who had eleven brothers that a wicked spell turned into swans at sunrise each day: "When the swans carried off their sister and a terrible storm held them all night on just a rock sticking up out of the sea Elise was glad when morning came. The sun rose higher, and Elise saw before her, half floating in the air, great masses of ice that sparkled in the sunshine."

"Like an iceberg!" shouted Jack.

"A palace a mile long was on the ice mass, with one bold colonnade built upon another like huge towers. Beneath them swayed palm trees and gorgeous blossoms as big as mill-wheels. Elise asked her brothers, who were now swans, if this was where she was going. But the swans shook their heads, for what she saw was only a mirage, a make believe, beautiful palace that was ever changing.

"Elise gazed at it with pleasure, but as she looked gardens and mountains melted away, and in their places stood twenty proud churches with high towers and pointed windows. She seemed to hear the sounds of an organ, but what she heard was the sea roaring. When the swans carried her close to the make believe churches they changed into a great fleet of ships. But really 'twas only a sea mist floating over the waters.

"So Elise amused herself watching these wonderful pictures in the sky while her brothers swiftly sailed ahead with her, and finally she saw the real land they were bound for. Beautiful blue mountains rose before her, with cedar woods standing all about palaces. Long before the sun set the princes put her down on the hills in front of a big cave covered with beautiful green creepers. How glad the eleven swan-princes were to rest their wings!

"'Now, we shall see what you will dream here tonight,' said her youngest brother as he showed her where to sleep in the cave. This prince seemed very fond of his sister, for all through the long, dangerous journey to this land he had flown above Elise and shielded her from sun glare with his wide wings.

"'If only I could dream how to deliver you all from this terrible spell!' cried Elise. And this thought filled all her mind. She prayed for help, and in her dream she seemed to be floating among castles in the air. A fairy came up to her charmingly and very kindly spoke to her. But what the fairy said makes another story!" cried daddy.

So Jack and Evelyn hugged him good night.

Marrying a Butterfly

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

The New Maid Cooks a Good Meal and Ethel Thinks Her Troubles Are Over.

"Oh, Ralph! Such luck as we have had. Dr. Ellson has found a maid for us. A woman, not a young girl with no sense. I believe our troubles are over. She will do the washing and everything for twenty-five dollars a month." Ethel was radiant with happiness.

"This sounds too good to be true," Ralph kissed the dimpling face that was smiling up into his.

"Well, it is true. She is here, bag and baggage. Come and look at her if you are still doubtful." She pulled Ralph's arm.

"Seeing is believing, but I think I can take your word for it just now. She might not like being made an exhibit." Ralph sank into a chair and drew Ethel down on his knee. "Tell me all about it. How did the doctor happen to find her."

"Of course the whole town knew how desperate we were for a maid," began Ethel. "The doctor said he was asked by one of his patients out in the country if he knew of a place where a capable woman could get a good home. She had had trouble with her husband and they are divorced. There was a boy. The father has him, I believe."

"That is strange. The courts usually give the child to the mother if she is all right," commented Ralph.

"Perhaps she could not support the boy," suggested Ethel.

"He could have been made to support both if he had any money or any income," replied Ralph.

"Well, I didn't go into the matter with her. I was too glad to take her without any questions." Ethel breathed a sigh of relief as if all her troubles were over.

"I am glad she has not the child with her, of course, but I simply think it strange." Ralph looked thoughtful.

"Take your luck as you find it and look happy," commanded Ethel, pinching his ear.

"You certainly have the art of basking in the present sunshine and letting the future take care of itself," laughed Ralph, setting her down on her feet. "Is dinner ready? The two slices of toast and a cup of coffee I had for breakfast have entirely disappeared."

"I'll ask how long it will be before it can be served. I do not want you to die of starvation right before my eyes." Ethel blew a kiss to her husband as she went off to the kitchen.

"How happy she is when she can be just a butterfly and flit about in the sunshine," sighed Ralph. "Poor little girl, she should have married a man who could have afforded to keep a housekeeper to relieve her of all responsibility. Then, with all the money she wanted to spend she would have been happy, and would have been a veritable little sunbeam in the home. I have done her and myself a great wrong by asking her to take a woman's part in the world, to be a yoke-mate and help with life's burdens."

Ralph's gloomy reflections were interrupted by Ethel's return.

"Dinner will be on the table in ten minutes, and it is a good one. So get washed at once."

The dinner was excellent, the seasoning perfect. The new maid seemed so quiet and unassuming, so capable withal that Ralph's heart stirred with hope.

"If we can get a capable woman and keep her we can get along," he thought.

(To be continued.)

Household Hints

CANNING AND PRESERVING.

When Canning Fruits that have lots of juice, bottle it hot for those good steam puddings. Also bottle tomato juice, and dry all the celery tops for soups this winter.

Peach Jam—Wash and wipe fruit, take out stones and put peaches through chopper, skins and all. Measure and add three-quarters as much sugar as you have peach pulp and the kernels (all of them). A few minutes boil will bring the jam to the requisite consistency, since there is no water to boil away. Have no fear of the skins—they cook up and cannot be found.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

To Clean Refrigerator Pipe—A handy substitute for a brush is a string with a nail attached to one end and a piece of cloth to the other end. Drop nail to pipe and draw it through. The cloth will remove every particle of dirt from sides of pipe.

When Mixing shortening and dry ingredients for pie, always mix quite a large quantity at one time. Take out enough for the number of pies you wish to bake and one extra shell (which can be baked and put away a few days and filled with lemon or cream filling when wanted). The rest of the mixture is set away until more pies are wanted. If one wants a shortcake or biscuits, take a cup of the mixture to one cup of flour, add baking powder and the rest of needed ingredients. A good cherry or fruit pudding can also be made by adding an egg and either the fresh or canned (drained of juice) fruit to the biscuit recipe.

BIRTHDAY CAKE TRIMMINGS.

Birthday candles that can be eaten, holders and all will surprise and please the children.

Make candles of martzipan paste and use round marshmallows for holders, sticking candles in the marshmallows.

Almond meats can serve as wicks of the candles and icing or fondant can be put around the hole to keep the candle firm.

These candles can be lighted if liked, as the oil in the almond will usually cause them to burn a short time.

For a little girl's birthday cake bake a round cake, put on a thick icing. Place tiny china dolls, one doll for each guest, all around the cake, facing outward. These dolls should be dressed in pretty crepe paper costumes and little cones made of wax paper slipped under the skirts will aid as supports.

If dolls are small and frosting thick, the dolls may not need support. A cake decorated with round, flat mints with little smiling faces outlined on them in chocolate or fruit coloring will delight the children. Ice cake before putting on the mints.

THE TABLE.

French Veal Souffle — Heat two tablespoons butter, mix with two tablespoons flour until smooth, add one cup milk, let boil up, then add one cup minced veal, salt, pepper, nutmeg to taste, chopped parsley; stir in the yolks. Beat the whites to a stiff froth, add to meat, put in buttered bake dish, bake twenty minutes. Serve at once.

"Shingles"—One and one-half cups granulated sugar, one-half cup butter, one teaspoon soda. Take a cup, put in soda, then butter, fill cup with hot water and pour this on sugar. Stir well, put in flour enough to make like cooky dough. Roll very thin, prick with fork, cut in squares, bake in hot oven. They bake very quickly.

Ruby Cake—Two cups flour, two cups sugar, one cup shortening; mix as for pie crust, then add two cups sour milk, two cups chopped raisins, one teaspoon allspice, one teaspoon cloves, two level teaspoons soda dissolved in sour milk, pinch of salt. Bake in moderately hot oven in large tin. This will keep fresh a long time.

THE W. C. T. U.

"If there was a business man who was against prohibition before the State went dry, he is for prohibition now," is the way John E. Rush, district attorney at Denver, stated the situation in that city to a representative of the Kansas City Post. "Colorado will never again be a wet State. She is satisfied," continued Mr Rush. "Since the first of the year, when saloons closed, crime has been reduced twenty-five per cent., and violent crimes, such as murder, assault and disturbing the peace, have been reduced forty per cent.

"The strange part of it is that the State is having no trouble enforcing the prohibition law. Denver has about one-third of the population of the State, and we have had only a few prosecutions for violation of the prohibition law. Only one offender was a second violator, and was punished with a penitentiary sentence.

"It was thought the mining districts would give trouble. The truth is the strike helped win the State for prohibition. The militia closed every saloon in the strike district.

"Business men found that conditions were so much better while the saloons were closed, they didn't want them reopened.

"The places formerly occupied by saloons, have filled up and business never was better in Denver. The merchants find that bills are paid and money, formerly spent for liquor, now goes for groceries and shoes. The manufacturers also find their workmen more efficient."

The Portland (Oregon) rose festival again has passed into history, and this year, the first in which the festival was held in a dry State and city, the chief of police reports that the large crowds were not only happier but easier to manage than they ever were in the days of spruce bartenders and wierd highballs. Indeed, so well was prohibition enforced during the festival that during the entire three days the number of arrests was less than the average of ordinary times.

If prohibition were to be voted upon now in the State of Washington it would carry by a majority of 50,000 rather than the 18,000 it received two years ago. This was the prophecy of Governor Lister, the speaker and guest of honor at the Woodmen's picnic at Garfield. The Governor discussed the liquor problem, saying that the brewers and hotel men's initiative measures were backward steps that the Washington electorate would not tolerate.

The last hope of the liquorites of Colorado who have been fighting the State prohibition law went glimmering when the State Supreme Court in a decision rendered on June 5 upheld the bill passed by the last legislature providing penalties for the enforcement of the constitutional amendment.

The ruling of the court beyond its effect of intrenching prohibition more securely, is important in that it declares that the safety clutch alone, when attached to a bill, is sufficient to prevent its reference.

In Wallace, Idaho, according to a local paper, the contrast between the old and new regime is startling: "Formerly the town was a typical mining camp. Drunken men thronged the streets. The saloons got the pay checks. Women unattended were unsafe abroad at night.

"Now business streets are crowded every evening, but what a difference in the crowd. Wives and children are with their husbands and fathers. Women are not jostled by reeling ruffians or shocked by maudlin blasphemy.

"Savings banks deposits are increasing. Weekly bills are being paid to merchants. Clothing and furniture stores are doing a brisk business. Homes and families are being dressed up. School children have good, stout shoes.

"And the mine operators report improvements in efficiency. Monday morning finds workmen in good condition, heads clear and punctual. Accidents are fewer. 'Safety first' rules are observed."

A business men's economic league, whose announced purpose is to wage war on saloons and the liquor traffic generally was organized at Oakland, Cal., June 8, with a membership of more than 500 business men of Oakland and San Francisco. The slogan of the league is, "The Saloon is an Economic Folly and Must Go." A statement signed by the business men includes the following clauses:

"The liquor traffic exists at the expense of all other industries

"The revenue to the State, derived from liquor licenses, is overbalanced by losses to the State inseparable from the use of liquor.

"Its elimination is good business, because it will promote thrift, economy and prosperity. This will mean more work and better wages.

"We therefore favor the passage of either or both of the two proposed amendments affecting the liquor traffic, to be voted upon this fall by the electorate of California."

Duluth, the third largest city in Minnesota, with a population of 80,000, voted dry by a majority of 505 at an election held June 19. Judge Charles A. Pollock, of Fargo, N. D., spent the Sunday preceding election in Duluth answering falsehoods of the liquor men concerning prohibition in North Dakota. The vote was one of the heaviest ever cast in the city, nearly 16,000 voters expressing their opposition to the saloon.

WARREN DEMOCRATS TO DINE WITTPENN

Gubernatorial Candidate to Be Guest at Important Gathering.

Washington, N. J., July 11.—Naval Officer H. Otto Wittpenn, of Jersey City, Democratic candidate for Governor, will be the guest of the Democrats of Warren county here tomorrow evening, at a dinner. It is the first important gathering the Democrats of this county have had in some time and an attendance notable for its size and the prominence of those participating is anticipated. Arrangements to accommodate several hundred have been made by the committee in charge of the affair.

Warren county Democrats are solidly behind the candidacy of Mr. Wittpenn, this united front having been apparent since the day the Naval Officer announced his intention to run for the Governorship, and the members of his party are anxious to attend the dinner as a demonstration of their loyalty and their intention to do all they can to secure his election in November.

Among the other speakers the committee on arrangements has invited to address the big gathering are Governor James F. Fielder, who recently declared himself in favor of the nomination and election of Mr. Wittpenn; United States Senator James E. Martine, Congressman Archibald C. Hart, Attorney General John W. Wescott, Democratic National Committeeman Robert S. Hudspeth, and Democratic State Chairman Edward E. Grosscup.

Mr. Wittpenn will go into Sussex and Hunterdon counties Thursday, and will spend Friday in Sea Girt. He will spend Thursday morning and afternoon in Sussex, and will attend a church fair in Cokesbury, Hunterdon county, in the evening.

SOUTHERN FORESTRY CONGRESS

Asheville, N. C., July 11.—Of more than usual interest, because of its representative character, is the annual meeting of the Southern Forestry Congress which convened in Asheville today for a four-day session. In conjunction with the sessions of the congress there will be meetings of the Association of Eastern Foresters and the Southern Forest Fire Conference. Many States are represented. Prominent speakers to be heard include Governor Locke Craig, of North Carolina; H. S. Graves, chief of the United States forestry service, and several State foresters and State geologists.

SPORT TOPICS

Raking 'Em Over

By "JINKS"

EXTENSION OF SEASON.

A serious movement is now on foot to extend the metropolitan racing season until the middle of October, with twelve-day meetings at Aqueduct and Jamaica. The usual Autumn racing is scheduled, of course, for Belmont Park, following Saratoga. Those who are back of the movement have been led to believe, by the success which has been attained so far this season, that there are many thousands who would attend these meetings if they were held, and that there is a strong desire for more racing around New York. Horsemen, to whom the subject has been broached have immediately welcomed the idea and are strongly in favor of lengthening the season. Many of these owners go into Winter quarters after the Belmont meeting, and do not race again until next Spring, and they would find another month of the sport very acceptable before retiring for the year. The fact that these meetings would conflict with the Maryland fixtures is of little importance, inasmuch as there are plenty of horses to go around, and many of the owners who would continue on the Long Island courses would not ship to Maryland in any event.

SWIMMING THE CHANNEL.

The announcement by Charles Durborow, the great Philadelphia long-distance swimmer, that he would attempt the crossing of the English Channel next Summer, if European events made it possible, has caused speculation in aquatic circles concerning his qualifications for the arduous undertaking. Some, indeed, have expressed doubt whether the Quaker City man can hold the trudgeon, which he uses in all tests, for the period required to complete the trip. They point out that it took Webb and Burgess, the only two to have accomplished the feat, about twenty-two hours to reach the goal, and that Durborow's best performance for continuous swimming is fourteen hours and fifteen minutes. It should be taken into consideration, however, that Webb and Burgess were devotees of the slow breast stroke, and stopped every half hour, or oftener, to rest and take food or drink, while Durborow, like most American exponents of wafer endurance, has good speed, and maintains a steady, even pace throughout, pausing not a minute to relax or take nourishment. He does not touch food or drink from start to finish.

TENNIS IS POPULAR.

Baseball was at one time king of sports. Many people think that the national game is still the monarch—of both winter and summer activities,—but there is a considerable number of critics who declare that golf is better than all. They say that the man who once gets the golf "bee," is a perpetual visitor to the links. That football is popular no one seeks to deny but that tennis is a rising sport and one that is destined to be as popular as any is the fact that we want to establish. While we never studied physical culture, we have been informed by competent authorities that tennis exercises more muscles of the body than any other sport.

CLIFF RANDOLPH IN LEAGUE.

Cliff Randolph may become a member of the Hope Chapel baseball team. If he does, Hope stock will rise far above par. Cliff, although he has not of late been pitching the kind of ball that made him famous, is still there with the goods and would be a tower of strength to the Hopes. Should the former Pet accept the Chapel offer, the chances of Hope finishing one-two would be considerably better than they are now. With the Tabs going along at their present fast pace and the Hopes chasing closely behind them, the addition of a pitcher like Randolph means much.

CONFIDENCE IN JACK MARTIN.

It was with pleasure that we read of the fact that Jack Martin has been made acting manager of the Milwaukee Brewers. Jack always was a fellow whom managers liked and in whom they could place their confidence. When a manager is evicted from a contest he has to leave the reins in charge of a competent assistant. Harry Clark was put out of a game yesterday and before he left the field, he turned to Martin and gave him full charge of the affairs of the club. All of which goes to show that Jack is not only a brainy baseball player, but a man who can be trusted.

CALIFORNIANS VISIT US.

Of late we have been visited by tennis and golf players of note. They have given us exhibitions of their skill and have delighted the many who saw them work. The other day Willard Davis and Lindsay Murray played six sets of singles on the courts of the Country Club and were watched by admiring followers of the racquet sport. The Westerners gave a splendid exhibition and were royally entertained during their stay here. Bringing players of note to this city "booms" Plainfield. That is what we want.

PRESS AMATEUR DEPARTMENT

Henny Alberts, the boy "who shuts his eyes when he bats," and who has the habit of destroying the hides of perfectly innocent baseballs, is one of Rube Bond's most energetic workers. Bond is the manager of the Elizabeth A. A. and formerly headed a South Elizabeth team. Henny has been unusually successful with the Bonded Boys and is trying hard to duplicate the feats for the benefit of the Hope Chapel lads, with whom he plays when the Betsytown boys have no attraction billed.

Frank Mullin still sticks in fast company. Frank makes one or two errors now and again, but it seems that the opposing batters delight in picking on the younger youth, who is a little nervous and anxious to make good. That he will eventually become one of the best young baseball pitchers around these parts is our firm conviction and we hope to see him live up to our expectations.

Cyril Poling, manager of the Pans, had quite a job recruiting his team for Saturday's game. Cyril was already to start to Bound Brook when he found that two or three of his stars were unable to make the trip. Scouts were dispatched to the highways and byways in an effort to locate talent, with the result that when the team reached the Bee town, nine men were in readiness to start. The locals captured a victory, Newell being, as usual, invincible. Ax Brandt, who is one of the best sluggers in juvenile circles, was unable to accompany the team owing to the fact that he was slightly injured while at work recently. It is expected that the Pans will meet the St. Josephs, of Bound Brook, in the near future.

We await with expectancy the "final" verdict of the City League moguls. These magnates have caused an investigation of the amateur standing of the players in the league. If the league is amateur, this department will be "amateur;" if the league is profesional, this department will be just as professional—even if the Press has to hire a new man to make it so.

They tell us that Trust is an "error-maker." We have not seen him play, but, taking into consideration his record with Durham, of the Carolina League, we should imagine that he was worth while. But it seems that he is ambitious and that's about all.

The Giants hit Pittsburgh resolved to do things. And they did. Dillon hit Moran, resolve to do something. He did. The Shamrocks are going to hit to the summit of the Parker Field League in short order—provided, of course, the Hebrews do not make a counter resolution.

In case our readers did not see this bit of comedy, we will repeat it. It is from the pen of the "Misinformation Editor" of a New York paper. "Query—Where do movie directors get all their plots? Answer—From the rejected scenarios." Now we know why we failed as a scenario writer.

"Kale" Velard has never been honored by having his name appear in this column. But, her it is. And there are several City League players who wish they did the same.

We are firm believers in the slogan, "Safety first." That's the reason we stayed at home from the league meeting last evening. Not being adept at dodging chairs and the like, we did not dare to put in an appearance. And then, too, someone might have insinuated that we get paid for doing this.

When the ground gets too tough for Ralph Runyon, we need rain. Ralph, it is admitted, soars high in the air, but not high enough to make his descent disagreeable to him. There must be a reason for his not entering the Hudson meet and Jupiter Pluvius is going to get the blame.

PLAYGROUND LEAGUE ARRANGES SCHEDULE

Supervisor George Wriston Prepares Long List of Double Attractions.

Jupiter Pluvius prevented the playing of baseball in the Parker Field Junior League yesterday, the scheduled games between the East Ends and the Diamonds being called off at an early hour. The Shamrocks and the Lenox A. C. were also carded to play, but the wet condition of the diamond made it impossible for them to start.

During the past week Supervisor George W. Wriston has been busily engaged in making up a schedule of games. It is his plan to stage double-headers each day, thereby making it possible for each team to play daily. At present there are four teams in the larger league and four prospective entrants for a Midget League. Mr. Wriston desires that managers of midget teams consult with him as soon as possible regarding the entrance of their teams in this new league.

At the present time the Parker Field schedule is complete for July, double headers having been arranged for each day. The Shamrocks and the Diamonds are billed to battle in the opening canto of tomorrow's double bill. In the second section of the affair the East Ends and the Hebrews will cross bats.

We will repeat the revised two-game schedule of July for the benefit of the youthful players and fans. Boys, now is the time to clip this schedule and hold it for further reference.

The first game is played at 9:15 and the second at 10:40.

Monday, July 10—East End vs. Diamond, Shamrock vs. Lenox.

Tuesday, July 11—Lenox vs. Hebrew, Diamond vs. East End.

Wednesday, July 12—Shamrock vs. Diamond, East End vs. Lenox.

Thursday, July 13—East End vs. Hebrew, Shamrock vs. Diamond.

JACK MARTIN MANAGER OF "BREWERS" DURING ABSENCE OF HARRY CLARK

Local Fellow Leads Milwaukee When Clark is Banished—Jack's Average at Bat Takes Rise—Team Still in Last Place.

Jack Martin is doing much better in Milwaukee. Before Jack Martin was taken ill with tonsilitis, his batting average was nothing to brag about and it was continually growing smaller. His fielding had fallen off considerably and he felt generally under the weather. Internal dissension in the Brewer camp did not make things any brighter and many were of the opinion that Jack would return home. But he didn't. After a lay-off of several days, due to tonsilitis, the local lad rejoined the regulars and was placed at his old station in short field. He did not improve in batting but his fielding was just as full of "pep" as usual. However, in the past two or three games Jack has been hitting the hide off the ball. In one of the games with Roger Bresnahan's Toledo "Mudhens," Jack smashed out three bingles, one of them a double. He made one error in the field, booting De Vogt's line drive.

Evidence of the high esteem in which Jack is held can be garnered from the fact that when Harry Clark, manager of the Brewers, was banished from a recent game owing to the fact that he objected too strenuously to an umpire's decision, Martin was placed in charge of the team. It is said that Clark has gone on a visit to his parents, who live in Paulding, Ohio. During his absence, Jack Martin, of Plainfield, N. J., is manager of the Milwaukee American Association baseball team. Such well known stars as Oee Walsh, Harry Moran, "Red" Shakelford and Jim Thorpe have to take their orders from the local fellow. In the first game in which Jack acted in the capacity of manager, he demonstrated his ability by derricking Harry Moran, the former Newark Fed hurler, and replacing him by Shakelford, who pulled a losing game out of the fire.

LOCAL PROFESSIONAL AT GARDEN CITY

Marty O'Loughlin, of Plainfield Country Club, Enters "Met" Tournament.

An urgent appeal for fifty or more enthusiasts to act in the capacity of scorers was made yesterday by E. Mortimer Barnes, secretary of the Metropolitan Golf Association, at the time that he made known the entries and pairings for the annual open championship tournament of that organization, which is to be held on Thursday and Friday of this week on the links of the Garden City Golf Club.

According to custom, the entries closed three days before the event, with 106 names on the list, but it is expected that eleventh hour applications will bring the number well beyond this. As it stands, the tournament should be one of the best in the history of the Metropolitan Association. M. J. Brady is about the only prominent professional who has neglected to send in his name, but as "Mike" has had the play-off with "Pat" Doyle for the Massachusetts open title on his mind it is not much of a gamble that he will be seen with the others at Garden City.

Jerome D. Travers is not entered, but there is a strong suspicion that Charles Evans, Jr., the Chicago amateur, who won the national open championship at Minneapolis, will yet be a starter. "Chick" is expected today at Long Branch, where he is to be the guest of Martin Beck, a member of the Norwood Golf Club.

"Jack" Hutchinson, of Allegheny Country Club, who was runner-up for the national open, is coming on from Pittsburgh with several other stars. "Jack" hopes to improve on his Minneapolis record.

Gilbert Nicholls will defend the title which he won last year at Fox Hills after a play-off with "Bob" Macdonald, of Buffalo. The latter also has sent in his name.

All those who have won the championship since it was first competed for, in 1905, are to be seen in the field, including "Alex" Smith, four times the holder, and his brother Macdonald, who established a world's record of 278 strokes at Scarsdale in 1914.

It was announced by Mr. Barnes that all those who enter between this time and Thursday morning will have to start out before 9 o'clock, so that there will be no confusion toward the end. As the list stands it will take three and a half hours to get the field around, the pairs going off at intervals of four minutes.

Marty O'Loughlin, professional at the Plainfield Country Club, is among those entered. Marty is paired with Macdonald Smith and will begin play at 10:04 a. m. on Thursday.

"MIKE" MAY MANAGE.

Word comes from the West that Mike Donlin, formerly an outfielder of the Giants, may be engaged as manager of the Columbus Club of the American Association. Last week the owners of the Columbus Club released "Rudy" Hulswitt as manager, and the owners of the club requested John J. McGraw to suggest some one to succeed Hulswitt. McGraw knew that Donlin was anxious to procure such a position and knowing to procure such a position and McGraw strongly recommended Donlin for the place. Donlin is now managing and playing with the Long Branch team.

"RUBE" OLDRING SIGNS WITH HIGHLANDERS

Former Member of Crescents to Help Donovan for Remainder of Season.

"Rube" Oldring, formerly a member of the Crescents of this city, announced yesterday in Philadelphia that he would sign a contract to play the remainder of the season with the New York Americans. Oldring said he was induced to accept the offer of the New York club because of the crippled condition of two of its outfielders, and added that he would retire from baseball at the end of this season. Oldring expects to sign a New York contract today.

"Bill" Donovan, manager of the Yankees, asserted yesterday that the deal for Oldring's services would be closed soon.

Oldring announced his retirement from baseball July 1. "Connie" Mack gave him his unconditional release, and said he would not stand in the outfielder's way if he wanted to join some other team. Oldring has batted near the .250 mark this season, and being an excellent outfielder, he has been sought by the Yankees since Gilhooley fractured a bone in his right ankle several days ago at Washington. The loss of both Maisel and Gilhooley, both of whom were injured, left the Yankees' outfield badly crippled. Baumann has been playing right field since Gilhooley was incapacitated, but his batting has fallen off considerably. "Bill" Donovan thinks that the acquisition of Oldring will add both fielding and batting strength to the team.

READY TO RACE AT YONKERS.

Yonkers, N. Y., July 11.—Arrangements are complete for the opening here tomorrow of the seventeen-day race meeting under the auspices of the Empire City Racing Association. With many of the fastest horses in the East entered, the track in good condition and substantial purses promised for each day, the management expects one of the best meetings ever held at the local track. For the fifteen stake events on the program there are nearly 1,000 thoroughbreds named by seventy-six nominators.

SAVING OLD MANUSCRIPTS.

How Valuable Papers Are Mended and Mounted For Preserving.

There are not fifty persons in the United States who are skilled in the preservation and repairing of old manuscripts. One of them, says the University of Wisconsin Bulletin, may be found working on the third floor of the Wisconsin Historical library building at Madison, one of the six or seven institutions in the country that carry on such work scientifically.

About a generation or two ago a priest in the Vatican library at Rome originated and developed the process now in use in the taking care of old papers.

The first thing done in the process of preserving the letters is to place them between wet newspapers under a weight and leave them for five or six hours. This removes the creases and the dirt. Then they are put between wood pulp boards and left twenty-four hours and then between blotters to complete the drying process. The next step is to repair the paper.

The paper of some of these letters is so old when received that it falls to pieces if struck. This is strengthened by a layer of a sort of transparent cloth, on both sides of the piece of paper. Other letters need mending along the edges with parchment paper. To cover holes a piece of paper is glued over the edges and is left larger than the hole until dry. It is then cut down to the proper size, and the edges are sandpapered until smooth. After all such repairs are made the letters are mounted on large white sheets and prepared for binding.

Bear Baiting.

In the time of Shakespeare theaters were often used for bear baiting as well as for the presentation of plays and in some cases were equipped with a stage which could be removed when the bear baiting was to occur. The contemporary attitude toward this diversion is seen in this quotation: "It was a sport very pleasant to see the bear with his pink eyes leering after his enemies' approach." It is comforting to reflect in these days that the killing of animals, at least as a form of public amusement, has greatly diminished and in most countries has disappeared.—Outlook.

What Impressed Her.

Shortly after Will Crooks, the labor leader, was elected to parliament, says an English weekly, he took his little daughter to Westminster. She was evidently awed at the splendors round her and maintained a profound and wondering silence all the time. Mr. Crooks was delighted to see her so much impressed.

"Well," said he to her at last, "what are you thinking so deeply about, dear?"

"I was thinking, daddy," answered the little girl, "that you're a big man in our kitchen, but you aren't very much here."

Here's to a Safe and Sane Fourth

Insist on having a safe and sane Fourth for the children—no dangerous fire crackers, rockets or matches. Be equally particular that the youngsters eat only "safe and sane" ice cream.

This Fourth make it yourself in one of the famous Alaska Freezers. It is the open-spoon dasher in these freezers, whipping air into every particle of the cream, which makes ice cream frozen in Alaska Freezers so wonderfully delicate and smooth.

And, making it yourself, you will have the satisfaction of knowing that it is absolutely pure.

An Alaska Freezer will last a lifetime. But be sure it is an Alaska.

We also have on hand the White Mountain and North Star Freezers.

SUCCESS CROWNS BRITISH DRIVE CAPTURING EIGHT MILE DEFENSE AND 7,500 GERMANS IN TEN DAYS

PARIS ADMITS THAT THE FRENCH LINE AT VERDUN HAS BEEN PIERCED AND HEAVY FIGHTING OCCURRED ON BANK OF THE MEUSE.

FALL OF KOVEL PREDICTED BY LONDON EXPERTS

Attacks Last Night Shifted to the West Bank of the Meuse—Capture of Hill 97 Was a Particularly Brave Piece of Work—Soldiers Crossed Four Lines of Trenches Without a Pause—Germans Lose at Fumin Wood Once More.

(By Telegraph to the Daily Press)

According to General Sir Douglas Haig British troops have completed the methodical capture of the whole of the enemy's first system of defense on a front of 14,000 yards, about eight miles, and 7,500 German prisoners have been captured along Somme within ten days. This, with the announced captures by the French of 15,000, makes the total for the remarkable drive so far upward of 22,000 men. During the last twenty-four hours, in continuous and desperate fighting the British have captured and retained the village of Contalmaison, northeast of Hardecourt, have gained considerable ground in Manetz Wood and have recaptured virtually all of the important Trones Wood.

Heavy and sustained fighting is in progress on all points today, the Allies making consistent progress, with only occasional setbacks. Before Peronne falls formidable defenses outside the city must be overwhelmed. It is not likely, however, that they will be stormed before the British push their lines further east and so protect the French flank. The primary object of the allied drive has been achieved and the next step promises to be as deliberate as the first.

Paris, July 12.—While relative calm prevailed on both sides of the Somme, according to the official communication issued by the French War Office, heavy fighting occurred on the right banks of the Meuse, in the Verdun section. German forces there succeeded in gaining a footing in the Damloup battery and in some sections of the French line in the Fumin Wood.

The Germans launched an attack on the French positions from Fleury to a point east of Chenois Wood. They succeeded in penetrating advanced French trenches at some points, but were expelled immediately by a counter-attack. West of the Meuse there was active artillery fighting in the neighborhood of Avocourt and Chattancourt.

Northeast of Veho the Germans exploded mines, the craters of which eventually were occupied by the French of Hill 97.

The capture by the French of Hill 97, south of the Somme, with the farm called La Maisonnette on the summit, was a particularly brave piece of work. After receiving the signal to attack the soldiers crossed four lines of trenches virtually without a pause, but it was then that the greatest difficulties had to be overcome.

London, July 12.—The fall of Kovel, and with it that of Vladimir Volynski, within a week, is predicted today by military observers here.

The sledge hammer blows of the Russians on both sides of the Sarny-Kovel railroad have driven the Austro-German armies over the Stokhod at so many vital points that the Teutons have been compelled to fall back upon their recently constructed defenses in front of Kovel.

Except in the sector near Hrlevichi and in front of Svidniki, where the Germans are holding their own, no more natural barriers stand between General Brusiloff's troops and their immediate goal. The principal difficulties which have confronted them ever since the drive on Kovel was inaugurated, have been swept away by the very impetuousness of their assaults.

With his right flank protected by the impassable marshes of the Pinsk and his whole line from Czartorysk to Svidniki reorganized to withstand the pressure of Teutonic counter-attacks, it is the concensus that never has General Busiloff been in a better position to outflank the German defenses before Kovel.

London, July 12.—German troops have regained ground at Manetz and in Trones Wood, according to an official report on the Somme operations issued by the British War Office this afternoon. Farther to the north, however, the English forces opened an offensive in the rest of the operations.

Paris, July 12.—Crown Prince Friederich Wilhelm shifted his attacks against Verdun last night to the west bank of the Meuse. His army made violent assaults at Dead Man's Hill; but the War Office anonunced today that these attacks had been repulsed. On the east bank of the Meuse a brilliant counter-attack by the French resulted in the recapture of part of Fumin Wood from the Germans, who were attempting to establish themselves there firmly.

Berlin, July 12.—The Admiralty announced today that on Monday night two German naval aeroplanes bombarded the French port of Calais and troop trains at Braydunes, returning undamaged.

Tokio, July 12.—Four superdreadnoughts are provided for in a construction program completed by the Ministry of Marine today. It calls for a continual strengthening of the Japanese navy up to 1923. The program provides for an expenditure of $125,000,000.

PISCATAWAY BOARD TAKES QUICK ACTION

Steps Taken to Prevent Development of Infantile Paralysis There.

The Piscataway Board of Health at a meeting in New Market last night adopted precautionary measures, similar to those in force in this city, to prevent either development or spread of infantile paralysis in the township. It was particularly requested that all residents of the township keep the board informed of any such cases or even suspicion of the disease. Such reports should be made to Health Inspector P. F. Kaine, at South Plainfield, who will immediately take action in the matter.

Residents knowing of strangers, especially children, coming into the township are asked to communicate the fact to Mr. Kaine. The board has officers on duty at the different railroad stations watching people who get off trains, particularly in cases where there are children. It is not the purpose of the board to keep people out of the township, but it is also necessary that strict regulations be enforced to prevent any possible infection from the dread disease and the co-operation of all residents of the township is earnestly desired.

PLAINFIELD SYSTEM WANTED IN PATERSON

Churchmen Favor Closing of Saloons at 11 p. m.—Aldermen to Settle Question.

Just at present the Board of Aldermen at Paterson are having considerable trouble regulating the hours that saloons in that city shall be open, and in trying to solve the problem the board is investigating the system in vogue in Plainfield. Owing to the large number of saloons in Paterson and the different closing hours each proprietor wants, the governing body of the city has taken a hand and will settle the matter.

The churchmen of the city favor the Plainfield system regulating the saloons and the aldermen want to adopt that plan. The saloons in this city have to close at 11 p. m. and not open until 7 a. m. The Paterson liquor men want 1 a. m. as the closing hour and 6 a. m. as the opening, while some are in favor of staying open all night. The matter will be definitely decided at the next meeting of the Board of Aldermen.

MID-WEEK PRAYER SERVICE.

The last mid-week prayer meeting before the summer vacation will be held at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church tonight at 8 o'clock. Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, the pastor, will be in charge. Those attending are requested to bring the Biederwolf hymn books. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance.

BIG GUNS HEARD BY GUARDSMEN

Troopers Conclude That Noise Comes From Carranza's Rifle Range.

DAY'S WORK SCHEDULE

Hair Cuts Come High in Douglas—Elks Will Be Entertained Saturday Night—Plainfield Boys Are All Well.

Headquarters, Troop D, Douglas, Ariz., July 12.—Sounds of firing from Agua Prieta, across the line, caused considerable excitement in camp Monday. Occasionally above the noise of the rifle fire, we could hear big guns. We do not know what it was, although the impression prevails here that it was simply General Calles' men at target practice. There is some mystery here about it.

Following is the schedule mapped out for the Plainfielders for each day's work:

Reveille—First call, 5 a. m.; reveille, 5:15; assembly, 5:20; stables, 5:25; mess, 6; sick call, 6:30.

Drill—First call, 7; assembly, 7:10; stables, 11.

Guard Mounting—First call, 11:20; assembly, 11:30; first sergeant's call, 11:45; mess, 12; fatigue call, 1 p. m.; recall from fatigue, 4:30; stables, 5; mess, 5:30.

Shaving and haircutting come higher at the camps at Douglas, Ariz., than at home. Twenty cents is charged for a shave and thirty-five for a hair cut. Doughnuts are twenty cents a dozen and newspapers sell for five cents apiec.

The Douglas Lodge of Elks will initiate some new members Saturday night and will give a blow-out, to which the Elks among the troops in camp have been invited. Captain Louis Alberts, of Troop D, is to be one of the guests.

Already has sickness crawled into the trail of the wetting the men who were here Sunday night got. Several cases of dysentery have developed, although none of them is considered serious. No Plainfielders are affected as yet.

There were a few flurries in camp last night when suspicious persons were found trying to get within the lines. Several were arrested by our patrols, but were released.

Brigadier General Edwin W. Hine, since his arrival, has been visiting every outfit, including the hospitals.

The troops of the First Cavalry, who started west Saturday night in pursuit of horse stealing Mexicans, got back to camp last night. Going out on the hunt, they did sixty miles in less than twenty hours.

Operations of troops west of us are clouded in secrecy, but it was learned last night that eighteen miles west of here a Mexican ran off with some horses. The story that reached here had it that the horse thief killed a regular who was doing border guard. When the news had sifted through the camp double guards were put on our horses.

Rain again struck the camp yesterday and last night. The camp was partly flooded, but was better than Sunday. All the troops are working hard on a system of drainage. One thousand cots, issued by the government, got her today, so at least the men will have dry beds. Not enough have come even yet to go all around, but more equipment is promised soon.

Major William A. Bryant is whipping Troops B and D into shape. It is expected the outfit will soon be ready for field work. As soon as the horses are fit the squadron expects to take part in border patrol work with the regular cavalry.

In the near future the troops expect to go on the rifle range. The artillery may be sent to hike with the regulars, using the regular army's equipment until our own horses are in shape.

Although all these preparations are going on, the main effort of the Jersey troops here for the present is to make the camp comfortable and sanitary.

First Lieut. McNenney, the surgeon attached to Troops B and D, reported having vaccinated all men in the command. He said, "The men are in the best of health and spirits. Sleeping accommodations are adequate and food is sufficient and excellent. We are indeed indebted to the adjutant general and the quartermaster's department for having so completely covered every detail."

HEATH RELEASED ON BAIL.

Edward Heath, who is charged by the police with concealing knowledge of the Netherwood "fake" robbery, was released this morning by City Judge William G. DeMeza on $500 bail furnished by Amos Andrews. He will be arraigned before the Grand Jury with Southard, Groletto and Walpole, the three authors of the robber plot, at the October term.

ANOTHER U-BOAT IS EXPECTED TODAY

Tug Enroute to the Virginia Capes, It is Believed, to Meet Subermersible.

Baltimore, July 12.—The tug Thomas F. Timmins is en route today to the Virginia Capes, according to a report received here, for the purpose, it is believed, of meeting the German undersea merchantman Bremen, expected to arrive at any moment.

According to information coming from usually reliable sources, the Timmins, following the delivery of a message disappeared from the side of the Deutschland and left Baltimore harbor. It is believed she passed into the bay and is now rushing south with all steam on.

Captain Charles F. Hughes, who inspected the Deutschland to determine her status, insisted today that the Deutschland's right to be regarded as an unarmed merchantman was beyond question.

EDWARD O. RIGHTER GRAND EXALTED RULER

Chosen Head of B. P. O. E. at Annual Convention Held in Baltimore.

Edward O. Righter, of New Orleans, was yesterday elected Grand Exalted Ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks over Lloyd Maxwell, of Marshalltown, Iowa, at the annual convention of the order in session at Baltimore, Md., this week. The contest was declared by old-timers among the delegates to have been the hottest in the history of the organization. Boston was selected for next year's convention.

Lloyd H. Maxwell, of Marshalltown, Iowa, and Chicago, was among the first to congratulate Mr. Righter and to announce that he and all who stood with him in the fight for the rulership would get behind the Righter administration to make it a success.

Reminiscences of the old days of Elkdom in Baltimore were revived today with the arrival of Clayton Hermance, exalted ruler of New York Lodge No. 1, the blue ribbon lodge of the Elks. Mr. Hermance is the son-in-law of "Dan" Collyer, who is the only surviving charter member of Baltimore lodge. Just before the opening of the Grand Lodge session Mr. Hermance gave an organ recital in the lodge room at the Elks' Home, at which Governor Harrington and Secretary of State Simmons were present. Mr. Hermance is an organist of ability and the recital was enjoyed by a large audience.

THEATRES TO HELP BOARD OF HEALTH

Playhouses Closed to Children During Infantile Paralysis Scare.

At the conference betwen the Board of Health and the local theatre managers yesterday afternoon, the latter agreed to exclude all children under 16, whether they were with their adults or not, from all their performances, until such a time as the epidemic of infantile paralysis has subsided sufficiently to warrant a return to the usual practice. This includes the Airdome and the carnival as well as the indoor theatres.

While there is no case in Plainfield at the present time, one or more may develop at any moment, and the board feels that it should leave no stone unturned in its work of preparedness. Gatherings of children are especially discouraged on the ground that, should infection be present, the disease is likely to spread to epidemic proportions; the other hand, if the children are kept away from each other, the chances of infecting others are greatly lessened. Parents and all others having charge of children are therefore urged to keep them at home and away from contact with other children. Too many are noticed in the stores; mothers should leave them at home when shopping. Neither should the children be permitted to play in the public streets.

The work of special inspection for unsanitary conditions is being continued with the assistance of the police, particularly those responsible for accumulations of rubbish, filth or fly-breeding material of any kind. Garbage must be stored only in metal cans, having tightly fitting metal covers and must be removed by a licensed collector at least twice a week. It must be kept separate from ashes or other refuse. This applies to stores as well as households. Manure must not be allowed to breed flies, nor to become a nuisance in any way. Farmers desiring manure, may make inquiry at the Board of Health. The anti-spitting ordinance will also be enforced and offenders may expect arrest and punishment.

POLICE WILL AID TO FIGHT DISEASE

Mayor Calkins Requests Department to Co-operate With Health Authorities.

CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN

Stringent Measures Adopted to Prevent Development of Infantile Paralysis—Boy Scouts Will Also Assist in Work.

Mayor Leighton Calkins, following the conference of city officials with the Boaard of Health, held for the purpose of adopting methods to prevent the development or spread of infantile paralysis, has advised Chief P. S. Kiely as to action of the conference, and has also informed the chief that Allen E. Beals, of the Boy Scouts, at his request, has kindly offered the services of the scouts in reporting health violations. They will act as assistants to the health department. The Mayor requests the police to aid the scouts in any way possible. The Mayor's communication to Chief Kiely follows:

"In a conference which I had with the Board of Health last evening, a number of measures were decided upon, with my entire approval, in order to go as far as is possible in all reason to reduce the danger of the infantile paralysis epidemic reaching this community. I therefore now advise you as follows:

"The Board of Health is to promulgate an emergency health regulation requiring landlords, tenants, owners and householders generally to report immediately to the board, until further notice, the names of all persons coming to Plainfield, naming the localities from which they come. This is that the board may catalogue all visitors to Plainfield, in order to have complete information for the purpose of such inquiry and inspection as may be necessary.

"The Board of Health will immediately prosecute a vigorous clean-up campaign. The health inspectors are to make complaints regarding all violations of the Sanitary Code relating to uncovered garbage cans, refuse, filth, etc., not only in public places but on private property. You are hereby requested to instruct patrolmen on their respective beats to make an absolutely thorough inspection thereof and to report each case of such violation. You have previously been directed to furnish patrolmen with copies of the Sanitary Code regulations on this subject; and the patrolmen should be thoroughly familiar with the work required of them. What is wanted just now is a vigorous reporting of violations. You will please furnish the Board of Health each morning with a complete list of jail cases reported by the patrolmen.

"The management of the summer home in Netherwood has agreed to maintain a voluntary quarantine; that is, the children are to be kept upon the premises. The manager has been advised that you will assist in maintaining such quarantine as may be required. It is suggested that you keep in touch with the situation, and detail an officer on special duty for the purpose if this seems advisable. The management has also agreed to receive no more children at the camp until approved by the Board of Health.

"Other measures may be taken as conditions shall warrant. If the Board of Health deems it necessary to request the theatre proprietors and carnival management to exclude young children from their performances, I assume that the request will be complied with, and if your co-operation is called for, you will please take such action as may be required. I understand that the open air school playgrounds are not at this time to be closed to Plainfield children. In this case it is felt by the board that such action would result in the children congregating elsewhere under less healthful conditions."

CHARLES D. SHUGARS DIES IN MUHLENBERG

Charles D. Shugars, of Dunellen, aged sixty-one years, died in Muhlenberg Hospital this morning, following an operation which he underwent last Saturday. Mr. Shugars had been in failing health since last May when he fell from the roof of the blacksmith shop of the Levgar Structural plant, where he was employed. He came to Dunellen with the company from Philadelphia and had remained here for the last fifteen years with the exception of one year which he spent in Jersey City.

Mr. Shugars is survived by a son and daughter, Marshal Harry Shugars, of Dunellen, and Miss Irene Shugars, of Philadelphia. The funeral will be held from the residence of Mrs. Lydia Vail, of Lincoln avenue, Dunellen, where he boarded, Friday afternoon at 2:30 and the service will be in charge of the Rev. D. W. C. Ramsay, pastor of the Dunellen Methodist church. Interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

VILLA BANDS REPORTED BEATEN AT ROSARIO AND PARRAL AFTER ATTACKING CARRANZISTA FORCE

PRIVILEGE OF USING MEXICO NORTHWESTERN RAILROAD RESTORED TO AMERICAN TROOPS FOLLOWING LIFTING OF EMBARGO.

VILLA BELIEVED TO BE RIDING AT ARMY HEAD

Massachusetts and Pennsylvania Regiments Ordered to Big Bend District—General Calles Announced Yesterday That as War With the United States Had Been Averted He Demobilized 4,000 Troops.

(By Telegraph to the Daily Press)

Chihuahua City, Mexico, July 12.—Carranzistas administered two defeats to Villa's forces, according to the Constitutionalists today, one band being vanquished at Rosario and the other being driven off Parral after launching an attack. Report has it that Villa is not only directing the bandit attacks but is riding at the head of his army. Only meager details are obtainable concerning the two battles.

El Paso, Texas, July 12—Carranzistas have restored the privilege of American troops to receive supplies over the Mexico Northwestern railroad in return for the lifting of the embargo by the United States authorities on food and other exportations to Mexico. Villa is recruiting his forces, reports indicating that many had joined him after his success at Jimenez. Latest advises say that Villista bands have split into small sections and are proceeding in a southwesterly direction from Jimenez to Durango. General George Bell, Jr., has received information that General Jacinto Trevino is evacuating Chihuahua City. He will make his headquarters at Monterey.

This report comes on the heels of information sent to Washington by State Department officials that "Pancho" Villa is now marching toward Chihauhau City and probably will occupy it before the end of the month.

Hundreds of Trevino's soldiers are deserting him to join Villa. It is believed his move is an effort to check this by getting out of the bandit's path.

The order for the Fifth Massachusetts Infantry to patrol the Big Bend country having been cancelled, it was announced today that the regiment soon will take up border patrol in the El Paso district, while the Second and Tenth Pennsylvania Infantry Regiments will prepare for duty in the Big Bend district.

A brigade of field artillery is being formed at Fort Bliss. It comprises the Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and New Mexico artillery units wit hparts of the Fourth and Fifth Field Artillery Regiments of the regular army. Brig.-Gen. Granger Adams, U. S. A., will command, and the brigade will begin field practice on the artillery range at Fort Bliss.

Because of many reports received at headquarters of the First Massachusetts Infantry that dependent families of militiamen are suffering privation, a regimental fund has been established to aid them. The men are being encouraged by Col. John H. Sherbourne to practice economy and contribute to this fund.

The issuance yesterday of a proclamation by Gen. P. Elias Calles, Military Commander of Sonora, ordering all volunteer soldiers to return to their homes, was the signal for the beginning of an exodus of American mining and cattlemen from Douglas, Ariz. Twenty or more left Douglas for points in the interior of Sonora.

Gen. Calles announced that as war with the United States had been averted, he had demobilized 4,000 volunteer cavalrymen who had been encamped for several weeks in Fronteras, Cuchuta and Nacozari. Approximately the same number remain to be demobilized in Cananea, Magdalena and Hermisillo, he said.

STATE SENATOR EDGE VISITS THE BOROUGH

G. O. P. Gubernatorial Candidate Feels Optimistic as to Nomination and Election.

State Senator Walter E. Edge, who seeks the gubernatorial nomination, is visiting Somerset county today, and he arranged his trip so as to be in North Plainfield during the morenoon. He met a large number of voters in the borough from whom he received and gave cordial greetings.

Senator Edge feels optimistic over the success of his candidacy, believing that he has excellent chances for securing the nomination at the primaries and being elected in November. In an interview with a reporter for the Plainfield Daily Press, Mr. Edge said that wherever he had visited throughout the State, he had received assurances of support from Republicans and not a few Democrats, and while he was not over sanguine as to the result, he had reason to hope that he would be successful in his ambition.

Accompanying Senator Edge in his trip through the borough were Mayor William L. Smalley, former Sheriff Edward Cooper and several other staunch Republicans. This afternoon the party will visit other parts of the county.

WM. NEWMILLER RETURNS FROM HAVANA, CUBA

William Newimiller, of this city, who for the past two years has been foreman in the press department of the La Luch and La Noche, morning and evening newspapers of Havana, Cuba, returned home yesterday. Before going to Havana, Mr. Newmiller was employed by the Walter Scott Printing Machine Company. The El Mundo, an enterprising morning newspaper of Havana, has placed an order with the Walter Scott Company for a 48-page three-color and black printing press, to be delivered within the near future.

BOROUGH FIRE.

The North Plainfield fire department was called out yesterday afternoon to extinguish a blaze in Gavin's dump on Greenwood road. No damage was done.

CITY SWELTERS WITH TEMPERATURE OF 90

Weather Man Gives no Promise of Relief From Excessive Heat.

With the mercury at the 90 mark at 1 o'clock this afternoon, Plainfielders are experiencing a good sample of genuine summer weather, the first extreme temperature of the season. The weatherman offers no immediate relief. His predictions are fair, continued warm tonight and Thursday with moderate south and southwest winds, and unless there is an unexpected shower to cool the atmosphere, one may as well try and get used to the high temperature.

Accompanying the unusual warm spell is a great amount of humidity, which only adds to the discomfiture of poor mortals. According to the weather bureau the high temperature is pretty general throughout the Eastern States, practically every community sweltering from the heat.

During the past few days the icemen have been put to the test, the demand for frozen water being far in excess of the normal. Proprietors of shops where soda water and other cooling drinks are dispensed are having a busy time supplying the thirst of their patrons, while the ice cream dealers are enjoying a harvest. There was little sleep for the mapority of Plainfielders last night, they awoke this morning feeling almost as tired as when they went to bed. All sorts of contrivances were used to secure comfort, but with little success. Those fortunate enough to own automobiles got some relief by riding about the city and vicinity until a late hour, using their cars as a means of "cooling off" before retiring. One resident felt quite indignant yesterday when he received a notice from a coal dealer informing him that as the retail price of anthracite was constantly advancing, he had better place his order now. His answer was that he didn't care whether he ever had any coal.

BOYS DIDN'T NEED CARNIVAL TICKETS

Youngsters Were the Guests of the Daily Press and Had Laugh on Ticket Man.

Although they didn't learn anything new about delivering newspapers twenty-five youngsters employed as distributors by the Plainfield Daily Press got a lot of enjoyment out of a trip to the carnival last night as the guests of this paper. From the time the youngsters stepped into the tented village until they passed the last peanut vendor on the way out they were kept busy viewing the various novelties the festival has to offer.

As red-blooded young Americans they had to be shown the wonders of the Wonder City, the speeders on the motordome track, the ponies, dogs and other animals that went to make up the society circus and a thousand and one other numbers dear to the heart of every youth.

The event was one of a number of its kind given for he benefit of the Plainfield Daily Press carrier boys each year and the management of the carnival co-operated nobly with the circulation manager of the Press in an effort to make it a pronounced success. It was the first time many of the boys had ever enjoyed the sensation of being able to give the man at the gate that "I don't need a ticket" grin and shove on through the line to the big show. The visitors didn't need tickets for anything on the grounds. They were temporary guests and everything was at their disposal. The made the best of the one night privilege and nothing escaped their attention.

PLAINFIELD BUILDING FOR JERSEY TROOPS

Local People Raise Fund for Erection of Feature at Douglas Camp.

Through the co-operation of the Plainfield Young Men's Christian Association with the Army and Navy Department of the International Committee of Young Men's Christian Associations, instructions have been wired to erect and equip at once a Y. M. C. A. building in the brigade with which Troop D of this city is connected, to be ready if possible next Sunday, and to be known as the Plainfield building. This will be a frame building, approximately 40x100 feet, and will be equipped with chairs, writing and game tables, an organ, grafonola with fifty records, games of all sorts, writing paper and envelopes, a moving picture machine, song books and Bibles. Soft drinks and other supplies will be sold. The building is to be in charge of competent Young Men's Christian Association secretaries, who will serve the men in every possible way.

This building is the outcome of an effort which was begun last Sunday when one of the International secretaries visited Plainfield and spoke in the Crescent Avenue church and Grace Episcopal church. In response to the appeal then made, about $1,500 has been received towards the necessary $2,000. Our local people who have the matter in charge, appreciate that the work for our soldier boys must begin at once, and they have felt justified in ordering the immediate erection of the building and its equipment, knowing that the full amount of money needed would be forthcoming. It is estimated that in addition to the $2,000 about $3,000 will be needed to pay salaries and running expenses, including supplies of various sorts up to January 1. Gifts may be sent to W. D. Murray, 205 West Ninth street.

Some have raised the question as to what would become of the material if the troops should be immediately recalled. There seems to be no expectation of their immediate recall. Those who are best informed think that the men will stay certainly until after election. In any event if our boys had the use of this building and its equipment for only one month, $2,000 would be well expended in view of the temptations to which they are exposed. If they are moved to another part of the border they will find another Y. M. C. A. building, for it is proposed to build and equip at least twenty-six other buildings. Should they be recalled sooner than is expected, the equipment can be used to good advantage in the army work in other places, such as summer camps.

TIMELY SUGGESTIONS TO PREVENT DISEASE

Ways and Means to Stop the Spread of Infantile Paralysis Epidemic.

The local Board of Health at its meeting last evening took action to guard against the spreading of the epidemic of infantile paralysis in the event of its reaching this place, when it ordered the Sunday schools and public library closed until all danger from the disease has passed. A circular was also prepared outlining causes, symptoms, prevention and remedies of the plague. Copies will be distributed as soon as possible to every household. Another step was the appointment of Lloyd Smith as an extra inspector to act with his father, G. Sumner Sanfth, the regular inspector, in making a house to house canvass with a view of ascertaining any menacing garbage heaps or any other unsanitary condition.

Speaking for the board after the meeting Dr. T. H. Platt said that the general health of the borough is good.

Stanley Field, who has been visiting his grandmother, Mrs. Eliza Field, of Lincoln avenue, for the past two weeks, has returned to his home in New York city.

HOME FROM MOUNTAINS.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Carpenter, of Prospect avenue, have returned from the Pocono Mountains, where they spent their annual vacation of two weeks.

Mrs. Robert Trewin, of North avenue, has returned from Brooklyn, where she visited her cousin.

Mr. and Mrs. William Giddes left yesterday for a visit of several days at Marsh Chunk, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Giddes and family, of Port Richmond, S. I., have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Giddes.

Arthur Russ has taken a position with a local newsdealer.

Paul Smith, son of A. E. Smith, has taken a position with the Dunellen Home & Investment Company.

Mrs. Joel C. Giddes, of Lincoln avenue, who has been ill, is improving.

Alfred Day and Vincent Manahan are among the local commuters who are enjoying their annual vacations.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Van Ness entertained Mr. and Mrs. Fred Thorn, of Jersey City Heights, over the week-end.

Mrs. J. F. C. Kinney continues to improve from the effects of her recent illness.

Street Commissioner Paul Reusch had a force of men employed yesterday clearing up North avenue.

Le Grand Jones, father of Councilman Jones, who is stopping at the Mansion House, has been ill for the past few days.

PETER DOOLEY IN COURT.

Peter Dooley, of Plainfield, arraigned before Judge von Minden last evening, charged with being drunk and disorderly, was given a suspended sentence of six months by the court. This sentence becomes effective if Dooley puts in an appearance in the borough again. He was arrested by Marshal Mohan Sunday afternoon, while lying in front of a home from which he had been forcibly ejected by the tenant, who found him there upon his return from a walk.

SUBURBAN HEALTH BOARDS CO-OPERATE

Circular Concerning Infantile Paralysis is Sent to Householders in Nearby Towns.

Under the caption "Notice to Householders Concerning Infantile Paralysis," the Boards of Health of Fanwood and Scotch Plains have issued a joint circular, the text of which is as follows:

"On account of the rapid spreading of infantile paralysis in New York and the surrounding towns, and in order to prevent, if possible, any cases in our locality, the Board of Health requires that each householder read the following notification and comply with it in every detail:

"First, that from now on until further notice you advise the Board of Health of all children coming to your home, giving their names, ages and the address from which they come. Also, that you notify the Board of Health of the presence of strange children in your neighbors' homes.

"Second, that you notify the Board of Health immediately of any indisposition, or cases of illness, no matter if it be only a headache, on the part of any of your children or your friends' children.

"Third, that you keep your children or your friends' children away from any meetings, picnics, moving-picture theatres or other places where they may come in contact or mingle with strange children.

"Fourth, that every child with a cold be watched carefully by a physician and that such child be kept away from other children and that all used handkerchiefs be thoroughly disinfected or boiled.

"Fifth, that servants be prevented as far as possible from visiting where they may come in contact with strange children.

"By complying with the above, at once, without delay, you will be protecting your children, while a disregard of these requirements may not only endanger your children, but may also affect the whole community.

"We are enclosing cards to be filled out and sent to the Board of Health. Others may be had on application.

"We ask your entire co-operation.

"If in doubt, make sure by notifying Board of Health, telephone Fanwood, 1217."

At the second joint meeting held at Westfield last night of the various health boards of this vicinity, further measures were adopted to prevent the disease from getting a foothold here. Up to the present time there has not been even a suspicion of a case reported. The Sunday school officials have decided to call off the "Big 8" excursion and prevent congregations of children.

Mrs. Henry Riblet, of Russell road, left this morning for North Asbury to spend several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Hetfield and son, of North avenue, have gone to Newark to spend several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Edison B. Samus, of North avenue, are entertaining friends from Englewood.

The Thursday Bible Training Class will meet with the Misses Kyte, of Martine avenue, tomorrow afternoon.

South Plainfield.

Mrs. Melvin Shrope and daughter, Evelyn, returned home last night after enjoying a week's visit at Niagara Falls.

TIMELY RULES AS TO CARE OF HORSES

Practical Suggestions all Owners Should Follow During Summer Weather.

The Boston Work-Horse Relief Association has prepared the following "cool weather rules," in reference to the care and use of horses during the summer:

Load lightly, and drive slowly.

Stop in the shade if possible.

Water your horse as often as possible. So long as a horse is working water in small quantities will not hurt him. Do not fail to water him at night after he has eaten his hay.

When he comes in after work, sponge off the harness marks and sweat, his eyes, his nose and mouth, and the dock. Wash his feet but not his legs.

If the thermometer is 75 degrees or higher, wipe him all over with a damp sponge. Use vinegar water if possible. Do not turn the hose on him.

Saturday night give a bran mash, lukewarm; and add a tablespoonful of saltpetre.

Do not use a horse-hat, unless it is a canopy-top hat. The ordinary bell-shaped hat does more harm than good.

A sponge on top of the head, or even a cloth, is good if kept wet. If dry it is worse than nothing.

If the horse is overcome by heat, get him into the shade, remove harness and bridle, wash out his mouth, sponge him all over, shower his legs, and give him two ounces of aromatic sprits of ammonia, or two ounces of sweet spirits of nitre, in a pint of water; or give him a pint of coffee warm. Cool his head at once, using cold water, or, if necessary, chopped ice, wrapped in a cloth.

If the horse is off his feed, try him with two quarts of oats mixed with bran, and a little water; and add a little salt or sugar. Or give him oatmeal gruel or barley water to drink.

Watch your horse. If he stops sweating suddenly, or if he breathes short and quick, or if his ears droop, or if he stands with legs braced sideways, he is in danger of a heat or sun stroke and needs attention at once.

If it is so hot that the horse sweats in the stable at night, tie him outside, with bedding under him. Unless he cools off during the night, he cannot well stand the next day's heat.

CHILDREN NOT TO ATTEND.

In compliance with a request from the Board of Health, no children under sixteen years of age will be permitted to attend the Sunday school of Hope chapel until further notice, because of the prevalence of infantile paralysis. The older members of the school will assemble at the usual hour on Sunday. The clubs composed of younger boys and girls will also suspend meetings for the present.

THE TEMPERATURE.

The temperature for today as recorded by the State Trust Company's thermometer was 79 degrees at 9 a. m.; 87 degrees at 11 a. m., and 90 degrees at 1 p. m.

JULY CLEARANCE SALE

A Mammoth Storewide Stock Reduction of Fine Summer Merchandise

PRICES CUT THROUGHOUT THE STORE

Notwithstanding the heavy selling we have been doing throughout the Spring and early Summer, our stocks are still burdened with fresh and fashionable Summer merchandise. Our aim is to effect a clean sweep of Summer stocks NOW, while the goods are in demand—it being the unfailing policy here never to carry goods from season to season.

For this reason we have effected a reduction of prices that afford RARE SAVINGS on all seasonable merchandise and odd lots. The opportunities to economize are extraordinary plentiful, and exist in good numbers in all departments.

There is but a short time allowed for this clearance, and the prices on all things are so low that they will be wanted instantly by all those who appreciate the economy in buying hurriedly. We therefore urge your EARLY arrival. The earlier you come, the better selection you will have.

Editorial

An Empty Barrel Makes Most Noise

Also it is true that the worst wheel on the cart makes the loudest "squeak." There is no blare of trumpets or beating of drums about this announcement, there is nothing but business in it.

We do not find it necessary to be sensationally loud in our advertising, or to use big black type, for the very good reason that our values speak loudly enough for themselves.

Truth needs no noise to demonstrate its power for good. Figures do not lie. But big black words often cover little values.

LOCAL CADETS NOW DOWN TO HARD WORK

Plainfield Boys on Plum Island Will Be Put Through Stiff Course of Training.

Camp Washington, Plum Island, N. Y., July 12.—Now that the first few days of uncertainty are over, Camp Washington is beginning to get down to regular work. Sunday morning the camp attended divine services on the parade ground, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A.. In the afternoon a long threatening rain storm broke and the cadets, including ten from Plainfield, N. J., were treated to their first dose of real army life. Anyhow, the rain did not seem to affect the spirits of the encampment very much. Horseplay was much in evidence, and many a green "rookie" was sent to the officers' tents for five yards of skirmish line to be measured for their sentinel box, and many other foolish impossibilities.

Yesterday the equipment was passed out. On account of the rain, however, no drills were indulged in until afternoon. Recent statistics, compiled by the Y. M. C. A., show that 274 schools are represented in camp.

Permanent appointment of cadet officers will be made on July 16.

Last Saturday afternoon Company F defeated Company H in the first of a series of baseball games. In the evening bonfires wer lighted on the beach. The various company commanders made speeches and there were also addresses by the Y. M. C. A. men.

AUTO HORNS GIVE WARNING OF ATTACK

Their Value is Demonstrated at the "Listening Posts" on French Front.

The latest use for Klaxon automobile horns is at the "listening posts" along the French lines at Verdun. William R. Fay, of the American Ambulance who has just returned to New York, brings with him the information that these well known signal horns are being put to this unique use.

"The listening posts," says Mr. Fay, "are located in front of the French lines, some times within a few feet of the lines of the enemy. The men who volunteer for service at these posts are among the bravest of the French army, for it means almost certain death. They must also have extremely acute hearing, in order to detect indications of a gas attack.

"When these indications are heard, a button is pressed, whiz sounds the Klaxon horns and thus gives warning of the attack to the trenches behind, enabling them to put on their gas masks, and prepare."

In many other interesting ways are Klaxon horns contributing to the great conflict. On the ships of the French navy they are used to signal gunners. Vehicles of the American ambulances are equipped with them, and they are used in large numbers on motor cycles of dispatch riders. They are the same Klaxons which in Canada and the United States are used so extensively on automobiles, and whose warning note is so familiar to every motorist and pedestrian.

DR. HARRISON WILL SPEAK AT TRINITY CHURCH TONIGHT

Dr. Paul W. Harrison, missionary from Trinity Reformed church to Arabia, who has been in this country several months, during which time he has been speaking at various colleges in the interest of the work, will be in charge of the prayer meeting at Trinity church tonight. He will have something to say concerning his work.

Dr. Harrison has not yet decided just when he will return to Arabia. He may wait until fall so as to reach his mission station at a more favorable time of the year from a weather standpoint.

JUDGE DEMEZA SOUNDS PUBLIC HEALTH WARNING

Determined to do all he can to better health conditions in the city, Judge William G. DeMeza in police court this morning sounded a warning to all who violate the sanitary code, when he gave a severe lecture to Louis Devino, Italian, of Johnston avenue, who was charged by the Board of Health with throwing rubbish in a vacant lot at Johnston and Midway avenue.

The police department, city officials and Board of Health, he said, would cooperate in breaking up the nuisance that was a menace to health. Sentence on Devino was suspended, but the Judge said emphatically that the next person who came before him on a similar charge would receive a heavy fine and for a second offense a jail term.

PUT ON PAROLE.

When he was arraigned before City Judge William G. DeMeza in police court this morning on a charge of drunkenness, Joseph Stevens, of Second street, promised to let the drink alone, and he was put on parole to report to Chief Kiely every Saturday night.

Drug stores come and go with the years. They grow and decline, they progress and retrogress, they survive and they perish.

The kind that are progressive survive; the other kind fails. There is no standing still in the world of business activities—one must go forward or back.

We have endeavored to be progressive in our methods, to represent at all times the highest ideals in pharmacy.

Being particular isn't always being "fussy." Sometimes it's merely "playing safe."

You can't be too particular about the milk you give your children. It's a question of their safety.

The more you know about milk the more particular you'll be to use only certified milk.

You know that's safe.

Wood Brook milk is safe milk. It's certified.

HOWARD A. COLBY BENEFICIARY OF WILL

One of Twenty Nieces and Nephews to Receive Bequest of $500.

New York, July 12.—Under the will of his aunt, Mrs. Georgette Emeline Wolfe, widow of Daniel Wolfe, and daughter of the late Gardner Colby, which was executed on December 23, 1908, Howard A. Colby, of Evergreen avenue, Plainfield, is one of the twenty nieces and nephews who receive $500 each. The report of the appraisal was filed in the surrogate's court here today.

Property valued at $18,000 was left here, but the papers do not show what property is left outside of New York State. Aside from a number of personal bequests to relatives, $52,000 was left to various institutions, and the residue is equally divided btween three step-children and seven nieces. The Woman's Baptist Foreign Missionary Society of Boston, which receives $20,000; Newton Baptist Theological Institution, Newton Centre, Mass., and Colby College, which receives $5,000, are among some of the institutions remembered in the will.

HEALTH AUTHORITIES GIVE TIMELY WARNING

Requests Full Co-operation of Parents in Seeking to Prevent Spread of Disease.

"Keep the kiddies cool, clean and comfortable. Keep them out of cars, and especially away from other kiddies with colds or other ailments. Keep the flies away by covering or destroying anything that might attract the flies," says the Department of Social Welfare of the New York Associaion for Improving the Condition of the Poor, in a statement issued Monday, in which it gives practical suggestions to the residents of New York city and its suburbs with regard to the infantile paralysis epidemic. The statement says further:

"If your kiddies are in the country, be thankful for that and keep them there. If they are not in the country or at the shore, get them there if you can, but have all possible consideration for the people in the country. Before going away with a child from a district where there have been cases, have the child carefully examined to make sure that he is in a condition to go away and that he cannot spread the disease.

"Also keep calm yourself. Infantile paralysis is a frightful thing, to be guarded against by every possible precaution. But it is reassuring to think that even in New York city, where the epidemic is worst, only one child in 2,000 has had the disease. That one chance in 2,000 should be guarded against absolutely, but it is not sufficient cause for panic.

"In New York's suburbs, where the percentage of cases is still less, there is still less cause for alarm because all conditions are less favorable for the spread of the disease."

The four fresh air homes and camps of the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor are full to their capacity with mothers and children from the tenements and hundreds of appeals are coming in daily from anxious parents who want to get their children away from the city. As soon as the tenement mothers learned that the fresh air homes, especially Sea Breeze, are admitting no children except after the most careful examination by doctors and nurses and that every possible precaution was being taken, they began to appeal more urgently than ever for outings for their children. To meet the emergency, the Association is adding additional nurses to its staff as fast as they can be secured. Wherever it is possible to do so safely and quickly, the Association's outing places will be enlarged to meet the increased demand being made upon them.

E. G. MAUGER RECEIVES BEQUEST OF $1,234.28

New York, July 12.—Out of a net estate amounting to $24,847.07 left by Elizabeth Fullick, who died February 23, 1916, Edward G. Mauger, of 705 West Seventh street, Plainfield, who is co-executor and beneficiary, receives $2234.28 as his share for commissions for acting as such for the estate and a specific bequest of $1,000, which was devised to him under the testatrix's will of January 31, 1914. An appraisal of the woman's estate was filed today in the surrogate's court. Mr. Mauger became co-executor of the estate on April 20 last.

ADVERTISED IN THE PRESS.

Another instance of the advantage of advertising for your lost and found articles in the Plainfield Daily Press columns was demonstrated yesterday. Mrs. Seay, of Richmond street, advertised for a lost fraternity pin bearing the initials "H. U. C. C." surrounding the number "16," on Monday evening. In this morning's mail at this office the pin was returned by an unknown finder, who did not desire any reward whatever.

OF all hot weather beverages Beer is the safest, and it is an ideal thirst quencher as well.

Besides being a delightful beverage, its moderate use aids in the digestion of food taken and also furnishes additional nourishment. Its clean, satisfying bitter stimulates the appetite, and owing to its composition and character of its ingredients supplies a considerable amount of easily digested nutritive material.

Dr. Cukor, a German physician, writing in the Allg. Wiener Medical Zeitung, said:—

"Beer is not merely a food luxury but a valuable source of nourishment, for it is capable of favorably influencing effective strength, even in cases of inadequate nutrition. A bottle of Beer, Bacon and Bread for the noontime meal renders a man capable of the hardest work."

As a properly brewed, wholesome Beer of absolute purity we advocate the use of

RUPPERT'S Knickerbocker
The Beer That Satisfies

It is a beverage of absolute purity and a SAFE drink because, unlike Milk and Water, it cannot carry deleterious germs. It is made of the highest quality ingredients and is subjected to the most advanced processes of brewing, filtering, aging, bottling and Pasteurization, assuring a finished product that is absolutely unsurpassed.

TROOPERS AWED BY WESTERN LANDSCAPE; MYSTIFIED BY MOUNTAINS AND PLAINS

Douglas, Ariz., July 5.—Red burnt-ash hills, rising out of an arid plain of ankle deep adobe dust, sparsely dotted with cactus, greasewood and mesquite, with a background of grim, blue-gray mountains, all simmering in the terrible heat; sand storms spiralling across the stretches of desolation from Mexico, propelled by the burning sirocco winds, like charging columns of foemen, and in this burning saucer, dust-covered tents and threadlike columns of pigmy men, little toys in the waste places—this is the camp of Troop D and the other New Jersey units.

Due south and west is the boundary line, marked by white columns at half-mile intervals, and just beyond are the trenches that were used by the Mexicans in the Agua Prieta fight of a year ago; north, and almost at the end of the camp, is the village of Pirtleville, with its adobe houses and its population of Mexicans, dogs, fleas and disease. Southeast, the great chimneys, buildings and slag heaps of the smelter of the Copper Queen mine make a scar on the drab monotone of nature—nature that is highly colorful in its colorlessness; that is all embracing and almost awsome in its grim loneliness.

This is the daytime with its discomforts of the dust, heat and pitiless sun, when the men have to keep under shelter—such shelter as the burning hot canvas offers, and where they have to move carefully at all times because of the altitude, waiting until they become acclimated. But the nights! To any one who has lived here, the term Arizona means something!

Evening Brings Relief.

When the sun slowly dips behind the high range of mountains, casting long purple shadows across the flat lands, while the peaks are still illumined with the bright light of the fading day, the sand devil seems to heed the warning of the sweet, low wind that comes out of the West and the sand storms cease their plaguing antics. The dust-covered bushes and shrubs seem to lift their thorned plumage to the call of the wind, and the pungent, sweet scent of the desert sage, the plain poppies and the cactus give a wild tang to the air that is as soothing to the tired lungs as the long shadows that creep slowly down the hills are to the burned eyes.

And then the desert night! There is no lingering twilight. When the shadows have crept from our hills, and night has spread its blanket over the Mexican highlands, the stars seem literally to stud the sky and the golden moon softens the fairy light of the diamond stars until the grim pitiless country is transformed into a wonderland. The alkali-laden dust become beautiful ground work on which the fantastic shadows of the desert growths are cast. The blue quail call softly from the mesquite and the lonely cry of a coyote only intensifies the stillness.

The scuttling of the lizards and horned toads can be plainly heard as they seek protection under the thorny guard of the cactus against the attacks of their enemy, the desert owl. The air is sweet and cool, tired eyes feel rested, weary bodies are refreshed, laughter is heard and the tiny lights gleam through the brown tent walls, until the little camp of a few thousand men in the grip of the great silence looks like a lot of jack o' lanterns grouped in the center of a great lawn, that had been laid out by cunning gnomes and fairies versed in the mystic art of shadow land.

Thoughts of Home Come.

Contentment comes—and thoughts of home. There is no ill feeling against any one or anything. We are not a camp of fighting men, with potential enemies possibly within gun shot. We are just men in the grip of nature, until the eyes are dragged away from the plains and turned to the mountains—and then we are children.

They reach up to the stars, these mountains, up to the stars that seem at different levels, the smaller ones almost within reach of the hand, and the others, receding layer by layer into the mysterious purple, blue-black sky. There are mysterious lights in the folds of these great hills; some gleam coldly, looking down on the puny efforts of man, others seem to float light in the moonbeams, their foothills and bases hidden from the human eye—and there are castles fit for a lady's bower, and grim fortresses with great craggy battlements, the habitation of giants that bring back the tales of Hans Anderson, while others—

But why try to put the scene on cold, unresponsive paper? It makes men silent, gazing at the mysteries; everything seems so far away, as it did to the boy in the old Dutch tale who thought long, long thoughts that were not thoughts. And then the spell is broken—no, not broken, but intensified, as a great glaring, golden red molten river flows down a purple hill, trying ineffectually to vie with the mystic mountain light, the molten slag from the furnaces. There are spouts of flames from the great smoke stacks, the burning river spreads slowly, dulling and growing duller, until it melts away and is no more. It is in the thrall of the desert land, when a man cannot be little or mean, when human striving and effort seem pitiful and small, when puny beings are in the land of the old gods of the hills and plains that have looked on the passing of the countless centuries and have seen nations come and go.

Mountains Keep Age Secret.

Great cities may be built here, great armies pitch their tents, but they are only little things that do not disturb, mar or beautify; they are lost in the great mysterious heart of the West.

These great mountains and silent flat lands know when the unknown races trod southward, these races that have left us ruins and cliff dwellings, they were the same as today when the Toltec came down from somewhere in the north, in the seventh century, and settled in what is now old Mexico on the plains of Chihuahua and the rugged mountains of Sonora. They could tell the unknown reasons why this great race melted mysteriously away.

These sand plains and dust-laden plains whisper to the red hills and the great mountains the story of the Chichimecs, the Chinese-like race that settled here in the twelfth century and extended their sway to far-away Yucatan; how in the thirteenth century the Aztecs—the Mexicans of today—made the Arizona plains their homes and the Arizona hills their lookout posts; how from here they moved southward to Lake Texcoco, where they established the city of Tenochtitlan, the Mexico City of today. The birth of the Mexican nation really began in the waste places where we now have our armed thousands, before the foot of a white man had trod the ground or the eye of a white man had gazed on its wonders.

They know the later history of the Yaquis and their blood brothers, the Apaches. Our Apaches have been civilized to death—eliminated practically by the march of the white man, but dusky, straight-haired Yaquis yet look down on us from their hills and deem us enemies. These hills could tell of the advance of the white man, the search for gold, the death struggles of the white and the red men, the wars and the little rules and laws of mankind that laid down boundaries which the plains and mountains ignore, boundaries that never stopped a sand storm, that never caused the moon to discriminate in weaving its soothing spell, or the sun in sending down its summer wrath.

Hills and Plains Whisper Tale.

When the night stillness grips one, and the heart is purged of mundane thoughts, one can hear the hills and plains whispering to each other, telling these tales, but no human mind can understand—they talk of occurrences of time—of the drifting sands that have covered the bones of forgotten nations. Some men who have been accepted by the desert have been allowed to understand, a little, a very little, and years ago one of them wrote:

"World wrongly called the new! this clime was old
When first the Spaniard came in search of gold.
Age after age its shadowy wings had spread
And man was born and gathered to the dead;
Cities arose, ruled, dwindled to decay,
Empires were formed then darkly swept away;
Race followed race, like cloud shades o'er the field,
The stranger still to stranger doomed to yield.
The last grand line that swayed these hills and waves,
Like Israel, wandered long midst wilds and caves,
Then settling in their Canaan, cities reared,
Fair science wooed, a milder God revered,
Till to invading Europe bowed their pride,
And pomp, art, power with Montezuma died."

All this our New Jersey boys are thinking and wondering, while the officers try to shake off the glamour of the waste places and plan campaigns, and then, when the lulling night winds have wooed them to sleep, when the sick feel no pain and the sorrowful forget their sorrow, the gods of the hill prepare another treat for their little ant-like guests—or rather, go on with their ago-old routine—and morning comes.

Then Morning Dawns.

At the dark hour, just before the first rays of day touch the hills with the Alpine glow, the hour when man sleeps deepest and when the Indians love to make their terrible silent charges, the soothing night winds die, the world is rolled in a black pall and the sentries grow tense at their posts. A new wind, cooling, but different springs up, the mountains show like iridiscent glass above the graying plains and then the sun creeps up. For a few priceless hours his smile is only genial, and men work hard, but when he begins to get overhead the plains begin to sizzle, the wind gods release the blasts from the inferno, the sand storms begin, everything is choked with dust and the kind, soothing gods give way to the grim gods of high day.

Soon the sons of the East will be treated to another phase of the waste places. The rains will come—not cold Eastern rain, but great cloudbursts of warm rain—the dust will become mud that will quickly dry in the rarefied atmosphere, the dry, bleak water courses will become rushing torrents, the mountains will be wrapped in rain cloud wreaths and the hill gods will not whisper at night.

The men will not catch cold even if they sleep on the wet ground because of the drying winds that will follow between the rains and suddenly they will realize that the rulers of the waste places have prepared another treat.

Rains to Bring Verdure.

The drab stretches of dust will suddenly become verdant, the sage brush will become a pretty blue gray, the cactus will send out flowers and California poppies will scent the air and please the eye. The stretches of swale grass in the cuts of the foothills, burnt and yellow now, will become as green as the grass back home, and the stunted cottonwood trees that cluster gray and withered at the foot of the red ash hills will stand out olive green. Then the semi-tropical birds will come and with them will be the pin-tailed grouse. The foxes will creep out of their hiding places, that no man knows in the dry season, and their hunting cry will be heard at night. The glasses can pick out the antelope and deer and, on the hillsides, if a man with glasses is lucky, he may see a bear digging roots.

It is then that the cattle grow fat and when the rains are over, about the middle of August, the grass will wither a little again and then the fall will come, when the gods of the hills and the plains will produce more wonders from their alchemist shops.

What tomorrow will bring we do not know, but the country is working its spell. Our boys are becoming men out here close to nature. They have no bitter feeling against the swarthy sharers of all this glory below the boundary line. They are here because they are Americans; they are here to carry out orders, close lipped and prompt; they are here to die if necessary and add their bones to the great collection of centuries in this land of chivalry and romance. They are soldiers.

"QUEEN ESTHER" GIVEN AT PARK AVE. CHURCH

The Biblical cantata "Queen Estehr," was given last night in the Park Avenue Baptist church, under the auspices of the Young People's Society. Despite the extreme heat there was a fair sized audience and all were well pleased with the various numbers. This is the third time that "Queen Esther" has been presented in this city by the same cast. The leading role of "Queen Esther" was sung by Miss Etta Raybert, soprano soloist of Trinity Reformed church.

Miss Raybert was assisted by Joseph Martin as the "King;" Horace and Ralph Martin and Mrs. Apgar. The rendition was given under the directorship of Mrs. Charles S. Day, of New Market and Miss Biles presided as the accompanist.

FLOWER GUILD MEETING.

The Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild will hold its regular meeting Friday night, July 14, at 7:45, in the Friends' Meeting House at the corner of Watchung avenue and Third street. The Epworth League of Grace Methodist church, led by Mrs. Joseph Rutledge, will conduct the opening devotional service. Rev. B. S. Hudson, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will deliver a short address. Miss Hall will sing a solo. The music will be in charge of Mrs. John C. Evans. All are cordially invited to attend and bring their Biederwolf hymn books with them.

NO SUNDAY SCHOOL FOR CHILDREN UNDER 16 YEARS

Because of the stringent measures being taken by the local health authorities against infantile paralysis infection, there will be no Sunday school for children under 16 years of age at the Watchung Avenue Presbyterian church for the present. Sunday school for others will be held as usual at 9:45.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, JULY 12, 1916.

CARRY THE "BLACKLIST" OR PREPARE TO SUFFER.

Although Plainfield is just about as nearly perfect in the regulation of a liquor traffic as any other city or municipality in the State, it is not without a blemish. But this mar will be wiped out if City Judge William G. De Meza and the police department have anything to say about it. During the past two days the police court magistrate has had brought to his attention an instance where a local saloonkeeper persists in selling to habitual drinkers who have long since been "blacklisted." It is not the first instance of the kind credited to the same license holder. In the eyes of the court he is an old offender and one who is wide-awake to his wrong-doing. Plainfield has its "jag list" and those saloonkeepers who disregard the court's orders must expect rough sledding when license time rolls around, if not before. Judge De Meza is determined to weed out the thirst quenching emporium that belittles the authority of the court and Chief Kiely and the police department are ready to back him up. According to those familiar with conditions locally there is but one objectionable distributor of intoxicants in Plainfield and as a license holder he is an undesirable. The sooner his place is closed up the better it will be for the community and those men who choose to conduct their establishments within the prescribed bounds. The "black-list" is one of the most valuable assets to liquor traffic regulation ever organized and Plainfield is going to maintain it as long as there are saloons.

IS THE WORLD REPARING FOR WAR?

People who have figured out an early end of the war in Europe and a long, perhaps endless, peace to follow it, cannot bear out their predictions with the statistics from the big shipping ports of the United States. From New York alone in the week ending June 24, war shipments to Europe amounted to $40,000,000, of which the value that went to England was a round $25,000,000 and to France $12,000,000. But the most striking feature of these war exports is not in the size of shipments to the nations that have been at each others' throats for two years. The worst is still to come. Brazil, Argentine, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, Uruguay, Venezuela, Cuba, Haiti, Panama and San Domingo are gathering war materials of all descriptions from American plants in enormous quantities. And while we are almost at blows with Mexico, war supplies are still heavily listed in the shipping from American ports to Mexico. From New York to Japan there is a strong and constant stream of war materials. The world is getting ready for war apparently, not for peace, but it may strike Americans in the ranks as a bit queer that we are selling as fast as we can make to the very countries with which we may soon be having trouble. We're so busy that American farmers can't get supplies because the factories are turning out war stuff for the people we may be fighting before long.

WE HAVE TROUBLE ENOUGH WITHOUT HUNTING IT.

Rumors to the contrary notwithstanding there are positively no cases of infantile paralysis within the city limits. That is, we have the word of the local Health Board officials and chief city executive for it and we presume that the people of Plainfield are willing to take these assurances at their face value. Reports have come to the Press office daily since the scare broke out carrying with them the names and addresses of afflicted parties. Investigations have brought out the fact that information of this kind has been based on hearsay and as a rule may be credited to persons who occupy their time attempting to stir up trouble and launch groundless causes for fear. If a case makes its appearance here the Board of Health will make the matter public immediately and even if we do discover a case or two, which seems unlikely, there will be no occasion for the populace to get wrought up. Every known preventative measure is being taken and the city officials are co-operating to keep the dreaded malady out of our city. It is far better to assist the work than to endeavor to retard it by false reports and anyone having even the slightest suspicion that a case is developing or has developed will be doing only his individual duty to report it without delay to the health officer.

POLITICS BARRED OUT OF CHURCH, BUT—

Rev. James G. Mason, of Metuchen, Prohibition candidate for President of the United States, had a spat with a Baptist minister in Asbury Park a few days ago because the Baptist minister would not allow the candidate to speak in his church. The church has a rule against allowing partisan politics to be discussed, and as Dr. Mason is a candidate for President—even though not a dangerous factor—the rule was made to apply to him. But the spat was made up, and the candidate later spoke. It probably doesn't make much difference where Dr. Mason speaks, but a rule against candidates should be enforced against all—if at all.

Some of those truck drivers who have been testing out machines for a local automobile manufacturing concern would make excellent chauffeurs for duty on the border, save for the fact that they would probably get homesick for crowded streets and dodging pedestrians. There's a reward out for the one who can solve the question as to why these testers prefer the busiest streets in the city for their trial driving.

Have you happened across any of those High School graduates who were sent out into the world last month with a "Where shall we anchor?" "Whence and Whither?" "The tree that ceases to grow begins to decay," or "Beyond the Alps lies Italy." Are they moulding their future right here in Plainfield or have they sought other shores? What have we to offer them as an inducement for life work?

Unpreparedness has hit the Plainfield police department just as hard as it slid up against General Sadler's New Jersey troops, if we are to take recent appearances as a criterion. Met a new recruit on the street the other night garbed out in his civilian suit and hat and decorated with a silver badge and formidable looking club. The new uniforms did not arrive as soon as the new cops.

The authorities here picked up a Pennsylvania youth yesterday who had run away to join the Krause carnival, now on exhibit in Plainfield. All of which goes to prove that the Krause outfit bears the credentials of an honest-to-goodness carnival with the usual attractiveness to youth.

Although they're not supposed to have sense enough to realize it there are a few thousand kiddies in the country today who are wondering why this infantile paralysis didn't come upon us during school time. Just one good chance for a little extra vacationing shot to pieces.

You Know the Old Tunes.

I have heerd a lot of singin' by the high-priced opry stars,
Who go travelin' round the country in their high-toned special cars.
These here singers that are getting many thousands every night,
And I ain't dead set agin' 'em for some folks think they're all right.

I suppose expensive screechin' is the kind we ought to hear,
But it ain't the kind of singin' that is music to my ear.
Now, my kind, of course, ain't opry, but I'd surely call it grand
Just to hear my mother warble once again old "Beulah Land."

I have paid my good five dollars just to git a ringside seat,
And to listen to the singin' which they say cannot be beat.
Guess I must be some old-fashioned, fer I didn't get a thrill,
Though I set right there a-squirmin' through the whole grand opry bill.

I don't like this tuneless music; it don't seem to git nowhere,
But he keeps perambulating round the landscape, here and there.
I'm a rube and an old fogy, it is very plain to see,
But a song like "Annie Laurie" is the kind that just suits me.

A Soliloquy.

To mote or not to mote—that is the question.
Whether it is nobler in the heart to suffer
And walk, or hike, or hire a horse and buggy,
Or take up arms against a sea of troubles,
Of carbureters, oil pumps and tires that puncture,
Of gasoline that's boosted to the heavens.
Or is it best to walk and never know them,
Or travel in the hot and dusty tram-car,
Thus not invited and thereby escaping
The heartache and the thousand natural shocks
That cars are heir to? 'Tis a consummation,
Perhaps, devoutly to be wished.

The End of Romance.

"How glorious the sunset is,"
She cried in sheer delight.
"Observe those lovely crimson tints,
So beautiful and bright."

Said he: "Do you remember when
I had that awful cough?
I looked like that the night I took
The mustard plaster off?"

THE ADVANTAGES OF GOVERNMENT BY COMMISSION ARE DESCRIBED IN ESSAY

"Government by Commission" was the subject of the composition submitted by Richmond Ritterbusch, Class '16, for the Plainfield Daily Press prize for the best story on a municipal topic. The essay is as follows:

What is the worst feature of American democracy? What is it that the world criticises in our form of government? Without a doubt, the city government is the one blot on our system. For years, our graft-controlled cities have brought us the scorn of European nations. America, always so ready to experiment, always so revolutionary in regard to government, is beginning to improve municipal control. What is the best solution of this difficulty? Commission government will do much to help matters.

In order to see what commission government will do, we must first analyze this system. Commission government provides for a commission of five, seven or nine men who have the entire control of the city government. These men are elected without reference to party and they serve for a short term usually two or three years. If advisable, they may be re-elected. They receive salaries large enough to enable them to devote sufficient time to their work. One of the commissioners is the city mayor. He is elected for this special office, but his only additional duties are to preside at the meetings and to represent the city at public functions. Each commissioner has charge of one department, and he is responsible to the people for the work of that department.

Of what benefit would such a system be to Plainfield? I claim that it has five definite advantages.

1. It is truly representative.
2. It will guarantee more efficient work in the various departments.
3. It will provide a business administration.
4. It will eliminate graft.
5. It will eliminate machine politics.

Many people will say that our present system is representative. To a certain extent, this is true. Two councilmen are elected from each ward, and they represent the wards, not the city. But some will say that we have three councilmen-at-large. Would it not be better to have the entire governing force represent the city than to have it three-elvenths represented as is the case at present? Were the officials truly representative, they would be more popular. Their work would make them well-known. Every school boy and every school girl knows Chief Doane, Chief Kiely and Dr. Maxson, but how many educated people or business men can name six of the eleven councilmen? Do you know enough about your councilmen to vote intelligently for them? The man who had charge of a department would furnish deeds upon which you could base your votes. Commission government is representative and it brings the public officials in close touch with the public they serve.

In the second place, commission government would give better department control. Under our present system, the Mayor and Council appoint most of our boards, such as health, police and fire boards. All these boards are responsible to the Council and Mayor. Under commission government, the department-heads are responsible to the people. If a man is elected on a Democratic ticket which favors low tariff, free silver and organized labor, how is he qualified to serve on the health board? If a man is elected on a Republican platform advocating high tariff, imperialism and preparedness, how is he qualified to serve on the street board? He is required to study the issues of the party platform but not the special work he will need to perform. Simply belonging to a party and believing in its principles qualifies a man for election if that party is successful, but it does not fit him for the special work required of him. How many unqualified politicians have acquired important city offices on the merits of an honest, deserving man at the head of the ticket? Too many people vote party tickets blindly and thus receive one good and two bad officials. Commission government eliminates this, for under this system no party designations are made on the tickets. The people are elected because of their special fitness. Therefore, the city receives better department control.

In addition to better department control, commission government will give a clean business administration. Every city is a corporation. It does business under a charter much the same as an oil or steel corporation. The officials are the directors and every citizen is a stock-holder. As a stockholder, you are vitally interested in the affairs of your city. You want to know about the government and you want to know the officials. Commission government is the best means to these ends. Wherever it has been tried, it has been proved that commission government gives a business-like administration. In Galveston, beginning business under the handicap of a large debt, a flood-wrecked city and a suffering population, this system paid the debt in a short time, rebuilt the city, and relieved the homeless people. Nothing but a business-like government could have accomplished this.

Through publicity, this system eliminates graft. All expenditures ofany size must be voted upon by the public. By a petition of one hundred signers, the people can require any legislation to be submitted to them for approval. No franchise can be granted without the public consent. A government operating under such public supervision can have little opportunity to swindle public funds. Some people say that you may secure grafters for commissioners. Considering the fact that all proceedings must have the approval of the entire commission, you are not taking a very great risk. So long as there is one honest man on the commission, he will act as a check upon the others. A mayor, by corrupt methods could control affairs to suit his own ends, but a body of five could not accomplish this so readily.

Commission government eliminates machine politics, and this is perhaps the best reason for adopting it. This plan provides that any citizen who files a petition signed by one hundred voters shall be a candidate for nomination. Using the five commissioner plan for a basis, the ten receiving the highest number of voters at the primaries are nominated. Of these, five are elected at the regular election. No party names or symbols are used on the ballots. The names are printed alphabetically, and numbered for the aid of illiterates. In Buffalo, the former commissioner of Public Works was a candidate. He had served for a number of years under the old aldermen system and he was a strong party politician. To the surprise of all, he was defeated. Of the four elected, two were Republicans and two Democrats. With the exception of a former State Senator, none had held public office before, but all were fitted to serve their city.

Since commission government is truly representative, gives efficient department control, give a business-like administration, eliminates graft, and eliminates machine politics, it should be adopted by American cities. Hundreds of cities have taken this step to improve American politics, and Plainfield should not hesitate to follow. This would benefit the city and it would be an expression of patriotism, for it would bring municipal politics nearer the high ideals of American democracy.

- Proctor's Theatre -

Today for the last time two extraordinary photoplay features are on view at Proctors' theatre. They are the first pictures of the arrival of the giant German submarine "Deutschland" at Baltimore, which were secured by the management of Proctors far in advance of any other theatre in this section of the State. Many different views are shown, including pictures of the captain and the courageous crew who succeeded in running the British blockade in their diminutive sub-sea craft. Another picture that has created a sensation among local residents is that showing the camp of the crack Troop D, during their sojourn at Sea Girt, prior to their departure for the Mexican border. The regular program today consists of Joe Collins, in her initial appearance upon the screen in a William Fox production, entitled "A Woman's Honor," and the last episode of "The Iron Claw," in which the true identity of the mysterious "Laughing Mask" is revealed to the spectators. Unless we are very much mistaken, Miss Collins has the makings of a genuine screen star. Her presence, her features, her animation, her command of restraint, and her ability to hold dramatic scenes are clearly shown. On Thursday Thomas H. Ince will present Bessie Barriscale in her latest Triangle play entitled "Sorrows of Love," in which she is ably supported by a capable cast including William Desmond. A Keystone comedy entitled "Love's Getaway" and also a dramatic feature produced by Lubin with Alan Forrest in the leading role entitled "The Stolen Master."

On Friday and Saturday Charlie Chaplin will appear in his latest Mutual comedy entitled "The Vagabond," in which he is given plenty of opportunity to exploit his fun-making abilities. This feature will be presented in addition to the regular program at no increase of prices and plenty of variety will be provided. A production of wide appeal will soon appear for a three days engagement at Proctors. It is Anna Pavlowa, the famous Russian dancer, in "The Dumb Girl of Portici."

MRS. ELIZA J. MENGER NINETY-FOUR TODAY

Quietly Observes Anniversary of Bithday at Home of Her Daughter.

Mrs. Eliza Jane Menger has reached another milestone in her long life and today she enters the ninety-fifth year of her age, which event she is quietly observing at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Cornelia A. Zabriskie at 11 West End avenue. Despite her advancing years, Mrs. Menger enjoys excellent health, retaining her faculties to a remarkable degree. She devotes most of her time to reading newspapers, books and magazines, and is especially well versed in the latest happenings in the European war, as well as the developments in the Mexican situation, her interest in these world events being very keen.

Mrs. Menger was born in New York on July 12, 1822, being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie McCandless. Her father was employed on the New York Evening Post for a number of years. He contracted cholera during an epidemic of the disease in the early days, which caused his death. Mrs. Menger and her daughter, Mrs. Zabriskie, came to Plainfield about 1896, and have lived together ever since.

Because of her advanced age Mrs. Menger is unable to leave her home, but she is still active about the house and finds many little things to do to occupy her mind. As a conversationalist she is most interesting and she frequently loves to recall incidents in her early life. She is one of the oldest, if not the oldest, member of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, but is now unable to attend services.

Mrs. Menger has three children, Mrs. Zabriskie, with whom she lives; Mrs. Charles Smith, of South Beach, Conn., and Louis Menger, of New York city. Mr. Menger and his wife are spending the day at the home of his mother. The birthday observance is being made of pleasure not only to Mrs. Menger, but members of her immediate family.

HOSPITAL CORPS DOING WELL.

A letter was received yesterday from Lester Chandler, the North Plainfield boy, who is with the First New Jersey Hospital Corps at Douglas, Arizona, with the rest of the New Jersey militia. Chandler has new been promoted to the rank of officers' mess orderly, and says that the heat down there seldom registers under 100 degrees. All the other local boys in the corps are doing well, and Seals and Manley, who were rejected at Sea Girt, expect to rejoin their comrades by Thursday of this week.

GOOD BACKS FOR BAD.

Plainfield Residents Are Learning How To Exchange the Old Back For a Stronger One.

Does your back ache, feel weak and painful?

Do you suffer headaches, languor and depression?

Is the urine discolored, passages irregular?

The kidneys may be calling for help.

Weak kidneys cannot do their work.

Give them the help they need.

To cure a kidney backache you must cure the kidneys.

Use a tested and proven kidney remedy.

Doan's Kidney Pills have stood the test.

Convincing proof of merit in Plainfield endorsement:

Mrs. C. B. Coriell, 60 Manning avenue, Plainfield, says: "I suffered from kidney disorders for years and the principal symptom was a severe backache. Since I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills, I have taken them off and on and they have always acted like magic, giving me prompt relief."

Half the Sun Was Below the Horizon.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—How the Sun Set On the Sea.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

THE children wanted a story so much they hardly wiggled. So daddy told them about eleven swans, who were really princes, that carried their sister off to sea: "All day they flew on and on like an arrow whizzing through the air. But toward night they flew more slowly, for they had their sister to carry and a storm was coming up. Elise, the sister, saw the sun sinking with terror, for her brothers, who became princes at every nightfall, had told her that in crossing the sea they rested on a high rock that stuck up out of the water. And now this lonely rock was nowhere to be seen.

"The swans seemed to be taking stronger strokes, but Elise knew her weight was a burden. She also knew that as soon as the sun set they would become princes and, with no rock to stand on, would all be hurled into the sea and drowned.

"How Elise prayed for a glimpse of the rock! But black clouds gathered, and strong winds foretold the storm. The clouds looked like great leaden waves, and flashes of lightning tore them.

"Then the clouds passed, and Elise saw a dull sun at the edge of the sea. Her heart stopped, and the swans shot downward so suddenly that she thought they were falling. Then they hovered. Half the sun was below the horizon now, and for the first time she saw the little rock below, which did not look much bigger than the head of a seal above the waves. The sun sank. It was no bigger than a star. But when it dipped out of sight her foot touched solid rock."

"Goody, goody!" cried the children.

"By lightning flashes she saw her brothers standing around her, arm in arm, for there was only just enough room for them. The waves beat upon the rock and washed over them like drenching rain. Thunder pealed, and a glare of lightning lit the sky. But the brothers and sister clung to each other and sang to give themselves comfort and courage.

"At dawn the storm fell, and the air became pure and still. Soon as the sun rose the swans flew off with Elise away from the rock that had saved them all the stormy night. The sea still ran high in great waves, and from the sky it looked as if the white foam on the green waves were millions of swans floating on the water."

"Oh, daddy, let's clap that they were all saved!" cried Jack. So daddy and Jack and Evelyn all clapped good night.

Marrying a Butterfly

By MRS EVA LEONARD

The New Maid Shows Signs of Not Being Quite Up to the Standard Expected.

"Ralph, Mrs. Pearson is sick." Ethel met her husband at the door, looking very much distressed.

"What seems to be the matter?"

"I do not know. She must have some fever, her face is so flushed. She had started the washing. Everything is a-soak. Finally she came upstairs and said, 'I am not well enough to finish the washing; I must go to bed. My back is terrible today.' I asked if there was anything I could do for her." Ralph smiled at the idea of Ethel's doing anything for a sick person. "She said she would be all right after she had a good sleep. Sleep always did her more good than any medicine."

"I believe I had better call the doctor," said Ralph.

"She said positively that she did not want one, so I suppose we can not insist unless she does not improve." Ethel sat helplessly looking out of the window.

"In the meantime, what about dinner?" asked Ralph.

"You had better go downtown and get something. I can not leave her alone, so I will get something here. I am not hungry, anyway. I have been so worried all the morning."

"That will never do. Suppose you go up and see if she is asleep. If she is she will be all right. If she isn't, you tell her you are going out to get some dinner. I wonder if she wants anything to eat." Ralph paced the floor.

"Wouldn't it be awful if she was sick here and I had to see to her as well as the house," gasped Ethel.

"Oh, she would have to go to the hospital. We could not have her here," was the decisive answer.

Ethel reported that the maid was sound asleep and snoring heavily. There seemed to be no reason why she could not go with Ralph to the hotel and get some dinner.

"You will need it," he said. "You may have an anxious afternoon. If she wakes up and is no better insist upon calling the doctor. I shall see him tonight myself if she is not on the mend."

Mrs. Pearson slept heavily all the afternoon and was so drowsy in the evening that Ralph could not arrive at any definite conclusion about her condition.

"Let it go till morning," suggested Ethel, "and if she is not decidedly better that will settle it." And so it was decided.

The first thing they heard in the morning was the woman moving about at work.

"It's Pearson in the kitchen," exclaimed Ethel delightedly.

To their anxious inquiries about her health she said that she felt better and by taking things easy for a day or so she thought she would pull out all right. She looked haggard and very ill, but she pluckily kept to work and by the end of the week she seemed herself again.

"I wonder what could have been the matter with her," said Ethel. "I never saw any one get up so quickly who was really sick. She must have a very strong constitution, and she is certainly plucky. She never wants anything said about her illness."

"If she ever has another attack like it I shall call the doctor whether she wants me to or not," was Ralph's answer.

Household Hints

CRABAPPLES MAKE EXCELLENT DISHES

Crabapple Jelly—Wash the apples and cut out all imperfections. Then put them in the preserving kettle, cover with water, and cook until the apples are very soft. Pour into a strainer, and drain, but do not squeeze them unless to press very lightly, or the jelly will not be so clear. Measure the juice, and to each pint add a pint of sugar, wash the kettle, replace the juice, and boil until it thickens. Skim frequently while it is boiling. To try the jelly, dip a spoonful out in a saucer. If boiled enough it will become firm in a few moments. If the apples are not very sour, use a little less sugar.

Crabapple Preserves—The apples may be halved, or quartered, and the cores removed, or preserved whole. For this purpose the most perfect apples should be selected, as those from which the imperfections may be removed are quite as good for jelly. Boil them in clear water, or steam them, until tender, but not broken or mushy. If the apples are steamed use the water they are cooked in; if boiled, skim them out carefully. Add to the water three-fourths pound of sugar to a pound of fruit. Put in the apples as soon as the syrup boils clear, which will take but a few minutes, and cook two or three minutes, then can.

Crabapple Jam—This is very nice for cake filling, or sauce, and is a "saving," as the apples from which the juice has been drained for jelly are used. Sift them through a fine colander, to remove all seeds, cores, etc., add a cup of sugar to a cup of the fruit, and a little water if necessary, and cook slowly, taking care that it does not scorch. Can as usual.

Crabapple Pickles—Steam or boil the apples as for preserves. Drain in a colander. The water may be used for making jelly or jam. Make a syrup of two pounds of sugar, to a quart of vinegar, less if the pickles are not wanted extra sweet, adding a spoonful of different spices tied in a thin cloth bag. Put the apples in a jar, or jars, and pour the syrup over them boiling hot. Very nice with or without the spices.

Crabapple Pie—Put the apples on with just water enough to cover them. Press through a colander, sweeten to taste, and bake with two crusts, flavoring with nutmeg or cinnamon, or bake with one crust with strips of pastry across, or frost or sprinkle thick with sugar after the pie is baked. This is very nice sweetened with sweet cream.

RECIPES

Pears in Syrup—Twelve pears, two cups sugar, two cups water, juice and pulp of one orange, the same of half a lemon. Put water and sugar on to boil. Boil five minutes. Pare and core the pears, put into boiling syrup and boil until tender. Cover while boiling, add orange and lemon juice when nearly done, as they will keep several days, enough for two or three meals can be prepared at once.

Graham Gems—One cup graham flour, one-half cup white flour, three teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, two tablespoons sugar, one tablespoon molasses, four of butter, one egg, one and one-third cups sweet milk. Sift white flour and baking powder into bowl, add graham flour, salt, sugar, molasses, butter, egg well beaten and milk. Stir well for two minutes. Have gem pans well heated and bake twenty minutes.

Cookies—Two cups sugar, one cup butter, two eggs, one cup sour cream, one teaspoon soda, two teaspoons baking powder, four cups flour, one-half teaspoon salt, nutmeg to suit the taste. Cream sugar and butter, add salt, nutmeg and cream with soda dissolved in stir. Now add flour with baking powder sifted together, using a little more flour for rolling; roll as thin as can be handled; dust with sugar; bake in moderate hot oven.

More Economical to Buy Power

Public Service Electric Co.,
Trenton, N. J.
Dear Sirs:

We have now been using your electric power for our Trenton factory for the past five years.

During this time we have had exceptionally good service, due to the fact that a sufficient amount of power is always available for increased needs at all times.

We have found this more economical than to operate our power plant and consider it gives us a more satisfactory condition, as we can devote our entire attention to manufacturing watches.

Yours truly,
ROBT. H. INGERSOLL & BROS.
(Sgd.) Geo. F. Eberhard,
Manager.

There are 27 items of expense that should be included in the cost of operating a power generating plant, but an accurate account of operating even a small plant must include the following twelve items:

Wages, Fuel, Water, Oil, Waste and Packing, Cost of Removing Ashes, Repairs, Insurance (fire and boiler), Interest, Depreciation, Taxes on Plant, Rental Value of Space, Superintendence (the time that you or other high-priced men give to purchasing supplies, watching economical operation and supervising the plant.)

Interest should be figured at from 10 per cent. to 20 per cent., the rate the money would earn if invested in your business.

Investment and operating costs must necessarily be figured in the expenses of a private power plant.

—Yet what do they profit you?

Numerous tests have proved that 27 per cent. to 75 per cent. (usually 50 per cent. and over) of all the power used in an engine-and-belt-drive factory is wasted through friction losses.

—That there is an under-production in output of 10 per cent. to 19 per cent. due to belt-slippage and fluctuation in load.

—That 50 per cent. to 80 per cent. of the investment in a private power plant is non-productive because the average load in a factory varies from 50 per cent. (seldom greater) to less than 20 per cent. of the total connected load.

Because of these facts and the low cost of purchased power, a large number of manufacturers have found it more profitable to shut down their respective power plants.

—And they are now among the more than 10,000 power users who are purchasing power from our great system of 22 generating stations and 61 sub-stations.

Why not know whether you can increase your profits by purchasing our power. Let us make tests without cost to you.

AMATEUR GOLF NEWS.

For those who enjoy watching good golf without any title at stake will be offered an opportunity tomorrow afternoon if they will take a trip to the course at Garden City, where the metropolitan open championship is to be played the following day and Friday. As a preliminary affair amateur-professional foursomes are scheduled with some of the Eastern amateurs in action and a strong field of professionals. Max Marston is matched with Tom McNamara, Jerome Travers with George Low, John G. Anderson with Tom Kerrigan and Mortimer Barnes with Jack Hobens. It is expected also that Gilbert Nichols, the present open metropolitan champion, Wilfred Reid, Louis Tellier, formerly with the Canoe Brook Club, and Michael J. Brady will have amateur partners for these special rounds. It will be interesting golf and give some slight idea at least of how they are shaping up for the tourney title play the next day.—Newark News.

WRESTLING AS A SPORT.

We have devotees of all kinds of sport residing in this city. There are many followers of baseball, football, tennis, golf and wrestling. Those who follow the last-named branch of sporting endeavor are not in great numbers here, but they are an enthusiastic set and have in their ranks many competent men. Eddie Gunzelman is a good wrestler and has a following. There are others, too, who have made this sport important locally.

SUNDAY BASEBALL.

Ross Ebbets, of the Brooklyn baseball team, is one of the very few magnates who favor letting the fan have something to say. Ebbets believes that if the fan wants Sunday baseball, he has a right to have it. And he has. If a number of citizens want the same thing, they usually get it. Now, there are many fans who would like to see Sunday baseball in Brooklyn. These fans are willing to vote for what they want. But they have not been given the chance to do the voting. That's not fair. But if baseball on Sunday is going to interfere with one's religious duties one had better give up baseball.

YANKEE SERIES ON.

The Yanks burst into their "crooeial" series yesterday, skidded around a corner, blew a tire, ran into Cleveland and subsided with a 3 to 2 defeat. It disturbed their calculations, likewise their equanimity, as was evidenced by Nunamaker's banishment and Bill Donovan's torrid conversation with Umpire O'Loughlin in the sixth inning. It was to have been a double-header, but the grounds were wet, so the overtime work will begin today and continue to Thursday. At that, though, the Yanks still have the same shaky grip on first place that Carranza holds on the Mexican leadership.

OPEN CHAMPIONSHIP PLAY.

Entrants in the metropolitan open golf championship who played in the tourney at Fox Hills last year will probably find the going harder than they did a year ago. It is the first time the open has been held over the Long Island course, and though many of the entrants will have played there before, it will, of course, be strange to some. Even for those who played in the national open held recently over the Minikahda course at Minneapolis will find more trouble. The Long Island links are well trapped and offer a test severer than most of the popular courses.

BASEBALL BITS.

Roy Hartzel did fairly well for a "sub" in the Yankee "series" yesterday.

PRESS AMATEUR DEPARTMENT

Eddie Gunzelman is a wrestler of ability. What's more, Eddie is an amateur. At the carnival on Monday night, Eddie was induced to try to stay five minutes with Joe Marciewcz, the Polish champion of the World. Joe is holding forth with the Frank West Athletic Show, and is a powerfully built boy from Utica, N. Y. Gunzelman is considerably smaller than the Polish fellow, and consequently could not stay the required five minutes. Nevertheless, Eddie showed that he is "there."

John Newell, they say, is almost as good a pitcher as his older and more experienced brother. John is a student at Plainfield High School and is considered quite an athlete. The Pans have first call to John's services, but the Shamrocks also claim him as their own.

Frank Brennan is still with the Tabs. A look at the lineup would not establish the fact, for Frank does not always get into the game. There is no apparent reason why he should be kept out of the fray. He can hit and is a good fielder. As a pitcher, he has few equals. He does not prefer the mound, however, and is content to do his hurling from the outer works.

Did you see Sidney Butler knock down those cats at the carnival the other night? We did. Sidney hit so many cats that the man at the stand had to call a halt. It appeared as thought "But" had already collected several "two-bit" prizes when we came around. The Royal flinger would not state to just what extent he pitched, but it is known that several cats are minus two or three of their lives.

Somebody ran off with the score of the Royal Giants game with Westfield Saturday. No one professes to know anything about the details of the game and it has been impossible for the Royals to locate the man with the facts. The Westfield team went down to defeat and it appears as though they do not wish the public to know to just what extent they fell.

Batteries for today's game—O'Keefe and Sacher. That's the international duo.

CARLSTROM HITS.

Albin Carlstrom had a big day at the stick in Buffalo Monday, when he made four hits in two games and his Buffalo team trimmed the Newark Internationals twice. In the first game Carlstrom got a triple and a brace of singles, scored two runs and assisted twice. In the second chapter he hit safely once, scored one run and made three assists.

ICE CREAM FESTIVAL.

BASEBALL

Pitcher Arellanes, once quite a heaver with the Red Sox, is pitching 18-K stuff for the Vernon team of the Pacific Coast League.

The distance between New London and Bridgeport by rail isn't so great, but in the Eastern League standing it's some journey.

Catcher Doeppe (pronounced Dopey) has been givn the gate by the Charlotte North Carolina League club. The greatest backstopper in the world would find that name a great handicap.

Josh Devore, the former National League star, who started the season with Milwaukee, has been sold to the Topeka Western League club.

About time to start building another bridge across the East river for the accommodation of the crowds anxious to see the world's series between the Robins and Yanks.

Two Cuban players, Palmero, the former Giant, and Luque, formerly of the Braves, are now members of the same team, the Louisville Colonels.

The Pittsbrgh Pirates have tried out enough rookies to whip Mexico, but Smokingham still has to depend on two fine old gentlemen, Wagner and Hinchman, to deliver the wallops.

Evidently it doesn't matter who does the piloting or what class of players makes up the team, the Cincinnati Reds remain the same old pennant winners in the spring.

Patrons of the Braves' games in Boston are presented with cards on which are printed the words of "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

Nap Lajoie still looks good around the middle cushion, even though he is pastiming between the sensational Witt and the rapid first sacker, McInnis.

If Larry Doyle is going to do any leading of the National League swatters this year now is the time for the Gotham captain to get busy.

"Home Run" Baker is slowly crawling up among the American League batting leaders. If the Trappe hitsmith can continue the good work the Yanks are going to be considerable team to beat.

Pitcher Knetzer of the Reds just managed to get into the list of pitchers who have won or lost fewer than five games. He has lost four and won none.

Baron von Kolnitz jumped in after a long layoff and is now delivering excellent pastiming for the Chicago White Sox.

No, big leaguers have no interest in the game other than pulling down their salaries—except a keen desire to win that sometimes leads to a free-for-all fight on the field.

Manager John McGraw of the Giants says the Detroit Tigers will win the American League pennant, while Hughey Jennings, boss of the Tigers, picks the Giants to cop the National League emblem. Neither of these two old pals ever overlooks a chance to boost the other's team.

ABSTAINERS CONSULT YANKEE REMEDY

Tab Scouts Visit Polo Grounds in Effort to Locate "Jinx."

The Tabs have an alert press agent. He is always on hand with "copy" and this is what he submitted to us this morning. The letter speaks for itself. Here it goes:

"On Monday, 'Kid' Brennan and 'Dutch' Blimm, the former one of the Tabs crack players and the latter a faithful rooter, went to the great metropolis to see the Yankees play. 'Kid' admits that he knows a lot about baseball, but he also admits that he learned a thing or two on Monday. Now, the Tabs have been playing good ball in the City League games, but their work on Sundays has not been such as to bring joy to Manager Jim Scott. Therefore, Mr. Brennan and his manager have had a conference and have laid deep plans for future Sunday games. Many other Tabs are contemplating visits to big league games in the future. Art Kyle, Tone and Jack Denny, Pat Snyder and 'Red' Cline are among the many who are going this week."

The above comes under the head of a "news item." It is probably that, but we fail to see where Brennan's visit can be of much service to his manager. The Tabs know enough about baseball and how it should be played. They have the players, but there is something wrong—something that neither "Kid" Brennan nor "Dutch" Blimm can locate. Perhaps, it's the "seventh point."

LENOX LEAGUERS HINDERED BY UNIFORMS HEBREWS ANNEXING AN EASY VICTORY

Friedman Outpitches Sullivan in Exciting Duel—Jewish Lads Advance Considerable—Standing of League Teams.

The Hebrews and the Lenox A. C. had a little conflict on Parker Field yesterday, the former lads winning the contest, 6 to 3. The defeat was the third straight one for the uniform lads, and marked the second victory for the Jewish fellows.

Joe Friedman was a puzzle to the Lenox batters, allowing them only four hits, all of which were singles. Billy Sullivan was not hit hard by the Hebrews and deserved to win the game. In view of the fact that the Hebrews made seven errors and only five hits, it is quite remarkable that they won the game. With the willow, Issacson, Epstein and Connolly were right on deck.

ROYALS WANT TO MEET LEAGUE CHAMPS AT CLOSE OF PRESENT LEAGUE SEASON

Pete Simmons Would Present Purely Local Team—Has Formidable Array of Talent—Game Wanted for Saturday.

Peter Simmons, who has taken over the Royal Giants, is scouting for a game for Saturday. Pete has a fast bunch of players and other managers know it. That's the only reason Pete can assign for his inability to arrange games. If there is any manager of either a local or out of town team, who does not believe that the Royals have the goods, that manager is the one Mr. Simmonds seeks.

The Royals have an unusually strong force this year and have three pitchers. One of these is Sidney Butler, a youthful flinger, who has been a complete puzzle to most of the batters that faced him. Then there is "Senor" Maiden, who can pitch if he is needed, and "Tune" Kline, who would rather play ball than eat. When not doing mound duty Kline and Maiden are allowed to pastime in the outer works, although Kline is at present doing first base duty. Paul Coleman is also one of the team's outfielders. Pete Simmons plays second, with Barnes on short. Falls and Condict, both new men, but both residents of this city, are also members of the team. Foster Kline, another youthful star, has signed up with the Royals.

Manager Simmons authorized the announcement that he would be glad to get the chance to lead his team against any of the City League teams after the league season is over. Simmons did not state officially just what teams he would like to meet, but it is thought that he means "all of the league outfits." Regarding a challenge for the title of "City Champions" Pete said little, but intimated that if his boys were given a chance to annex that honor, he would see to it that every man on the team was a resident of this city. If Pete does this, there is no reason under the sun why his challenge should be rejected.

ARCOLA FORFEITED TO PLAINFIELD

Local Women Awarded Victory Over Arcola Golfers in "Met" Tourney.

Baltusrol and Montclair were the only clubs in the metropolitan district which conducted the scheduled matches for women yesterday in the sectional golf tournaments, which are being conducted by the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association. Six matches were scheduled and the others were defaulted.

The Hollywood players journeyed to the Baltusrol course to engage the women of that club, and were defeated by 5 to 0. The summary follows:

BALTUSROL.

Mrs. F. Prpynn	2
Mrs. W. J. Sage	3
Mrs. F. P. Nash	0
Mrs. Muller	0

The women representing the Englewood Country Club made the trip to Montclair, and were rewarded by a 6 to 1 victory over the Montclair team. The summary follows:

ENGLEWOOD.

Miss G. M. Bishop	2
Miss J. S. Irving	3
Miss E. Pickhardt	1
Miss G. S. Wood	0
Total	6

MONTCLAIR.

Mrs. F. R. Donahue	0
Mrs. R. B. Ness	0
Mrs. J. Noyes	0
Mrs. H. G. Templon	1

SCOUT COMPETITION AT CAMP CONDICT

Athletic Events of All Sorts to Feature Program Tomorrow.

Athletic events will feature the competition day program to be given at Camp Condict on Thursday by the boys of Troop 12 of Hope Chapel. On that day, before many visitors, track sports will be given prominence. There will be a one hundred-yard dash and a fifty-yard dash, also running broad and high jumps. Medals and ribbon prizes will be awared to the winners in each event. Two valuable silver cups will be awarded, one of them being given to the scout who demonstrates his superiority in first aid work. One of the cups was donated by A. L. Palmer. Prizes of scout equipment of various kinds will be awarded to the winners and runnersup in the athletic contests.

The torrid weather interfered with the schedule of events at the camp yesterday morning, but things were running according to the routine today. Scout examinations for swimming were held and the following eight boys passed the required test, which is by no mean a "cinch" and demonstrates that the boys are physically fit: A. Robins, T. Fitch, R. Hunt, J. Anderson, H. Gray, H. Penn, J. Campbell and W. Snyder. Assistant Scoutmaster John Richards has been sworn in as banking assistant, and he has already stored away over eighty-five dollars for the boys. The bank, which is known as the "Camp Condict Trust Company," is a decided success.

At an election held shortly after the arrival of the troop at the camp, Herbert Penn was chosen mayor, defeating Jack Rimmer. Bill Peterson was elected "goat," and William Snyder defeated A. Graves in the campaign for the honor of being known as the "pigtail."

RALPH STROUD MAY BE MULLIN'S MATE

Former Giant Refuses to Join American Association and May Play Independently.

Ralph Stroud, the former New York Giant pitcher, who was recently sold to Louisville, will probably be added to Pfau's stable of pitchers today. Stroud refuses to report to Louisville and is said to anxious to pitch for Pfau at Washington on Saturdays. In case Rahway threatens to get too close in their seven game series, Stroud will get a chance to hold them down. Pfau is in Dover, N. J., today for a conference with Stroud.

"Red" Grimes' work at short stop in Sunday's game against New London was a surprise to a great many of the fans. "Red's" crippled arm didn't interfere in the least with his fast handling of the position. The beauty of his work at short was that he took time for his throws to first and was not erratic. Unless Pfau is able to locate a good shortstop he says he will keep Grimes regularly at short. Wyckoff is out of the game for the balance of the season with his fractured wrist.

SETTLE MACHINISTS' TROUBLE.

Hugh V. Reilly, business agent for District 47, International Association of Machinists, reported today that the trouble which has been existing between the union and the Krueger Brewing Company, of Newark, has been settled to the satisfaction of all parties concerned.

LIVELY VOTING FOR QUEEN OF CARNIVAL

Record-Breaking Crowd Enjoys Many Attractions at K. of C. Affair.

Voting in the Knights of Columbus Queen of the Carnival contest is still very close, and the young women have made a creditable showing during the few days they have been enrolled. To show their appreciation of the splendid efforts of the young women, the Knights have purchased an additional prize which will be given to the contestant receiving the most votes tomorrow. These votes must be in the ballot boxes at the business houses by 5 p. m., and at the Queen contest booth on the grounds by 11 p. m.

The vote up to date is as follows: Miss Florence Hogan, 12,296; Miss Lillian Coffey 11,113; Miss Katherine Regan, 10,903; Miss Kittie Conshay, 10,515; Miss Ethel Brown, 9,578, and Miss Delhia Burke, 8,347.

Another record breaking crowd was on hand last night and all the attractions were well patronized. Persons desiring to go to the grounds may reach them by taking the westbound Union car and getting off at Front and Clinton avenues.

BRITISH REGAIN GROUND LOST TO GERMANS AND HOLD A LINE RUNNING DUE EAST AND WEST

FRENCH IN POSSESSION OF SIMILAR POSITION FOR ATTACK ON TEUTON FORCES—TWO ATTACKS MADE ON CONTALMAISON REPULSED.

BANKS OF MEUSE SCENE OF FIERCE STRUGGLES

Capture of Two Guns Manufactured in 1847 Indicates Kaiser's Shortage in Ammunition—British Have Recovered Even More Than They Lost in Manetz Wood—French Now in Position to Attack South of Belloy-en-Santere and Estrees.

London, July 13.—Fighting continues as fierce as that in the earlier stages of the seige along the Meuse today and an artillery bombardment is now in progress scarcely less desperate than the battle on the Somme. British forces are bearing the brunt of the fighting west of Peronne, north of the Somme, and have recovered even more than they lost in Mametz Wood, being in possession of the whole wood, according to today's official statement.

The ground lost to the Germans has been retaken by the British and the latter have repulsed two attacks launched against Contalmaison by the Germans. This gives the British a line running almost due east and west, so that the Germans to the north can be attacked on the flank when their guns are brought up for the second phase of the operations.

South of the river the French are in a position somewhat similar to the British, and can also attack the German flank south of Belloy-en-Santers and Estrees. The Anglo-French offensive is maintaining itself as rigorously as ever against the most determined attacks which the Germans are now delivering. The Germans have thrown reinforcements into the breach, having had ample time to recover from the first shock.

London, July 13.—On the French portion of the Somme front no important fighting has been reported from Paris in forty-eight hours, but Berlin claims that a strong French attack south of the Somme was repulsed.

An unusual incident reported by Reuter's correspondent at British headquarters is the capture of two German field guns bearing the date of 1874. The correspondent suggests that this may mean the Germans are beginning to find themselves in straits for armament and are bringing out old pieces which before the war had been retired as ineffective.

General Sir Douglas Haig in a brief bulletin today recounts the recovery by the British of all the ground lost in the Mametz wood. The British commander tells also of the repulse of two heavy German attacks against Contalmaison, and of steady progress by his forces in the Trones wood, the scene of much heavy and desperate fighting during the past few days.

Berlin, July 13.—Battling of the most desperate nature is oing on along the front in Picardy, but the only news available here is that contained in the German official bulletin.

The German correspondents at headquarters are studying the bulletins as industriously as the neutral correspondents in Berlin, and are producing about as little independent news of the big offensive.

Members of General Von Falkenhayn's staff arriving directly from headquarters could give only a general idea of the furious nature of the fighting confirming the English press reports in this respect, and of the British losses, particularly in the northern sector of the front.

Paris, July 13.—"On the Somme front there was nothing to report during the course of the day," says today's official bulletin. Unofficial reports say General Foch's troops are still busy getting ready for their next move. The report continues, regarding Verdun:

"About 10 o'clock, after intense artillery preparation, a strong attack with effectives of six regiments debouched from the Village of Fleury and the Vaux and the Chapitre Woods.

J. R. HALL SUCCUMBS TO LINGERING ILLNESS

Was Native of England and Had Lived in This Country Many Years.

Joseph R. Hall, father of Bradley S. Hall, of Fairview avenue, the borough, died last night following a lingering illness. Mr. Hall was born in England seventy-three years ago and came to this country when a young man, locating in Brooklyn. Seven years ago he came to Plainfield and then for a time lived at Cranford. During the last three years, however, he has resided with his son in the borough.

Mr. Hall led a retired life for the last three years, but prior to that was treasurer for the J. Walter Thompson Advertising Company, of New York.

Beside the son with whom he lived, he is survived by one other son and three daughters. These are Henry Hall, of Norwood avenue; Mrs. Chas. C. Western, of East Second street; Mrs. Albert Burley, of Cranford, and Mrs. Ida M. Western, of Newark. There are also four sisters, Misses Ettie and Amy Hall, of Brooklyn; Mrs. Mary Salesbury, of Campbellford, Canada, and Mrs. Charlotte Chamacho, of Mexico City, Mexico. The funeral will be held from the Fairview avenue residence tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock, and the service wil be in charge of Rev. H. St. G. Burrill, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross. Interment will be in Fairview cemetery, Westfield.

HEBREW SCHOOL CLOSED.

In order to help the Board of Health as much as possible in its work to prevent infantile paralysis from getting in the city, the directors of the Hebrew school on New street decided at a meeting held last night to close the school until all danger of an epidemic is over. In order that the teaching staff may not suffer from the inactivity the directors decided to pay them half their regular salary while the school is closed and to do this ask that Hebrews throughout the city co-operate as much as possible.

Ruth Colthar of Duer street, has returned home after spending a week in Middle Valley and Clinton.

UNITED STATES LIFTS ON FOOD SHIPMENTS

General Jacinto Trevino Will Desert Carranzitsa Forces.

Washington, July 13.—The embargo on food shipments into Mexico has been lifted, but that on munitions of war still continues.

El Paso, July 13.—General Jacinto Trevino, commander-in-chief of Caranza's northern army, with headqaurters at Chihauhau City, will cast in his fortunes with Villa and fight his old chief.

This is the report received here today by General Bell and forwarded by him to the War Department. He will take this action, it is said, because orders have been issued by Carranza and Obregon, deposing him and scattering his staff.

Today it is reported that the Villa army, constantly augmented, has moved to within a few miles of Paral and an attack on the town within a few hours is anticipated.

DISTRIBUTE CIRCULARS ABOUT INFANTILE PARALYSIS

The Board of Health is maintaining a vigilant watch on the arrival of all persons from out of the city, and is strictly enforcing the health code. Contrary to the many rumors heard, the board reported this afternoon that there is not a single case of infantile paralysis in this city. Unusual precautions are being taken to keep in touch with every section of Plainfield and the police as well as every physician is keeping a lookout for even the slightest suspicion of a case.

J. C. Price, director of the State Board of Health, announced yesterday that the State would not declare a quarantine against New York city. He said that the State would leave that to the local authorities and each locality could be guided by its own needs. An order has been issued by the State Board directing all health officers in the State to make daily reports of new cases and deaths from infantile paralysis.

NEW TESTS FOR JERSEY SOLDIERS

Government Orders More Exacting Physical Examinations for All Men.

MAY SEND SOME BACK

A Number Have Already Developed Ailments—Still Raining Heavily—Mud Knee Deep—Paper Correspondents Barred.

Hearquarters First Brigade, N. G. N. J., Douglas, Ariz., July 13.—The Federal government has decided on a minute physical examination of all New Jersey National guardsmen, except officers who already have been passed by regular army surgeons. The examinations will begin today by a corps of surgeons under Major J. A. Robins of the U. S. Medical Corps. All of the New Jersey unit, with the exception of the recruits, were given a physical examination at Sea Girt, but this will be the real mustering-in examination, and those who fail to pass will be invalided home.

The work will take a week or more. Already a number of men here who were passed at Sea Girt by National Guard surgeons have developed old ailments and several are slated to go home. It is expected that possibly five per cent. of the men and perhaps a few officers may be sent home. This reopens the criticism against the government for rushing the guard to the border without a federal muster-in-in examination. It will cost the government more than $100, plus subsistence pay, for every guardsman hauled here and back.

It is still raining heavily, the storm being the most severe in years. The camp is one great sea of mud. The men are weary of trenching. All the horse lines have been moved to the opposite side of the camp to get them out of the mire. The shortage of extra clothing among the troops is causing more discomfort and there are numerous minor cases in the hospitals.

The War Department yesterday ordered that no officer or enlisted men mention any military matters or troop movements in their personal correspondence and none may write for newspapers. The order was issued to the camp by General Edwin W. Hine.

Inoculations against smallpox and typhoid are being finished, the men being given the second treatment of the latter serum. Dr. Harry Orton, of the First Regiment, inoculated three companies in fifty-eight minutes today, this being a record.

The government has failed to supply the necessary additional draft horses, and two regiments are without horses, except officers' mounts, their supply wagons being hauled about by fifty men or motors. We still are losing a few horses daily.

Many Eastern physicians of the United States Reserve Corps are being called to te base hospital at Fort Bliss, El Paso, where arrangements have been made to care for thousands. Some of our physicians may be given an opportunity to serve there on detail while reserve men fill their places here. Every precaution has been taken against medical needs in this district. The local hospital has been thrown open to the New Jersey surgeons, who are assisting in operating there.

Private Clinton L. Nelson of Troop C, has been appointed by General Hine as brigade veterinarian. His commission as a second lieutenant is expected in a few days.

Lieutenant Colonel George T. Vickers, Fourth Regiment, was visited yesterday by the officers of Troops A and C. He is the first Jersey trooper who has risen to the command of a regiment in the field.

George W. Knight, supervising engineer for the Board of Education, a member of one of the Newark troops, and Morton Huttenloch, also a trooper from Newark, are laying out camp drainage in the mounted section, acing with Captain Claude E. Lanterman of Battery A.

DISORDERLY AT CARNIVAL.

George Heflernan took too much of the "cup that cheers" last night and then went to the carnival grounds on West Front street. He was arresed by Sergeant Saffron and when arraigned in the City Court this morning, charged with being disorderly, using profane language and resisting arrest, Judge William G. DeMeza fined him $20 or sixty days in the County Jail. Lewis Tollin will be arraigned on the same charge.

SEASON'S HOTTEST DAY.

According to the thermometer at the State Trust Company today is the hottest of the year, when the mercury reached 94 degrees at 1 o'clock this afternoon. At 9 o'clock this morning the thermometer was 84 and two hours later it was 90, vesterday's highest mark at this point.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Frank Coriell, of 211 West Fifth street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Lucie Coriell, to Allan W. Layton son of Mr. and Mrs. P. N. Layton, of 1009 West Front street. No date has been set for the wedding.

—That funny fellow Scoop is on the classified page.

JAIL SENTENCES FOR TWO HOLY JUMPERS

Women Sent to Elizabeth Today by City Judge DeMeza—May Take Appeal.

Because they insisted once more in defying the police department of Plainfield to arrest them, two members of the Pillar of Fire cult, Levine Leach, aged 61, and Laura Wilson, aged 29, are this afternoon confined in the county jail at Elizabeth, beginning a sentence of seven days. Judge William G. DeMeza sentenced them this morning to serve that period and to pay a fine of $20 each, which will in all likelihood be substituted with a ten days' sentence in addition to the seven days, it being the practice of the sect not to pay fines.

Patrolman George Muir arrested the couple when they attempted to conduct a street meeting in front of the postoffice one night two weeks ago, ignoring a city ordinance providing a permit for all such street demonstrations. In court this morning the women were represented by former Mayor G. W. V. Moy and the city's case was carried by Assistant Corporation Counsel Walter L. Heifield. Witnesses for the prosecution, including Muir, Mayor Leighton Calkins and Firemen John Guinee and William Guab, testified that the meeting was in progress when the patrolman made the arrest and that there were about sixty people in the immediate vicinity at the time.

Attorney Moy intimated during the proceedings that he intended making a test case out of the matter, claiming that the ordinance under which the two were apprehended is unconstitutional. The defense produced no witnesses and cross-examined none of those who appeared for the prosecution.

Mr. Moy contends that under the State constitution there has been an abridgement of his client's rights, that the ordinance under which a permit was denied them to hold a street meeting is a bad one because it gives the Mayor unwarranted power. He also attacked that legality of the ordinance on the grounds that the City Council minutes do not show that it was adopted by a majority of the Council according to law. The minutes produced in court show that all present voted aye but does not indicate a majority of the Council.

MOTORCYCLE AND AUTO IN COLLISION

Samuel Harris, Jr., Severely Injured in Accident on New Market Road.

Samuel Harris, Jr., son of Mr and Mrs. Samuel Harris, of Center street, Dunellen, suffered injuries to his hip and ankle late yesterday afternoon when the motorcycle which he rode collided with an automobile at the corner of Vail avenue and New Market road, Dunellen. The young man was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital after receiving treatment from Dr. M. J. Whitford, of Dunellen. At the hospital it was learned that his condition was very good and it was impossible to ascertain whether or not any bones were broken, at the present time.
